JULY 3.

There was a superb Nautch given /9 Monday night, the 30th ultimo, by HURLY-MOHUNTAGORE and LADLEYMOHUN TAGORI. at the garden residence of the latter in Beerparab, upper Circular Road; and notwithstanding the rather formidable distance of the restive scene from Calcutta, there was a brilliant and numerous assemblage of beauty and fashion. The idea usually particular, with the word Nautch, would a priori impress them with the notion of a lerge dull chamber and two or three squalling figurantes on the floor, exhibiting before a few drousy Mofussulites, lulled to taciturnity by the mumuring monotony of their own hookas. It was a different thing 1st Battalion 8th Regiment, Brevet Capt. quite at Lapter Mohun Tagord's House, Burney,—from 1st June to 1st Deceme of Mirth. There no drowsiness or heaviness was to be seen; though we must confess, that the length of the drive had rather a soporific tendency. That, however, began gradually to disappear, as the lighter that fringed the road side which led to the man-sion, promised that the journey would soon have a happy end. We shill not detain our readers at the gate of splendour through which we passed into the grounds, not overpower them with a description of the illuminated arch that surmounted it, much less describe the features of the Aicadian landscape that reposed beyond, nor of the groupes which wandered through the light besprinkled groves. No-we drive up at once to the terrace, and enter the mansion. Within, all was effingence, and had the author of Lallah Rookh been present we doubt not but we should have several 103y paragraphs, some of which would attubute the binst of splendour, which dazzled the spectator, not to the influence of such common-place things as lamps and topers, but to the glorious illurination of the star-bright eyes which beamed their witchery around.

The company reclined on couches, or seated upon chairs, viewed the minstiels mat ravished the senses in the midst of the grand area of the hall, or else promenaded round, visiting the adjoining rooms in the pruses of the music. To describe the mellifluous strains that flowed from the ruby lips of the daughters of Cecilia, who exhibited their personal and vocal chaims, 'nothing loath' is impossible. We know not the names of the Sucas, but doubt not they stand high in the roll of Bengalee warblers. When we use the term Suens, let us not be misunderstood. Let it not be supposed by the courtous and albeit credulous reader, that three absolute Mer-maids exhibited their pretty faces, sported their fishy tails, and gave expression to the most enchanting notes of piscatory meledy, at the Beerparah Nautch. It is very necessary for us to enter this caveat, for we live in an age teeming with marvel lous exhibitions, and so familianzed have we become with nymphs of the sea and monsters from Olraga, that one is almost afraid of trampling by accident upon the tail of a fair daughter of the occan at a Ball, just as an absent man does sometimes upon the train of a young beauty of terra firma. Wheher the day is near when a Dandy may flirt in a corner with a Mermaid, without incurring the risk of that veracious gentleman Ulysses, is not for us to say; but sure we are, that were the

Almas who exhibited the other night at the Nautch, and the three circus who of old Nation, and the turce on the Sidhan coast, to appear together on the stage of the opera house in London, that John Ball would stare astonished as much at the Hindoostannee Sirens as the Sieilian ages Hindoostannee Stiens as the Strings over We have heard of a gentleman, when hearing the bagpipes for the first time is clared at the be most awful mining. The know any thing of physiognomy we grow perform something like the transfer of the fair visitors at Beorgaffal at the appearance of the same arrange. metely at the appearance of the vocalists, and their accompany have been always of opinion; that Bore is something peculiarly exquisite in the animo of Hindoostan; nor were air pleasure and of Hindoostan; nor were our passing a ticipations of its ravishing powers to least disappointed on Monday to Three churming daughters of Singular formed alternately. Miss Nickie will forgive we for this there. Miss Nickie will lorgive us for the allusion to her, but really after having once heard her, it will not be deemed, specialing that an expression of regret should drop from us at not hearing her again. Why was not Nickie there? We dare not answer this momentous question—we dare not raise the curtain which flimsily veils the musical world of Calcotta, and the hardway that prevails among the children of Apollo, so creditable to the sphere of saminference of the property of the property of the with Begum Jahn. element, interfered most enviously and rudely, and absolutely shed tears of vexa-action. In plain English, a shower of rain began to drizzle, which sent the ladies back to the spacious chamber whence the fireworks had tempted them. An excellent Supper and a variety of good wines, had been. prepared for the occasion, under the skilful superintendence of our celebrated Amphitryons, Gunter and Hooper. After supper the Band played some Quadrille tunes. The sympathy between these, and the heels of some of the company, was irresistible. The room by this time was not near so crouded as it had been in the early part of the evening, as the Native spectators had retired Indeed, the fireworks were still going on without, Thich detained them willing deutzens of the lawn.

Some short time afterwards the tashion-halles began to depart, and if we might judge from what we saw, and from a few cursory observations made in our hearing, all appeared bighly pleased with the politeness and hospitality of their kind and courteous native Entertainers Hurrymohun Tagore and Ladleymoyu'n Tagore. The festive scene had the boast of what may safely be called an unique feature in a Native entertainment—a quadrillo set, which had various interesting attractions to recommend it besides the chaim of novelty.

It is to be wished that the meeting of the Proprietors of the Chowinghee Theatre, advertised for the 5th instant, may be fully attended. We look forward to its deliberations with hope not unmixed with appechensions; for on the decision which mas be agreed upon at that meeting, will it depend whether the most delightful, most rational, and most improving of all recreations, is to be continued to the inhabitants of Calcutta or not. We anticipate a favorable result-for we can hardly believe that he only public amusement we have is to be aboushed is a matter of cold calculation, Rupees and Pice! Forbid it, good tasteforbid it, all claims to refinement and even to civilization. If the Theatre shall be knocked on the head, we may expect that those who reside at a distance will attribute . the unfortunate circumstance to cause that we should be sorry to hear reverted to. They will say, perhaps, that there is no appreciation of the beauties of diamatic poetry and scenic en-fertainments in Calcutta. If such should be asserted, all who know what Calcutta society really is, would feel at once that the charge were unjust. If there is a thorough and zealous theatrical taste in Calcutta then ; how is it that the theatric spirit has of late become apparently so languid! The fault, we are sure, rests not with the Proprieto's. They have already often manifested a liberal and a hand-ome spirit towards the establishment, and it is from a gratifying conviction of this that we anticipate the continuance of it There has, however, been a want of zeal somewhere. That is undeniable. A reform, therefore, is absolutely necessay—a Redical reform; and as the first step of it, we would again impress upon the mind of a certain esteemed friend, how much he would gratify all parties, were the to kindly comply with the wishess of the managing committee, and become the Atlas of our Diury, as he has for years been its ornament and boast. It we were not perfectly satisfied that his shoulders are broad enough for the burthen, our voice should not now be raised entreating of him to undertake the home department of the Theatre. We hereby call upon the Proprietors or any other person who may have a vote in the Historic Cabinet, to rally round the Theatre, thone. Should there be a Theatin debt, let our Theatrical Pittites establish a sinking fund ducctly, for that is an admurable remedy, as has been beautifully illustrated by the charming effect it has had on the national debt. Dark as is the Theatrie I horizon, and portentous is at the clouds that lower over the temple of the i rea, we look forward with hope and if our enticipations should proceeding of the pason to whom we have alluded hould uncortake to conduct the Theater of vessel safeher out of the ly into port, and to st slough of despond, the derk ocean of mud in which she now stie . we don't not but it will form an occasion of mairy fremph to the Theatural Beefstrak Club, who in the hour of grateful recollection and convivial exultation will place a cheering bumper "To the Pilot that neathered the Storm?"

We have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of the following sines in aid of the sufferers by the loss of the Naullock, and trust that the example set by the compassionate gentlemen who substribed the sums, of which an abstract is annexed, will be followed by others

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZUTTE.

Sir.-Those who have perused in the last number of the quarterly series of the "Friend of India" the Biography of the late Reverend William Waid, of the Serampore Baptist Missionary Establishment, will doubtless join in the universal sentiment of regret at his sudden and piemature death. I trust they will also unite with me in lamenting that no monumental honors have been paid in Calcutta to the memory of worth so emment, so deserving of such a tribute from this country. The zeal and indefatigable industry of this truly prous Christian, for the furtherance of Christianity in India is well known to all who have attended to the passing events around them for the last five and twenty years I flatter myself that my brethren the Native Christians of India, of every denomination, who are interested for the wetthe of our county, possess so much correct feeling, as to acknowledge its being creatly indebted to the deceased for his become and pious exertions, in conjuncs tion with his wor by colleagues, for enlightening the minds of our Heathen Conn'tymen, for improving their morals, and for promoting among them the propagation of the blessed Gospel I have therefore looked for asproposal of the nature I im now about to submit, leng brought forward to the consideration of my brethren through the medium of the public papers. The onussion has, I presume, proceeded generally from the same clust as the delay has, on my part. I mean, that each of my countrymen has probably thought of himself, as I do of myself, as being inadequate to the task, and hoping some one better qualified would undertake it - But no public measure could ever be effected without an effort to over-come such a feeling. In the absence there-fore of a fitter person, I have vertical on this address "with all my imperfections on my head," and propose that a handsome Cenotaph with an appropriate inscription to the memory of the deceased be erected in a conspicuous part of the Burrying Ground at this place, by a subscription to be raised among my brethren the Native Christians, and confined to them alone, because the deceased's labours were specifically directed to the benefit of our country: each person's subscription not to exceed One Gold Mohur, that a greater number may have the satisfaction of contributing towards the object. I shall be obliged by your giving this a place in your paper, and should my proposal be seconded through it, or any other paper, a meeting could be convened for the proposed purpose, and a Committee appointed to do the needful.

I trust it will not be urged agoinst the proposed measure, that the deceased was not a Minister of the Established Church, I am myself a Churchman, but I should feel unworthy of that name, did I not resepect worth and virtue wherever they are found.

I am, Sir.,
Your most obedient servant,
FEZINOS RICARDO

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

SIR,—As some of my friends appear to have forgot that part of our Catechism which enjoins, duty to our God, and duty to our neighbour, I will thank vou to insert the following lines in your doctissimus paper, they are not original, but still I recommend them to the liberal consideration of your admisers; for in all trades and professions, I conceive the labourer worthy of his hire;—

"In sickness then, though not before, God and the Doctor we alike adore; But sickness gone, and all things righted, God's forgot, and Doctor's ill requited."

Your most obedient servant,

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZFTTE. .

Sin,—Now that I have become President of the Tank School of Poetry. I do assured you I feel much interested in its proceedings. I was rather vexed therefore to observe that your correspondent Perrancer Fitz-Tank, gave you such a garbled account of the Election, and still more vexed to see that he unfitted giving a report of the speech made by me on the occasion. My name has also been grievously garbled; and your Printer, I am sorry to say, has misguided the public in stating, that I reside in No. 40, Cossitollah. I do not live therein, but near the west gate of Mi. Drummond's School, where-as also in my splendid Shop in Tank-Square, near St Andrew's Church, or any where else, I shall be happy to prove myself,

Sir.

The heat at Cawngone was felt to be very oppressive, and w regret to understand that the European Troops stationed there had suffered very much from sickness communication dated the 20th ultimo, states that the Lancers were losing their best men, almost daily, from the heat of the weather, and that they had sometimes upwagets of six men in the dead house at one 9. H. M. 59th had also lost some of the strongest men in the Regiment, who were carried off in a few hours by spasmodic attacks, or tatal cramps. They had nearly 200 men in hospital, and the cool breezes of the rains were anxiously looked for, in the hope of bringing " healing on their wings."

This benevolent example we trust will be followed by others. The ease of the widow and orphan children of the late Mr. J. Dir-LON the 2d Officer, is par reularly distressing, and worths of the prompt sympathy and aid of the compassionate. The condren who have been unfortunately bereaved of their parent by an accident to which scamen are too hable, are six in number, a boy and five gols, the eldest being only 11 years o . They are, by an unexpected stroke of a lamin left unite desitute and nelpless. We need hardly say then how acceptable the least measure of relief must be to the poor women and her little ones in their foriorn, but we hope not friendless, state, calculating as we do, upon the well known be us-ficence of our neighbours in this city

The case of the Orew is not so severe, since they can soon find employment and its comforts. At present, however, they have neither, and then pay, we learn, ceaed from the day the Ship was weeked. The sums that have already been subscribed, afforded the most seasonable relief to the pourmars, and were most gratefully ac-knowledged. We shall be happy to be made the channel of conveying further contributions to both classes of sufferers by the orgery, of late years, has prevailed to a rather startling extent in Calcutta. The increase of it may rationally be attributed to the encreasing population and opulence of the place, and to their usual attendants, a in mber of loose hangers on in the lower walks of soon tv.

Fig. anglese mable authority we learn, that a for all plot his just been finstrated, which it it had inpened on to success, would most lik is have been productive of most

There ilent Magistrate planned his measure, o well, that he in person surprised e gara, so the number, we believe, of about twenty two.km their den. Mr. A, it seems, had obtained correct information specing the movements of the forgers, and on Friday morning (if we recollect light) proceeded quietly with a Constable or two, to the fendezvous in an obscure quarter or the town. Having reached the house in which the work of villarmy was going on, the Mag strate and his attendants reconnoiteed, and, having made some neprem so car sever a different points. They causat the going in their den, and the artist on who eskall and advoitness of chirography the rest depended, was found, we beheve, with the graver in his hand. He is a country-horn, of the name of FRASIR, and, we under tand, a notonously bad character who Secretary, from which it appeared that H had; if a reworld seem, into the hands, the expenses of the year had exceeded the of a set of specularie Success, who resolved the expences of the year had exceeded the to be a circulate to a good account. They a conveng vit reshed him with considerwork via Among the articles siezed by Dr. M. g st. I e are for different sums-ranging genemy return to) Rupces, and 1000 Rupees. The presions crow even aimed at higher gone and essayed to mulate Government Poper. The botter to effect this, they had fond means to bing over one of the Compositors of the Government Press to these acsigns, who, duly instructed, stole a quantity of types from the Government Press. With the e and a movemble Press, they had been placusing mutations of Government Paper. The specimens lodged in the Police (where the stolen types also he) are still imported but with the activity and perseverance with appear on the face of these includes transactions altogether, would soon be sufficiently fit for the purposes of profitable deception. We have seen a piece of paper on which the signatures of several gentlemen connected with Government have been imitated in pencil; some of them extremely well. It is rather remarkable that the artist can hardly write his own name, from which it follows that he forges exactly as a Clinese Draughtsman copies a drawing, imitating the thing before him without any knowledge of the principles of the art. Had the gang been permitred by Fate to carry on their proceedings for a very few days longer -not only tho forged Bank Notes, but the forged Government paper, would have been brought into circulation, which could not but prove gilevously injurious to many persons engaged in money or transfer transactions. The detection of this conspiracy against property, and the apprehension of the conspirators is most satisfactory and highly creditable to the Police Establishment .more particularly the Magistrate whose name we have already mentioned. A few of the gang have escaped, and suspi-cious persons have absconded, but we are not without hopes of seeing them vet (and that ere long) in the keeping of justice. A

We have much satisfaction in stating, that some of our anticipations respecting Theatucal matters have turned out correct, as we trust the whole will by and bye. A meeting of the Proprietors of the Chowinghee Theatre was held at the Town Hall on Saturday, when a report of the proceedings since the last annual meeting was read by receipts by about 4000 Rupees. 5

It was not, however, deeme I necessary to nick any call on the Proprietors tor a contilbution to discharge the debts of the conceru, no v amounting to about Rupees 13,006; the expences of the establishment baving been materially acdueed, and there appearing fan grounds to hope for a more vigorous and successful theatrical campaign than the list. Mr B Roberts was elected to the Committee of Management in the room of Major Gilbert no longer a resident in Calcutta At the suggestion of one of the Members, the Managers were requested by the coneral body of Proprietors to solicit Mr. At son's valuable as ist-Fig. Every fire id of the Brama must auxiously desire that this solicitation maybe favorably received,—the conviction being ananmous, that without that gentleman's aid to revive the spirit of our Amateurs, and to direct the general economy of the Drama, we must bid adieu to Theatrical amusements in Calcutta

ected already, long as the interval might have been, between the pieces, did not cover. the expenses incidental to representation, and were, therefore, a loss to the concern.-Against such a forcible argument we have certainly little or nothing to urge—except a hope, that the gientest economy will be studied consistent with due scenic dignity cand splendour, behind the curtain; and the Theatre cherished by the h-beral support of full audiences before it. There is a branch of expence to which our economising remark particularly applies—we mean the Dress department. We have witnessed more than one instance, where there was unnecessary waste and costliness in this respect. One is fresh in our recollection, in which the splendom, or rather gaudiness, of the costume was by no means compensated for by the abilities or genius of the Amateur. Although the Ma-nagers in a spirit of gentlemanly libe-rality give, a carte blanche to Amateurs in matters of this kind, surely this liberality ought to be met by a correspondent deli-cacy on the other side, and in their rage to appear splended and line, Americars should not forget the interests of the Theatre.

All there is a decline of theatric spirit, where does the fault lie? There is no want of Amateurs we believe, but we do believe that Amateurs do not get due and genial encouragement and that they are sometimes liable to be harshly criticised. For aught we know, we may have erred ourselves in this point; but we are not conscious of having done so; for in our remarks upon theatrical performers, we have always endeavoured to keep a principle in view, of writing nothing concerning them; that we might not express personally to the moelves. We are not, we beneve, singular in thinking, that in Chowringhee the audience have repeate aly shown themselves too charry of bestowing the applause of encouragement. This we attribute more to absence or momentary langour than any thing else. Certain it is that young Amateurs, even when not doing well, require, a little cheering animating encouragement to excite them to do bet-

Now that the Theatre is to be continued for another year, we would fain hope that the result will ensure the continuance of dramatic exhibitions. It depends upon the Public, whether we shall have a Theatre to foure or not. It people would, 11.4the I ause, we doubt not—should the gentilinan so inted by the Proprictors undertake the superintendence—that there will be no scarcity of Amateurs, and we would hint to the Propriet is themselves, (not for the first time) the propriety of having a saloon erected, where the ladies may sit until their carriages are called, instead of standing, as they have to do now, in an unconfortable stair-case.

My Corn begins to plague me——Oh!——We surely will have rain—
"Tis always sure to plague me so Whenever——there again!—

I've cut a round hole in my shoe
To give it room to grow,
But all in vain—it will not do—
A ain 'tis shooting——Oh——

This hole at least will be a sign
To let the people know
What agonizing pain is mine,
If they should pinch it;——Oh——

Ye lovers all for pity's sake

The scene appears to be in the streets of some city; the Author, it would seem, is mad with the eye, and his eyes red with weeping, which give him much the appearance of being. a drunkard; and at the time the Poem commences, he had just been accused by the Mohtisit, a person appointed by the Kazee to prevent drunkenness; for this personage I know no designation in English. The Poct on the accusation gives vent to his feelings as follows :-

1, Thou keeper of the peace begone— My eyes are red, but not with wine; Love is the cup I quail alone, 'Tis weeping dims those eyes of mine.

Against me falsely fools complain, For I am now myself no more, My soul is lost to reason's reign, Henceforth your cruel taunts give o'er.

My madness does not take its rise From the wine cup that sparkles gay,— The glances of my Love, 's eyes Have led my wretched steps astray. •

O, who will guide my wand'ring soul.
To peace that from Devetion springs? The mark* within the drinking bowl, To me vexation only brings!

How long will foes the words of shame "Upon my hap'ess case bestow, How long will friends my madness blame, Unconscious of a Lovei's wo?

We regret to hear bad accounts of the Bengal crop of Indigo. One Planter writes, "Our plant has suffered much of late by incessant rain, and our prospects are consequently not so favorable as they were a week ago. The river has compelled me to commence with a couple of vats, and the produce, I fear, will hardly repay the expence. From all I can learn, the season is likely to turn out very short of last year's erop with the generality of Planters."—This communication is dated Another writes—"In upper India, there is a good chance of a fine harvest, but the chance in Bengal is very midding. The rains are very perilons, and the inundation getting up fast.'

The friends of Mr. WYVCH will be happy to learn that he had reached Europe in safety. By a letter written at Naples in December last, we understand that Mr WYNCH was at Rome in November, and highly gratified by his tour, in the course of which, he had visited the ruins of Thebes, Athens, &c.

The persons connected with the West India Trade, were using their utmost effo. A to prevent an equalization in the Sugar duties. They even began to hint that such equalization might produce a separation of the Colonies from the mother country. All arguments of fairness and equity being exhausted, or rather not having been appealed to at all the friends of an exclusive monopolising and selfish system; usually conclude with the dermer shift of working upon people's fears. The opposers of the equalization duties on Sugar, and the enemies of Parliamentary retorm, act thus precisely with the same view, and we trust finally with the same success.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

Sia,—A Correspondent in your Paper of last Thursday, having expressed a well-jounded regret, that nothing had been promory of the late Reverend Mr. Ward, it may be as well to publish through the same medium, that some of his friends have already set on foot the publication of his Portrait by subscription, and that Mr. Pote. the Artist, who has lately got out the Portrait of Mr. Cruttenden, is engaged to ene grave it in his hest and most finished style. It may be gratifying to his, friends to receive this intelligence, and your Correspondent may find, that the laudable object he wishes to accomplish, that of mediering permanent the memory of a righteous man, has occurred to others, and means have been adopted at least as efficacious as the Cenotaph, for giving facility to pious friendship to recall at pleasure the memory of one "whose zeal and indefatigable industry, for the furtherance of Christianity in India" have rendered him so justly dear to all who have any conception of the importance of. this great undertaking.

Not that I would be understood to oppose myself to the views of your Correspondent—on the contrary, I see great propriety in adopting the plan, and hope that measures are taking to carry it into effect upon a scale suitable to what ought to be the public sense of the less we have sustained, and the affliction we feel at the cessation of his valuable labours.

The memory of a good man, eminent for his pious zeal in promoting the best interests of his fellow creatures, all are concerned to prolong, for though the meed of pubhe praise cannot be supposed to act as an excitement on a mind instructed and influenced by the higher call of Christian duty. yet there is something we owe to ourselves who have been taught by his precepts and assisted by his example. The recollections of his meekness and humility, his patient long suffering, his ardent zeal, his Christian fortitude, and all the particulars of his well disciplined understanding, and all the detail of his well spent life--who can deny the utility of? It is therefore to be hoped that both the undertaking of his Picture and the proposal for a Monument, will meet with such public support as will shew, that while we talk of the virtues of Mr. Ward, and proclaim the importance of the purposes to which the faculties of his great and gifted mind were directed, we feel a personal and individual interest, that the efficacy of the one, and a conviction of the other, may be extended and confirmed in our minds, forour own benefit.

Your most obedient servant,

It is with unteigned and lively satisfaction that we commence our labours of this morning by communicating a piece of uncommon good news to our military readers. It respects not war, nor rumours of war, it is a bird in hand. It relates to something more pleasantly substantial than the tented field, the trumpet's voice, or the roar of sannon; and all the risks they bring, though albeit these have their delights—nay, the Certáminis Gaudia cannot but be welcomed by the Soldier when promotion not merely promises to follow, but absolutely precedes them Many were the winged reports which for the last five years have been flitting trazingly past the ears of the Bengal army, respecting an increase the Bengal army, respecting an increase thought the bengal army, respecting an increase that the bengal army are to demolish the bengal that the morrow was sure to demolish the bengal that the surface of suspence is at an end—Folk and figure that it is intelligence our readers may depend upon as authentical We had it from a quarter upon which we place perfect icliance.

There are reports of its being in contensitation to establish British influence in Egypt upon a broader and more palpable basis than it stands on at present. The who, which, and the what, of the plan are tanknown to us, but should the Russians teally have any serious intentions respecting India, the propriety of securing a firm footing in Egypt is obvious. Should this be found necessary, it will of course by the result of triendly arrangements with the Porte and the Pacha of Egypt.

A letter dated Meerut 29th ultimo says—"We have had sad weather for some time path, the thermometer ranging about 910 obtaind the tatties. There was a shower or two at the change of the Moon, but all appearance of rain is again gone. I fear we shall suffer severely if we are much longer without it. The Natives are going off in great numbers at Delhi and found this—indeed I believe all over the country. The small pox is carrying off the children in very great numbers."

We have heard that the small pox has of late heen very prevalent in the city of Lucknow. The inhabitints, European as well as Native, have not the meins, we believe, of being quickly supplied with viscine lymph. It were extremely desirable if measures could be adopted as soon as possible for putting the inhabitants of that populous city in possession of the only preventive known, against one of the cruclest scoateges of humanity, the bane of intancy, and the terror of maturity.

The first Steam Boat ever built in India that the Court had not gone far enough, and was launched on Saturday evening from Messrs Kyps and Co's Dock-yard at Kidderpore. We were not aware that the nesses on oath—that they should have the launch was to take place an anon, else we should have made a point of witnessing the ceremony.

When the sad account of Mr. RAVENS-CROFI's murder flist appeared in our paper, it was doubted by various sage persons. This scepticism extended even to some of his tormer friends at Cawnpore. We have heard bets made upon the subject,—one party maintaining that it was a hoax; another, that it was a lamentable reality. For our own part we believed the thing from the bekinning as there appeared to us that there was sufficient internal evidence of the murder. It is now placed beyond all doubt, that the story is 'ow'i true a tale.' We have seen a letter from Oude, dated the 29th ultimo, giving a general account of the issue of a Court of Inquiry, ordered to take cognizance of the subject on the spot.

The Court was composed of British Officers stationed at Sectors which we behave, is about hity unless distint from Bingah the spot where Mr Riverscholt and his servants were most inhumanly massacred

In the India Gazetic of 2d June we stated upon the information conveyed in a letter to a triend in town, that an Officer of the 5th N I was present when the murder was committed, and was severely wounded. -This also turns out to be quite correct but even after this was known the doubters still doubted. The matrictions sent to the Court directed the examination of wounded men and servants, and of the grave. The witnesses examined testined to having seen Mr Ravenschull attacked, wounded, dead and buried Easign Prair of the 5th N 1, also a member of the Court of Enquiry, was at Bingah on the fittl night and gave a minute account of the horrid affair. He gan Mr Ravinschoil attacked, and in endeavouring to get to his assistance, received himself five or six wounds. concluded by stating that Mr Ravens. CROTT expired in his aims and that afterword, he tutered the body. These decilis were verified on oath. The Court deemed. this evidence perfectly satisfactory On arriving at the grave which contained the remains of the deceased they found a monument building over it by the direction of b suntoitunate widow. The testimony conhrmatory of the muider bing so complete. the Court from an obvious sense of delicacy, forbore to open the grave and dis-inter the dead, considering that ultimatum as quite uncalled for, and unnecessary. The proceedings having been laid before the British Pesident of Lucknow, he thought that the Court had not gone far enough, and ordered that it should assemble a second time—that it should examine all the witgrave opened and the body produced—and find out, if possible, who the murderers were, and for what purpose they attacked the deceased, and what property was taken away, and who were the robbers. members of the Court were to leave Secrore on this second inquisition on the 30th June. We hope that the remorseless murderers may be traced, seized, and brought to condign pu dshment.

John Maclean Wood of His Majesty's 44th well being of Society, that he finds no grave Regiment of Foot, was arraigned upon the undermentioned Charge, viz,

For having in a scandalous, infamous manner, such as is unbecoming the Character of an Officer and a Gentleman, in having on the evening of the 16th or morning of the 17th Instant, when at the Officer's Mess Table of the 44th Regiment in the Garrison of Fort William, said to Lieut. Scott of the same Corps, "you lie," or "your are a liar," and immediately after repeating the same offensive expressions, his former conduct as established before a General Court Martial, held at Fort William on the 2d January of this year, justifying the conviction that he is habituated to such a departure from the rules of good manners.

Upon which Charge the Court came to the following decision.

Finding. The Court find the Prisoner Lieut. John Maclean Wood of His Wajisty's 41th Regiment, Guilty of the Charge preferred against him, with exception to the Words "Scandalous and Infamous" of which they consequently acquit him, and do therefore Sentence him to be severely reprimanded, at such time and place as His Excellency the Commander in Chief shall direct.

The Court having passed this lenient Sentence, owe it to themselves to safe, that they have been influenced by a consideration of the great prosocation which the Piisoner received under peculiar encumstances, and by the very early contrition accompanied with cornect offer of atonoment, which he evinced in his letter to the Commanding Officer of his Regiment on the fottowing Moraing, which motives they hope will meet with the approbation and concurrence of His Excellency.

Confirmed,

EDWARD PAGET. (Signed)

General, Commander in Chief.

Remarks by the Commander in Chief.

The Commander in Chief, confirms the Sentence of the General Court Martial upon Lieut. Wood, although he can by no means make up his mind to approve it.

It appears to him that no provocation, no loss of reason resulting from Excess, no subsequent apology, can sufficiently excuse or atone for the utterance of words, such as those which issued from the mouth of Lieut.

Wood.
It is therefore with Sentiments of the despest regret, and of uneasiness for the an offence against good manners so leniontly and indulgently visited by the sentence of a General Court Martial.

The Commander in Chief has done his best to vindicate the Honor of the Army from a foul stain. It must rest with higher authority to determine whether Lieut. Wood is still to continue in the Service, and to set at dehance the established rules of de-ceficy and decorum. Licut. Wood is released from arrest, andwill proceed to Europe in virtue of the Leave of Absence already granted to him-for the purpose.

The foregoing Orders to be entered in the General Order Book, and read at the head of every Regiment in His Majesty's Services ın India

By Order of His Excellency the Com-

JULY 17.

We regret extremely that it is not in our power oftener to adorn our columns with extracts from our Native cotemporaries. who, like their European brethren, have the knack occasionally of serving up very wonderful things to their readers. From the Hun kar u we copy the following letter, which relates a tale that Shakespeare would, call "passing strange."

To the Editor of the Summachar Chundrica,

Sir. - I have heard that some Baboos having gone on a pilgrimage to Guya, performed according to the fenets of religion the funeral rites of their deceased ancestors, and at the time of their return they heard there that two Sepoys had two birds, and as they journeyed with the birds in their hands, they stopped one might at some place, where they were attacked by 10bbers who killed them and rabbed them of all they had. - At that junctine, one of the hinds said to the robbers, "Why do you kill these men?" on hearing these words, they killed one of the birds also. Afterwards the other Moyna bird flew to the Judge (of the place) and informed kim of all the circumstances, who has thereupon imprisoned the robbers. The Baboos assert that they were eye witnesses of this occurrence, they are relating the matter to their friends and relations, and if any person does not believe it, they swear by their fathers and mothers. On this, what would you think of them? in what words should you praise them.

I am, &c.

GUYA SOOR. Ahrrectollah.

We have heard not unfine quently of murders discovered in various carious ways-but when the birds of the air begin to turn intormers against man, one should take care. We would warn such of our fair readers as are fond of keeping pet Mynas, Parrots, Cockatoos, and other bipeds, to maind their Ps and Qs, for it would be very www.waid sometimes to hear a saucy bird "peach his mistiess when she deemed herself most secure.

The Theatrical campaign, we believe, is to be soon opened, - perhaps Friday week. The play in preparation is the Comedy of " Every Man has his Fault;" and from all we can learn, the public may expect a high intellectual treat. Now that the Thespic fine is again open, we hope that the multions to shire, will forthwith enlist themselves under the theatrical standard, since Recruits, we suspect, are re-Sured. The you g men of the present day, - however, are diffident to a fault! Modesw by is the great fuling of the age ! We would entreat the diffident, who feel that they have " that within which passeth show' who, in a word, have a candle of theatin al talent, not to thurst the same under a bushel of concealment, but to let it buin brightly among the other tapers, lamps and lustics of our theatrical galaxy.

It is in demicale, that fortunes in tunes that have long gone by, were acquired by means which often sullied moral worth. and corrupted the noblest techniss of the in in while they can bed him. There are, we date say, in my who hear or read of those times, and wish that the past were the present. Such a little reflexion would correct the scalle crowings after whalis unattimable, and would be but of questionable goodevers a were the contrary. Who would not pieler to live in India now instead of in the days of Crival. Were it possible that these days could be brought back, would any man in his smees wish it? Surely not. With what disagreeable sensations does one rise from perusing the history of those times, and what a contrast do they form to affords not the prospects it once did, it is nevertheless a fine field for honorable adventure; and if the balance be fairly struck between the days of yore and the days that are, we are convinced that no one, would he sitate a moment which to prefer. When people grumble now, they are very apt to forget a thousand circumstances that shed a charm and a lustic on India 1 life, which formerly it could not boost of. We are every way better provided for the our predocessors in the country were. Manages themselves have undergone a change, and if the rough hospitalities of the earlier times are not in fashion, it can hardly be assirted that the intercourse of life has lost any thing by the change, and certain it is that it has acquired a cheerfulness, a grace, and an elegance, which render it infinitely more charming, more improving. The Bengal Army in particular have, we think, great reasons for congratulation. They are now an Aimy indeed Formerly the road to those distinctions and honors which are the Soldier's dearest meed, were closed against them. They had only the sumulus of gain to urge them on. Gain is good in its way, but to generous and brive minds, what a secondary object it becomes! As ordingly the Indian Army drooped, for though corscious that they were behind no army on earth in all the qualities that adorn the Soldier, the Officers of that army felt, that It is very true that In lia is not the there was a distinction that inferred infegolden land which it once was, and it is a monty. Serving their King and Country, appy thing no itself, no less than for those they still felt that they were debired from concered with it, that it is not It its those badges of unlitary chivalry which confer distinction, and have such a powerful hold of minds to which honor and tame are dearer than all throgs. The builtant path which had been so long closed, was at length opened by a gracious Sovereign, and the memory of the boou must ever render him dear to the Indian Army, than whom he has not more loyal or braver subjets. The prospect to the Army, we think, bright us more and more daily, and the recent addition to its strength cannot but prove highly gratifying to maky who have long sighed for promotion. As it is impossible that all should at once feel the benefits of it, the younger aspirants to military fame and empluments should take the bright side of things, and look cheeringly onwards. Perhaps are many years wheel round, their "approved good mas-ters" may order a further augmentation, and thus push them up the ladder, when the present. Now justice and peace go perhaps then be the radier, when the present. Now justice and peace go perhaps they least expect it. It is possible, had in hand and security reigns through too, that war may break out, especially it all out the land. We have seen a letter from Naples of a late date, written by a gentleman who has re-tued from the H. C. service, to a military irrend in this country. To thosewho in their craving for home may be ant to everlook all the bearings of their prospects, it will not be unacceptable to learn the opinious of a sensible and instructive observer. "If you obtain (he writes) the command of a corps with any chance of retaining it, you would be unwise with your good constitution to relies. quish it till you can afford to quit the service altogether, which, as jou area moderate man, you will perhaps be able to do in as short a period as the extent of a furlough. Lay your account, however, to a grievous diminution of the comforts and enjoyment in a variety of ways which you have possessed in the East—and to disappointment in many things, however little sanguine you may be of realizing the dreams of happiness, which in India are. always as ociated with the idea of a return to one's native land—family considerations and health out of the question. I would therefore recommend your not being too impatient to schinquish your present advan-tages and comfortable lot, to which, come themoment when it may, you will (remembermy prediction) look back with regiet." We doubt not but there are among our, military readers some for whom the aboveremarks will serve as food for useful re-flexion. In moments of desolateness and conui, a man will glumble, and impatiently express a wish to quit this 'vile country.' We have heard such grumblers, and we have known some of them who in raptures of anticipation took then furlough. We have spoken or corresponded with them on their Remain,-Hashmy and Carron, outward oreturn, and have heard those very men express themselves as glad to get back again to India. After all, India is the country for a poor man. He teels not as be might have done in England the flouts of the purse aroud, not the spurns which patient merst of the unworthy takes. If he chooses, he may be as independent as he likes. Han what may be is at any rate provided for in a gentlemanlike style. He account care a mach of small for the airs of grandees or the 'proud man's contumely.' If he has any philosophy in him, these are to him only provocatives to laughter. Let him strike a fair balance, to laughter. Let him strike a fair balance, and he will become resigned, if not reconciled to his late. Let him always look homen wide, with hope as the goal of his exertions, but let him not permit carking care to gnaw upon his steals, sampley himself and friends with vain regreis and Above all querulous rostalgie longings things, let him not think of returning to England too soon, or if he does, he must, prepare himself for many mortifications of which he may not now be aware. English and Indian manners are ver opposite At-most every one who returns to Bugland at ter a long absence completes of the cold ness, distance and reserve of the people How later must the sense of this disagreeable change be if there benet in the bosom of Fontis, et in ceipen totue teres afque rotundus If these cursory rehexions should tend to make even one of our readers regard his condiston with greater complacensy and conteniment, we have not written them in vain,

The writer of the letter, mentioned already, does not appear very fond of the French, for he states that he and his party were "all equally tired of France and still more of Frenchmen." Of France itself he states Generally speaking, it offers in its immesse fields, highly as they are cultivated, hitle more interest than Bengal paddy-fields.' He continues-'Amid the mountainous, and comantic scenery of Savoy, we tound the most agreeable con trast to the monotony of a level country, and its general features are so like Switzerland, that one might imagine 'imself in that matchless "land of the mountain and the flood," were tnot one reminded of the difference by the filth and misery with which the government of his Majesty of Jerusalem and Cyprus has struck the wretched subjects of this part of his dominions. On the ____, we crossed the Alps by Mount Cenis. I had in my hand a tourist's testimany written alty years ago, meratoning the trightful dangers of the road which is now as wide and smooth as the best tampike way in England I wish I could give you some idea of its security, but the peacil itself can only convey a very faint idea of its grander. The morning we descended we could searcel. keep curselves tolerably warm, though the same exeming we were panting in the streets of Turn in an atmosphere as oppressive as that of the China Bazat Act notwithstanding this unsupersede for the time at least; all other donsiderations; and there are, Ibelieve, rew travellers whom these will much affect when that interest is excited by the laxuriant beauties of an Italian landscape and the hatmomous sounds of its language From Turin we proceeded by the celebrated field of Maringo to the once mighty Genoa, (still a grand striking city in its decay), whence we embacked on the Mediterranean; skirted its rotaintic shores to the Gulf of Spezzia; there re-entired our carriages. and by: Lucca and Pisa reached Florence where, leaving my heat excusted party, 1 proposeded to Rome, he by blied myself with tangue in point over the ruins of its. ancient glory and its churches; gelleries and therepositolies of the innumerable treasures

25 centuries have collected there; and returned to Florence. I then shut myself up in a Convent on the summit of the Appenines, to receive in its retirement and cooling shades the rest, and refreshment I so much needed. A trip to the Sandheads never was more needed or productive of greater benefit," &c.

The writer of the letter next draws a kind of parallel which is certainly rather striking We give it in his own words-" I am often struck and amused by the resemblance which Italy offers in many respects to India. Heré may be seen in the dark sun-burnt teatures of the lower orders bere also the professions or trades descending from father to son-their love of oil, garlie, noise and pice; -the mummey of their religion, or rither of their idolatry; the same incoucervable ignorance and superstition, the same indolence and cuming in pecumary transactions - the want of elevated honorable principle in character, theu.

their priests are just the same sleek faced roqueish Baboos, but not half so much respected. Many of the articles of then household and domestic economy, are exactly the same. In many places the women wear a long white veil over their heads just like the India chulder, and the practice of sleeping in the middle of the day, and driving on the corso in the evening, is not more common in Calcutta."

SUPREME COURT.

LONGUEVILLE CLARKE versus HEN-RY LECHMERE WORBALL.

Mr. PEMBERTON opened the proceedverleamely warm reception, an introduction, rigs in this case. He recapitulated the counts, and stated that the defendant had pleaded the general issue Mr. TUR'FON addressed the Coufe. Whatever, he said, one of the parties may be, the other was well known as an Advocate in that Court, and who; more knowing in his profession than in horse-flesh, had been taken in by one more knowing than himself. The defendant in this case, Mr. Worral, was in the Body Guard, and had good opportunities of bargaining in horses. of which he took good care to avail himself. The real defendant however was Mr. Hodg-son, styling hunself a Veterinary Surgeon. On the 25th January, an advertisement of a horse appeared in Taylor's Catalogue, which appeared to be just the kind of horse Mr. Clarke wanted. He accordingly bought

He gave it a character as being lame, and it would be well if the defendant could prove that he was ever known to be sound for three days together. Mr. Clarke having discovered the unsoundness of the horse, returned him within 48 hours to Messrs. Taylor's and Co, but he first of all sent him to another Veterinary Surgeon, who said the Horse was lame, and never likely to be sound.

When the horse was thus returned to Messis. Taylor's, they sent Mr. Cfarke's note to Mr. Worrall. A correspondence passed, and Mr. Worrall refused to take him back, on the ground that the warrantry was to be settled between Mr. Clarke and Messrs Taylor's, because Mr. Hodgsonhad written a note to Mr. Worrall, which he had sent to Messrs. Taylor's, and which they sent to Mr. Clarke, couched in the following terms: "My Dear Worrall,

It is my opinion that the grey Horse is Your's truly, J Hobeson." A notice was sent to Mr. Worrall and another to Mr Clarke, that the horse was sent to Mr. Cook's stable at the expence of the two parties, to which Mr. Wornall replied that he had made over all right in the ligise to Mi. Hodgson. Upon this Mr. Hodgson wiole to Messrs. Taylor, inform-Upon this Mr. ing them, that as the horse had been bought and not paid for he must be resold, and that he would bring an action against the first purchaser tor the difference in price, or else against them for the whole amount. Messrs. Taylor however paid the money to Mr. Worrall and thus settled the matter.

No one could possibly have pursued a more liberal line of conduct than Mr. Clarke did upon this occasion. In coming upon Messis. Taylor and Co. Mr. Worrall pinemaily rehed upon the fact, of their having trusted the horse to Mr Clarke before the money was paid for him Mr. Clarke determined that they should not lose, and - paid the amount over to them.

The Learned Counsel stated that he was really sorry to trouble his Lordship so long, but in the course of the evidence many circumstances would come out of much importance. As to the warrantry of the horse, he could prove him to be unsound, and he beheved that he could prove, too, that the defendant knew him to be so. He should not enquire how he was uncound, for it was generally understood that any want of action or utility, or any temporary illness, was an unsoundness. There was only one instance in which it was held that the fleshes were not an unsoundness. In this case he would prove that the horse was unsound in the fore feet, and that in consequence of it, he could not go as other hors-

the Horse, and sent it to Mr. Cook, the Li- es did. He would prove Mr. Hargen's very Stable-keeper, for his examination, knowledge of the horse for a long time and that if he were not shod in a poouliar man ner, he could not go. He would show the Mr. Hodgson knew this, and that he's every thing which his skill could devise for him—that he bled him in the feet, and shind him in his own way but that nothing succeeded.—He would prove also that Mr. Hodgson was very near having an action brought against him once before, when he gave a certificate of the soundness of this very horse. He could trace him through several hands, and shew that he had been told twice under the same warrantry, and had been returned. He had been bought by Mr. Gordon, and by Colonel Broughton, the latter of whom sold him again without warrantry at a considerable loss. In April 1822, he was poinpously advertised as the Grey Arab Horse Centipede.

> the ADVOCATE GENERAL.—He could afford then to be lame of a toot or two.

Mr. TURTON suggested that he may have been called Centipede on the principle of "lucus q non lucendo," because he had." not a toot to stand upon, or at any rate only two. Colonel Broughton bought him and sent him to Wr Vaquelin, who said he was. unsound, as he no doubt would be proved to be, to all the knowing ones, both in horse flesh and in law--- No doubt when Mr. Hodgson should be called, he would say his horse was good; he saw another gentleman there who of course would say that he did not sell a bad horse, and there was another gentleman in Court who would say that if the horse were unsound he had not found it out, although he was in his possession. But Mr. Hodgson had declared his. to be the only LLGAL opinion in horse-flesh, and he (the learned counsel) could never be so foolish, he trusted, as to put the skill of old John Vaquelin, a man who understood horses before Mr. Hodgson was born, into, competition with the experience of that gentleman. Colonel Broughton thought so. too and when he did not find him to be such a house as he expected, he said that if Mr. Hodgson would warrant hun, he would keep him. Mr Hodgson did so, and Major Broughton took him back, supposing that the lameness was only a temporary affan Mr. Hodgson wrote to him at this time to say that in shocing the boxe, eare must be taken to cut away the creat, and to save the sole of the foot to prevent pressure, and thus if this were necessary the horse must be sent from Barrackpore to Ballygunj every time that he needed shoeing. The learned counsel proceeded to show that the character of the horse depended entirely upon Mr. Hodgsop's good opinion, and expressed his surprize that that opinion should be disputed. What, said he, shall his opinion he disputed! shall Mr. Hodgson's opinion he disputed? shall the

His bane it was true was too much mixed up with him for him to appear in that characpeople would not buy a borse as soon the horse, but does not understand the afthe regiment; all this may account tor

wort appearing so, but perhaps there was  stronger reason than all these together --porhaps: Mr. Worrall' thought that Mr. Clarke was obliged to take the word of the willy legal authority, against those of Mr. Cook, Mr. Vaquetin, Mr. But lis, Colonel broughton, Mr. Gordon, and Mr. Hunter. Sat the horse had been made up by Mr. Horse he would not deny, but he did that a horse could be sound which had waverg mic detect of such a nature as cerwhile to recur frequently, and if the learned counsel could prove what he had stated, he would leave Mr. Hodgson to take his only legal opinion and the grey horse transde, where they would carry more weight than they did in that Court.

PETER HEWETT was then called and *Xamined by Mr. PEMBERTON. He desoced that he knew Mr. Wortall's hand pricing, and had frequently received notes with him in the same hand as the copy of advertiscinent now produced The conv described the horse in question as a capital goy horse, - a good mover, warranted sound and quiet, and driven with a lady in the briggy. In consequence of the advertiseas at the horse was sold to Mr. Lenguewills Clarke and delivered to him under the regular conditions of the sale-the horse was returned within the prescribed time by Mr. Clarke with a certificate of unsoundness—the certificate was signed by Mr. Burths, who pronounced bits lame in the tore feet—this was commumicated to Mr. Worrall who refused to have asserfling to do with the horse, which was appliednestly sent to him, and he refused to receive it. He afterwards wrote to Messrs. Taylor, and said that he expected the mo-devices them. This was communicated to Mrt Christ, who sayo refused to take him, and his was afterwards sent to Mr. Cook a Subject of the seller and manufacture. Witness proved all the docu-

Cross Examined by the ADVOCATE GENERAL —Witness had a bad opinion of the horse, and he had good reasons for it; the horse was sold on the warranty of the owner, if a dozen of Jalap were sent for sale he would not sell it for madena, but would put up a horse for sale as sound which he knew to be unsound on the owner's warranty; he would self any thing in this way on the owner's warranty.

Mr. TURTON called John Cook, who knew the grey horse in question. He was sent to him by Mr. Clarke on the day he bought him, and he sent him to Mr Burths, and left orders with his assistant to send Mr. B's answer to Mr Clarke Witness tried him when he came, and every time he pulled him up, he went quite cuppled like a foundered or groggy horse. Mr. Gordon sent for Mr. Hodgson, who got him about once or twice, but he fell laine again, and witness, never knew him otherwise for more than a week or ten days at a time. MrcHedgson took off his shoes and pared his feet; he altered his shoes every three or four days and blistered him; when he belonged to Mr. Rebison witness had charge of him and he then bled him in the fore foot; the horse is sound except in the

But Mr. Turton had made one curious remark, that a horse must be unsound hecause he does not go like another horse, therefore he was not a good horse. As well might he say that he was not a good counsel who did not conduct a case in the same. mannerthat other counsel would do:

not so, and therefore Mr. Robison had a been so frequently mentioned, that he fell right to be believed. Mr. Hodgson too, was uneasy about the subject, and the more so, any connected with medicine, and he was the plaintiffs, and that it was originally in-sure that he would state nothing untrue.— tended to have brought this action against be exposed to a cross-examination. But their proceedings. the very strongest proof of the soundness of the horse, was the fact of Mr. Hodgson's having purchased him. If he were the foundered, had horse which had been described, would he have bought him. -So far from the evidence of the stable-keeper being to be depended upon. Mr. Hodgson's having bought him is a strong proof that he was good, and Mr. Robison, who bought could not have been in this country for four him when he first came to the country, years; the horse was in his possession until world prove the same. Mr. Hodgson would the 1st April 1822 when he was sold to Colostate that he borrowed the horse on one oc- nel Broughton, part of that time he was at casion from Mr. Robison, and that in hunting him, he became lame. This however was cured, but owing to some application or other, he had been lame, or as they described it—foundered or doad lame.

One person calling himself a veterinary surgeon, had been called, but he did not show as much knowledge of organics as his learned friend Mr. Pemberton, and when he found this out he let them drop like a hot potato. But Mr. Pemberton knew that it he did not carry on the system of organs, the organs would not play to his tune. On the part of the defendant, however he would produce Mr. Hodgson who had been regularly educated for the profession, and did not come into the Court to give his evidence otherwise than consistently and intelligibly. But he would not rest upon Mr. Hodgson, but call another gentleman who hought him from Schraut's stables along with had seen the horse that very day, and who helieved him sound. The learned counsel in addition would bring people, under Mr. Hodgson it was true, (and his learned friend might take advantage of it if he pleased) who had trotted the horse, and who would say he was sound. So that if he could prove the horse was sound to-day, he was sound at the time of sale. But this was one of the bad effects of a bad character, for which he was afraid, it horses had not been shot, men had been hanged. The unsoundness of the horse, the learned coursel contended in conclusion had not been proved, and as he could distinctly prove his soundness, he should be entitled to the verdict of the Court.

Mr. Hodgson was then called, but Mr. Turton objected to his examination, because he was a party concerned in the case. He was examined as to that matter by Mr. Turfon, and his examination clearly proved that he had a joint interest in the horse with Mr. Worrall, or in other words, that they were partners in him.

Mr. ROBISON was then pet info the

(This was the Defendant's Gase,)

Mr. TURTON said that he had not many or semblance to a case, which his learned friend had made out. Whether or no the Horse was lame, it was quite evident that his case was lame. His learned friend has said, and he thought truly too-that no English gentleman would go into that box to speak an untruth. He (Mr. T.) thought so too, but as an advocate he knew nothing of a gentleman or a commoner, and he trusted both were unlikely to do it. The learned counsel would make no observation on the case, which was uncailed for, but he must say that he never saw such an attempt to palm an unsound horse upon a gentleman as a sound one. He would not insult Mr. Percival by putting him upon a par with the vetermarian who had been called, but he would appeal to any man whether a horse may not be bought over and over again, which went well for four or five days, and then went irrecover bly lame. Any man who had attended horse sales in London, had seen such things every day, and knew that dealers were in the habit of doing as Mr. Hodgson had done-cooking up horses in such a manner as to last for 48 hours. the time of the warranty, but not in such a manner as to sell from one gentleman to apother, whether the warranty extends to a longer time.

The learned Counsel did not care whether the horse had been Mr. Gordon's or not, but in this respect, he thought that there must be a mistake in what Mr. Robison had aid.—But how had Mr. Robison disposed of him? He had put him off along with a batch of other horses, not belonging to him, and bred by another gentleman.

Mr. Robison here interfered, and begged the interference of the Court to prevent the statement of this circumstance, which he denied.

Mr. TURTON exonerated Mr. Robison from all impropriety, but the appearance of the thing was so. There appeared at the top of a notice stating that the following batch of horses, bred by Mr. Rutherford, were for sale, and under this head, lot 5 was the grey Arab Horse Centipede.

Mr. Rebison again denied this, and expressed himself much aggrieved by the statement.

Mr, TURTON on being told by Colonel Broughton across the table, that Mr. Robisen's name was mentioned when the Horse was sold, expressed his regret at the mis-take, but observed that nothing should keep him from asserting that the horse had been it was sent with the hounds; and then he nu- it afortnight. thorized it to be sold for 640 Rupces. Chowinghee is not Calcutta I hope, because in that case the prohibi-tion of fire-works will not extend to the Theatre, where such a rule would extinguish all sparks of genius and theatrical flashes of lightning, &c. As I live in Chowringhee, I mean to smoke roy hookah, and to permit my servants to puff at their hubble bubbles, even at the risk of infringing the Magisterial order, until you or some other person will be good enough to inform me whether hookahs and hubble bubbles are are-works or not. Are pistols and guns, and little cannons, fire-works or not? If a man were to be caught. in the street with a phosphorus box in his hands, what would be the consequence? This is the season of fireflies. I see them skimming and gleaming about every evening,—I wonder the Justices allow it. I wish they would include the Sun among the firemey would include the Sun among the inter-works, and make that scourge to Qui-hys pocket his merciless beams. Will o'the wisp, and glow worms, I conclude would meet no quarter in the city of palaces? Your's squibbishly

. 17th July.

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

SIR,—I am surprised in your observations about the Chowringhee Theatre, that you never hinted at the enormous expence which must accrue to the establishment from the frequent feasings of the Theatri-cal Beefsteak Club. Surely when measures of economy are under consideration, the members of the Beefsteak Club should have some conscience.

Your obedient servant SHARP.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR.

Mr. Sharp labours under a most egre-gious mistake—that's flat. Unless the members of the Theatrical Beetsteak Club should fall to and eat the scenery, we can assure Sharp, that they have no chance of sharing any other esculents at the expence of the proprietors. In a word, the members of the Club in question are permitted the use of the stage to dine on. All and every thing else they provide at their own private and sole expence. Mr. Sharp should have made some inquiry into the matter before resolving upon making it a topic for blic discussion.

AN INDIAN DAY

DAWN. Lot Morning wakes upon the grey hill's brow. Litting the wreath of mist meek twilight wore. And hark! resounding from the Tamarind bough, The Minah's matins ring! On Gunga's shore The pious Hindoo stands, to welcome and adore You glorious King of day.—Above the vale Behold the tall Palmyrab proudly soar,

The morning rays with yellow lustre pale Have tinged the broad fringed leaves, that rustle in the gale!

Noon. How still the noon-tide hour! no sounds To cheer the sultry calm, deep silence

Among the drooping groves, while cloudless skies

Glare on the sleeping wave,—on those far plains The Zephyr dies,—no hope of rest detains

The Pilgrim there! You Orb's resistless No fragrant bower, no humid cloud restrains;

The solar rays insufferably bright, Play on the fevered brow, and mock the dazzled sight!

EVENING. Oh! how the spirit gladdens! when she fresh breeze. The milder radiance, and the lengthened shade, Steel o'er the sultry scene! the drooping trees Again revive,—the minstrels of the glade Hail the awest Eye I and as the daybeams fade

Along the crimson West, thro' the soft gloom The Fire-fly darts, and where all lowly laft The dead repose, the mourner's hands illume The consecrated lamp o'er Beauty's hal-

COLLEGE of FORT WILLIAM, July 18, 1823.

Friday the 18th instant, being the day appointed by the Hon'ble John ADAM, Esq. Governor General and Visitor of the College of Fort William, for the distribution of the Prizes and Honorary Rewards adjudged to the several Students reported qualified for the Public Service during the past year, the President, and Members of the College Council, the Officers, Professors, and Students of the College met at 10 o'clock in the forences at the Government House, where the Honorable John Fandall, and the Honorable J. H. HARINGTON, Members of the Supreme Council; the Honorable Sir A. Bullia, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court; Mrs. FENDALL, Mrs. UDNY, and a great number of other Ladies, and many of the Civil and Military Officers of the Settlement, with several respectable Natives, were assembled. Seen after 10 o'clock the Honorable the

When the Visitor had taken his seat, W. Be. Hirtary, Esq. the President of the College Council, presented to him the vereral Sindents of the College, who were entitled in receive Medals of Merit or other Hasorary Riwards adjudged to tiem at te Public Examination in June, and read the Crifficates granted by the Council of the College to each Student about to leave the College.

The Prizes at d Wedgls which find been awarded to the several Students, having ben distributed to them respectively, the Honorable the Visitor delivered the following Discourse :-

Gentlemen of the College of Fort Wilham;

It is a source of high satisfaction to me to meet you on this occasion as Visitor of the College. You will do me the justice to believe, that from the intancy of the Institution up to the hour at which it becomes my duty to address you, the nerest I have felt in the welfare of the College has been great and unremitting. The favorable anticip tions, which I originally formed of its influence on the character of the service, and the general administration of the Country, laid the foundation of that affectionate so icitude for its success which, as a Men b r of the Civil Service, it is natural I shou d entertain, and which the associations created by that connection incite me to cherish. Those anticipations have been abundantly confirmed.

I have beheld a succession of illustrious testimony to the utility of the Institution, and manitesting the warmest interest in it's prosperity and renown. The course of my own experience has given me a uple oppor-tu sities of for magan intimate acquaintance with affairs of the Colleg; I have se a it send forth from time to time individuals, who e cultivated talents and extensive acquirements have reflected the highest honor on their own character, on the Institution, and on the service to which they belong; whose subsequent conduct has redeemed the fair pledge of their earlier years, and who have left to succeeding gundidates for distinction examples worthy of the most earmest and sedulous imitation.

I entertain the most sanguing hope that the College will still maint un'its high charactor, and its claims to public confidence and support; and that it will not cease to supply a succession of wise, able and virtuous public servants, whose successi i exertions in the cause of humanity and good overnment, will continue to do justice to the enlightened and comprehensive we of the founder, and of those whose fost ring date has waiched ever its progress to mat i-

The exigencies of the public service a.d.

The facilities, which in order to meet this urgent demand, have been afforded to the Students, of leaving College on proof of their competence for the public service, not merely atthehalf-yearly examination, but at intermediate periods, necessarily operate to prevent the attainment in College, of that proficiency which would otherwise be manifested by many of them: but the disposition and ability shown by such Students, to qualify themselves as soon as practicable for the public service, and the steady application the public service, and the steady application the public service, Mr. Thomason stands necessary to effect that object, may generally be considered to warrant the inference was admitted to the College in December was admitted to the College in December ence, that they will on leaving College conti1822, and in the short period of five months

These observations have been naturally, suggested by a consideration of the small number of Students who are now to enter on eminence in the scale of proficiency, which entitles him to hold a disputation, or to refavorable to the character of the institution, or to the general ability and assiduity of the Students, can however justly be drawn from these facts, of which the causes are to be sought exclusively in the increasing and paramount demands of the public service, and the rules framed to meet them. While the College is able to furnish an annual supply of qualified candidates for public employment, bearing such a proportion to the whole number of Students as the results of the present year exhibit, it cannot be affirmed with any colour of justice, that it has failed in the principal object of its institution period of the last meeting.

Professor reports that " he is by far the " best Scholar of the present year, and his "progress has been creditable both in Ara-bic and Persian." He brought with him from Hertford College some knowledge of the Persian and Hindoostanee languages. Mr. Thomason's assiduity and rapid attainment of the requisite degree of proficiency, entitle him to high commendation. Since the late Examination Mr. Thomason the public service, and by the fact that on has applied for and obtained the permission this occasion no Student has obtained that of Government to continue his studies in the College till December next, with the view of acquiring a more extensive knowledge of ceive a degree of Honor. The Government willingly granted this permission to Mr. Thomason, and the Governor General in Council will be glad to encourage the disposition to study, manifested by Students who, like Mr. Thomason, may have proved by their steady application and acquiremonts and regular habits, that they will make a suitable return for the indulgence of remaining in College.

> Mr. Patton, who stands next to Mr. Thomason, was admitted to the College in July 1822, and was reported qualified in the Persian language, at a private Examination on the 25th of April last. At the present Ex-amination he is classed first in the first class of Hindoostanee Students, and reported a proficient in that language and qualified to enter upon the public service.

Mr. Morris, who was admitted to the College in August 1822, was examined with Mi. The following Gentlemen were reported qualified for the public service at the halt yearly Examination in December last: Mr. Hawkins, Mr Ravensaw, Mr. Prinsep, Mr. Udny, and Mr Bacon, and to the jour first were adjudged pecuniary rewards and Medals, for high profictency in the Persian and Hudoostanec languages.

Mr. Hawkins, who was admitted to the College in July 1822, was ranked at the half yearly Examination first in the first Class of Persian, and first in the first Class of Hindoostance, and obtained Prizes of 800 Rupers, and Medals, for high profici-ency in those languages. The knowledge acquired by Mr. Hawkins, both of the Persian and Hindonstance languages, at Hort-

1522, (the month after Mr. Hawkins,) and stands next to him both in the Persian and Hindoostanee languages. He has also obtained pecuniary rewards and Medals, for high proficiency in those languages. This Gentleman, I am informed, brought with him from Hertford a degree of proficiency rarely acquired at the institution, and his diligence did not slacken after he was admitted here.

Mr Prinsep was admitted in July, 1822, and Mr. Udny in August of the same year. The former is ranked third in Persian and third in Hindoostanee; the latter is placed immediately below him, and to both have been ajudged pecuniary rewards and Me dals, for high proficiency in both these lan-Although these four Gertlereen have some time since entered upon the pub! he Service, I cannot without injustice, withhold the declaration, of my high approbation of their signally meritorious conduct while attached to the Institution

Mr Bacon, who was admitted to the Cal lege in July, 1821, stands fifth in Persian, and fifth in Hindoostance, in the list of Students examined in December last, at which time he was reported qualified to: the public service, by a competent knowledge of both languages.

The following Students were examined free following State in Series Canadaya privately at differ at times, and found qualified for the public service. Mr. Lindsay, who was admitted to the College in June, 1820, was pronounced qualified for the public service on the 26th of March, 1823 he had been previously examined, and declared qualified in Hindoostance on the 14th of September: 1822

Mr. Lowis was also admitted so 1gr back as September, 1820, and at a private examination in April 1823, was found to have attained a competent knowledge of the Persian language, and in the month of June following, having passed in examination in Hindoostance, was reported on three to enter on the duties of the public service.

M). Pixton, who was identited to the College on the 16h of July, 1821, was examin ed privately in Hundoostance, and found qualified in that language in June, 1822, and afterwards in Persian, in November of the same year, and reported qualified for the public service.

Mr. Deedes entered the College on the 29th of May, 1821, but was compelled some time afterwards to make a voyage to so, for the recovery of his health. Previously however to that period be had been eximmed, and found qualified in the Persian language and on the 3d of Pebruary, 1823 was reported qualified for the public service, having acquired a competent know ledge of Hindoos' med

Mr. Jackson was admitted to the College 200 the 21 it of January 1892 and wis reported qualified for the public service on the 1st of October of the sun year, having previously been examined, and found a proficient in the Pasian language in April.

Mr Thompson, who was admitted on the 2d of March 1821, was examined and found qualified in Persian at the annual Examination in June, 1822, and afterwards on the 3d of May last, in the Hindoostance language, when he was admitted to the public Service .

It is paintu' to me to be comp. Hed to men tion, that Mr. Daequer, who was admitted to the College in December 1518, and was removed on account of his repeatedly absenting himself from the Lectures of the a colessors, without any cause assigned, and who was re admitted on his return from Ly. rope (9th of September 1879) whither he had proceeded for the bencht of his health. has been removed a second time for his remissness in study, and disregard of the re-Mr. Dawpier has gulations of the College recently applied tor an Examination, and I trust he will be found to have profited by his past expe&ence.

The Government has also been under the necessity, at the recommendation of the Collige Council, of removing three other Students who have made little or no progressin then prescribed studies since the half-yearly Examination in December last. I forbear from publicly mentioning the names of these featherms, in the confident hope that, by the assidious and diffigent prosecution of the n studies of the stations to which they will be sent, they will speedily retrieve the time and credit which they have lost.

Mr. Thompson, of the Madras Establishment, who obtained the permission of Government in February last to study in the College for six months, having made no progress whatever in any language, has been desired to return without delay to his own Presidency.

Only two Students were attached to the Bengalee Professor's Class in the past year I am concerned to observe that, neither of them is reported to have made adequate progress in the language, but there is sufficient ground for hope, that they will make amends for past neglect, to justify a further

tria

The small number of Students attached to this class has attracted my particular A disinchination among the Students of the College for the study of the Bengalee language, has been made the subject of the ammadversion by former visitors, and dwelt upon with regret. -I cannot refrain from adding the expression of my own concern at the prevailing indifference for the attainment of this useful language a knowledge of the Bengalce is not useful merely, but almost indispensible for those who are called upon to exercise public duties in the province of Bengal, which bring them in contact with the mass of the peo-The lower classes of the natives of ple this Province, especially those in the interior, are generally ignorant of every other tongue, there are but few who canconverse intelligably in Hindoostanee. In the course of communication with them therefore, those public officers who are not versed in the vernacular language of the country, are constrained to employ the aid of interpretation, - a practice attended with a degree of abuse and evil, on which I need not dilate. I trust therefore that these important considevations will in future have an influence on the students, and induce a larger proportion of them to apply themselves to the study of this larguage

I deem it proper to call to the recollection of the Students of the College, that the Statute recently enacted requires the College Council to report to the Government when, after a reasonable period of trial (which term is in ordinary cases not to exceed two months) any Student may not appear to be deriving advantage from the College. The strict execution of this duty is not infre desirable for the discipline and respectability of the Listitution, then for the real interests of the Students. A Student who, from that curreause, except sickness, fails to Lak, reasonable progress in the arquisition of the languages, proves that his continuance in College cannot be beneficial to him --while on the contrary, habits of idleness of extravagance may be generated which can best be checked and corrected by an early removal from the Presidency.

I take this opportunity of repeating what has already been declared, that in the selection of individuals for office, the period of leaving College, qualified for the public service, and the relative rank of the Students as to proherency, will be taken as the criterion of their claims to preferment, rather than length of residence in the country, or their standing on the list of Civil Servants.

The recent re-establishment of pecamery rewards during the past year, both to 8 dents in College, and to those who subs quently to leaving College may acquire such a knowledge of the Sanscrit and Arabic languages, as shall enable them to read and explain the Books of Mahomedan and Hindon Law, was noticed in a former discourse from this Chair I trust I am not too gangume in anticipating the best effects from the incitements thus held out to emulation and excitionan more useful and honorable puisiats An additional proof has recently been offorded, of the high importance which the Government attaches to an accurate knowledge of certain oriental languages, by those whose duties lead them to constant intercourse with the natives of the country, by the resolution of the Governor General in Council, providing for the exagmeation of Military Officers, who may be nominated to the situation of Interpreters to Native Corps. In order to give full effect to this regulation, measures are in progi si for facilitating to the Members of the Hon ble Company's Army, the acquisition of the Hindoostance and Persian, by rendering useful Class Books more accessible to those who may feel a desire to cultivat those languages.

A hist of the literary works published during the year will be appended to this discourse. Although notimmediately connected with the College, I cannot allow this opportunity to pass, without congratulating the institution and the Public at large in the publication of a new-and revised control of the 1st volume of the elementary malysis of the Laws and Regulations of this Guvernment, one of the fruits of the learned and respected Author's lessure, during his short residence in England. This volume comprizes the whole of the Judicial Regulations down to the middle of the year 1821, comprehending the important enactments of the year 1814, and other material improvements in our judicial code.

The College Council have stated to me their entire satisfaction at the attention and conduct of all the Officers of the College states the period of the last meeting; a report which has caused me much gratification and demands the expression of my cordial acknowledgements to those Gentlemen. They are also justly due to the learned Natives attached to the Institution.

afforded to those useful and laudable Institutions, the School Book Society, and the Calcutta School Society; as well as to the Attached to the Institution.

To the Members of the College Council themselves, who so ably and impartially preside over the affairs of the establishment, to the inhinte advantage of its concerns, I desire to tender my warnest thanks. Can I offer to the Students a stronger inditement to study and generous emulation than the homorable example of those Gentlemen who, one and all, in their progress to the high and responsible offices which they fill, signalized their early career in India, by the acquisition of proud and distinguised honors in that Institution, over which they now ex-

t cannot be prefative to the present occasign o dvert to the condition and prospect of other coll grate Institutions established under the protection and patronage of the G v:rument of this Country. The Mail-14 st, or College for Mahomedan Law, . found d by the illustrious Warren Hastings, has litely attracted the particular Attention of Government Through the liberal and d sinter sted exertions of the Superintencing Committee, added by their learned and zenlous Secretary, Dr. Lumsden, the most important reforms have been introduced fato the discipline and studies of t at Institution. These measures have been crowned with the most signal success, even during the short period in which they have been in operation, and they premise the happiest re u'ts. The annual ex m nations of the Students which are now publicly held, may be confidently referred to in proof, both of the actual improvement that has taken place, and the spirit of zeal and emulation that has beenferea'ed.

Similar good effects have attended the reforms so judiciously introduced into the Hindoo College at Benarcs, which had gradually fallen into neglect and decay, until the deteriorated condition of the Institution as well as the means of restoring it to vigour and efficiency, were brought to the notice of Government by a distinguished oriental scholar, whose public duties called him to that city To Mr. Wilson also is the Government indebted for the plan of a College about to be founded at the Presidency, for Sanscrit and Hindoo learning under the liberal encouragement held forth for the revival and improvement of literature, and the encouragement of learned Natives, by the Honorable Company and the British Parliament. Other Institutions, both Mahomedan and Hindoo, will gradually be re-formed, or founded, in pursuance of the wise and benevokut views to which I have just alluded.

The attention of the Governor General in Council is sedulously directed to the important subject of public instruction. In furtherance of that object, public aid has been tions, the School Book Society, and the Calcutta School Society; as well as to the Hindoo College founded in 1817, and superintended by some of the principal Hudoo Geutlemen of this city. No wise or just Government can be indifferent to the hierary and moral improvement of its subjects, and other and more extensive measures may hereafter be framed for the education of the various classes of the inhabitants, of the British possessions .- The subject is one of the highest importance both to the Government and the prople. The diffusion of libe all education among the Natives of India, may be rendered a blessing or perverted into a curve to the country, according to the manner in which it is carried into effect. If by any improbable combination of circumstances, a misguided zeal or overheated enthusiasm should mingle in this important pursuit, the most disastrous consequences may be predicted, both to the people and then rulers: But directed to its proper and legi-tunate ends, and conducted with the judge ment, discretion and sobriety which I trust will never be lost sight of, and, above all, with the full concurrence and cordial co oneration of the Natives themselves, it cannot fail to produce the most extensive and decided benefits, both to the Government of the Country, and to the millions under its sway.

A DICTIONARY and GRAMMAR of the Bhote, or Thibetian Language, prepared partly in Latin and partly in the German and Italian Languages, by the Roman Chatholic Missionaries, and the late Reverend Mr. Schroeter during their residence in that country, under the countenance and authority of the late Major Barri Latter, Agent, to the Governor General at Titalya; and now translated and prepared for the Press by the Reverend Dr. William Carry, Professor of the Sansorit, Bengalce and Mahratta Languages in the College of Fort William.

These Works may be considered highly valuable on two accounts. First, they are the labours of men of learning who reside if or a long period in the country, and who were in every respect qualified for the tast, and, secondly, the country where the Bhote Language is spoken is the only one which lies between the British Dominions and these of Russia, to which may be added the great probability, or rather certainty, that this is the current Language, of the whole of C inese Tartary. The plaint was filed on the 7th of May, 1823. The 1st count is for a libel, published in the FALCUITA JOURNAL of the 22d of February, 1823, in a letter headed "Important Que-lies," and signed "Crispus." The dunages are laid at 100 000 Rupees Mr Clinks then rose and addressed the Court to the following effect. In the case on which I have now the honour of addiessing the Court, it is my province to call its attention to the description of the injury sustained by my client a elergyman at the head of the Scotch Church in India and a chaplain in the Honourable Compuny's Scr vice. Two of the defendants are proprie tors and one is the Editor of the Caratary JOURNAL The plaintiff comes had to day to seek reparation from the defend into for the libels they have published in unst his character. I feel that no langua cot mine did I possess even that power of oratory which distinguishes my learned friends who are opposed to me, could ever appeal so torcibly for rediess as the simple statement of the case of my client he is a minister of the Gospel -the preest of the Cicator,-a servant of the Most Fight a preacher of the Suited Word, and either does or ought to surpass oth a men in paty and rectatude of conduct. It is not on the well on rumstance of his situation done on given he claims redress for the much done to me character, but he, as a cleintman his no other protection but the law. I m aware that it is the duty of a clergym n to sast un injury with meckness and tork of ance and with Chri tian patience, but I have get to learn that it is his duty to suff a himself to be reviled and not to come forward to justity his character and to seek reduces. I do not mean to say that many well me ming persons may not blame him for coming for ward to seek for reparation many may think him wrong in coming here. I shall how excisrclate a scaple rale that will, I think, Tipe this matter in another light. There

By the Advocate General . Knows Mr. Sandys lives in Calcutta, because he visits at his house: His house is now in Chive Street: In May last, it was in a small lane leading out of the Cossitoil sh Street: Wit ness was originally educated for the Church of Scotland: He was not ordained, but was a Probationer. Was acquainted with the tenets and discipline of the Church of Scotland : The discipline, comparatively with that of other Churches, is somewhat rigid: Does not know what the duties c a Clerk of the Stationery Committee new (The Advocate General informed the W tness that one of them was to advertize for pa-per, ink, tape, gum and leather:) knows that in the opinion of the more exemplary, such an office would be accounted duringat ry to the clerical dignity: It would be thought so in the opinion of the Ministers and the great body of the People of Scot-Ignd.

By Mr. Pemberton.—Knows the Church is divided into two bodies, on, of which is called the Wild, and the other the Moderate party: There are leading men on both sides: The Moderate party have the greatest influence in establishing the Regulations: He meant that both amongst the Wild class and the Malerate, the office of Clerk of the Stationery would be constituted derogatory for a Minister. He should have no objection to take it himself, had be been in orders: What be would not consider improper in himself he would not consider improper in another man: Has known a Minister act as a Medical Man, but not receive fees. Knows Mr Stuart, Manister of Bolton. (An objection was here raised by the Advocate General, which was confirmed, the Court deciding that only general and not particular evidence like this could be allowed:) The moderate party is most numerous in the Church: Dr. Bryce would certainly be lessened in the estimation of the Wild party for holding the office he does: It is the practice of the General Assembly to vote an address to the King amoually: Knows Mr. Thomson, Minister of the Kirk: Was very well acquainted with him. He was of the Wild class. (The Advocate General again objected to this kind of evidence, observing that the Court had nothing to do with what office Mr. Thomson or Mr. Johnson held, but after some explanation from Mr Pemberton as to the murport of it, it was suffered to be quer): Has heard Mr. Thomson was Editor of the Christian Instructor.

Bu the Advocate tiencial.—The word "Wild" is not entered on the Relaids of the General Assembly! It is a mekname bestowed by the opposite party. They (the wild party) do not admit it themselves. They are known by the term Godly,—or Evangelical! The Evangelical party is the most consistent with the ancient practices of the Church of Scotland. There are many most respectable and truly religious member of men of most exempt my lives.

By Mr. Pemberton.—Many excellent men also among the Moderate class.

Sandford Arnot called again and examined by Mr. Pemberton.—Is an A istant muto Joarnal Office: Assistant flattor: On the Journal: Has been so since some time in Fabruary last: Thinks he was Editor on the 23d of February last: He is Elitor now: Don't know whether Mr. Palmer and Mr. Ballard were Proprietors. A. Oh! po, certainly not.

All who draw pay from the Civil Fund, are not in the Civil Service, Not strictly. There is a distinction between Civil Servants and uncovenanted Servants persons that receive salaties from the Civil Fund, and are not in the service, are called uncovenanted servants. The Clerk of the Stationery Committee, is not properly in the Civil Service.

By Mr. Clarke: He means that Dr. Bivee is not strictly in the Civil Service - Ile is In the Civil Department. He understands that Di Bryce is paid out of the Civil Fund.

By the Advocate General: He never could say that Doctor Bryce was in the Civil Service. He is pard out of the same fund as His Lordship on the Bench, the Civil Fund. but he would not therefore call his Lordship in the Civil Service. There are two gen-tlemen in Court, paid out of the Civil Fund: Does not consider Mr. Ives, for instance, in the Civil Service He does not draw so large a salary as the Clerk of the Stationery. Cross-examined by Mr. Turton,--He put his maine on them a few days after. He purchased them on the 19th of April last. As they are now.

By the Court: He is not aware whether they had been out of his possession or not before he marked them.

His acquaintance is so limited that it is extremely difficult for himto say whether or not the letter of " Peter Pomice has produced any effect as to the character of Doctor Bryce (Wilness was bere desired to look at the Penkinfe "Epigrum" no the Note to the letter of Presbyteros) He has certainly heard disapprobatton of Dector Bryce's conduct expresse . hue not so strongly as here (referring to the above publications.) He thinks Doctor Biyee's character was injured by his acper ting the office of Secretary to the Comn 10 c of Stationary : no doubt these pubbeations injuied his character generally. He has been so long in India that it is hardly a fair question to ask him as to his knowle lge of the practices of the Scottish Church. He should not conceive himself actly jutined in saying that Scotch Clergymen are Editors of Magazines; but he has heard from the publisher that a Scotch Clergyman was Editor of the Christian Instructor. He was called to it some time ago by a friend. does not know whether it is like other Magazines: it contains miscollaneous matter. He, witness, is a Member of the Kirk Sossion, Doctor Bryce is a Minister.

By the Advocate General:- He has often heard that a good sermon contain miscellaneous matter. He knows that Doctor Bryen. published a volume of sermons when he washere before, but does not recollect whether he conducted any other work. Does not know much of his conduct; recollects his conducting a common Newspaper called the ASIATIC MIRROR Beingves he did so. He (witness) sometimes read the Paper: does not recollect he can swear it was the most belligerent Paper, but there was a very sharp controversy carried on in it. Doctor Bryce was a sharp controversialist There was a good deal of personality too. Doctor Biyee suffered amongst some Presbyterians by editing the Mirror. He does not behave that a great many of his congregation secoded on account of it-nor is he aware that he suffered in the estimation of the Elders. The Address to Lord Hastings was while he was absent. He recollects something about Doctor Bryce's Address: It was a rejucted Address. He beard of the Address to Lord Hastings when His Lordslip was going away too- Do 't know that Doctor Bivee edits the ORII AT. L MA-GAZINE (a number shewn to here) knows the work. He cannot say whether he has been thought by his congregation to have mixed with a in the Christian Instructor the times. Doctor Bread discount of the christian Instructor the times. the Elders from the Pulpit, the congregation may object, but he never heard of an Instance of their doing so. He believes Doctor Bryce has edited the Okies Lan Ma-E 12181 (reads a passage from unember handed to him) and it now strikes him that the passage he has just referred to, alludes to the Editor of the CALCUTTA JOURNAL He might have known perhaps that the letter headed "Secular Emoluments" alluded to Doctor Bivee, even if other facts had not assisted him to that benef because others knew it But if nothing had hopp ned about Dr. Bry oc, should not have known that it alluded to him.

> By the Coart -II no such circumstance as that which transpired at the General Acsembly had occurred, he could only have supposed perhaps that "Perer Pounce" ulluded to Dr Bryce from the encumstance of his being the only Minister from a foreign land.

Fergusson -The phrase Holy Orders is episcopal; but we should controlly thinks · Scotch Clergyman is in Holy Orders, tho he never heard the term applied in the in the character of Dr Bryce absolutely Scotch Church. Had always heard it applied to English Clergymen. He does not think that by the expression in the Penknife Epigram " to whose tail this should be cummed" that it was meant that it should be gummed to the tail of the Plantiff (a laugh). The gum and the rockets would, he should think, make a bad mixture. The whole Epigram excited nothing but laughter in his mind, but it aid sinke him that the person who wrote it might not have been of the same mind 'With respect to the reputed allusion to the Devil in the Epigrain he cannot speak -he does not know whether the Devil has one cloven foot or two. has never seen hun, only heard of him

The Advocate General - I have heard of his playing prequet, and while the one foot was cloven, on the other he had a shoe with a fine diamond buckle in it (much laughter)

He [Doctor Hare] has never seen any likeness of the Devil, but in pictures: the finest of these represented him with two cloven teet.

By Mr. Clarke - There can be but one opinion as to the intention of the Epigram . that is, that if was to hold up Doctor Bryce to redicule. Knows Doctor Bryce administers the Socrament: he mairies, burnes, and hiptizes he believes. He might perfor a those functions without being in Holy Orders, but it would be contrary to every rule of the Church. If he had not been in How Orders he might have been preverted from performing these acts.

The Advocate General-He don't swear that a Member of the Church of Scotland is in Holy orders.

I don't recollect that Dr. Bryce was the loudest in that clamor; but I know he was warm, and insisted on his Address being received. He was not very cool on the last occasion. Eramined by Mr Clarks.- I saw nothing "unbecoming" (a laugh) the character of a Clergyman.

DR. WM. GRAHAM.

Examined by Mr. Clarke.- I have read the ' Lovortant Queries" and Penkuite Epigram Both allude to Doctor Bryer, also the Le ter on " Secular Empluments, and the "Clerical Avarice Reproved," and the Editor's note to " Presbyteros"

^{*} The Recording Angel here shook his Trad, and althor he could not blot it out on ever- sighed or . the record-" bootland must be sadly aftered since & aft it !"

The Advocate General submitted that still so succeeds in obtaining damages at all, * the publication was not proved.

Mr. Henry William Hobbouse sworn and -examined.

(The Affidavit required by Government previous to granting a License, subscribed by Messrs. Palmer and Ballard, being shown to him.) This Affidavit was sworn before

Cross Examined by Mr. Turton.

I was at the Town Hall when one address to the Marquess of Hastings was proposed by Mr. Udny and another by Dr. Bryce. Q Was Dr. Bryce of the Mild Party or of the Wild Party that day?

A. He was very warm; there was a kood deal of noise and clamour; but I did not observe him strike the table.

The Anvocate General rose and stated that he still considered the publication not proved. Dr. Graham purchased the Papers on the 19th of April, and could not swear that they had not been out of his possession before he marked them. Again the , aftidavit does not prove that Messrs. Palmer and Ballard were proprietors; for it did not once say throughout that they were proprietors at all; only that there were no larger Proprietors than they; and on that affidavit the proof must rest; for Mr. Heckford merely stated that they received profit as Shareholders sometime in January or February.

Mr. Clarke expressed an opinion that Mr. Heckford had used the word Proprietors. which was denied by the Defendant's Coun-

The Advocate General then observed that these were some of the objections which he had to propose, but their were many, as" might be supposed to the Inductments in the plaint and the way in which they had been proved. He would address is Lordship then, and look into the record to-mor-· row.

As it was now late in the atternoon, we believe about six o'clock, some conversation passed between the Bench and the Bar, whether or not the Court should adjourn till next day. His Lov slop politely, ex-pressed his willingness to; o on or not just as suited the convenience of the Coursel. and the Anvocare General consequently availed himself of the opportunity of immediately addressing his Lordship, ma speech of considerable length, to which, from the lateness of the bour, we are sorry we cannot do justice.

THE DEFENCE

The Anvocate General -1 vise to add dress your Lordship on account of the Detendants in this case, who have been brought into Court by the Revd. Dr. Bryce, with the view of compelling them to pay ham the sum of One Hundred Thousand Rupers, which he so modestly elaims. If which I do not imagine, after the case we have heard, it must be reduced to a very small fraction indeed of the sum.

The alleged Labels, it is evident have a risen entirely out of the appointment of Dr. Bryce as Secretary to the Stationery Committee. Of the propriety or otherwise of that appointment being conferred on him. I dont mean to say any thing; as I dont care at all about it. The Government no doubt considered him ht for it; and considering th quantity of pen, nak, and paper, be his lums, If used, I have no manner of don the is from experience perfectly competent to discharge its duties. But as to the proprices of his accepting that situation, I have much to star. From what we have he ard to day, it is an employment of his telents, to see proving which great doubts may be cutertained, if it be not degrading to the character of a Clergyman. We have indeed been told, of tayloring and shoen king eleigemen, but even taking the extrao nary evidence of the two last witnesses who had spoken to that point, it is evident that such occupations could only be justified by the most imperious necessity, and her saity justifies every thing but crime. Or Bivee, herng amply provided for by the Honor ble Company, was not reduced to such means of cking out a subsistence, an therefore the propriety of his acceptance of the odice as charged in the second Count, was a tair subject for discussion. Dr. Halliday, the Proceedings witness who was immediated for the Presbyterian Church, has said clearly, that the situation was meompatible with the angrous principles of the Church of Scotland, and that he considers the acceptance of it derogatory; and that such also would be the opinion of a large proportion of the Ministers of the Scott b Church. Those are by their adjectaries and the Prosocutor's Counsel) mickin med " the Wild party;" though we know that they are properly denonn ated the Godle or Evangelical parts, and we have it in evalence, that among hem are many men of the most exemplary live's and strictest piety; and that it would be nondemned not merely bythis party of the Clergy, but by the great holy of the people of the Church of Scotland. And sine, as Dr. Halliday his stated, it is contrary to the strict rules of the Church venerated by our fathers, it is safely a fan object of public dispussion; and we have a right to question the propriety of his conduct who has departed from them. Dr. Hare, an vider of the Church, has moreover told us, that many of the Plaintilla congregation dispproved of the editing a common controver-sial newspaper. That he was so employed is well known, yet this is the man who is eulogized by my Learned Friend as the Priest of the Most High: It is an incontrovertible fact that on accepting the above mentioned situation, he has been actuated by the love of midney purely, for there is

Service of the Company and as my Loarned Friend has not been able to prove him to be so attached to the Military Service, there also he must fail, for it runs through the whole case:

Bruly .-- Again the Plaintiff is ; fated to be a Clerk to the Committe for controlling the expenditure of Stationery at Calcutta, in the Civil Service of the Honorable East India Company. Both in the acts of Parhament and in Common parlance a marked distinction was made between covenanted servants of the Company, and those nearly employed by it; and neither would the Plaintiff be held in the Civil Service. My Learned Friend indeed endeavoured to show, that the Members of the Committee were in the Civil Service; but Mr. Lushington had proved that some of their were in the Military, so there was no evidence for it whatever. The Advocate General here read an extract from an act of Parhament, XXXIII Geo. 8 cap. 69. On this act Civil Servants have been tried and convicted, and others not in the Civil Service, attempted to be tried on the same, have been acquitted, this not being proved therefore, of the Plaintiff, the Plaint must eseveral Addiosses, one we have ward of tofall to the ground.

4thly -Again the Prefatory remarks that Mr. Backingham was Editor of the Calcut-11 JOURNAL, have not been proved; and your Lordship knows, that if any allegation or inducement is found in the prefatory remarks, it affects the while of the counts that follow, and is but to thomit the inducement or prelatory comeths be not substananswerthis description.

To begin with the first article charged as hbellous, it is stated that the office of Clerk to the Station ry Committee had been held by one of Mie greatest Ociontal Scholars now in existance (Dr. Lumsden—a man of great literary talents); and that on the death of Dr. Jamesons it was not again given to him, but to the Plaintiff. Now, I say again, I have no concorn with the uppointment; I have only to do with the acceptance. It is stated to have been given to a person of Address-wifting notoricty: Enrely this is no libel—to say that a man writes Addresses? We know that the Plaintiff did write ! day was rejected; another was carried by storm at the Town Hall. It then goes on to sinte, that he is" generally engaged in pursuits not very compatible with the claimal character." And this, I say, is no libel, After the evidence we have heard to-day, Falso do aver, as far us my opinion is worth any thing, that the parents in which he has hobu proved to be engaged, are not very compatible (the moderate phrase used) with the clerical character. Nay it soons very doubtful, if they be at all compatible with it. That it is not, it is quite a describe the snew that he has to perform the duties nonis supposed to be friendly to liberal opinions (which is surely no libel;) or did the mandate spontaneously emanate from Government, through a desire to of "in-demnity for the past, and security for the lutyre," which does not affect the Plainuff. It is then put hypothetically (for it is no where affirmed) that is the order

Are these the arts which policy supplies? Are these the arts by which gieve Churchmen rite ! Forbid it, Hauven! of should it furs out Let me and migh confline mean and low. Housen! of should it turn out so,

The innuence here put, is, that it means the said Plaintiff had risen to his rank and situation in life by practising dishonorable arts." Now this cannot be the meaning ; because the same pacagraph refers to bis conduct lately, and cannot apply to his elevation to the pulpit, which took place many years before. It evidently refers only to his appointment as Elerk of the Stationers Committee a raid, therefore, if ever an innuendo in the worldexceeded the meaning of the original, this does. Besides, the one is put hypothetically, the other po-sitively. Altogether the quotation of the verses as a Libel, are most unfortunate; for the "mean and low," are not means by the speaker in whose mouth they are put by the Poet, to signify any thing base and dishonourable; but that state of humility which · ho prefers.

I now come to the second Count, or Penknite Case. It is thus stated in the Plaint, That before and at the respective times dimuendo-meaning that the accompanying of committing the said several grievatices hereinafter mentioned, it was part of the duty of the said Plaintiff in the performance or execution of the duties of the said Office pend the Plaintiff's own gum in gumning of Clerk of the said Committee of Sistings it to his tail-to what tail were we to gum ery, to give notice from time to time in the it, unless he be one of Lord Monboddo's Public Newspapers, to wit, at Calcutta aloresaid, that he would receive at the Stationery Office, to wit, at Calcutta aforesaid, scaled proposals of Contracts for the sup-Ply of various articles of Stationery, to wit, Paper, Pens, Sealing Wax, Sand, Ink,

But I think the figure much like a harp as a heart, and how the initials of the United East In Ye Company, can make out vice, is more the I can tell. They say, my Lold, that if must be converted into V. why I don't know, any more than into Z; but the moment U becomes V, then you get Vice (a laugh). However it does not make vice atter all, according to my way of reading but visic for von f and what these are, I campot tell. So we must not only change U into V, but I into C-and C into I But the fact is, it can mean no such thing.

The innuendos in this Count must prove equally fatal as those in the tormer. My Learn Strend, who made a most excellent Speech, galloped over his own manuendos as fast us posible, without noticing them. But I will read them, and examine them attentively; for hundreds of cases have been rained by ridiculous innuendes. "Squibs (he quotes) though interior to Congreve-Rockets, are sometimes very 118agreeable fizzing (INNUENDO-meaning fizzing,) and sticking like a bur to one's fail." -I don't know what may be meant by a bur, but it it be one of these on the River, it would be a terrible incumbiance for the tail : in the original it is not fizzing (asabove) but fozing which can not be fizzing Then it says :- To whose tail the accompanying should be gummed, and who most descrives the odium and the smart Epigram or verses ought to be gunried to the tail of the said Plaintiff") Ind my Le arned Friend intend that we should exmea! (much langleter.)

The plaint goes on: (quotation from the Journal,); A certain Minister and I are seen through in a trie; (My Learned Friend has told you, that the kute speaks my Lords) A Butt in character is one Paper, Pens, Sealing Wax, Sana, Lua, Leather, Tape, Et cetera.

Now this averment, I maintain, has not been made out at all. We have heard from Gopal Dutt. something of Lord, the Butt is thought a noble animal Advertisement; but a mere Advertise and the name is thought a noble animal ment is not the thing. An Advertise and the name is thought a hobbe animal content for Paper went do; nor Pens; nor Sealing Fax, nor Seal, nor Leather, nor Et cetera. afraid of the Devil?

The next charge is that the Plaintiff is called, a "wordly Minister;" which isinterpreted hat he is not fit to be a Minister of God. Now, after all we have to-day heard of shoemaking Ministers and tailoring Ministers; it is not too much,-it is no libel, I say, to call him a worldly man, who with a liberal salary engages in secular concerns: can it be inferred from the evidence adduced by the Plaintiff, that a worldly man is untit to be a Minister of God? He is a wordly man beyond all quer im? I don't say improperly so; but a'e the circumstances of the case fairly warrant us in bestewing on bim that character. As to the scaring of his congregation, my learned friend has not proved he ever had any, and thus, therefore, is also like "the burn tall of corn," and goes for nothing. It goes on:-

" With pounce and sand and gum in hand,

" He sticks to making money."

The innuendo put, is, that "he attends solely (which is not asserted) to making money and neglects the performance of his Christian duties." And:—

interpreted in the innuendo—" That the Plaintiff is hent on worldly gain, to the exclusion of all the virtues that should endow a Christain Minister!!." These innuendos are quite unwarranted, and really to have raked up this foolish squib, for it is nothing else, at this time of day, was unworthy of the pains and trouble that have been taken. It was evidently intended merely to create laughter. It was a joke about the Parson and the Bull, but not a libel; it was not a thing to bring parties here to claim damages.

I now come to the third count—part of the Editor's Note to the Letter of Pressynters, and this I maintain is no libel; as the writer of the letter to which the note reters disbelieves that the Plaintiff was the "FileNo ro Bankes," and the Editor in the note expresses the same opinion; therefore, nothing remains but the statement of the fact that the Plaintiff was generally believed to be the author; that such a belief had gained ground, and here correbotated by his sidence. The Editor anystruly "it is incompatible with the Clerical character to blow up the coals of same and their anystruly and the correbotated by the sidence. The Editor anystruly "it is incompatible with the Clerical character to blow up the coals of same and this is the grievant charge that his for months lain against Doutor Bryge since his return to India; said yet he, on folimer occasions, so careful of his reputation, has by his in-recorded against him in the public opinion; from which, as he has allowed his day of grave to pass for ever, it would appear there can be no appeal." Phis does not prevent to assert a fact, but to state a belief which the Plaintiff's own act, his silence had suffered to prevail and he confirmed. Isay so too : and if these letters were written by him; which he has never publicly denied, I be-seeth you by Lord, to read them, and you will agree with me that the Editor might well speak of tenring asunder the bands of socie'v. They are the most atrowere directed against Mr. Buckingham, the Proprietor of this Paper, whom it was attempted to drive from Society, which was: called upon to hunt him down like a wird beast; and to brand all who should dies. to hold out to him the hand of fellowship. (The Counsel on the other side intimuted that he alluded to the Letters of NIGFL and others.) There were many letters under different signatures: but the nefarious object of them was the same, and the spirit in which they were written. But no two propositions can be more dissimilar than to assert, that Doctor Bryde was the author of them, and to say that such an impression had gone abroad: that Doctor Bryce was actually a sower of dissention, and that if the general opinion was correct, he had blown up the coals of strife to disturb the peace of so-

I now come to the fourth Count. It seems as it in the eyes of those who drew up the Pfaint, all innuendos had been considered as nothing. They stated that the Plaintiff had obtained permission to proceed to Europe, and that he had returned trom Europe; and then they gave a part of the proceedings of the General Assembly; but they had not shown that Dr. Bryce went to Scotland at all, which is perhaps the last place a person might go to, proceeding to Europe. It ought to have been stated that Dr. Bryce was a member of the General Assembly; for he might, for aught I know, have been all the time at Rome; from which, by the bye, he did me the honor to send me a very outer aming and very well written Letter. There is, therefore, nothing in the plant to show, that he answored to the description of "the Divine who had returned from a foreign land; and caused the expulsion of a poor Scotch, Clergyman who was engaged in a secular concern of emolument. If it be incompatible with the duries of a Clergymun to be so engaged, which many prous Presbyte-rians think, it was monitorious to procure his expulsion, and no libel on any one to say he contributed towards it, and to accuse Dr. Bryce of doing so, then is no libel. That it is held to be incompatible, is from Dr. Halliday's evidence sufficiently apparent, according to my notion, and R. is so according to the notions of those whom I was accustomed to venerate in my youth, and who have carried these opinions with them to their graves. This I will illustrate by a quotation from a book in which the duties of a Presbyterian Clergyman are very well described:

" A parochial clergyman has, in many situations, the regular duty of delivering three discourses every Lord's day, and these discourses must frequently be committed to memory. To compose, and get by heart, three discours s, every week, would especially its course. ally if any pains were taken about the delivery, be to ordinary men a very sufficient employment, during the first part, at least of their clerical career Besides, a parochi-al minister has to baptize and marry; to visit the sick; to catechise the young, and ignorant, to concur, with his Session, in the management of the poor's funds; to su-perintend his whole parish; to attend to their morals, to rebuke and reclaim the virious; and to enforce the precepts of religion by ecclesiastical discipline, and by all the power of example. I am sure that, in the importance of the clerical office were to be the subject of a Synod Somon, all this would be displayed with the glowing colours of cloquence; and perhaps the conclusion might be. Who is sufficient for these things." Pamphlet by W. L. Brown, Principal of the Marischal College, Aberdeen, With such weighty duties incumbent upon him, every one will agree, that Dr. Bruce ought not to have accepted such a situation Shall we be told, that it is a libel to say it is rucousistent with his elected character? say it fearlessly. If Dr Bryce does not think so, I differ from him. We are all liable to be influenced by the device of gain, and for that reason I say, it is necessary the rules of the Scotch Church, as of every other, should be strict, that those who are to be teachers of religion and morality, may be kept pure and set a good example to others. Doctor Hare has told us that Doctor Bryce's conduct gave offence to many of his Parishioners: "that they disapproved of his editing Newspapers. From the first moment he changed in such pursu-its, he ought to have laid his account with consurers and he has no right to come into a Court of Justice to claim damages for rity of the pleadings. It is not stated in the Plaint that Doctor Bryce was in Scotland at all ; now Dr. Hare inferred be was alluded to because he knew he had heen there at the time, and this omission must therefore prove fatal to the Count altogether.

Sir Anthony Bullen: There is evidence, and it is stated that he had gone to Europe and returned, and it might be inferred he had been in Scotland.

ADVOCATE GENERAL .- Yes my Lord, but that wont do, altho' a man may guess it. Again, it is not said, that the libel was against Doctor Bryce in his Clerical character The work against which Doctor Bryce's zeal was directed, was the Cumstian Ivstructor,-a work devoted to the cause of religion and morality, not the sort of publication in which the Plaintiff is proved to have been engaged.

I now come to the 5th count, on which the Plaint is equally defective, the inducement not deing made out. It is not proved that the Letters of the "Farmo To Bankes" Wife published (as stated) in John Bull. In fact wen the publication of the John Buil is not proved. It has not been shown that Mr. Buckingham has had a License, which was made void. The writer of this letter signed an Englishman, in keep fair comment on the acceptance of the appointment. ment, contending it is incompatible with the sacerdotal dignity, which I also maintain, and expresses an opimon that it a Ciergy. man of the Church o England had accepted the same situation, he would have been deprived of his canonicals for ever an opinion which he had an undaubted right to ex-

Our Honomable Masters in Leaden-hall Street are mentioned: they intended that the Plainull should supply their Scottish Brethren with spiritual food; - not that he should sow the seeds of dissention, or do any thing mecompatible with the sacordotal dignity; so which, in accepting that situatiour teannot be supposed he had any great regard, on that point I address your Lordship freely, and confidently autoipate a verdict of acquittal. The "Englishman" says, that such conduct would not be permitted in an English Clergyman. Yet it might have been permitted to a Scotch one; for it is possible that the rales of the Scotch Chaton may be different: but I say that, by accepting that situation, the Planed land himself op-n to censure, and it is impossibie for your Lordship, after the evidence you have heard this day from Dr. Hare and Dr. Halliney, to doubt but he richly deserved consuits. The whole gist of the next pathem. Plier Pounce ascribes no improper mouve to Doctor Bryce, but that he onght to have the results a zealous defender of the purity of the Sanyl if he were the author of these letrity of the pleadures. It is not seen to be informatically the second to be informatically to be informatically the second to be info so say 1—it he were the author of these let-ters, he ought to be differed from his sa-ored office. I heatage not to say that, in such a case, he doubted who of his social or cu-ployment: In more infurious, and exerci-ble fibels never existed. That it is not so-serted that the is the midner of these abominable productions as sverred in the nucedo. "It is generally believed and tent ourselves with printing the Letters no where denied," that he is the author rend, and noting the variations of the said libels resconverted into this, in the record at the bottom of each. that it "is generally believed and every where avowed that he ought to have his gown taken off his back!!!"

In this Count, therefore, as in every one they have failed to make out their Plaint; and on three grounds, I think, I have a right to ask of your Lordship a verdict of acquittal.

But my Lord, looking at the whole case, after all we have beard of the conduct of Dr. Bryce, his Newspaper-writing, his addiess-writing, his personal controversies, his viou nee in supporting addresses, and las ly, his acceptance of this appointment can we doubt for a moment that he her, stepped out of his proper sphere,—that he has deprived himself of the sacred shield of his religious profession, and bared his character to the censures of the world? When such a person accepts a secular appointment, is it not as fair an object of discussion, as any others? If this be prevented -- I do not talk to your Lordship now of the Liberty of the Press-but if we are not allowed to comment on such things in public or in private, I say, the common intercourse of society, is at an cod. It our mouths are thus shut, what testiaint remains to preserve in its purity the Church established by our fathers Who shall say to what lengths a disregard of its discipling may be carried. The English Chergy in this settlement,-to their praise be it spoken, - have uniformly tas far as my knowledge extends, conducted themselves in a most exemplary manner. But, without this guard over their actions, the opinion of their fellow cauzens, who can say that they would have laboured so snecessfully, and if no man's conduct is to be commented on, if no check of public opion remain, all hope of public improvement, I say, is at an end: nay, whatever degree of purity we may have inherited from our ancestors, whatever partion of virtue we may ourselves possess, must speedily melt away and be totally destroyed.

The Court then adjourned till the next day.

To the Editor of the Journal.

Sia, From several hints that have come out in the writings of yourself and the Bull Editor, and of several Correspondents in both Papers of late. (Referred to in the 5th Count). CLIRICAL AVARICE REPROVED.

" QUOQUMQUE JACIT, STABIT."

To the Editor of the Journal.

SIR,—It is really a pity that the humorous Correspondent of the John Buil, sunder the bands of some ty: but this is the who by his own account has been long confined to a sick couch, could not, on his argainst Dr Bryce [2] since his return to In- riving at a state of convalescence, resort to a more rational and useful amusement, than that of writing ungenerous insinuations and remarks on the letter which appeared in the JOURNAL some days since, signed "AN ENGLISHMAN." Well indeed might his Medical Adviser restrain him from reading Newspapers since he must have been awate of his bilious disposition

That letter. Sir, signed " An English-MIN," was not written by any party-man, the writer of it being free from prejudice, and altogether a stranger to the persons who on both sides of the la'e Paper Wat. have so prominently figured and distin-guished themselves by their mild and conchiating language. No, Sir, that letter was written by a man proud of his Fo hish blood, then juming cold with belief on seeing an industrious fellow-creature (who as far I can judge of him by his public character, is an honor to his country, compelled to fly from his laborious and no less useful and lastly it was written to shew that this society was losing an accomplished member, who by nature was qualified in every respect to give a tone for taste and elegance, hitherto unknown in this, country; and I do not besitate to say, that had this much-injured man written in the same servile tone as the Bulittes, his conduct would have been admired, nay unitated by almost every one of the few individuals here, who now abuse him.

I have already given my opinion on the cruelty and absurdity of that barbarous. Act, which is so much calculated by its abuse, to ruin whole families, so I shall reserve my remarks on the peculiar force which has been given to that Act, by the recent Transmission, until I arrive (which please God will not be many months) in that country where public men and measmes can be remarked on, with that freedom which has so long characterized and blessed my native land; neither snail I here notice the propriety of the appointment that (1) gave use to the injudicious but harmless remarks, for which Mr. Buckingham has been Bamshed; my business at present is with Doctor Biyee, who asked for and accepted the appointment, and who by so doing has caused all this mischief: but I do not hesitate to say, that such an avocation is wholly incompatible with saacrdotal diguity, so much so, indeed, that I feel confident our worthy Misters in Leaden-hall Street, will not confirm it. A Picacher of the Gospol should not sit at the receipt of custom, and I feel quite satism d, that if any Minister of the English Church was to accept teyen when offered to him) sich a situation of mere guin, (it cannot be called real in the welfare of mankind) he would be deprived of his canonicals for ever

I trust, therefore, (2) that I shall not be considered unlike an Englishman, when I thus conscientiously declare, that I consider Doctor Bryce, by seeking for, and subsequently accepting of this Clerkship, has not only called for reproof, but that he ought to be, publicly reprimanded, by those at home whose duty it is to protect the Kirk dignit . Matthew resigned his (what (3) to him was lucrative and honorable) situation, to preach the word of God and to follow his Divine Master, well knowing that he could not consistently serve both God and Mammon Doctor Bryce, by seeking lay emolument, has laid himself open to consure, and it he is the FRILND To BINKLS, which is generally believed and no where denied, he deserves to have his gown taken from his back

Since writing so far, a Friend has sent me the Letter of 'B. W" I have read it with attention, and find it a heavy, labored but very inefficient effort to justify Trans-mission. This Letter is evidently written by a Gentleman well known to this Society, although by the location of his mitials he has endeavoured to hide his name, to effect which, he has placed the part before the horse, while he popped his Godfather into the cart, that he might not see him ashamed of signing a name, not his own. Knowing this Gentleman as I have done from his childish days, for I have the bonor to be his townsman and schoolmate, I must confess I was disappointed when I read this sorry composition, though perhaps it is as able as could be expected, when we look at the notien material of which the Act is formed, and was he to write ten thousand volumes. he could never prove it to be any thing more fhan a "Legal Act of Injustice," fram-ed for urgent State Affans, not to pu-nish private wrongs. As i know "B.W." to be an Englishman, I am not surprised that he felt ashamed of advocating such a cause, and I am very glad he did not affix his real initials as they properly stand; a cause requiring masked advocates, must be very weak indeed, and this defence, if it has any effect at all, must go to shew the injustice of Transmission. There is only one thing in this defence which induces me to doubt the author, for I can scarcely bring myself to behave that he ("B. W.") could make use of unmanly and ungentlemanly lan-guage even to his hitterest enemy such as he has expressed in French towards Mr. Buckingham. "B. W." fears Mr. Buckingham cannot get his Licence renewed, without a certificate from this Government, if he ever feels any fear, it is the lear of his return : for he well knows the value which is put upon certificates at the India House when the applicant has good interest. Your obedient Servant.

Sir Anthony Buller thought the objections which had been made to the way in which the plaint was drawn up and put on the record sufficient to warrant him in granting leave to move for a new trial or a Motion in airest of judgement.

The Advocate General.-We ask your judgment, my Loid, on these variances.

SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT.

DR. BRYCE VERSUS THE CALCUTTA JOURNAL.

In submitting the following emendations we may take to ourselves credit, that the errors requiring notice are so few, and we may add that they are not owing to any want of care; for they were so stated from a scrupulous examination and comparison of notes taken by different individuals, whose it w mistakes might well be accountfillow, by the volubility with which some of the witnesses volunteered their testimony. so as to out-inn the Reporters, and the circum sance of many of them not enterrag the witness-box, where they might have been disting the heard, but giving their evidence in the part of the Court where they happened to be sitting, or standing in the crowd,an example which we trust will not be adopted as a precedent to sanction such an magnificand inconvenient practice white subjoine i, in as far as it deviates from our R. port, we give the uniform impressions of a great number of individuals, collected from plore extensive and particular enquiry, and we have therefore all the recurity tor i's accuracy which can be obtarged in such a case.

Dr Haladay's Endence, Page 316;-He thought that the situation of Clerk of Stanotary would be considered degrading to the clerical character by some of the Ministers and by the great body of the people of Scotland He was of opinion that among the Evangelical Party, and by some among the Moderates it would be so considered.

Dr Graham's Evidence, Page 319,-After stating that Scotch Clergymen night, if they pleased, write plays between semons, this witness was asked if they might act them afterwards, to which we are aspured he expressed his assent. We insert a letter from Dr. Graham, of A Law Report of such length as that giv- which, as far asregards ourselves, we need only say that we can with perfect confidence leave the large and respectable audience which was present to judge whether or not our rep esentation of his evidence was substantially correct: but we must add with regard to the remarks on the Counsel, that we are perfectly confident that if the censure of "fippancy and petulance" was merited by either the examiner or the examined not to the counsel but to two of the witnesses, who shall be nameless.

EVIDENCE OF DOCTOR GRAHAM.

To the Editor of the Journal.

Having observed a report of my evidence in your Piper of yesterday, in the case Bryck versus Bullard and others," I request you will all iw me to supply a deficiency in this report as given by you. When asked by the Jumor Counsel, in what I esteemed a very flippant and petulant manner, whether I thought it would be derogatory from the character of a Scotch Clergy-In in n to be a Tailor or Shoemaker, I answered in the same flippant and petulant man-ner, "Oh not in the least ." I do not mean to say that flippency and petulance of the Counsel warrant flippancy and petulance in a witness, but reflecting on the use which might be made of an answer so given. I im-mediately added But Sir, if you ask mo-seriously whether I think the office of a Scotch Clergyman and a Tailor compatible I say cert only not."† On this, Mr. Turton said flippantly as before, "So Dr. Graham you are not very particular about your Clergyman much more so about your Tailor." My answer was—"I am particular about every thing Sir, particular even to language used to me in a Court of Justice." By supplying this deficiency, you will do me both lavoi and an act of justice.

CRIM. CON.

Counsel for the Defendant: -Gronge Mo-NFY, Esquire, the Honourable Company's Standing Counsel.

BEFORE THE HONORABLE SIR A. BULLER

Mi TURTON opened the pleadings. This is an action brought against the d i ad int for criminal conversation with the plantif's wife. The plaint was field on the 7th of March, and the detendant pleaded the genetal issue.

The Dunages are Led at 100,000 Rs. The ADVOCATE GENERAL then rose and addressed the Coart nearly as follows: -My Lord, -On this occasion I need not launch out into the topics usually dwelt on in similar cases; because, I think, it would be impossible for me, My Lord, by any lan-guage of mine, to paint the injury done to iny client in darker or stronger colours than it must present itself to your Lordship's mind. The defendant in this case is a Lieutenant in the Army, and Deputy Judge Advogate General at Cawapore. Mr. Swetter am resides at Futtengum in charge of an sextensive district. He was married in 1818 to a daught r of Mr. Donnithorae of the Civil Service. It was a matchin every respect well proportioned, -- a match too of affection. She was about 17, singularly beautiful and accomplished—the plaintill was about 23. For four years they hard together with a harmony and affection seldom equalicd, and never exceeded. The unhappy father of the lady will tell you, that if his son-in-law had any fault, as a husband, it was that he was too indulgent, -that he was so fond of his wife-that he humoured her in every whim, in every caprice, and in every extravagance. It will be shewn in evidence that they continued to live togother in this affection until this destroyer, the defendant, came to blast their honour and happiness. In this state they were living, when in September last, while Mr. Swetenham was on a visit to

Campore at the house of a Captain Blackci-the defendant, Mr. Macnaghten, presented hunself. Mr. Swetenham became pleased with his manners, which are I understand, very fascinating; and invited premedity ted the dishonour of his friend, or whether the idea of committing this criminalmet afterward presented itself to his mind I cannot pronounce : for the honour of human nature, however, it is to be hoped that the latter was the case : but he that as it may, he went to visit Mi. and Mis. Swetenham in October last at Futteghur, expecting to find them there ? they were absent however in the dis rict, but fore the arrival of the defendant. He had and considering the short time his visitor had been with him, he felt it incumbent on his hospitality, to invite Mr Machaghten to accompany him on this journey Those who know any thing of the unbounded plotter against his peace and happiness.— The defendant and a Mr Mangles accomioniney into the district—they trivelled in tents, and my cheat was under the necessity of going duly to his Kutcheri, at some distance from the tents, in the discharge of the multifacious and pressing duties imposed on him in the management of a lerge district, and of remaining until late in the atternoon. The defendant occupi, d a tent neer that of Mr. Mangles. In the beginning of November, a short time atter Mr. Mangles' departure on his return to Futteghan, a Chooprassee of my chent's thinking he heard some one call him, went into the dining tent; and I leave him to describe the condition in which he saw the parties- suffice it to say, that the dishonour of my client was completed. The servants did not, at this time, inform their master of the affair- for so great was Mrs. Swetenham's influence over her husband, owing to his excessive fondness for her, that they were actually afraid to mention it, and so it turned out, that this intercourse went ou, and has command up to the present time. The party returned to Futteghur together, and it so happened that my client was again obliged to go into the district shortly wifer. He left Mrs Swetenham bolund hini on this occasion-her house, however, was in the same compound with that of her brother-inhim to come and visit him at his house at law, Captain Smith. The defendant having Futteghur. Whether from that moment he dearned the day settled for the departure of my chent, also fixed his, for the same day to go to Cawinpore; and it will appear that he must at that very time have plauned the clopement of my client's wife; for he land a dank for two persons. Mr Swetenham had (not from any suspicion of the defendant;) for he had not then the most distant idea of any cause for any, and his mind was too noble therefore to harbour any,-but be Were absent however in the dis rict, but had, for the sake of propriety, obtained Mr. Swetenham, expecting Mr M. chaghten, from Mrs. Swetenham, before his deparleft directions with his brother-in-law to re- ture, a promise which she most readily erric him. He had taken his departure be- gave, that she would live during his absence with Mrs. Smith her sister-in-law. only returned to Futteghur two days, when This, however, she did not fulfil. While he was obliged to go ago in into the district. Mr Swetchham was still absent and happy in the idea that he had left behind him as loving and faithful partner, he heard that the dishunour of his wife had been completed and returned to Futteghur on the very might she had eloped. But money can never testore to him his peace of mind, or bring back to him, in virtue, the unfortunate lady now living, -not in happiness with her seducer; but it will mark the extent of injury and enable him to obtain at another tribunal, the dissolution of that marriage which is now only a dishonour and a disgrace to him.

SPEECH IN MITIGATION OF DA-MAGES.

The evidence for the prosecution being closed, Mr. Money declined calling any evidence, but rose and addressed the Court in mitigation, in substance as follows:

My Lord, it was not my intention to have addressed your Lordship at all in this case, and but for an observation of my learned friend, calling on your Lordship to award heavy damages against my chent, I should have adhered to my purpose of remaining silent. Had my learned fuend made out the case which be has made out, without that observation. I might have supposed that he had not done all he could have done In making out a gase against my chent. But as he has made that remark, as he has call-ed for heavy demages, I have a right to suppose he has done all he could do in aggravation of them. I am not here, my lord, to justify the crime committed by my client for no man can more deeply repent it than he does. Had I been instructed indeed to defend his conduct, it would have been my duty to have attempted it-but so far is this from being the case, that the very first instructions I received with my brist were not to attempt to say one word against Mr. Swetenham, for that he was a most konourable man—but the observation of my learned friend peculiarly calls for, from me, a claim for mitigation of damages-the whole case, my Lord, shews only in this affair the acts of Mrs. Swetenham-no arts of seduction; none of those arts employed to ensuare and betray, which usually form the ground of a claim for heavy damages are here exhibited-on the contrary, a witness has been put into that Box, who proves that the de-fendant never saw Mrs. Swetenham till he went to Futteghur. Your Lordship put a question which I did not like to ask, but which I knew must produce a great effect whichever way it might be answered. It was stated by the witness that the Defendant never was at Futteghur before the time the party went out into the district. (The Advocare GENERAL. dented that this was in evidence,) I say there is no evidence that they had even been seen before (again objected that he came by invitation, and therefore must have knoun them before) I say that Captain Smith, who was very intimate, who is the brotherin-law, and who must have been daily at their house, has declared that he never saw the detendant before he saw him in the district with Mrs. Swetenham. I say, therefore, that it is a fan inference that he the defendant never had been at Futteghur before. or that if he had, he never had been on terms of intimacy with the plaintiff, yet it is in evidence that Mr. Mangles went with the party, that he remained with them till 3 or 4 days before their return to Futteghur. and hved with them, as much as my client. Now I maintain that if any arts of seduction had been used, he must have seen them: why was he not then put into that box and examined as to that fact? why but because my learned triends knew that he would have proved that no such arts were used. But it does appear that a few days after the party went into the district, this act was committed (objected by the plantiff's Counsel that it was after Mr. Mangles had left the party and returned to Futteghur.) I can only say that Captain Parsons had stated that Mr. Mangles had left them 3 or 4 days only, before the party returned; and the act of adultery proved, is sworn to have been committed a few days after they went into the distrct (objected by the Plaintiff's Counsel that Captain Parsons was not examined to this point,) well then it was either him or Captain Smith;—it was Captain Smith, and I will take his evidence in preference to that of other witnesses on this point as it stands, or I wilk ven give a further time and say it was five or six days before the return of the party that Mr. Mangles left them, which taken with the evidence of the Chooprassee, will shew that the act of adultery he spoke to, must have happened after Mr. Mangles eft. I say therefore, that if any of those

^{*} The jurisdiction was never denied by Mr. Money, but adoutted from the first, It was deemed important however, to prove it with a view to reference to future proceedings .- Reporting

My Lord, from all these circumstances that the lady was always forward? (The Counsel of the Plaintiff denied this.) his neck. Captain Smith said that it must have been either in the beginning of November or in the latter end of October that they went away. Now it must have been before the 15th of November that they returned, because it was that day that Mr. Swetenham had fixed for his departure again after and returned in the middle of November. Here is one fortnight, and taking the middle of that time, they had been only one week together when the act was committed (Objected to; - unged that it was 20 days they had been together) I say it is so But, my Lord, my learned Friend shall have a fortnight if he pleases. Taking however the middle of the periods stated, I say it was only about a week when this act of adultery was committed, and taking into consideration the great probability that the first act of adultery was not immediately discovered and that, that related in evidence was therefore, not the first act of adultery I do think slender ground on which your Lordship is called on to stamp my client by an award of heavy damages, as a cool and deliberate negative evidence to which I have alluded, I have a right to say that he is not so My client is as sorry as any man can be for the crime he has committed-their is indeed only one excuse for him. He is a young man, and he is left in a tent alone with a young and beautiful woman. God forbid, my Lord, that I should impute any blame to the plaintiff for this confidence. it is a confidence highly honorable; and he is, as I am instructed to say, a man of the highest honor and worth—no shadow of blame can attach to lam. He has, by no act of his, merited the heavy mistortunethe deep affliction which has fallen on him through the conduct of my client. I most willingly admit all this, my Loid, but I will put it as in mitigation of damages that they were thus left alone from day to day, owing to unavoidable circumstances. Were the damages to be proportioned to the measure of murv sustained—could they compensate for the sufferings of an injured husband, I should indeed admit that heavy damages were justly claimable. But I say, that the plaintiff does not come here to fill his pockaris, or that conduct which inflame da- ets, but to get rid of a woman who has dismages, had, been practised, he must graced him, and perhaps to form another have known it. Does it not appear then, connection in which he may seek for that happiness he has lost in this. I say again, that no blame can attach to him-that no mian can be more free from the most remote Does it not appear that a few days after suspicion of any thing like commitance or they were out on that excursion she was even neglect. But the injury has arisen out seen strong on his knee with her arms round of accidental circumstances, which left the parties in situations in which I say a very large portion of mankind would have been unable to resist the extraordinary temptation to which my client was apposed. With respect to the evidence, as far as it goes to the claim for heavy damages, I must say I never saw a weaker case. But even they had so returned. I'll take therefore admitting it to be stronger, what is the Captain Smith's evidence, and even say situation of my client. He is a Lieutenant that they went away in the end of October in the Army, having only 300 Rs. per month besides his pay and allowances for that rank-It is in evidence that he is a needy man, and the damages, that may be awarded must fall with severity on him-some lenity I think should be shewn in consideration of these circumstances, but if heavy damages are awarded he must go to jail, for his circumstances will not enable him to pay them, nor do I believe that he has a friend who will come forward to do so.

SIR ANTHONY. BILLER -- Certainly the only question here is as to the amount of damages; as the cause went on I made up my mind as to the damages, and nothing I have heard in the speech in mitigation or it extremely probable that in 3 or 4 days defence, has at all tended to affect the deonly, after they were together, the crimes cision I had come to. I believe indeed that was committed, and this, my Lord, is the that defence is a Defence of Counsel unan thorized by instructions; I do certainly think that the plaintiff comes here in a situation the most favorable to command daseducer. I say, my Lord, that from the mages. We have the strongest evidence of the happiness in which the parties lived prior to the adultery, and the father of the unfortunate young woman gave his evidemein a way that must have appealed to every teching heart. I cannot exactly gather from the evidence, how long the Defendant had been acquainted with the Plain tiff, but it would appear sometime before they went on this execusion, because he came to Fartaghur by invitation of the husband, who left instructions with his brotherin-law to receive him at his house during his (the husband's) absence. He came according to that invitation and arrived while the plaintiff was absent; he did not however stop at the house of his (plainfill's) brother-in-law, Captain Smith, but proceeded to join the party in the district.

According to the evidence of Munnoo Chooprassee, the crime was committed about 20 days after this There is indeed no direct evidence of seduction, but can I look for this in a case like this, where if is proved that the parties lived most happily together, in the greatest affection until this crime was committed? The only thing like an argument in mitigation, is, that the lady may have fallen too easily, "Apon the opening of this intercourse, the that she did not make that resistance which tin trade of Siam was expected to prove might have been expected in her case. But when it is considered that she was then only, 21 years of age, and the defendant, according to evidence 30, I think that even this argument falls to the ground and that the damages, I have made up my mind to give, will not be thought excessive. I should be sorry in such a case to give damages that mending to him the encouragement of a night be thought too small, and I would at broad cloth trade, as necessary to the mainthe same time guarding such as would intendice of an English factory at Siam. carcerate the defendant in a jail for life. MISSION TO SIAM & COCHIN CHINA.

(From the Government Gazette of Thursday last.,

We have been favored with the official report of the proceedings of the late Mission from the Supreme Government to Stam and Cochin China, and we are now authorized by Government, to lay before our readers the substance of such parts of it as relate to the Character, Commercial Interests, and Resources of the Countries which Mr. CRAWFURD visited.

But before we enter upon Mr. CRAWFURD's Report, we may briefly notice the endea-vours of the East India Company to settle and prosecute trade at Siam and Corlin China. The particulars are to be found in the Appendix (C) to the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Lords, relative was thrown into confusion, and the prime to the trade with the East Indies and China, minister narrowly escaped. The Macassapublished in 1821. And first of Stam.

In 1610, Captain Middleton settled an English Factory here, which continued for some years. The English at Jaccatra (Batavia) were in Correspondence with the King of Siam in 1623; but the Factory appears to have been subsequently withdrawn.

In 1662, the King of Stam expressed himself desirous that the English should settle a Factory in his dominions. The Dutch had at that time a large commercial intercourse with Siam, lading there forty Ships yearly.

In 1654, they provoked a quarrel with the King and the next year obstructed the English trade in these Seas, which was the object of their jealously; the settling of a Factory was under these circumstances deteried.

In 1671 the Court approved the proposal for settling a factory at Siam, if it could be accomplished.

In 1674, the King of Siam renewed his overtures for an English factory in his domiminions, which was accordingly effected in 1676, in the hope that it would eventually produce a trade with Japan.

Topon the opening of this intercourse, the beneficial, and it was thought that a Siam trade would prove more beneficial than even a Japan trade.

Siam was also considered capable of affording a mart for great quantities of broad cloth; and the English Agent at Bantam wrote a lefter to the King of Siam, recom-

But in 1683 and 1684, it was resolved to re-establish the factory at Siam, the station still being considered favourable to the prosecution of a Japan trade, in which great hopes of success were entertained.

Sir John Child accordingly, in 1685, addressed a letter to the barcalong, or prime minister, of Siam, describing the difference between the Company's servants and private traders, some misunderstandings having arisen from that difference not being understood. Another letter was addressed to the King of Siam, who it is observed, is favourable to foreigners, and that Siam was a port of considerable merchandize; and that therefore the Company's former losses were to be attributed to bad management and the malignity of the prime minister, onstantine Phaulkon, who was an Italian.

It appears by a letter from the President of Fort St. George to the king of Siam, dated in 1687, that the Company's losses, arising out of the troubles, amounted to 65,000l. tor which satisfaction was demanded, or war would be declared.

In 1688, there was a massacre in Siam. The Company were this year advised that six French men of war, with 1,400 soldiers had arrived to assist the king of Stam, and that Constantine Phaulkon, the king's prime minister, had been made a Count of France.

In 1704, it was suggested that some principal Chinese merchants had built large houses at Pulo Condore, and it was believed that trade with Siam, &c might be carried on from thence; and that the Dutch would settle there when the English left it.

In 1705, the Governor of Fort St. George addressed a letter to the King of Siam, de-siring a renewal of former friendship, which had been interrupted by a late ambitious minister, Constantine Phaulkon.

In 1712, the barcalong, or prime minister of Siam, invited the English to make a settlement there, and effered a coul, the same secret committee of the Court of Directors to as had been granted to the Dutch. It was Cochin China, with a view to open commerstated that the Siam trade was advantage oin intercourse. He codd a commerstated that the Siam trade was advantage— oil intercourse. He addressed a letter to ous to Japan, as the Siamese carry silver the king in his voyage outward, but being yearly to purchase 4 or 5,000 chests of taken ill, proceeded to China, and there recoffee.

It appears that Siam was at this time, and for many years subsequent, in a state of internal disorder.

The following relates to Cochin China: In 1619, the English at Japan made an unadecessful attempt to trade with Cochin China. The factors, both English and Dutch, were massacred.

The English residency at Batavia reported to the Court in 1627, the continued measures of the Dutch to exclude the Euglish Company from commerce with the continent and islands of South-eastern Asia, particularly Siam, Cambodia, China, and Japan.

In 1695, the Midias Government sent Thomas Bowvear, a supra-cargo of the ship Dolphin, to Cochin China, with instructions to request commercial privileges for the English Mr. Bowycar's letter to the Madias Government, dated 30th April 1696, which gives a detailed account of his proceedings, represents various inconveniences and impediments to trade, to which foreigners were there subjected, ansing out of the arbitrary character of the Government of this country.

In 1749-50, the French made an unsuccessful attempt to open a commercial intercourse with Cochin China; and in the latter year, Mr. Robert Kirsop was there, from whose report it appeared that the king and nobles engrossed the trade of the country. In 1777-8, the captain of the Rumbold, country slnp, which had made a voyage to Cochin China, reported favourably of that country as a mart for European commodities He had brought with him two Cochin Chinese Mandarins of considerable rank, who were prevented landing in their own country by stress of weather, and were respectfully treated by the English at Calcutta; in consequence of which, Mr. Hastings, then goveinor general, deputed Mr Chapman to Cochin China, to endeavour to open a commercul intercourse with that country. Mr. Chapman returned to Bengal in 1779, having failed in the object of his mission, and been in fact forced out of the country, es caping with some difficulty; but laid before the Bengal Government a parrative of his proceedings, accompanied by valuable geographical and historical memoranda.

In 1793, a Mi Simpson made a representation to the Bengal Covernment, respecting trade to Cochin China, and requested a letter of credit to the king, with a view to the security of his property. With this request Lord Cornwallis, the then governor general, did not deem it expedient at that time to comply; and the subject was reserved for

In 1803, Mr. Lance was deputed by the signed his commission to Mr. Reberts, who came immediately to Tourann Bay, and entered into correspondence with the king, the Portugueze missionaries, and the French gentlemen who were at the court. The mission failed, chiefly, as was supposed through the influence of the French.

In April 1804, Mr. Roberts went from China to Bengal, where he submitted the detail of his proceedings to Lord Wellesley. thep governor general, and obtained a letter from his lordship to the king of Cochin China, with which he proceeded on a second mission to that place, but was less fa-vourably received than on the former occa-The failthe of his second attempt was particularly ascribed to the hostile influence of the French and Portugueze over the king.

In 1807, Lieut. Ross was sent to the Coast of Cochin China, to survey the paracells, and entrusted with a friendly letter to the King, but experienced the most inhospitable treatment.

In 1808, the Bengal Government consented to interfere, by letter, with the King of Cochin China, to procure payment for some timber turnished to him by Messrs. Abbo t and Maitland, merchants of Madras: but this application, which has since been repeated, has proved ineffectual.

Having thus adverted generally to the exertions that have been made during a period of about two centuries to establish a commercial intercourse with Siam and Cochin China, we now come to the substance of Mr. CRAWIURD'S Report of the Mission from the Bengal Government in 1822.

Sum -- The Kingdom of Stam, though reduced in its geographical limits within the last half century by the encouchments of the Burmans, is probably at present of more solid strength and resources than at any The Siamese former period of its history territory extends to the South as far as 7º North latitude, and the Malayan fubutance of Siam as far as 3"-- To the North the extreme confines of the Siamese territory extend as far as could be learnt, to latitude 25°. On the Bay of Bengal, however, the Stamese territories reach at present no forther than the Port of Tauov belonging to the Burmans, in latitude 13° North, and longitude 98° East. On the East Coast of the Gull of Stam its territories extend to latitude 11° and to longitude 104° East as far as the port and town of Athien or Kang Kao, which itself is in possession of the Cochin Chinese. The neighbours of the Siamese to the North West are the Pegu or Monrace, subject to the Burmans, to the North the Burmans and Chinese of the ProEast the Kambojans and Cochin Chinese.

The natural advantages of Siam in point of harbors, rivers, and internal navigation are very considerable. The navigation of the Gulf itself is one of the safest and easiest in the Eastern Seas. On its West Coast are the ports of Sungora and Ligor, and that of Ban-don, less known. This last is formed by the mouth of a River, where there is fourteen or fifteen feet water, and which is therefore navigable for vessels of considerable burden. At the head of the Bay are three Ports formed by the three embouchures of the Me-nam. At the wes-tern and the middle one of these called Mek-long and Ta-chin, no more than eight feet water are found at spring tides, so that they are maccessible to vessels of any considerable burden. The Eastern branch of the Me-nam, or that of Bang-kok, is the great Port of Stam. This is navigable with ease and safety to all merchant vessels under two hundred and fifty tons.

Towards the East in Coast of the Gulf, the merits of one harbor, that of the Si-Chang Islands, were determined by actual survey. From this indeed down to the lati-tude of 11° the Coast is so thickly crowded with islands, having navigable channels and good anchorage between them, that it may almost be looked upon as one great harbour throughout. The principal Ports of Native Commerce in this quarter are Chantilum and Tang-yai, the principal seats of the culture and trade of Pepper, Cardamums tant, has an extensive Chinese population The town engaged in the Popper culture is about fitteen miles up a small river, which has no more than five feet water at its entrance, but off this, where there is shelted behind the neighbouring Islands, it has water enough for ships of considerable size. To these Ports the Stamese do not admit strangers. The wide extent of the Siamese dominions admits of great diversity of soil and productions, and it may safely be said, that no country in the world is more highly gifted by nature.—Its productions in the mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms are not only of great variety, but such as are well suited to stimulate commercial enterprize, and attract the resort of foreign nations.

In the mineral kingdom, the products are Iron, Tin. Copper, Lead, and Gold, the Iron mines are found at from two hundred to three hundred miles distant from the capital, and to the North of it, either directly in the neighbourhood of the River, or very near to it. Much of the ore is imperfectly smelted upon the spot, and in this state carried down to the capital, where it is fa-bricated into culinary and other utensils. The Chinese have of late years entered with spirit into the smelting and manufacture of wince of You-nan, and to the East and South Iron, and consequently it forms at present one of the most valuable articles of exportation, and is sent in large quantities to the Malayan Islands, Kamboga, and Cochin China The small labor at which this product is obtained in Siam is implied in its price,-a Picul of the common bar Iron costing no more than four Rupees.

Tin in Siam is diffused over more extensive geographical limits than in any other part of the world, and for productiveness the mines of Junk Ceylon may be considered to stand next in rank to those of Banca, if they be not indeed in this respect equal to them: neither however the mines of the metal, nor those of Copper, Lead or Gold, have in Stam experienced the benefit of the industry and enterprize of the Chinese, and the produce therefore is comparatively of small importance. The Tin and Gold mines are wrought by the Siamese, those of Copper and Lead by some of the mountain tribes, who deliver them as tribute. The quantity of Tin which finds its way to the capital, and is from thence exported, amounts to eight thousand piculs, or about five hundred tons.

Although the alluvial tract of the Me-nan and other spots be highly cultivated, yet from all the information that could be obtained, the far greater portion of the country is covered with primeval torests. The most valuable productions of these are Teak-wood, Rose-wood, Eagle-wood, and Sapan-wood. The Teak is of the same quality with that of Ava, and found indeed and Gamboge. Chanti-lum the most import nearly in the same forests. It is floated down to the capital of Siam, often to a distance of three hundred miles. Little of this is exported by foreigners. The Siamese themselves construct their large Junks of it, and four or five of these are always to be seen on the stocks at the capital. A close grained wood of a red colour, somewhat resembling Mahogany, and called by the Portuguese "Pao Roza," or Rose wood, is produced in abundance in the forests of Siam. This wood, which is fit for turniture and ornamental purposes, is exported in very large quantities by the Chinese, particularly to Canton and the Island of Hoi-nan.

> The most valuable produce of these forests however, is probably the Dye-wood, called Sapan. There is no part of the world that gives this production in such cheapness or abundance. It forms the dunnage of all the Chinese Junks, and the principal parts of the Cargoes of many of them. The precious prefume called Agila or Eagle-wood, is obtained in the Islands on the East Coast of the Gulf of Siam, and some on the Mountains of the Continent: this commodity, which is in great demand in all the Western countries of Asia, is believed to be the exclusive pieduction of Siam and Cochin China.

piculs are annually exported

Pepper is another article, the culture of which is in the hands of the Chinese.—The East Coast of the Gulf about the latitude of 11° and 12° are the Countries in which this branch of Agriculture is successfully carried on - The quantity of this article which is experted, and simost entirely to China, 's about sixty thousand piculs, which is four times the quantity produced upon Prince of Wules's Island, and equal to the whole production of the West Coast of Sumatra, hitherto considered to afford the great bulk of all the Pepper of Comrance. The Siamese Minister informed the Mission that upwards of forty thousand. The same portion of the country which produces Pepper, produces also farge quantities of Gum, Gamboge, and Cardamoms, the latter of a fine quality, and in great esteem amongst the Chinese. Benjamin is produced chiefly in the kingdom of Lao, and has of late years been exported in considerable quantities. This a commodity which has commonly been supposed to he peculiar to the Island, of Signatra and Borneo.

Of annual products a remarkable variety, applicable to the purposes of commerce, is aborded by Siam. The Chinese deal extensively in almost all of them. There conest of Hides, Peltry, Horns, Bones, Ivory, Peathers, Salt-fish, Sucklas, and esculent

The current price, previous to the extraordinary rise, was five thousand thesis a chest: allowing this price for this quantity a cheek anowing one process the Stamese pay consumed, it appears that the Stamese pay a unition of ticals a year for our Oping or about a million and a quarter of Califfic Rubers.

Of European manufactures those most in demand among the Siamese are white cotton goods, cheap woollens, firearms and glass-ware. The taste for this class of commodities appeared to be so good amongst the Siamese, that nothing seemed wanting to give the branchof trade connected with its value and stability, but a moderate share of freedom and security.

The foreign trade of Siam is conducted with China, Cochin China and Kamboja, certain native Ports of the Indian Islands, Betavia, the European Ports in the Straits of Malaoca, British India, and America.

Of all these the trade with China is in-comparably of the greatest value and amount .- This is conducted with almost every port of that great Country, being by no means confined like the trade of Europeans to one part of that Empire, or two at the most.—The trade with the Provinces of Canton, including the Island of Hoi-nan and Fokien, is the most considerable, but there is also a trade carried on with the more northern Provinces of Chi Kiang and King-nan,

The trade of Cochin China and Kamboja is chiefly conducted with the ports of Saigun and Kang-Cao, and compared to the latter is very inconsiderable indeed in point of amount.—These Junks are also exclusively navigated by Chinese mariners. The main experts from Siam are Iron, and the imports raw Silk.

The trade with British India is conducted' principally from Surat and Bombay, and occasionally from Bengal. During the long war with France, when every other branch of this trade ceased, the Surat Sings, generally from two to three, annually continued to frequent the Port of Bang-kok .- The Superpargoes of these vessels have generally been Parsees or Mahommudans; they have commonly imported Gold and Silver, Silk tissues, and printed Cloths, the manufacture of Western India, and have carried away Benjamin, Gamboge, Eagle-wood, Sapan wood, and of late years Sugar.

It appears that the Native trade of Siam, conducted exclusively by the Chinese, a-mounts to near thirty-nine thousand tons, and that supposing the Chinese vessels require, as is probable, three times the number of mariners that an European vessel does that, this trade gives employment to above eight thousand hands.

If to this Chinese trade be added eight hundred tons annually for the American trade, and one thousand for that of British India, and we conjecture the Native Malay-an trade also to amount to about this last sum, then we shall have an aggregate for the whole trade of forty-one thousand and eight hundred tons.

The Custom-house duties consist of impost upon goods imported and exported, and duties upon tonnage or measurement. The imposts upon goods often purport to b an ad valorem duty, but sudely assessed, Upon the import Cargoes of European vesels it is levied as a per centage upon the whole value, as appreciated by the Officers of Government. With respect to the tonhage or measurement duty, it varies with the place or nation with which the trade is conducted. The direct trade with the continent of China, and which is really carried on by the native shipping of the port of Bang kok, is on that account free from all impost, whether on goods or tonnage. The Junkstrading with Hoi-nan, and which actually belong to to the ports of that Island, pay a measurement duty at a certain fixed rate per fathom of the breadth of the beam, and European vessels twice as much. The an ount of revenue derived from the customs it was found in practicable to obtain.

With regard to our completeial relations with Siam, which are highly deserving of attention, it is believed that there is no country of India in proportion to its extent and population, with which were the intercourse placed upon a fair and liberal footing, a more valuable commerce could be conducted by Europeans, but especially by our own

It may be remarked, that the great obstacle to the extension of European commerce is not directly the arbitrary character of the Government itself, and the insecurity of property which may be supposed to result from it, for the property of strangers is as secure from positive depredation in the Menan, as in the Hooghly; not from contempt of foreign trade in general, for the Government holds this in the highest esteem, -- nor from polytical jealousy itself for even of this the foreign trade does not experience the effects, -but almost entirely from the injurious principle of the Government interfering in commercial matters, and appearing itself as the chief trader in all the most valuable productions of the country, as well as exercising a monopoly over much of what is imported by stringers.

Upon the principal articles of monopoly, a fixed price is pleced and there is no trade carried on in them with private individuals, except claudesimely. Unrestrained dealing on the part of an European merce ant is by no means a matter of course, even when the established regulations of trade are implicitly complied with; for a specific licence must be abtained, and every heense so granted is considered as a boon on the part of the Government.

The import duty amounts to eight per cent. The export duty is a fixed and specific impist upon each commodity. Thus upon the great article of European export, Sugar, it is one and half treal the Chinese pecul. The presents are considered to amount generally upon vessels of every description to about one thousand ticuls, but as a return is made to the extent of at least fifty per cent. of these, the real amount is no more than five hundred ticals. Upon the exportation of Bullion or even of the coin of the country, there is neither duty, restriction nor prohibition, and upon the whole it must be acknowledged that there is nothing illiberal nor oppressive in the nominal and ostensible regulation of the Siamese trade in its relation to Europeans, and that it is the practice only which is vexatious and oppressive.

Cochin China. This Empire, which took its existing form in the first years of the present century, comprizes the whole of Cochin China, the whole of Tonquin, the principal part of Kamboja, and the little state of Champa. Its geographical limits extend from the point of Kamboja in about 5º 30 North latitude to he Northern confines of Tonquin, which teach within very few miles of the Tropic, and from the longitude of 105° to about 100° East. It is bordered to the North by the Chinese Provinces of Canton, Kenangsi and Yunan, and to the West by the kingdoms of Lao and Siam; the Gults of Siam and Tongum, and the China Sea, bound it in every direction.

The kingdom of Cochin China, although apparently inferior to Siam in fertility of soil and in variety and richness of production, possesses extraordinary advantages for Commerce, both from its centilcal situation, its navigable rivers, and its innumera-

quented about a century ago by European traders. This is the place to which in the negociation with the Cochin Clinese Court, the Mission was anxious to obtain a free access, as being the only considerable. Cochin Chine se port upon the Gult of Siam, and affording a direct access into the interior of Kamboja.

Cochin China Proper has no navigable river of any magnitude. The river of Hue having but a very short course, and althobroad, being but shallow, is not of extensive utility either to extend or internal navigation. It estuary however forms a fine harqoin, and in the South West monsoon, ships of two hundred tons burden may enter and but it in great safety. In the opposite mon-soon, on the con rary, it is almost inacces-

In Touquin there is one river which in former periods was well known to European mavigators, and appears to have been then accessible, notwithstanding the bar at its mouth to vessels of four hundred or five tongs burthen. From the best information that could be obtained, the entrance appears at present to be much obstructed by said banks, and the river consequently not tarpgable for vessels of above two hundred tous bitrden. Cachao, the capital of Tonquin, Q situated upon this stream at the distance of about one hundred and twenty miles from its mouth. This river, which fertilizes a great tract of country, is the principal source of the productiveness of Tonquin and having its origin in the centre of the and having its origin in the centre of the gre t Chinese Province of Yu-nau, and extending throughout the whole of Tonquin, it would appear to afford a very extensive and useful internal navigation.

In regard to Harbouse; Cochin China appears to be singularly fortunate; within the six degrees and half of latitude, which intervene between Cape Saint James's and the Bay of Turan, there are no less than nine of the finest harbours in the world, accessible with every wind,—safe to approach, and when attained, affording the most com-

The principal products of the country, in reference to their importance as articles of foreign trade, are thus enumerated.—Sugar is the most valuable of them. This article is chiefly produced in the central districts of Cochin China Proper, and both in agriculture and manufacture is the result of the labour of the natives of the country, and not of the Chinese as in Siam. The arof that of the Chinese as in Siam. The first of these empties itself into the Gulf of Siam, and upon this are situated Athen and Pontiame. boja, but in Cochin China, the culture, as the Mission had an opportunity of observing, is entensive, and in Tonquin it is still more so. The quantity of this commodity which the whole kingdom could export was estimated at about one lack and twenty thousand pounds weight a year. The objections to it are the shortness of the skein, and therefore its unsuitableness to our maclunery. A seer of it, duly examined in the Calcutta market, was calculated to be worth cleven Rupees, being considered somewhat better than Bengal Silk not produced at the Company's filatures.—The French ships which lately visited Cochin China, carried home considerable quantities of it, and it appears that the coarser kind was found to answer very well in the French market.

Cochin China produces the true cinnamon. The whole produce of this article for exportation appears to be about two thousand piouls, or two lacks and nixty-six thousand pounds. Ifs growth is confined to the mountains of central Cochin China, from whence it is exported to Kamboja and Tonquin, but principally to China, where it is much more highly valued than any other quality of this atoma ic. Another exclusive product of the central part of the kingdom which is extensively cultivated and supplied to the neighbouring provinces, is Tea. kingdom, and the adjacent forests, are nearly identified with those of Siam, and it will only be necessary to commerate the principal of them. These are for Kamboja,

Of these commodities it will only be no cessary to specify two or three. Valuable timber is only found in Kamboja. A small quantity of Teak-wood, but undescring of notice, is found in the forests of this country. The wood used for Ship-building, for the manufacture of gun carriages, and for called in the Native language São. Not having seen the tree which produces it, the Mission had no opportunity of ascertaining its botanical character. This timber, from all accounts, is strong and durable; it is carried to the capital in large quantities, and from it were constructed the whole of the public buildings, as well as the numerous and very beautiful gun-carriages which the Mission had an opportunity of examining in the Royal Arsenal. A hard black wood called in the Cochin Chinese language Qo, is extensively used in cabinet work, and doing of large dimensions and affording a the polish, seems extremely well suited to this purpose, and may probably answer for exportation to our settlements.-Kamboja also produces the timber called by the Portuguese Rose-wood, and this the Chinese export as they do from Siam.

Of the vegetable products exported from Tongum, only one is adverted to-this is a species of root called in the Anam language, Nac, and in that of Canton Shu leony. It forms the dead weight of all the Chinese cargoes exported from Tonquin. This, which is a very cheap material, is exsent state of preparation, it is not suited to tensively used both throughout Tonquia and

The quantity is madequate to the demand, which the Chinese trade creates for its exportation, and this article as well as Tin may be pointed out as commodities likely to be impored with advantage into Cochin China. Of Opium the consumption of the kingdom, esualmost all architectural purposes, is one mating the wholesale price at three thousand five hundred Spanish dollars the chest, is stated to be about one hundred and fifty chests per annum, two thirds of this being estimated for Tonquin, and one third for Cochin China and Kamboja.-Until the establishment of Singapore, the whole of this supply have been obtained inductily from Canton, some portion of it by the Junks, and a good deal by land communications.

Broad Cloth seems long to have been consumed in Cochin China, and at present the army amounting to forty thousand men, 14 uniformly and amply cloathed in British Woollens, consisting chiefly of strong coarse scarlet broad cloth-of a small quantity of yellow and green of the same texture, with a tew serges and camblets. - Independently of these, there is a demand for some woolleus of a liner fabric among the better classes of people for occasional winter diess.

From Canton and Singapore, the Junks have of late brought small quantities of line heavy cotton goods, which are much in request amongst the better classes. Chintzes and other volored cotton goods, so well suited to the state of the Stamese, are not at all consumed by the Cochin Chinese; with the exception of handkerchiefs, neither are our coarse white cottons, such as are manufactured in India, fit to be imported into Cochin China; for from the specimens which the Mission brought from that country, it does not appear that we are capable of competing with them in this description of neit dymestic manufacture.

vi The Cochin Chinese, notwithstanding their skill in the fabrication of cannon, and the manufacture of ammunition, are incapable of supplying themselves with fire-arms, and they have at all times been turnished with these by Europeans. One of the French ships, which came out in 1819 supplied the king of Cochin China with ten thousand stand of arms, yet these still continue articles in demand Notwithstanding the apparent cheapness of the native non both of Siam and Cochin China, still this does not "xelude the importation of the same commodity from Europe, the use of which, from the little loss it sustains in the operation of lorging, compared to the Native metal, has advantages over it even in point of economy.

The foreign trade of the Cochin Chinese, empire is almost exclusively with China. The trade which it carries on with Siam is inconsiderable, and that with European The Cochin Chinese, nations still smaller same reasons, are prohibited from going abroad, and whatever foreign trade they possess, is carried on, not by themselves, but by the natives of those countries with whom they hold intercourse. The subjects of Cochin China however, are permitted to go abroad by licence, and in this manner a tew of them visit China, and within the last two or three years several of their Merchants have visited the European ports in the Straits of Malacca, and particularly Singapore. It may here be remarked, that were the Cochin Chinese permitted the liberty of going freely abroad, no people of the East se m so well titted to make expert manners from their hardiness, their activity, and their prompt and cheerful habits of obedience The Cochin Chinese, although not permitted to go abroad, conduct a considerable traffic by sea between one part of the Empire and another. In the course of this as well as the transporting tributes to the capital, they acquite a good deal of maritime experience.

The Chinese trade of the Empire is chiefly conducted with Cachao in Tonquin, Saigun in Kamboja, and Taito and Hue, in Cochin China; but there is also some intercourse with the minor parts of Pungtae, Yatrang Fu-yin, Sam-chao, Kwin-nyon, Kwang-yi.

The whole of the Chinese trade, at the nate of sixteen piculs to a lon, amounts to nearly twenty thousand tons, being very litthe more than one half the Chinese trade of. the single port of Bang-kok; such is the benefit derived to the latter from the numbers and free enterprize of the Chinese residents of that Country, for the Cochin Chinese Government is in theory nearly as despotic and arbitrary as that of Siam, but in practice it is, if not milder, certainly of a more manly and candid character. The Cochin, Chinese in their form of Government, as they do in their other institutions, imitate the Chinese, but they fall as much short of those people in the administration of their law as they do in ingenuity and industry. The only rank amongst them is official, and this, as in China, is divided into two great classes, a Civil and a Military arrangement, which creates throughout the Provinces a sort of double administration?

The form of the administration is regular, and the habits and modes of transacting business, equally prompt and methodical.

An erroneous opinion appears to be pre-valent amongst European nations, commumeated by some of the most recent writers, respecting Tonquin and Cochin China, that the resort of European traders is in a great measure interdicted in this kingdom, on the same principle as in Japan, and in all the ports of the Chinese Empire, with the exception of one. This is so far from being true, that it is believed in no Astatic Country are European Merchants admitted upon terms more easy and liberal than in Cochin European Ships had indeed been like the Siamese, and it is presumed for the subjected to higher rates of duties than the vessels of Asiatic nations, previous to the year 1818, but in that year, the late King established a new Tariffe for the foreign commerce, and all foreign traders were upon that occasion placed upon an equality.

By this regulation all vessels pay a rated measurement duty, moderate in its amount, are exempted from all import duties or examination of import eargo, and pay a small export duty upon a few articles only. Vessels driven into the ports of Cochin China by stress of weather, or visiting them for the purpose of making commercial enquiries, are free from all charges, and four of the principal ports of the Cochin. Chinase Empire are open to European Commerce.

These underate and liberal arrangements leave little to be desped in the way of mere regulation, but it is of little more consequence to the interests of foreign trade, that in Gochin China, neither the sovereign nor his officers are traders themselves, that there are no royal monopolies, and no claim of right of pre-emption, the exercise of all of which is infinitely more mighlievous evas than the heaviest duties.

The French are the only people who have vessels into the ports of Sai-gun, Han, Paifo, yet availed themselves of the new regula- and Hue, on the terms specified in the Tations of the Cochin Chinese Government in favor of European trade. Four French Ships of considerable burden have since then visited Cochin China They brought out firearms, iron, copper, woollens and some curiosities for the Court, and all received full vargoes of sugar, with considerable quantities of raw silk A respectable mercantile house at Bourdeaux has left two French Gentlemen as Agents at Turan, for the pur-

There is reason to hope that the trade of Siam and Cochin China will also afford an indirect channel for the employment of our capital, still more extensive and advantageous than the direct trade with those nations themselves, namely a trade with China. This is more particularly applicable to Cochin China than to Siam, because It lies more in the direct route of trade, and the Chinese ve sels which frequent its ports stand more in need of return cargoes than they do in Siam; but it applies indeed to both, and embraces an aggregate trade amounting to sixty thousand tons.

By this channel an indirect, but still au easy, intercourse may be kept up with every port of China from Hoi-nan up to the Yellow Sea, and by these means may be conveyed to the ports of China all the commodities of the Indian Archipe lago of India or of Europe, known to be suitable to the Chinese market,-while by the same course we might receive in return direct from the principal maits, the teas, and law and wrought silks of China. This is a commerce which might exist independent of the caprice of the Chinese Government, and which would increase in proportion to the freedom with which it was conducted. The Chinese merchants of Cochin China, with whom Mr CRAWFURD conversed constantly, urged this branch of commerce upon his attention, and shewed themselves most solicitous to en'er into it.

Independent of the advantages which we may draw from the maritime intercourse be tween Cochiu China and the ports of the Chinese Empire, it may be observed, that the anternal-intercourse between Tonquin and the Chinese Provinces to the North and West of it, and which is chiefly conducted through the great river of Touquin, may atford another channel of disseminating our productions in parts of China, which have at present no cheap or direct communication with the only port which we are allowed to frequent. We should receive as returns in this branch, the precious and use-Tonquin itself, or of the great Chinese Province of Yil-nan, which borders immediately upon it.

and Hue, on the terms specified in the Tariffe or Regulations of Trade, included in the same official document.

Permission for Suttees, a proof of " an ardent desire for the welfare and real interests" of the Natures.

We have to call the attention of our readers to another of those distressing, and really heart-rending recitals, which we are certain the Governments of this Country would rejoice in being able to render a tale of other times. We allude, as our readers will have imagined, to another and a fatal Suttee. We refer them to the account below, and we can hardly imagine a more disties-ing duty than that which dire necessity unposes on a Magistrate to grant permission for such a sacrifice, even tho' every possible persuasion has been used to induce

There are those who deprecate this permission, but it—hke every act of the Indian Governments, where the natives of this Country are concerned-has its source in an ardent desire for their welfare, and real mterests. It a Suttee could take place without this permission, there would be no restraint on the practice. The permission given is no sanction to the practice, but only an assurance that the particular sacrifice is made under the sanction of the Hindoo law, and, however it may be deprecated, it is utterly impossible that, consistent with justice the practice can be restrained by force. Under these circumstances, surely the permission after every means had been used to prevent 11, which latter in itself evinces an abhorrence from the practice, cannot be considered, in any other light than an humane precaution against the infatuated, and sometimes interested, entreaties and threats of ielation and Bramins.

On the 16th instant a Baboo by the name of Ram Chunder Day of the Danish Settlement, Serampore, departed this life. A report was made to the Darogab in the Night about 10 o'clock, that his Widow intended to sacriace herself with her deceased Husband; and insisted upon being burnt the very same night, but the Darogah not havmig authority to grant permission to that effect without the Sauction of the Judge and Magistrate, apprized this Gentleman of the circumstance, who immediately proceeded to the dwelling-house of the Baboo, and requested an interview with the Widow, which however was declined, by her desuing the Judge to meet her upon the spot where the ful metals, which are productions either of funeral pile was elected, and where she appeared about I o'clock in the morning The Magistrate, G. JULY 28.

Yesterday's Report announced no arrival. The eternal Circussian not yet off.

We presume that Lord Amhers will arrive in course of the week.

.The appointment of Sir John Malcolm as Ambassador to Persia, would seem, we are inclined to think, to indicate an appretension of Russian Collision—perhaps of a hostile nature.

"If the Theatre (says La Motte) were to be shut up, the stage wholly silenced and oppressed. I believe the world, had as it is now, would be ten times more wicked." What an escape we have had in Calcutta ! Heavenknows we are all sufficiently wicked already-but to be ten times more so! Dreadful thought!! What do we not owe to our public-spirited Proprietors, for having, as it were, interfered to stay the inevitable plugue of demoralization which hovered over the City of Palaces? Surely the pubhe will second their efforts; and now that the Theatre is not shut up, muster an overflowing house to commence the season with next Finday. The Honorable the Gover-NOR GENERAL, we believe, means to honor the house with his presence. As we already stated, the pieces fixed on for the evening's amusement are the musical entertainments of The Waterman, and the exti-mely ludicrous little thing of Monsieus Tonson. Both pieces are, we understand, strongly cast Bundle will be by a veteran Amateur, the chief prop of our Theatre. Trig will be represented by an Amateur whose musical powers are only to be equalled by his fine tas c. We have not yet heard who is to personate Robin. The temale parts are to be rendered orgate by the " fair Sisters of the Drama"

La "Monsieur Tonson" our most favorite Amateurs will, almost to a man, appear. Morbhen will be in the hands of the Amateur who some months ago was so hamuronsly effective in Ferment ("Selool of Reform"). Tom Krip will be represented by the Tyke of the same Jack Ardourly by the Lort Avondule. Nap, the Watchman, by the capital Col Fouchwood of "What Next" And Madame Bellegrade by the immitable Mrs. Nicely of the "School of Reloim,"

Whatever other effects a recent trial may which has made their country a land of have produced among strangers to the Church of Scotland here, we fear that an for all these hencits they pay less dearly increased respect for that Establishment now than their neighbours, let them thank can hardly be one of them. We do think their ancestors an strive to be as jealous that there appeared, in the course of the proceedings, circumstances of a nature calculated to produce unfavorable impressions; and we also consider that it is in-numbent upon all true friends of that Church-of those who have been born in it, and are proud to belong to it-to clear away such erroneous impressions when they come under their direct experience. There are, no doubt, many persons moving among us who have no time, and perhaps less in-clination, to enquire very deeply into matters which, as not peculiarly affecting themselves, they may conceive rather foreign to their business and bosoms. We need not be surprised if such should not consider the Presbyterian Hierarchy in a very digmited light, for they can hardthe have very exalted notions of men, whom they doe not imagine peculiarly set aside by an especial act of consecration to the service of the Deity of men who consider the pastoral office as a trade, and devote the ample lessure, which some people suppose them to possess, in making shoes and breeches, Should erroneous impressions, such as we have alluded to, have taken hold of the minds of some among us, we are not so vain as to suppose ourselves capable of remaying them, but so are not without hopes of being able to prevail upon them to enquire and judge for themselves.

Splendor, pomp, wealth, and the pude they create, form none of the characteristics of the Church of Scotland. It boasts of no untres not altars not sinceures. It is entirely intended for use, and not for show not a state machine that is to be screwed and twisted this way and that. Its head is payisible, and its altar is in the heart. As it is not the gaudiest bird that sings best, nor the most leady tree that is most producine, neither is it the most gorgeous Caurea that produces the most universal beneficial effects. Of this the world has had convincing proofs in the history of the Church of Rone. It the tice is to be judged of by the finit, we appeal triumphantly to the Church of Scotland, as one of the mightiest engines of human umplovement everknown. Never was there a Church which suffered more to attain that excellence which is now its pervading attithur. It is the palm of a haid fought contest, where bigotry, power, pomp, and vain glory, weged with tearful odds against an oppressed, but finally victorious, peo-ple. No wonder then that after the days of perul and wrath have passed away, their descendants should cling to their birth-right and evince the utmost anxiety to keep in its strictness and its purity that discipline which has made then country a land of order, industry, and true religion. It for all these benefits they pay less dearly of their rights and as able to appose the advances of pretence, arrogance and power as they were.

On a recent occasion, the phrase Holy Orders was used. We also heard the phrase Apostolical Ordination; and it was the impression of some, that Presby terian Clergymen receive not the advantage of Aposto-lical Ordination. If by this is meant that they do not receive the Holy Ghost, we fear that they are not the only divines who are not apostolically ordained. Doubting excessively as we do, that the hands of any man or men now-a-days have the power to transmit the Holy Ghost, we shall dwell no. longer on that point; but if by Apostolical Ordination is meant the consecrating, or, in a public manner, the recognising for the labours of the Gospel men alter a ceremony or mode pursued by the Apostlas,—we believe that the Church of Scotland will be found to be as apostolically ordaining a Church as any one else. On this head, and many others, we refer such of our readers as are at all interested in the question, to the Confession of Faith; which taking the Bible to be the first stone of the building, is, we have been taught to believe in the Presbyterian Church, reckoned the second " Under the head of Ordination of Ministers, (says the Confession) is to be considered either the doctrine of ordination, or the power of it."
"He that is ordanied Minister, must be duly qualified both for life and Ministerial abilities, according to the rules of the Apostle." That is, he must be according to the Apostle Timothy, " blameless, the husband of one wife, vigilant, soher, of good behaviour, given to hospitality, apt to teach... not given to wine, no striker, not greedy of nithy lucre, but patient, not a brawler, not covetous," &c. The rules for examination previous to ordination are, we believe, very strict. They include a knowledge of the Hebrew, Greek and Latin languages, and an acquaintance with authors on Divinity in each, &c. The candidate for ordination must preach three several days before the people, 'that they may have trial of his gifts for their editication, and may have fine and occasion to enquire into, and the better to know, his life and conversation. Here follows the rest of the ocremony :-

Upon the day appointed for ordination, which is to be performed in that church where he that is to be ordained is to serve, a solemn tast shall be kept by the congregation, that they may the more cancestly join in prayer for a blessing upon the ordinance of Christ, and the labours of his servant for their good. The presbytery shall come to the place, or at least three or four ministers of the word shall be sent thirtier from the presbytery; of which one appointed by the presbytery shall preach to the people concerning the office and duty of ministers of Christ, and how the people ought to receive them for their work's sake.

After the sermon, the minister who bath preached shall, in the face of the congregation, demand of him who is now to be ordained, concerning his faith in Christ Jesus, and his persuasion of the truth of the reformed religion, according to the scripture; his sincere intentions and ends in desiring to enter into this calling; his deligence in praying, reading, meditation, preaching, munisterial duties towards his charge, and doing all ministerial duties towards his charge, his zeal and faithfulness in maintaining the truth of the gospiel, and unity of the church, against criot and schism; his care that hims if and his family may be unblameable, and examples to the flock; his willingness and humility, in meckiness of spirit, to submit unto the admonitions of his brethren, and discipline of the church; and his resolution to continue in his duty against all trouble and persecution.

In all which having declared himself, professed his willingness, and promised his endeavours, by the help of God; the minister likewise shall demand of the people concerning their willingness to receive and acknowledge him as the minister of Christ, and to obey and submit unto him, as having rule over them in the Loid; and to maintain, encourage, and assist him in all the parts of his office.

Which being mutually promised by the people, the presbytery, or the ministers sent from them for ordination, shall solemuly set him apart to the office and work of the ministry, by laying their hands on him, which is to be accompanied with a short prayer or blessing, to this effect:

"Thankfully acknowledging the great mercy of God in sending Jesus Christ for the redeinption of this people; and for his assention to the right hand of God the Father, and thence pouring out his "Spirit, and giving gifes to men, apositos, evanged lists, prophets, pastors, and teachers, for the electric thering and building of his church; and for fitting and inclining this man to this great works, to ender the most of the most of the service to fulfil the work of his ministry in all things, that he may both save himself, and his people committed to his charge."

Further with respect to the Confession of Faith,—it is well known to contain the articles of belief, and to be the standard of the doctrine and worship of the Church of Scotland. "At the revolution it was approved by Parliament, and ordained as the public and avowed Confession of the Faith of the Church." It must be subscribed to by Ministers before they can be permitted to hold a benefice. It must also be subscribed by Professors in Universities and achoolmaters, &c.

O4 the strictness of the discipline of the Church of Scotland, as well as its jealousy of ministers holding occupations incomsistent with their holy profession, some idea may be formed by those not conversant with the subject, from the following extract from an act of Assembly held at Edinburgh, March 26, 1596.

"The ordained,

1. That such as are light and wanton in their behaviour, as a gorgeous and light apparel, in appear, in using light and protains company, unlawful gaming, as during, carding, dering, and such like, into beseeming the gravity of a pastor, be sharply and gravely reduked by the Presbytery, necording to tifk degree othereof, and continuing therein after due admonition that he be deprived,

as slanderous to the Gospek

2. That Ministers, heing found swearers or banners, protaners of the Sabbath, drankards, fighters, guilty of all these, or any of them be deposed simpliciter. And such like livrs, detractors, flatterers, breakers of promise, brawlers and quarrelers after admountion, continuing therein, locur the same purishment.

3 That Minteers, given to unlewful and mempetent trades, and occupations, for filthy gain, as holding of hostaries, taking of other, beside conscience and good laws, and bearing worldly offices in poblemen and gentlemen's houses, merchandize, and such like, buying of victual, and keeping it to the dearth; and all such worldly occupations as may detract them from their charge, and may be slanderous to the pastoral calling; be admonwhed, and brought to the icknowledging of their sins ;—and it they continue therein to be deposed," &p.

Such are a few of the sules passed by men who now-a-days would be called "Wild," but we think it would be a hard thing to prove that they were not of the Orthodox Church of Scotland, and that their descendants (now generally termed Evangelical) do not form bona fide the Orthodox party. Indeed that is the name by which they pall themselves, and not "wild." That appellative they owe to their more lukewarm but hardly more polite neighbours. We must close these observations sooner than we intended. We trust they will be found to contain nothing derogatory to the quid verum atque decens; else our father monitor over the way will uplift And so the door I clos'd—but he, his birsh!

And so the door I clos'd—but he, The winged Love, awoke! At me his birth!

Bhaugulpore, July 13, 1823.

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

Sik,-An early predilection for the Drama has induced me to gratify my inclination by attending at the Theatres as often as an opportunity occurred. I have hitherto refrained from sending you citiques of the performances, from the hope that some one of your numerous readers and Correspondents better qualified, would have undertaken the task; but as no que seems sa disposed, I shall decline it no longer. The performance at the Dum-Dum Theatre last evening, was the justly celebrated Comedy of "John Bull" Notwithstanding the violent fall of rain for the few preceding days, which prevented several parties from Calcutta honoring the Theatre with their presence, it was most respectably, if not aroundedly attended. The characters of Tom Si affeion and Lady Caroline Braymore were admirably supported by distinguished per-formers. The former appeared the finished man of fashion, and displayed all that rakish folly and fashionable levity even in the most affecting spenes, which the author wished by his example to hold up to derision and contempt. He was perfectly at home in his part, which he cated to the life. and second thoroughly to understand; it was, included, the very character for which he was adapted. Lady Careline Braymore was equally well selected, and elicited an equal share of applause—in abort, without exaggerating or over-acting their parts, they maintained them with spirit, and proved the main prope and supports of the play... I am sorry I cannot speak so decidedly in favor of the rest of the characters; it would he wrong to discourage, as with a little more exertion many of them would doubtless succeed better, but their improvement can only be effected by pointing out their faults, and operacting the wrong impressions, which they appear to have entertained of their respective characters. I am of opinion, and it was generally so considered by the audience, that the characters were not the coars and I was sorre to become that well cast, and I was sorry to observe that several performers, both male and female, who rank high in the regard of the public, were without parts. I know not how to account for this, and sincerely hope it was account for this, and sincerely hope it was account for this. cidental, and will not occur again, as the want of their exertions and abilities essentially detracts from the highly distinguished name which the Dum-Dum Theatre has attained. Dennis Bulgruddery was very fair. and in some parts acted the character to perfection, but he did not keep up the sparit of the part, and more than once I was sorry to observe, enurely lost sight of the honest, blundering, but honorable Irishman he ought to have represented, and in those parts by this neglect or inattention, turned some of the finest and most manly sentiments juto farce, more particularly in the scenes with Mrs. Bulgruddery, but he is or might be a good actor, if he would but study his part with attention. Dun was also very tolerable in several place, but the character was over-acted, totally so, and the audience were not certainly on the whole pleased with his performence. Sir Francis Rochdale was, in my opinion, very poorly supported; he certainly is unfit for the character, altho doubtless he has abilities for the stage in more suitable parts. In the scene in the Abrary, when the honest Brazier comes for justice, he totally lost sight of the character, and his rage when Old Job takes possession of the Justice's chair-not in this case the chair of justicewas perfect pantomine. Prank Rechdale and Mary were never intended for the stage, and I do not hesitate in saying, that the play would have succeeded infinitely better than it did, had their places been supplied by almost any others. In the most ference and coolness was truly lamentable; they no doubt displayed a great share of philosophy; but pray, Mr. Editor, let them understand, that a stage hero and heroine, understand, that a stage hero and herome, and distracted facers too, ought not to know agach a word. Poor Frank was for all the world like's Mathodist Parson, and perhaps was one in disguise; now that gentlemen of that cloth have received a dispensation for being en agest in accular employments. Every person present, I could see, was prepared to feel for their distresses, particularly those of Mary in her interview with Frank, at the Manor house, and with her father on the heath at the "Red Cov." Sha fainted well on the second occasion fainted well on the second occasion a good actor; he did his part well on the whote, and once of twice shone out most brilliantly, but he has the same fault as most second-rate actors,—he did not the roughly understand, and therefore overdid his part in everal places. his part in several places ;-let him pay attention, and study the character he has to represent with care, and I can venture to promise him applause and renown as the rewards of his care. Peregrine must mind his P's and Q's, if he wishes to retain his present high character—he has too much of rigidity and stiffness, he mouths his speech-es; let him recollect Hamlet's instruction to the players, "but if you mouth it, as many of our players do, I had as lief the town crier spoke my lines." I would advise him too to be more particular in his H's. The H is a very pretty letter, and the ears of people of taste ought not to be unnecessarily tortured with its omission, or its addition to words which don't want it. It would be advisable that the Manager, or person entrusted with the superintendence of the rehearsals, should give the performers the benefit of his advice. A little instruction would do none of them harm, and I can venture to say, that many would derive no inconsiderable benefit from it. Several have evidently latent talent for the stage; it should be cherished and cultivated, and then I shall hope to see the Dum-Dum Theatre, what it once was, nearly equal to the Chowringhee. The comedy of John Bull is one, of all others, most calculated from the manly independence, liberality, and honorable tendency of its sentiments, to elicit from a British audience the most unbounded applause: the characters are difficult to perform oreditably-they require study, and they require a knowledge of the world, as indeed what characters do not in a less degree, to enable the actor satisfactorily to represent them. On the whole, I cannot conceal my opinion that John Bulk is not adapted for the Dum-Dum Theatre—they succeed ad-mirably in Melo-dramas, and such like per-formances, where romantie and rustle cha-racters are to be represented; but south ment, love, and honest blust independence, as represented in John Rull, are not suited to the talents of the Dum Dumfes. The farce "How to, Dig ton Love," was most tame and unintercating, and afforded but little opportunity for the exhibition of theatrical powers: it went off as well as could be Bourbon 4th June.

her scream was good on seeing her father, but with that exception, both Frank and herself were perfect antomatons; no two pieces of marble could have been more cold and insensible than they were throughout the pit, but it was too ridiculous to be generated lovers were never seen, not even in the present degenerate days; but I refrain being erected by subscription, is in program they may be bearable, but for mercy; to open the beginning of the cold weather sake let us live no more sentiment or love when we may expect a ride mental treat. gress, and will doubless be mained in time to open the beginning of the old weather when we may expect a fielt mental research and now, Mr. Editor, before I conclude this, I fear you will think unnecessably long critique. Mr. Stylchnac's Print from Mr. Chiv-Nery's Portrait of the Marquess of Hastlags, has been issued, to the subscribers, and is extremely creditable to the rising arts in Calcutta.

To those who have not seen the Print, nor the portrait from which it is taken, it may be agreeable to be informed that His Lordship is represented sitting in a chair of state, with that air of screene dignity which was so peculiar to him.

The execution of the Print evinces great ability, being soft and harmonious in all its parts,—and last, not least, the likeness is well preserved throughout. Might not Mr. Saviganac continue what he hasso admirably begun, by undertaking a series of prints of distinguished individuals from approved portraits. We could mention one or two capital subjects, and especially a splendid portrait just finished of one of the most respected inhabitants of this city, who is as much an opnament to society as he is an honer to the Bench.

SUPREMB COURT.

CALCUTTA, -TUPSDAY AND WEDNESDAY. · JULY 22D AND 23D 1823.

. FIRST DAY.

BEFORE THE HON'BLE SIR A. BUL! LER, KT.

BEFORE THE HON'BLE SIR F. MC. NAGHTEN, & SIR A. BULLER.

SOORTEE KHAN versue F. A. WESTON, JOHN DIGBY COX, AND ALEX-ANDER THOMAS.

Mr. CLARKE opened the proceedings, Mr. TURTON said that in addressing the Court in this case, it was with great relucations that he should make any remarks of the conduct of the detendants, and although he never did wish that a case en though he never our wish that a case one trusted to him should fail, yet if he eyer could entertain a wish of that kind, he should apply it to the case to which he now had the honor of drawing. His Lordnip attention. But if he were rightly instructed, at the learned compact said it was impossible for him to fail. He would deal with the for him to full. He would only state a plain matter-of-fact case, but if the similar bumplaised by the Plantiff were frue their he was sure that His Lordship would consider it one of great oppression, and do could only express his serroy that Major Weston and the other Defendants insuld be implicated in such a case, and imprisoned, and after being tried by a vourt martial was sentenced to 70 lashes on he had yet to learn that they, after having discharged a man for ten months, could again punish him it he were found within their fairy for or sain the limits with which they held rule, by the summary mode of a court martial. The man was found, as he had already stated, within the panton-ments, his place of residence for 10 months, and was it to be supposed, that bequise the Plaintiff had once been discharged from the service of these gentlemen, he was never after to set his foot within the cantonments' His learned triend would say that there were rules and regulations applicable to this subject, and he no doubt had lately refreshed his memory on the subject, althou well enough acquainted with them at general times.

The Plaintiff in this case had been Mess Kliansamah to the officers at Barrackpore,

The learned Coupsel had heard it whispered, that altho his learned friend, had pleaded the general issue, they imagined they could justify under the Mutiny Act. Suppose the case to be as he had been given to understand, the learned counsel contended that they sould not derive their power from the Muting Act, nor was there any time mierate British constitution committed the persons and properties of British subjects to military rule. It they possessed the power, they must derive it from the Governor General never had the power to alter British Law be never laid the power to alter British Law be never laid the power to say that a person in a first situation should be tried by military law. His loagned friends should be plead the foods of the constitution of the constitut liter faw. His learned friends must plend the poal is well their wished to ever-rule the Court.

His instruction stated the learned course, the first the Philippin was on the all of Lamary, its day on which he meant to admit the petition, taken to a bungsion of the he got there a few questions were asked the and he was given to philips the Mr. Ruller. A second time he was broughtup, and a second time remanded in our fully and a second time remanded in our fully but the basis guard. On the 8th he was again taken to the bingalow of Ligut. Thomas, where he found a council or court Thomas, where he found a council or court martial assembled constitues of figure. Thomas and five matting efficiers. The learned counted would public here for a manner because he had beard it said, that Lieut. Thomas weak never sponsible, what he was only the meets of the court, but he (the learned squarely) asserted that Lieut, Thomas held two situations in that court, for he was Indee Advicate and Provident. Thomas held two attractions in that court, for he was Judge Advocate and Fresident. There was no difference in the persons present,—they all agreed to find him guilty of something of which he had never heard—he did not know when he was brought up that it was for the gurposa of being tried, and at last he heard himself told that he was found guilty, and equity scattened to receive 70 lashes, and all tils, fortunts because he had the impudence to enter the course he had the impudence to enter the bounds of the officers. On the Sth, the Court adjourned and on the 9th, the prisoner was taken away to be punished. On the evening of this day, the order came for the Plaintiff to be punished. It was not couched in the usual terms, and the native officer very properly refused to comply with it. Soon afterwards, Lieutenant Cox came and took him from the guard to be punished. The punishment was not inflicted in the usual manuer; his crime was not told him, and when he was punished, Licutenant Cox stood by, and toki them to lay it on well. It was well known, the le rned counsel observed, that no peo-ple were so obedient as sodders, and of all soldiers sepoys were the most obedient, and there rould be no doubt that a sepoy drummer never laid on so well as when he was told by his of-ticer to lay on. The Plaintiff received his 70 lashes, and before he recovered his usual health, he had spent 250 tupees in doctors. This was not a case to be trifled with. The learned counsel would not embody his own personal opinions with the case; he was no declaimer against military punishments; that matter he would leave to others who understood it better to decide, but he had a right to say, that when a man soffers a puni liment, and an unjust punishuight too, the distrace of it ought to give him damages, and if it were inflicted with more than orcinary severity, then he was enti-led to

I rge damages.
There was one subject more to which the learned counsel would draw the at astion of the Court. It must be proved that the Plantiff was subject to the fribunal before which he was brought, but if even this were proved, he would doty his learned friends, with all the advantages which field official situations efforded them, to buy that the place a right to induct 70 ladies. He would show that the sentence was illegal, and that the utmost which they could indict was foliated. was so. He had heard it said, "The libral fellows do not care about it. It is no matter whether he had 60 of 70 lashen; but the ho had always answered by asking, the sector of those words; what he would hable, at the time his back, was recking; was the state in shos, to receive 20 more? He would the the question of this case in any way; the would put to the defendants, as any more what authority they inflicted this praising what authority they inflicted this praising was anot liable to their tribunal; and he peaks suppose him liable, but that was only to the causest of 60 lashes. The defendants was entered of matter of the state, and the learned opened and that his client had a right to such days mages as such a pase would warrant. yas so. He had beard it said. "O's ! Indimages as such a case would warrant.

This was not, Mr. Turton said, a case of slip; of a more crear of indgement, for a allo or an error of judgement could not be consi-dured when it encreased the punishment of a fellow creature. It was not enough for people entrusted with the power of punishment to believe they are right, they must know they are right. This was rendered in-cumbent on them by the Regulation of 1818. In this case the man protested at the trial: he said that his was no trial, -but whether there was a trial or none; and if there were, whether that trial were legal or not, they ought to have known the extent of their authority, they ought to have turned to the Regulation to see how far they could go. (The learned counsel then referred to the Regulations for the punishment of camp followers.) Where, he would Jok, was it to be found, in these Rea gulations that a khansamah or private servant could be thus punished? If it were said in reply that he drew pay from an officer; he would ask, whether he did so at the time of the infliction of this punishment. Did the 4th article say, that if a man once became a menial servant, from that time forward he was subject to a court martial? or did it refer to him only during the time he was in that situation? If he had run away to avoid the punishment, there may be some excuse for its infliction; but he had never run away; and he had lived in cantonments for the last 10 months on his own means, Did this render him liable to the tribunal before which he was condemned? His learned friend could only throw himself on the mercy of the Court, but he knew that his learned friend was as game as any man he ever knew, and none would head a forforn hope better than he.

In conclusion the lastned counsel would romark, that 50 lashes was the utmost these defendants had a right in any case to give, and in this case they had no right to indiet any at all. He knew that if any of the blows were wrong they were all wrong. es. And here it was not as in same other der these circumstances then, he left the cases that what was good of a part was cause in the hands of the Court, and only good for the whole, for if any one blow of asked such damages, as gentlemen ought to these 70 was illegal, every one of them pay, who were intrusted with the property cause in the hands of the Court, and only of other individuals, and who neglected to make themselves acquainted with those Regulations which were intended to guide them in the discharge of their important duties, '

WILLIAM BUTLER was then examined by Mr. CLARKE: Knows Wajor Weston, brestenant Cox, and Lieut. Thomas.

bientenant Cook, and Lieut, Thomas. Major Weston is Brigado Major, and the ethers Libutenants in the Company's Service. Witness is w British subject, and believes the others are so likewise.

PODI CHUPRASIE, examined by Mr. TURTON. Witness lived to: some time at Barrarkpore, but the brigade major turned him sur of the contonments; this was about a year ago; he got a petition addressed to Goperal Dalz il, which he gave to Boortoe Khan; without be has turned away; he kept a shop for 30 years which was shut up at the same time; he thinks that it was in Alagh that he gave the potition to Scortee Khan to give to the General, besides his own, plaintiff had two other petitions, one of Gunoo's and another of the Cazi's; these were given to him at the same time: does not know whether they were given to the brig ide major or to the bazar serjeant; accompanied plaintiff no where but to the council, by the council means the meeting of the gentlemen and the sirdars, thinks this was on the 6th Magh, but as he cannot read and write, does not recollect clearly, he knows no one but the brigade unjor; went to the council, and remained there for a mittate or two: the gentleman and sirders investigated, but he does not know what.

Cross-Examined by the ADVOCATE GE-NERAL-Does not know whether Soortee Khan was rich or no, he was formerly Khansamah for the mess, dues not know where he gets money from for this action, does hot know Sain Chuckerbutty, witness had no house in which to live, and Soortee Khan came to him out of dantonments; he carne when he took his walks once or twice, witness' told kim he was in great distress, and asked him to give a petition to the Ge-meral; plaintiff told him he had so friend; the General's service who spoke English, whom he had feasted and spent money on he told him he would put him in the way of getting a petition torwarded, and told him to go to a man, whom he manied, at Scrampore, and get it written there, plaintif gave bim no instructions what to say in the peti-tion, nor any thing else about it; what he got written was of his own actord, Acortoc Khan told every body he would turn the setewal out, and get his place the said that at Berliampore a council had been hold, and that the Kotewal who had been turned out petition and whatever is your right you will obtain it; he promised to present his peti-tion but said nothing about giving him aid; he looked to Soorte Khan as his only re-source to help him; could not go to the bazar, cannot recognize his own petition does not know who the sirdars were who composed the council: two gentlemen and the sirdars were there, he does not know

Re-Examined by Mr. CLARKE -Chuprassies were sent after Sportee Khan, and he was given in charge to the Kotewal; atter this he was carried by the Kotewal, the jemidar and the chowdree before the brigade major.

In reply to the ADVOCATE GENERAL.

Plainting lived formerly in cantonment, but since the time of the beating he went out; when the petitions were written he lived in cantonments; he sought for employment in the bazar; he had been Khansamah to the mess; he did business in the bazar whenever he got it from any one, does not know Lieut. Haslam; he did not know that Plaintiff was in his service a few days before he was turned out of the cantonments.

In reply to Mr. CLARKE,-The Kotewal told him that the gentleman would give him his house and situation again, and the gentieman said the same, the Kotewal told is in that the gentleman said so, and added 'I tell you that you must say that Sooitee Khangave you the petition, and that you acted from his advice, it you do not, he will give you 200 lashes and turn you out,' the Kotewal did not say so in the presence of the bligade major.

Cross-Examined again by the ADVO-CATE GENERAL. The persons who ap-prehended Plaintiff are in the service of Govariament; they are under the brigade ma-jor; he has said now what he said at the council, he said there more than here, he spoke truth on both occasions.

WILLIAM BUTLER was examined by
Mr. TURTON. He has been bazar enjeant ever since the 16th Sept. 1819, he was on daty on the 4th or 5th January last; when he received the letters from Societe Khan, he gave them to Capt. Weston, who was Brigade Major; Plaintiff said he was afraid of keeping them, he delivered them to Major Weston, thinks he reserved them on a Saturday, and gate them to Major Weston on a Saturday, and gate them to Major Weston on a Sunday, never received any others; Major Weston seemed angry that he had kept them so long, he then desired the peons to call Sourtee Khap to him, but if he were out of the cantonness never to mind fillinks he ordered his two orderies to go with the peacus; deen not repoliced whether he saw Sourtee. He deposed to having received orders from Major Weston to apprehend Scorter Than, to the execution of those orders; to his imprisonment; the proper persons received notice of this; to the circumstances of the court martial; to an application being made to him by the kotewal to deliver up the prisoner which be refused to comply with to his subsequent-ly being delivered up to the officer of the day; to the punishment; to not having heard the tom-tom; and to his leaving the place in an exhauted state.

Cross-examined by the ADVOCATE GENERAL—Did not know Soortee Khan until he saw him in confidement, and never heard any thing of him before.

SHEIKH BUKHSHU, examined by Mr. TURTON.—Is a drummer in the 2d Batt. 23d Regt. He deposed as to having received orders for punishing him, and to having obeyed them. He said that four drummers were present on the occasion, but only two employed; two officers were present; one of them was Lieutenant Cox, the other the officer of the day; the former acted as interpreter to the latter, and told him to lay on well; (uchha twriff se ligao) the pun-ishment was inflicted in the usual manner. Nothing occurred either in his examination or cross-examination, of which the above is the substance, contrary to what had been stated by the other witnesses.

KHOSEAL KHAN, examined by Mr. CLARKE-said in addition to what had been stated by the other witnesses, that after the punishment Plaintiff was turned out of can-tonments, and that at the time of the investigation when the prisoner attempted to say something, one of the gentlemen cried out, "ckeuprao," but he could not state what the "chauprao, plaintiff said, as he was dutside the wall.

In his cross-examination by the ADVO-CATE GENERAL, he said that the bazar punishments which he had seen before, when the basar serjeans was present and the tom-toms were beaten, were for petty theft.

(This ended the case for the Plaintiff.) The ADVOCATE GENERAL then rose for the defence. His learned friend, he stahad began by observing that he had an anpleasant duty to perform in opening his case against these gentlemen, but if he had be and this power, how dreadful would it to defend them on account of any abuse of power, his duty would be much more pain. for if they were to be under the civil power, full than that possibly could be which had ful than that possibly could be which had been anticipated by his learned friend. But he had indeed heard of no abuse of power in his client. He had only heard that it was: Major Weston's duty to take charge of prisoners until their trial, and that he had done Major Weston had not been the proseouter of this man; he had only given his swidenbe against him, and what he said on his word, or his oath were to be equally believed. It would be dutte gratuitous for him to say that there was no charge of malical against Major Waston; te should indeed

If Soortee Khan were a military man, his conduct must be enquired into; God forbid that his client should intercept an unfortunate man on the road to justice, but if the charges were false, and the conduct of Soortee Khan as it had been described, it was infumous,—it amounted to a conspiracy; the petition sould not be said to have been intercepted,—they had, as well as the sentence, been laid before Colonel Broughton and General Dalzell, who both approved of it. Some time ago in order that frivolous charges should not be made against people in authority, it was ordered by the commanding officer that no one should cabel or conspire in the bazar. Major Weston laid these petitions before Colonel Broughton who ordered the proceedings which ensured upon them. The Government of this country which was Supreme, had authority to make any regulation without an Act of Parliament, and they had done so. If they there would be a perpetual clash between the two. It was their own choice that they lived thille bazars, and even after having boon registered, they may withdraw their names at pleasure.

Major Weston the head head had been made to Calcuta and all this book had been by the Hangues of Hantings when he lived to Calcuta and all this book had been examined. The learned counsel then proceeded to state that there was no justification set forth in the plaint, and he contended that it was unnecessary, for he would prove by and bye that nothing had yet been brought forward to entitle the Plaintiff to a verdlet. By the 12th of the 21st James 1st, the power of directing a Court-martial gives the power of taking into custody, and the 16th, ch. 42dGeo. 3rd sec. 6th, after reciting the Act of James, extends it to all persons capable of taking into custody. This covers every person who had the right of taking into custody, and the same moment that he proved the regu-lation regarding camp followers, that same moment he proved them liable to the rules and regulations issued by Colonel Brough-

It could not be doubted that Col. Broughton had power to held a Court-martial, and it could not be doubted that Scortee Khan soluntarily made himself liable to the regu-Major Weston arrested him by order of Colonel Broughton, and thus only did his duty, and the moment that he was complained of, he had a right to appre-hend him. Major Weston throughout the aftan was quite guiltless of any thing improper, he acted under superior orders, and if he had disobeyed Col. Broughton, he could not only have been broke, but would have rendered himself, by so doing, liable to death. To say that Major Weston had any thing to answer for was most extraordinary. The learned counsel wished to show that every thing was tair and above board, and that there was no concealment, and this brought him to one of his learned friend's interlocutory speeches that they did not tell the buzar people what the plaintiff was punished for because they did not know what to tell. But the sentence was entered in the minute book and sent to Government, and he asked, how was it that they were so ready to shew it to the Government, and not able to tell the basar why he was punished. If they winted to dis-grice a man, they beat the tom-toms, and not else, and then they had four drummers to give the 70 lashes. To attempt to make any thing of this, was quite absurd, for althor four drummers were present, it appeared that two only performed the punishment, and that one had first given 26, and then he was relieved, and the balance, the other 20, given by the first drammer-Again the absence of the baggr acricant had swellen into a charge of immense many intinde but he was sale present as a process. nitude, but he was only present, as appear ed by the evidence, when punishments were inflicted for perty theft. There was no Court which could inflict a fire of the could be could be a fire of the could be could inflict a fine or other punishment upon him, for no Court had power over a Court Martial. Lieut Thomas was under the commanding officer, Col. Broughton, and if he had enjarged the prisoner he would be could only be coul have done wrong. He could only have, sent him back where he had been before and as he had done nothing at all, the learned counsel contended that Lieut. Thomas was also ontitled to a verdict.

Lieut. Cox's Augustow was more convenient than Lieut, Thomas's, and therefore the Court-martial was held there. The drummers said that the officer of the day could not speak Hindoostance, and that Lieut. Cox interpreted for him. Whatever offence Ensign Codrington had committed, Lieut, Cox had committed sone. He had only acted as interpreter, but perhaps it would have been better if he had left it alone. It was said that he had spoken to the drummer, and if it were true, as it sometimes was, that the execution of their duty was a mere matter of form, then it was the duty of the officer to speak to him, and as the evidence now stood, he felt himself entitled to a verdict for Lieut. Cox. The evidence given by Jodi to-day was, that he had been incited by Soortee Khan to send the petitions to the general, before the Court Martial he said, that Soortee Khan came to him 15 times, and told him that he had a friend who spoke English in the General's house, on whom he had spent money to the amount of 12 rupees, and that he went, and by his directions found out the writer at Serampore; that he was entirely guided by Soortee Khan in what he wrote, and that he did so, because he promived to get the kotewal turned out, and get him back into the bazar-There was another witness also called Gunoo, who had given the same account, but he could not be found, as he was now up the country. On the evidence as it stood the learned counsel contended, that he was entitled to a verdict, and this without reference to the evidence which he was about to produce,

COSSINATH CHUCKERBUTTY examined by the ADVOCATE GENERAL.—Produced the books of the blazar registry; the name of Sportes Khan is there; he knows him, he is the plaintiff in this case; he is registered as a khansaminh; the book was in the office when he went into it; this was about two years ago; has seen plainwas about two years ago: has seen plaintiff in cantonments where he lived.

Soveral other witnesses were called, and Col. Broughton was re-examined. The former stated that was generally known to every one that an persons living in the bazar were registered, and that they liad it in their power to withdraw their names when they pleased. That of the latter tasked to prove the Meier Party. ter tended to prove that Major Weston seted under his orders, and that the sentence was approved and confirmed by him, and subsequently by General Dalzell, Mr. TURTON then rose to reply. He was happy, he said, that an opportunity was afforded him of replying to his learned friend. For himself, he could say that he was the only person on his side of the question, who was anxious both from public and private reasons to put a stop to the case and finish it quietly, and he said now that if a fair and honest compensation had been offered to his client he would have thrown up his brief and the attorney would have done the same. But he contended that when an improper or illegal punishment had been inflicted on any man, he had right to a compensation. If he, in the course of his address, should make use of any warm expression, he would be under the correction of the Court. But he felt perhaps with the partiality of the counsel, who was con-vinced that he was entitled to damages, not to vindictive damages, for them he never asked. But he would call this transaction as far as one of the defendants was concerned, aggravated, and as far as the others were concerned, not see The disgrace of the punishment too was not slight. If he acknowledged the jurisdiction, he denied the right of the defendants to juster Thetripes and if the plaintiff had received 20 more blows than he ought to have received, he was entitled to damages for them. He wanted to show that his client was not he factious individual he was represented to be, and that he had a right to come here. He had never heard of but one mistake qual to this, and that from Joe Miller, of so Irishman who swore that he saw aschooled growing on the walls of Gibratter. This of course was for some time doubled, and he as resolutely persisted in it, until one day being shot, and on the point of death; he remembered bis mistake, and erled elle, Ob they were capers, they were capers"! And so it was with his learned friends; they had torn the flesh of his client's back, and then thirned about and said; Oh! it is a mistake; we gave 70 instead of 50; if we had not done so, his back would not have been torn, and on account of their mistake, this poor king standament put up with the flogging, and go without damages.

The learned county would now remark briefly upon his friend's address. Major Weston had certainly stopped the cause of justice, for the petition had been put into his bands to convey it to the general. Not an iota of proof had been brought that the petition was false. The charges against the plaintiff had been drawn up by Major Weston, and this was a grave charge against him. Was it not the duty of the presiding officer to say that these charges were totally faise? to say, at least that they ought to be proved? There was no great difference bet-ween the testimony of Iodi here, and at the Court Martial, and the learned counsel had a right to say that his oath to-day was equal to that on a former occasion. He might think that if he gave his evidence in one way, he should get back to his own house, and he had sworn that Soortee Khan had induced him to do it. And he could say thus much for his learned friend's argument, that this man had at the instigation of a troublesome fellow, uttered such charges as got him his house back again.

There was one circumstance, the learned counsel said, which he had a right to revert to, to show there was semething extraordinary in the case. When a punishment did not proceed from revenge, it was given out at the basar, and all offenders were punished in the same manner. It was strange that a man should be punished in the bazar for having presumed to present a petition to General Dalsell.

There had been a great flourish of drummers, but the learned counsel said he had made none. His learned friend, however, had in pure simplicity of heart put a book into his hand, which set the matter at rest. The strength of the drammers did not appear, but it appeared that they had rested between whiles. He should like to have had it explained why four drummers did not act. It appeared that one of them had been 20 years in the service, and perhaps the effect would have been employed, if they had not been too young. We much repret that we cannot follow the learned counsest through the whole of his bumorous address to the court and his remarks on the evidence as it applied to the several defendants. Weave colleged however unwillingly to pass this over, and to advert at once to his review of the exidence. had in pore simplicity of heart put a book

The learned counsel stated that he had brought what he thought necessary to the notice of their Lordships, and he depended for justice upon their Lordships. When he read the Act of Parliament—when he read the Preamble to it, which stated that great injuries had been done to the patives of this country, and when he considered the cir-cumstances under which the Act was passed, he felt that they had a people's claim on the Court. The military law would apply at home as well as here, and although he cleared the detendants from all iniproper mouves, he claimed a verdict against the subjects of Great Britain who did not think it worth their while to make themselves acquainted with the duties they had to exercise and the right they possessed. With regard to da-mages he would, as he said in his opening speech, be satisfied with what his learned friend would take for twenty strokes on his bare back after having alleady received fifty. Sir F. MACNAGHTEN, in giving Judge-ment said, that there could be no doubt that there had been an unjutentional excess of twenty, and he would go further and say that if there was a man who from malice gave him the additional twenty he would give £1000, or if that were not enough £10,000 tot each, and it he could trace it to but the Jupiter, a large man of war, may make eor any thing like he would do the same. probably have a longer passage. On Tuest As it was however, he was pleased the action had been brought so as to fail. This application he thought had been made on behalt of an injured man, who was at any rate deeply concerned, and the defendants would be utterly devoid of humanity if they did not allow him a compensation out of their own pockets.

Colonel Broughton took the blame on himself, and it the action had been brought against him, the plaintiff must have had damages and this Court was bound to see people keep strictly to their duty, and as long as he sat there he would see that they should do it. He regrets that an application was not made to Col Broughton, and if it had been done he had no doubt that a suitable compensation would have been made.

The only question was, whether the gentlemen accused in the plaint, are liable to be brought here for the excess of punishment which the plaintiff had endured. His opinionwas that they were not, but before he decided, he thought it was only right to say that there was no doubt that the plaintiff is hable to the jurisdiction of the Court he was reached the Cape of Good Hope on the 31st brought before. The application ought not to March, from whomee she sailed on the have been brought into this Court at all; it 12th, and arrived at St. Helena in safety ought to have been against life own peers; on the 24th April. THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE. Sin, Poets have been called an irritable foce, and there can be little doubt that they in some degree merit the appellation. The Noble Peat's virulence to Southey in the same work is sufficiently disgusting to the reader, and degrading to himself: but is sothing which compared to the long note which forms a portion of the Appendix to the "Two Fostari." It must be confessed, however, that there is no courtesy or liberality lost between these Poetical Gladiators. Souther is but paid in his own coin, and Wordsworth, though perhaps the most moderate of the three in this instance, (contenting himself with occasionally expressing his astonishment that the Noble Lord's works are read and endured, and without the preference is uniformly given gravely prophesying how speedily they will be officers of the rank of Licut. It is curious chough to observe how the Satirist of the "English Bards" has since had occasion to rectify his judgement of their respective merits. Wordsworth and Southey are among the very few of whom his opinions have always been consistent. It the Noble Lord's Literary Creed is thus changeable, he has no right to taunt Southey with his political versatility. In their youths the one was a literary reformer, and the other a political reformer. They have both changed, and perhaps by a tait and honest conviction of the folly and untenabitime when Lord Byren had but little to say in favor of Scott or Moore, and as for Coloridge and Bowles, they were every thing that was contemptible in he has since learnt to speak with glowing admiration of those fire Pacts. He once paid a noble compliment to Cowper:

His letter to Musexcellent and sublime. His letter to Muiray concerning Pope and his Editor, is, in my humble opinion, totally unworthy of him; and forms a most disadvantageous contrast to the eloquent, argumentative, and temperate correspondence of Bowles.

Of Mr. Bowles' private character he knows enough, to know that it is most amiable and exemplary—but he says as little as may be on that subject, but insinuates that he may not be all that he appears. Lord Byron never judges from appearances for he once had his pockets picked by the civilest gentleman he ever met with; the mildest perion he ever saw was Ali Pacha! He also hints something about "a humo-rous and witty anecdote;" whatever its other characteristics might be, which was a much hetter (id est-much worse) story than Cibber's about Pope's having been decoyed into a house of carnal recreation. But notwithstanding "a youthful frolic," he is "willing to believe" Mr. Bowles a good man-almost as good as Pope! wonderfully candid!

The Noble Poet must "have a word on passant to Mr. Campbell," and quotes from Dyer's Gronger Hill the following fine lines;

" As you summits, soft and fair, Clad in colors of the air, Which to those who journey near Barren, brown, and rough appear, Still we trend the same coarse way The present still a cloudy day."

ginal of the far-famed"-

"Tis distance lends enchantment to the view, And tobes the mountain in its agure hue?"

I will answer that it is very possibly a coincidence,—quite as much so as his Lord-ship's expression of "Rome of the Ocean" applied to Venice, which expression is also used by Lady Morgan in her excellent and fearless Work."

I will also take the liberty to have "a word en passant" to Lord Byron:

"The Eagle's fate and mine are one. Which on the shaft that made him die, Espyed a feather of his own. Therewith he wont to soar so high." Waller.

"Is not this the original of the far-famed"— " So the struck Eagle stretched upon the plain, No more through rolling clouds to soar again, Viewed his own feather on the fatal dart, And winged the shaft that quivered in his heart!"

We shall be happy to receive such com-munications as the above, from our esteemed friend and steady contributor as of Indigo, equal to about 11 seers!—Tho ten as he can command the requisite weather this month has been equally as leisure.-Editor.

To the Editor of the India GAZETTE.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,-As it may be interesting to those concerned in the Blue line. to know the fate of the poor Planters in this district. I, shall feel obliged by your giving room in a corner of your paper to the following distressing facts, which will confer an obligation on,

Dear Mr. Editor. Your most obedient servant, AN INUNDATED PLANTER. Purneak, 17th July, 1823.

The season throughout has been attended with a series of misfortunes, to all those who have had try thing to do in the culti-vation of Indigo hereabouts; for the long continued drought in the earlier part kept back the sowings of the low lands till a late period, excepting a few biggahs that were sown in the D'hars, or low marshy lands, after which we were blessed with a few showers of rain about the 7th May, which enabled us to complete nearly the whole of such lands as are subject to an carly inundation, together with a good deal of the high lands, so that the dayk cloud that had hung so long over us, began to vanish, and every thing wore a favorable aspect, until the beginning of last month. when the weather took a different turn, and brought down torrents of rain, which seri-And then enquires—" Is not this the ori-soully injured all that had been sown, by overflowing the D'hars and Nullahs, which inundated a considerable part of our low land plant, and otherwise prevented the growth of whatever remained standing on the high lands.—The weather continued nearly the same until the 25th ultimo, when the principal' Rivers began to overflow their banks, and threaten'd immediate dis-truction, sweeping away whatever come in their way, so that many of the Planters to make sure of what remained, were forced to begin manufacturing unripe plant, some of it standing 2 and 3 feet in water, which consequently yielded httle or no produce, barely sufficient to definy one-half the expence of manufacture; -others that were somewhat better treated by the Rivers, commenced working on the 1st instant, myself amongst the rest; but the incessant heavy rains, which we kaye had for the last month past, has drenched the plant so much, that it is downright ruination to manufacture it, as it does not yield above half the produce of last year (which at its -N. lowest obb produced 8 mannds per 1,000 bundles) and one of my inundated neighton-bours from 11 vatts, containing about as em-many hundred bundles, got only 1 box of bad as the last, which has brought down the rivers in all directions, so that every thing now around us puts me in mind of the catastrophe which happened last year at Burrisaul, for the country is one sheet of water, which has caused many of the Factories to stop working for the season, con-sequently all hopes of making even half the quantity of Indigo that was made in this district last season is now at an end-

A. I. P.

DEAR SIR,-While you are busy there, Editorising works for ahlication, we are no less busy here, in culting Plant from under four feet of water

Purneah has been overwhelmed with rain -Every shower that descends, brings forth a deluge—and ever since the 27th May last, (but before that period, we had not had a drop of rain for nearly two months, and such was the scarcity of it, that in consequence we sustained considerable loss in our high land erop,) there has been one continual fall of rain, which, together with the inundation, has nearly set the whole country affoat much less Indigoplants, which, am sorry to say, has been wholly swept away.

The Plant we are now manufacturing, produces on an average of 100 bundles, only 10 to 15 cakes, (any longer continuance at this rate, will tend to inevitable tuin) so, if the rains do not immediately cease, which, to our great vexation, yet colouring matter from the Plant, we shall, I fear, make nothing and a total failure will, I apprehend, he the termination of the season in this district.

I have been here upwards of ten years, and have never known to have experienced such a season as this is likely to be -The past year had likewise been a very wet one, hotwithstanding of made Indigo sufficient to liquidate all my expences, but that bears no comparison to the present, which I have reason to fear, will be a most ruinous one—and as for my part, if I can but clear one fourth of my expences. I shall indeed consider myself as very unfortunate.—So much for our labour and good like Me. Batter mbids and and good luck Mr. Editor, which, if you think vorthy your notice, your giving it insertion in some corner of your entertaining paper, will much oblige,

Your obedient humble servant. AN UNFORTUNATE PLANTER. District of Purneal, 18th July, 1623.

Sir,-Your respectable and interesting Paper has always been the channel of conveying to my weak and untutored mind both instruction and gratification,—by the bye, your excellent Proser's have often enough cheeted my sinking spirits from fits of despondency and ennni, into which it is very frequently plunged from certain causes, not pleasing to relate here, accordingly I am a warm admirer of its pages. Many others beside myself no doubt re up benefit and pleasure from the same source, for which reason I beg you will give publicity to this letter, should you think it worthy of the public attention, in doing so you will confer an additional obligation on me.

Last evening I derived an unusual degree of pleasure in witnessing the first performance of two celebrated Farces, "Raising the Wind," and "How to Die for Love," (begining with a prologue written by one of the Ameteurs) at the newly established "Little Theatre," No. 29, Pollock-street, got up by a few of my industrious young countryman who have most judiciously embraced the Drama, and laudably constituted it as a part of their leisure amusement, with a view of improving their minds and rendering themselves objects of notice,— a precedent highly commendable and praiseworthy, and perhaps the first of it's

My joy was great as I entered this infant Temple, dedicated to Thespis by my brethren; believe me, Mi. Editor, nothing could have given me more infinite pleasure than what I felt at the night of the exterior decorations, laid out as tastefully as their present means would permit, or their inexperienced judgement allow: indeed, the appearance by far exceeded the hopes I have entertained before I proceeded to it. My imagination at this moment led me to indulge a thought that this hitherto stifled measure will in time, if ambitiously carried on, and encouraged by the higher and more respectable part of the community alluded to, happily lead to the developement of an advantage no way small towards raising the now dormant popularity and fame of the Anglo-Indo-Britons and Portuguese inhabitants of this grand and noble city. A little before the entrance of the Amateur for delivering the Prologue, the curtain rose and displayed to the assembled audience a most beautiful Drop-scene, exnuisitely finished by an European artist. Immediately after, the performance com-menced, and opened to our full view the stage elegantly fitted up with the requisite scencry, &c. equally handsome and picturesque, the on a small and confined scale. Of the performance I'll say but little, and that little with lenity, as much cannot be expected so soon from the feeble talents of new debutants; nor would I wish to damp their growing spirits from a choice and 1ational employment by critical and rigorous remarks. In the first piece, the Amateur who played Sam, acquitted himself tolerably :- so did Plainway, with the exception of his delivery, which was rather mouthed, and a defect in modulating his voice. He would do well for any haughty tragic parts for which he possesses promising qualities. • Didler would be perfect had he been more expert, lively and spirited; consequently this character excited not the full force of merriment—it's only support. The timid, bashful, and insipid Fanwon'd was sustained even to a degree of nicety; this Amateur's powers of acting fairly concorded with his part, and therefore afforded great hilarity. Waiter and Richard was played by one and the same person, who did them will.—Miss Durable, and Peggy, were in good hands; the latter of whom will be an acquisition to Pollock Boards, in female characters.

Thalwick, and Bloomenfield, (the latter of whom played Plainway in the finst piece, and with the exception of whose defaults) severally maintained their parts occurately, and gained much applause: particularly the two Captains in the Duel-Scene, which was extremely well done. Trap, and Trick, were not rightly cast, and went off very dryly. The lad who personated Charlotte, did very well and gave hopes of improving. I regret here to observe that the entertuinment was greatly abridged by the saturnino aspects assumed by the performers, as also by the * * of three of them; the former defect may wear away by studiously endeavouring to become more calm during those hours devoted to this purpose; but the latter will require the aid of a Whitaing and Carmine composition, which when carefully applied over the face, will serve as a temporary subjugation of the natural colour, and thereby render the whole more creditable and perfect to the eyes of their auditors.—With sincerely wishing every success to the "Little Theatre," I subscribe myself,

Your humble servant,

LINES

ON THE DEATH OF A PAVORITE PARROT.

Sweet was the morning-hour— A soft descending show'r Gemm'd'ilka bonnie flow'r That glitt'ring shone; All own'd the Vernal pow'r. Save Poll alone.

In vain with hoding care
He trumm'd each feather rare.
No rain-drops fresh and fair
Glane'd on his plume,
In the room's musky air
He pin'd in gloom.

I mark'd his cheerless eye.
"Poor Poll shall we deny ," To thee this gen'ral joy Of hife to shate."
A dewy shrub was nigh
I plac'd him there.

It was a lovely sight,— Ilis yellow plumage bright
Gleam'd thro' the foliage light
And trembling dew—
I mark'd poor Poll's delight
And pleas'd withdrew.

Soon I return'd—but vain—
Poor Poll lay dead—a stain
Unlike the crystal rain
Ting'd his bright gold,
Torn, scatter'd o'er the plain
His plumes were roll'd.

That voice whose ready swell
Our voices answer'd well
Sleeps in the narrow cell;
The bright form fled — Unheard our sad farewell;
Our Echo's dead.

We have no other local news to communicate to our Mofussil readers.

The new Steam Boat, we are happy to learn, succeeds to admiration She is called the Diana.

She has already been down to Kedgeree. and moves, we believe, about with parties on board, who feel highly gratified at being at length able to say that they have been moved by Steam on the Hoogly. She will, we trust, turn out a good speculation to the public-spirited individuals who were at the expence of founding her, and ere long we hope to see more of her kid-mey in the River. Steam having thus, as it were, established his intant reign among us, it is to be hoped that some of those pleasing anticipations formed of its effects with reference to a shorter voyage to England than that which peo. ple have at present usually to undergo, may happily be fulfilled. We should like to hear more about Mr PLEKINS' wonderful steam Ship, which, according to the information conveyed by a Liverpool cotemporary, was to make her voyage in the charming space of six weeks! We have not hitherto, however, been able to obtain any very cerdon papers throw no light upon it.

The Calcutta Medical and Physical Socicty met at the Asiatic Society Rooms on Saturday evening last, for the transaction of business. Some new Members were ufforded ground for instructive discussion.

ness of the Society, and is highly creditable, as indicating the wish which exists in the Government for the encouragement of science in all its branches in the East.

By a letter from Cawnpore we learn that Lieutenant-General Sir Dyson Marshall, K C B, died there on the 21st último, On the same day, Captain Shaw, of the 18th N. I. departed this life.

In the list of casualties we regret to have to record the name of BINJAMIN COMBIR-BACH, Esq, who died here yesterday, aged 53 years.

This DAY'S Shipping Report announces the arrival of the American Ship Bengal, Captain A. Heard, from Salem 3d May.

The Right Henerable the Governor General held his first Levée here yesterday. Ten o'clock being the hour appointed by authority, the Levée room at that time was extremely crouded, and people continued to drop in till upwards of half past-ten o'clock his Lordsbip, who was dressed in the Windson uniform, stood stationary during the whole time at one end of the hall, autended by the Honorable Capt, Amherst, Mr. Lushingron, and others of his Lordship's establishment,

The Gentlemen that came to be presented were, each in his turn, according to pitority of application, introduced by Captain Caro-Alle, and received by his Lordship in the sost courteous manner.

We learn that the Lady Amherst and the Honorable Miss Amherst, accompanied by Dr. Abel, &c., proceeded early this morning in the State pinnace to the H. C. Botanic Garden, which her Ladyship is anxious to wee, and where, we believe, it was her intention to pass the day at the residence of Dr. Wallich, the Superintendent. Her Ladyship returns to town in the cool of the evening.

The Theatre will open to-morrow evening with uncommon eclat, as the house is to be honored with the presence of the Governor General and Lady Amherst, whe will thus, for the first time, have an oppositunity of witnessing the efforts of the Thespic corps of Chowringhee. The result, we trust, will be favorable to our Drury, which we hope may frequently attract the distinguished party that is to grace its States. Box to-morrow night.

The house, it is expected, will be crouded to excess. The pieces fixed on are the "Waterman" and "Monsieur Tonson," as formerly advertised.

The fall of rain for the last fortnight has been unusually heavy. We hear that a commission of legal Gentlemen, ordered to proceed to Burdwan on some business of the Supreme Court, had been under the necessity of returning, in consequence of the Damooda River having broken through its bunds, surmounted its banks, and overflown the country.

From J. O. OLDHAM, Esq. of Bareilly we have received an order for 300 Rupees, on account of the widow and tannly of the Second Officer of the Swallow, which we shall deliver over to the Treasurer of the fund.

*Even in these days there are Giants! A great sensation was yesterday caused in the marvellous world, in consequence of a tremendous Giantess said to be seen in the streets of Calcutta. On Change the principal question was not "how goes Indigo,", but "have you seen the Giantess?"

A friend mentioned to us the first account received by him from a native observer, who, it would appear, had merely a peep of Glumdalchtch, and then took to peep of Glumdalchitch, and then took to his heels as fast as they could carry him-According to this veracious descendant of Ferdinand Mendez Pinto, Glumdalca was at least twelve feet high, with a head as large as that of the Sphinx on the grand starcase of Government House, and horribile dictu an immense under-lip, like a hoise's! This under-lip dropped down in the most preposterous manner like a punnafore upon her ample bosom! Moreover she sat or stood in an immense cage, and was driven about to the great wonderment of the Calcutta Cockneys. The account given of her arrival was, that she was some outlandish, out-of-the-wayish being, who had come to Calcutta in a Ship. According to others, this ship was no other than H. M. S. Jupiter. However, as we did not observe

The word Giantess in the list of passengers by the Jupiter, we were pretty certain that she must have come in some other vessel.

What with her immense head, horse lip, cage, and altogether we are free to confess that that indispensible Editorial quality, curiosity, was awakened in us; according-"ly we asked of more than one-Have you *Seen the Giantess !- but alas! no Giantess had they seen-nor have we to this hour been blessed with a sight of her. Rumour gradually began to give her more moderate dimensions, and from twelve feet high, hefore one c'clock in the afternoon, she came down to nine feet. How much she may have contracted since, we cannot tell, but perhaps in her shoes, her Giantess-ship will he found between 6 and 7 feet elevation from the earth. Before evening we heard that the Giantess was taken to the Police, and a person saw her stepping up the portal stairs of the Police Office, and a rowers from the fact vouched for by this faithful observer, who your that she only took two steps from the bottom to the top of the stairs! What a noble figure she would cut in a quadrille! We would sug gest that she should find employmen; with out fail as a Dawk tunner, if she would condescend to quit her cage for that pur pose

For the above, be it remembered, we do not vouch. We believe it all however-every word of it, and 'tis hard if our read-ers should not be equally complaisant.

To-day we are in possession of further information respecting the Giantess. We have it from a person who saw her. The cage turns out to have been one of the Galcutta Native Hackney Coaches, or Champugny's, as we believe they are phrased. She was sitting in this stately vehicle, exhibiting her charms to the surrounding spectators as a Giantess from the Eastward, equip to Calcutta on urgent private adairs. Her head, according to qui informant was immense.

It is an undubitable fact, that the Grantess was brought to the Police Office, a It naving come to the ears of one of the Gentlemen in the Commission, that a tremendous Grintess was philandering about the streets, he very naturally became alarmed for the public peace, and summoned herself and her conductor before him.

When the Grantess was brought into the Magistrate's presence, she was perfectly taciturn, and on being addressed in Hindoostance and Bengalce, shook her head to show her total and most grantic ignorance of that language. Her conductor now explained that she was a native of the Eastward, and came round to Calcutta in a Ship for her health; that she spoke w language, but a gigantic vernacular un known here, though spoken in some regio of the Bastern Archipelago. All this wastrange—passing strange. The Magistrate not quite convinced by what he had see and heard, still persisted in addressing th and heard, sun personne. Oh won Gigantic lady in Hindoostance. Oh won mous Grantess, who ten minutes before we quite dumb and ignorant of the language addressed to her, now opened forth thos hips, (one of which had been protangly liken ed to a horse's), and very quietly and sedately disclosed the whole of the hea —for hoax the affair seems to be, sav in the gigantic part, for the woman i really gigantic, -- and what is still more sur priging, has not been out of Calcusta for th last thirly years.

The plan for exhibiting herself was fostered by a Hakeem. This learned Theban and skilful Physician finding that the fees tender ed by his fair friend Glam lalea, were not so ample as could be wished from one of her ample character, proposed to his gentle patient that she should ruse the wind for herselt and him, by going about in a wheeled vehicle, holding by tongue at the same time, and leaving the rest to him. Accordingly they went then circuit yesterday as described, giving rise to all the strange things told of this second Princess CARATION, and thus abording mother instance of the guilibility of human nature The Magistrate permitted the Grantess, at ter this conference, to go about acr business, and what has since become of her and he. savacions medical friend we know not

In a preceding page is a letter from A Triviture," which we big leave to recommend to our radders as an amusing article if relates to some pretorial representations by native artists of the sege of Bhurtpore, the Burgos of the East. The Bhurtpore Painter, it seems included in some very high-wrought flourisms of his fancy ag well as his brush, and we can easily guess the state of temper with which a young British soldier must view such triupphant memorials of an event which the Bhurtporians have certainly some just gause to exult tor

Our Traveller, who is houself a mehtary man, might have resorted on the Bhurtpote Le Brun as the Lion is fabled to have glone on a man, when che former on coming to the market place of a city, beheld a work of sculpture containing the figure of a man trampling upon a vanquished Lion. The generous Monarch of the Forest contemplated the statues very ed the group differently.

We are much obliged to our Correspondent for his letter, and wish that others of our Military triends would favor us with sin ilar exceeds of what they may have seen in course of then travels. On perusal of the letter in question, one cannot but suspect that had Lord Lik Saheb and his army been captured, (it such a thing were possible) that their treatment would not have been of the most magnanimous order. Indeed it is to be feared, generosity to an enemy is not a prominent feature of the Asiauc character. There are too many examples of an opposite kind on record, and without going into the history of the reign of the Moguly, we need only mention HYDER Ally and Persoo, as men in the beight of peyer abusing the trust which Fortune gove them, by cruelly oppressing then captives Descending from these, we might appeal to repeated instances of gratuitous oppression on the part of Chokeydars, and such like, but to found an argument upon a sual aberrations from high and manly teeling in the two extremes of the body pohis, would be hardly fan, much less phi-Josephical

All things considered, we should rather be surprised at unding so much of real worth in the Native character generally, sustead of being shocked by the quantum of evil which it includes. It is consolatory to think that Butish influence has lessened that exil, and is daily lessening it very con-Signably This must strike the Natives themselves They cannot but compare then own side with that of their equals in other quarters - such as Oude for instance Without security of property and a sense of contain inherent rights, we hold it impossible that there can be civilization, or a social compact. It is to the want of these that Asia owes much of her comorality and crime, and it is by granting them, where her power extended, that Great Britain has tessened the amount of both.

In the distant frontier provinces, where British muu nee has hardly had time to be aufficiently evolved, a great deal of rudeness, ferocity and chicage remain to be softened down in the Native character. Indeed so narrow is the comprehension of the lower classes, as to the relative situation in which they stand to us that they look upon us with an eye of suspicion-and is it wonderful they should? What are we to expect from men ground down, debased and scattered in desolation by Mahratta and Pindarry tyranny but distrust? Accustomed only to the pain inflicted by the arm of power, they can hardly allow themselves to believe that permanent good can come from it. But they begin to halmiv, and merely observed, that had a find this the case; and as a proof of rereturning confidence, we might mention that villages are now daily springing up in ... places that had been laid waste by ruthless; Banditu, and agriculture resuming her peaceful reign, and spreading her blessings to the very verge of that boundary line bearing yond which the Bristish Egis yields no prog 🛠 tection.

It is true there is much, much to be yet? accomplished in these distant provinces; and it will be some time before an European can journey alone through them and the petty States in alliance with us, with perfect certainty of not being jusuited or as- " saulted,

It is with sentiments of profound regret a that we have to notice the death of Mr. G. FINLAYSON, Surgeon of H. M. 8th Dragoons, and well known as the able, scientific and most industrious Naturalist to the late Mission to Siam and Cochin China. Our cotemporary of the Hunkaru has the following observations relative to the source of the complaint which proved latal to him. " In an early part of that voyage he contracted the seeds of that disorder which have brought him to a premature grave, and the valuable botanical and zoological collections brought round by him from the late interesting Mission, bespeak his perseverance, diligence and industry in the important department entrusted to him by the Government. Attached to its duties, he made them his sole study, pursued themwith ardor, and, sacrificing every other consideration, has at length paid with his life for his zeal in the walks of science. Dr. Finlayson had served with his regiment pr the pennsular campaigns and in Kandy, and has left a wide circle of attached friends and correspondents to lament his loss. Amongst the latter were many of the most scientific men at home, and with Baron Humboldt and Mr. Davy, he was on peculiarly intimate terms. His valuable collection of Natural History, to which we have before alluded, is on its way home on the General Heactt, for the purpose of being deposited in the Museum of the Hon'ble Company in London

From our cotemporary John Bull wes have taken an extract which tology, iclative to the death of this estimable man on board the General Henett

Gifted by nature with talents of no common order, highly cultivated by a liberal education, and well ground in general information, he was one of those whose conversation was valu -. ble, and whose society was truly improving.

But with all this, he was remarkable for the modesty of his manners, the unassuming tone with which he delivered his opinions, and the amiable placidity of his general manners. EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE M. C. S.

GUNERAL HEWELT.

St. Helena, May 26, 1823.—We had a passage to the Cape of eight weeks (less one day), during the latter part of which we encountered three very heavy gales of wind, but have not suffered at all from them. Libelieve all the Ships that left Bengal be-fore us, have had very tedious passages and have suffered more or less, from the wame bad weather. We fell in with the Paget off the Cape, found the Marchioness of Ety in Table Bay, and several others were in Smoon's Bay. The Providence came into these Roads two days since, and has sailed these Roads two days since, and has sailed this evening. The Tarkins looked in, but did not anchor, 3 or 4 days since. The Elyssailed yesterday The Termagant Sloop of War to-day. The Duke of Bedford sails 40-morrow, ourselves the day following.

We had a passage of ten days from the Cane, and had a heavy rate of wind from Cape, and had a heavy gale of wind from the S. W. the day after we left Table Bay, with a most tremendous sea; it lasted about 24 hours; we lay to the greater part of the time. We have had two deaths since we left Bengal; our Baker, who died from a Large abscess in his liver, and had been a sad drunken fellow, and Dr. Finlayson of H. M. 8th Dragoons, who is a great loss to his profession, and science in general. He came on board with every symptom of confirmed pulmonary consumption, but his death was accelerated, (altho' his case appeared before utterly hopeless, by one of the gales we encountered, in which a heay sea broke into his Cabin during the night; the sudden alarm which this event naturally excited, was too much for his weak frame, another blood-vessel gave way in his lungs, a fresh hermorrhage was the consequence, and he died in the course of the following night. Before you receive this, you will most probably have learned, that our worthy and excellent Commander is no more; he died on the 29th April, only four days before we arrived at the Cape. The Marchoness of Elg got into Table Bay 2 or 3 days before, and Captain Kay saw him more than oneo before he died, a melancholy satisfaction which was denied to us, as well as that of paying the last and duties to his remains; lie Mails, and Banghys, Travellers in Palan-for he was interred two days before our ar-teens, &c. &c. who otherwise must have rival. Captain Kay and the officers of his ship, and a number of the residents of Cape Town followed him to the Grave; every possible respect was shewn on the occasion, all the ships in the Harboar hoisted their colors half-mast, and the Ely fired minute guns from the time the corpse left the house until it reached the place of interment. You will not think me tedious by all this; there is a feeling of consolation, melancholy as it is, in dwelling on circumstances which serve to shew in a disinterested point of view, the feelings of the survivors, and their sense of departed worth. It is a relief to one's sorrow, for I cannot conceal, that this sad event has affected me sensibly. Death has been of late years very busy with those I have loved and esteemed, and I now find myself deprived, for ever, of another of my kindast, warmest, and best friends,"

THE HONORABLE MR. ADAM.

A public demonstration of respect is, we are glad to observe, about to be paid to the Hon'ble JOHN ADAM, Esq. A meeting will take place on Saturday next at the Town Hall to consider the most appropriate mode of testifying the high estimation in which he is held. - Some of his friends propose a splendid piece of plate, with a suitable inscription, and others a full length Portrait to be placed in the Town Hall.

Such honorary tributes as these, may be considered as pledges of the continued existence in India of superior intellectual merit; and so long as we can boast of men, who possess, and have exercised faculties of extraordinary vigor and usefulness, so long we trust will be found an admiring society to afford a public tribute to emment worth, We know of no better stimulus to meritorious exection, and to unweated efforts in the service of the State, than the honors that are successively paid to individuals of great agquirement,-to public nien who have acted wisely and well.

THE POST-MASTER GENERAL'S PORTABLE RUS-TIC BRIDGE OF TENSION AND SUSPENSION.

Of this unique structure the public have heard but little, since it so suddenly disappeared m toto from our view on the Esplanade in May last. We have therefore had much pleasure in learning that, under the auspices of Government, it was shortly af-ter thrown over the Berai Nullah, about 80 miles from Calcutta on the great Bennies Road, and has been in full use ever since the setting in of the Rains, to the accommodation of thousands of people, Cattle with Merchandize, light Hackeries, a detach-ment of Native Troops, which in passing nearly covered the whole surface, the Pubbeen pulled over this dangerous torrent on fragile floats, often fatal to poor people. [t is the opinion of several officers, Engineers and others, who have passed over the Bridge where it now stands, that it is quite equal to the weight of a field-piece with its carriage, &c.

We have been favored with the perusal of a letter from an experienced officer, from which we are permitted to quote the following very interesting passages.—

I reached the Berai Nullah about 11 A. M. 19th July, when the torrent was rushing down with great violence, so as to preclude the possibility of crossing it by boats, or rafts of any description. I of course obtained a secure passage across this dangerous stream over the Rope Budge.

The appearance of the Bridge is very beautiful, being surrounded with trees and jungle, and I was surprized to find that notwithstanding so many thousand people and cattle having crossed it, that the centre of the Bridge is still higher than the approach at other side, and the tread-way appears to form a segment of an ellipse.

The Budge appears very strong and solid, and here is hitle motion perceivable when crossing it, it is raised very considerably above the surface of the water, which is a judicious arrangement, as was evident to me, for when standing on the center of the Bridge looking at the orrentrolling beneath nie, a large tree which appeared to have been torn from its roots, was seen floating down the stream and rolled very majestically beneath the Bridge.

"The Bridge appears in every way most perfectly to answer the purpose for which it was intended, and by being adopted would be a someo of the greatest convenience, rately and comfort to every traveller whose rous Hill Torrents on the Road to Benares, India.

An Official Report of the 1st Instant, which we have seen from the Gentleman in charge of the Bridge, says :-

" Since my last report regarding the the Budge. Trees of enomious size, with all their branches have been brought down by the torrent which have passed under the B idge without the slightest accident; -in a word, expectation must now be fully realized, as we shall not have the Nullah ligher than it has been; but it we had, I should not in the least be afraid of any accident whatever.

To the foregoing satisfactory encomiums on the practical stubility and simplicity of this very ingenious Bridge, we have to add that it was transported to its present posttion on a few common Hackeries, and set up at once with case and despatch by the Native Carpenter who had constructed the wood work, accompanied by a few Callassies, and the Model.

It has neither pierhead nor abutment, and... the general section of the Nullah has been taken. The span of the arch is 160 feet clear, by 91 wide--which dimensions it is a said exceed those of the Kally Ghaut Iron Chain Budge, by 20 feet in length and one in width. The main transom rollers, or points of Suspension, which connect with the acts. ting up power, are only raised six feet from _ the ground.

The four light Piles connected with them. rise about 20 feet, to these, friction sheaven are morticed outside for the radiating gays" strands, whereby the road-way is kept in equilibrio.

The whole weight in suspension is somewhere about 6,000 lbs.

TO THE EDIFOR OF THE INDIA GAZETEE.

SIR,—Should you during the present in-torval, when you seem not overbuidened. with very late European news, be able to find a spare corner in your much esteemed. paper for the insertion of a currous spectacle, which I witnessed some tew months since when marching from Muttia to Nusscerabad, it is very much at your service and disposal.—"Bhuitpore" I must beg to cell to your recollection is a word, whose very mention acts as a talisman in every, soldiers' heart: with it are connected feelings, and recollections only bearable, bedestination mightlead him across the name- cause they lead to the hope-nay, the conviction, that the time mu t come, and shortas well as on many other routes throughout 'ly too, 'tis to be hoped, when

But to proceed-I halted the first day at a village, whose name has just now escaped my recollection, some 15 nules from Muttra, and in the evening anxious to stretch my legs, and at Bridge, we have had the Berai Nullah full the same time, let nothing currous in that for days together, and much higher than little traversed part of India escape my usual; still nothing has happened to migre notice. I sallied from my tent accompanied by a file ad, and as we were not more than a stones throw from the Bhurpore territory, (thro' which we were to proceed the fol-lowing morning) bent our steps in that direction. We had not advanced for when we came to an extensive garden, surrounded by a pretty high wall, situated not more than half a mile, or so, from the high road, meaning by the bye a somewhat beaten track

appeared covered; as we were feasting our ye-sight with this precious sample of the excellence of the arts in the East, a native fully equipped, and sword in hand, unably Bhurtpore, by whom, for the salvation of her en our darkness, with regard to the figures and fables represented on the wall, for which purpose, he 'added, he had been stationed there.—We gladly availed ourselves of his offer, and accompanied him down one tace of the garden wall, as in duty bound listening to his crudite explanation of the stories pourtrayed on it, and expressing our thanks for the information he conveyed to us.—So far, so good: we began to have a good opinion of the Bhuitporeans, and really felt the civility of our guide, so much so indeed, that we were regretting the foolish custom of not carrying purses in India, and forming projects for remunerating him in some way or other. However, to continue my narration-the figures on the second face were on quite a different subject—at the commencement was the battle of Bhurtpore, which I can assure you is not forgotien in those parts, but on the contrary nolens rolens thrown in buge potations, doubtless with the very provident intention of keeping up, or wetting their courage. The Bhurtpore artillery appeared nobly served, and European heads, were to be seen flying in every di-nection, but still the arm and brandy bottle remained, and even the headless trunks strove to imhibe some of the precious liand General Marshall Saheb were there in all their gloss, and were frequently pointed out to us by our intelligent guide in the true." Walk in Gemmen and Ladies" stile.

The battle was of course followed up by the defeat, and sure no Welsh goats could have scampered away in half the stile our troops did, with Lord Lik and General Marshall Sahebs still at their head. -We laughed hearth, and could not conceal our amusement at this unique scene; it certainly delighted us highly, but notwith-standing, our excessive good humour evinced by repeated bursts of laughter, I could not help observing that a degree of anxiety was apparent on the countenance of our guide, who evidently as we proceeded skewed an inclination to yield his prece-logy, with which the walls of the garden dence in the line of march, 'till gradually he dropped quite astern,—the cause was soon apparent—he had been too prolix in his explanation of the remainder, and had accordingly felt the weight of some sturdy bounded from the top of the wall just above Englishman's arm, that was evident: acour heads, and courteously informed us cordingly as we left the "Battle" behind, and that he was a servant of the Rance of came towards the close of the "Betrest." same time proffered his services to enlight. Buc my narrative. - Rejoicings of all sorts with a grand display of fire-works naturally followed such a glorious victory, and to make it more striking, the presence of the Raja was indispensable; accordingly the worthy and magnanimous prince makes his appearance in his palankeen, borne by Europeans, and what is more, I blush to think the dog should live, by European officers, and what is more still an attempt at a representation of aglets made them appear very much like General Officers indeed we functed that the two bangywallas behind looked much like the very Lord Lik and General Marshall Sahebs, who had already cut so conspicuous a figure. The sight acted upon us, as if by magic-purses and remunerations flew into boundless air, and swords, daggers, and pistols took their places in our imaginations—our fists insensibly closed, and we internally prayed that no mention might be made of this detesbut on the contrary nolens rolens thrown in table production, for we should have been our teeth, as often as possible. The Eurobound in honor to have murdered the peans are represented advancing most gal-poor devil; but there was little fear of lantly to the attack, in one hand their that,—the fellow, I am sure placed great swords waving in the air, in the other as dependence on his swiftness of foot like the bottle, at which, they ever and anon took " wodas wros Arindas," or he would scarcely have remained so long; as it was, he took up a most masterly position for a piecipitate retreat, but, as he was silent, we did not consider ourselves called on to become active avengers of the insult, and the unfortunate fellow continued with us unharmed, but without quor, the can de medicinale, the balsam of yet after all, what barm had he done? We life. It was a grand sight—Lord Lik Saheb were certainly unjust towards him, and I the slightest chance of fee or feward-and were certainly unjust towards him, and I have come to a determination of looking in on him the next time I pass that place. -This, Mr. Editor, appears to me a very fair sample of the native character—what a display of magnanimiy, and greatness of mind does their treatment of the supposed captured evince? What childish vauntings of their victory, if that expression can be applied to our failure at Bhurtporc, where the Raja was obliged to sue for peace in the most abject terms, and it was high time, or the destruction of Hatrass would have fallen on his fam'd fort—this he full well knew, and I believe the greater part of his Sirdars are now pretty well impressed with the conviction, that the seventh day after the opening of their batteries would see the a connexion from which they had antici-British colors waveing o'er its citadel.

> I am, Sir, Your's obediently, A TRAVELLER.

Barrackpore, August 5, 1823.

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

SIR, - Amo g the requisites necessary to form a Candid Critic on the DRAMA, impartrality justly holds a very prominent place. This is a qualification which cannot be dispensed with in one who voluntarily and de-inberately undertakes to convey to the public, through the medium of the press, his opimons on theatrical representations, and to discuss the merits of the several performers engaged in them. But so little disposed are the critics of the present day to indulge in liberal teelings, that, instead of being candid and impartial, we not unfrequently meet with strong symptoms, in their writings, of a spirit of ill nature and detraction, untavorable to the development of talent, and destructive of that laudable emulation in Debutants, which a liberal minded Critic would be among the foremost to foster and encourage, rather than, by untimely severity, contribute to "nip their prospects in the bud," and thus become instrumental in depriving society of a species of entertainment at once rational, improving, and gratifying in the highest degree.

These observations derive additionals force when applied to criticisms on the pertormances of juvenile Amateurs and Candidates for public favor. In such case, a generous Critic would be solicitous to embrace every opening of which he could avail himself, to stimulate their exertions, by notiong those passages in which they excelled, in terms of commendation, overlooking minor inaccuracies with indulgence, and pointing out glaring defects with good nature; -but he would at the same time avoid all offensive expressions, harsh censures, and personal reflections, as tending only to wound, and to repress energies which, if properly encouraged and directed, might be capable, in time, of surmounting the thous and difficulties with which the inexperienced Amateur has to contend at the commencement of his career.

It is much to be lamented, that this amicable course was not adopted by the writers of the strictures on the representation of the Farces of Raising the Wind, and How to die for Love at the private Little Theatre. in Pollock Street, in the past week, -and that on the contrary, so little delicacy should have been observed towards two or three of the Amateurs, in the language employed in commenting upon their performances, as to compel them, I understand, to dissolve pated many an agreeable hour to them-selves, and a fund of amusement to their friends and supporters. I must, here, however, except the few Editorial observations. which appeared in the Hurkaru. - They written in a strain of caudour and in the tiality worthy of mutation.

Your Correspondent " An East Indian! in particular seems to have viewed thing with a distorted eye, and to have taken perverse delight in running down by fact. one of the best supported parts in the Fare ot Raising the Wind, -I nican Jaxamy, Diddler. There was an ar of ease and suppose ance in the whole deportment of the representative of this character, which identified him most completely with the eccentric being he personated. He was in excellent costume, -and if looks and manners could indicate the needs, adventurer who mosted to chance for a meal, and was ever on the watch to make the ignorant and unwary his pier, Jerry was every thing that could be desired .- He entered into the spirit of his part with a degree of judgment and promptitude really surprising in 50 young a Debutant, and sustained it throughout with considerable ammation and . flect. Such. at least, was the general impression; and when to this fact is opposed the solitary opinion of "An East Indian," all I can say. is, that the heavy odds against him do not speak much in fivor of either his judgment, or the impatiality of his criticism.-I do not by any means intend to issert that there were no percepable blemishes in the acting of the young gentleman, who personated Jeremy Diddler, but simply this, that where there was so much to approve, and so little to condemn, it must be something more than fastidiousness to rake up defects. for no other purpose apparently than that of unding fault

Sam was played with considerable humour, and deserved and enjoyed the reiterated plaudits of the audience, but the peculiar accent of a Yorkshire man, which gives interest to, and makes this character so great a favorite on the Stage, - was unhappily wanting, and formed the only drawback to the complete success of the Amateur who represented it.

Fainu on'd was decently supported. The part of Plainuag in the Play is upon the whole so tame, as to afford little scope for comment or observation. It was respectably anatumed, but wanted animation.

Mus Laurena Darable was in excellent hands. Considering the difficulty of assuming a feminine voice, the representative of this part was happy in the modulated pitch (a cracked treble) chosen by him, which he preserved to the last with unvarying steadiness. Some of his speeches were delivered with considerable effect, and the lisping, drawling tone with which they were attered, accompraint eccasional's

As we had anticipated, the Theatire if Campaign opened on Friday evening list with uncommon spirit. We cannot say if it the dramatic entertainments of the maht were such as were desirable to grace the occasion-but as they were not chosen for the occasion, they should be the more indulgently considered. It is inconcervable to persons who are not aware of what passes behind the curt in, with whit diffi culty any dramatic entertainment is to be not up at Chowin glice, much less the best Hundreds of little but vexations obstituetions are in the way. Sometimes an Amateur niter having taken a part, cannot command his own time, or sickness may intervene, or he may change his mind. Some-times soft love is wayward -sometimes courage fails- in short a host of little causes, that sometimes look like impracticabilities stand between the casting and the acting of a play-so that the public can hardly make sure of having one at all until it be netually advertised in the prints of Calcutta, MImmediately upon our present worthy it anger's assuming the duties of his office, was determined to re-open the Theatre With the least possible delay Undoubtedly ome brilliant and popular Comedy would have been fixed upon had there been at the time a sufficient number of Amateurs ready to undertake the parts, but as there were not, the two little things of "The Water-man" and "Monsieur Tonson" were cast the one possessing the claim of an old favorite, and the other having the attraction of novelty. All the avenues to the Theatre were crouded at an early hour, and even long before the gate was opened a line of carriages extended to a considerable distance When the doors were opened there was a rush for places, and in the course of about twelve minutes the house overflowed in every direction. It was certainly one of the fullest houses we recollect having ever seen, and so densely compact was the multitude, that it was impossible in a short time to get even standing room, and several persons went away for want of seats. The heat was very great, and in the pit, which was literally crammed, must have been almost unsupportable. We should be deceiving our readers if we were to insinuate that such a vast assemblage was collected together solely from a love for the Drama. It was understood that the Right Honorable the Governor General and his family would visit the Theatre, and hundreds accordingly went to see the illustrious strangers, and to welcome them with a truly British warmth.

The boxes presented a most imposing and brilliant spectacle of beauty and fashion, and there was an expectant hush and a sultry calm relieved only by the pictum sque waving of fans and handkerchiefs in every ducction. From this calm there was a start of reaction when the frumpets without announced the arrival of the noble party; and the moment the Right Honorable the Go-VERNOR GENERAL, the Lady Americand the Honorable Miss Amherse appeared in progress to the State Box, there was a burst have had in his eye when he wrote the of enthusiastic welcome from every quarter of the house, and a continuous peal of applause which lasted for some minutes. The Orchestia instantly struck up God save the King, after which the curtain rose, and the Manager walked forward to the lamps. The appearance of this respected veteran of our Drury in any character, is sure to call forth the plaudits of the audience. On this occasion he appeared in a new character, which the public voice had expressed its anxiety that he should fill; and when he actually appeared on the boards as the MANAGER of a Theatre, for whose very existence great fears had been enterthat his reception was most lendly plausive and no less worthy of himself than if an audience he had so often delighted by his lare and various talents. As soon as si-lence ensued, he recited an appropriate address, in which there were several happy hits relative to the occasion; and when he arrived at what was supposed to be the conclusion, he appealed to something else which instantly came home with an electricaforce to the feelings of the house-when he waved his hand, at which the drop scene suddenly rose, and displayed the whole Histrionic Corps, Managers, Amateurs, and all, drawn up on each side before a most beautiful transparency. emblematical of welcome to the distinguishad party in the state box. This transparency represented an atched way wreathed and surmounted with havel and flowers, and through which was been the sereno green sea and H M S Juriton at anchor. Above the ship a coronet hung, and emblazoned aloft stood the word Wilcomi, in golden characters. The whole was a most happy idea, and called footh thund is of applause. The Coips Diamatique now sung the national anthem, the authome standing respectfully as is usual. After the conclusion of this ceremonial, there was a tedious interval before the curtain rose again to admit of the commencement of the evening's dramatic business. On two such productions as "The Walerman" and "Monsieur Tonson," the Critic cau find but little to say at any time, but when both are extremely well got through, there is still less ground for remark. . The Waterman' is justly an old tavorite on the English stage, because it blends Enghish melody and English manners pleasantly throughout. Bundle was in the best hands, and excellently pourtrayed the good-natured but henpecked gardener. His serene tempered spouse was most admirably me presented by a tan performer, who thus, we believe, made only her second appearance on the boards of Chowringhee. She was the very character that Dilbin must pieco-the veriest snapdragon little Xantippe that ever plagued a poor rural asparagus raising Socrates. She sustained all the energy and nature of the part with most excellent keeping, and quite surprised us by a display of powers which we were not aware she was possessed of In her Mis Malaprop-like blunders of language, she was very happy, and uttered her solecisms with an earnest gravity which is the surest way of making them laughable. Both as an actress and a vocalist, she acquitted herself exceedingly well to the Airseparticularly in

> ' My counsel take Or else I'll make The house too hot to hold you."

"which was encored.—In the last line,

'Oh! I could tear your eyes out,' the action was so well suited to the word, and both so true to nature, that we felt some apprehensions for the poor Gardener, which were not relieved until Mrs. Bundle hundled herself out of the room. If the foir representative of the vixenish Mrs. Bundle should bring similar excellence into Morblieu was by the Ferment of a former Wilelming was not the very happiest play, and was one of the most complete and masterly performances we have witnessed on any stage. He so perfectly identified himself with the old Frenchman, that we never should have known him, had we not been aware of the circumstance. He was capitally dressed and accounted altogether, and there was great ment in the art and tact with which the old gentleman was blended with the poor Barber. Madam Bellegarde was in favorite hands, and went Adolphine was by the Wilelmina of the first piece, and was very excellently and grace-fully performed. Tom King was by Bun-dle, and was personated with the usual fesupported. The heaviest scenes were those between Rusty and Mr. Thomson. The very life of the piece was Morbheu, who called forth continual applause. The minuet between him and Madame Bellegarde in the first act caused much merriment, and as his terror of disturbance from Monsieur Tonson grew more and more intense until it almost amounted to phrensy, the spectator could not but feel for him at every fresh Mr. Thomson. When he got angry, the struggle between his natural politeness and his keen sense of being wantonly annoyed, was very fine. We also much admired his bye play and his grumbling while descending from his garret to open the door. His tumble down fright when the blunderbuss was by a blunder of the watchman fired at him was excellent, as was his start of terior while eating his beefsteak at the inn when his companion calls for Thomson's Seasons. The idea is far-fetched enough, but is excusable in a farce. But i. was in his paroxysm of rapture, when he thought Monsicur Tonson dead that he was very great, and his delight appeared in his capers, which gradually slided into a pay soul, and that into n pas de dieux when Madame Bel legarde joined him. Then nothing could be more broadly ludicrovs than the momentary disappearance of the queer pair into the house, and their sudden appearance again as they bounced out waltzing at the door.

The scenery was ve y good, especially the inside of Morbheu's lodgings, the furniture and garnishments of which were quite appropriate, not even forgetting the frogs that hung ready to be tricasseed on one side.

The audience was one of the best hu-moured we could wish to see.

We were glad to observe chairs gaining ground in the boxes. They are by far the most comfortable seats, when they do not, in consequence of softened paint or various, stick to one, as some of those on Finday did. We sum up these cursors remarks with a hope, that we may soon be called upon by another Play to resume our than the words of the different speakers. Nothing could exceed the harmony of the

In consequence of the Requisition which follows, there was a Public Meeting held in the Town Hall on Saturday forenoon.

To the Editor of the Government Gazette.

Sir.—I have to request that you will give publicity to the accompanying Requisition, calling upon me to convene a Meeting of the British Inhabitants of Calcutta, for the purpose therein mentioned. The Meeting will be held at the Town Hall, on Saturday, the 9th instant, at ten o'clock in the foremore.

I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient servant,

We the Undersigned request that you will convene a Meeting of the British Inhabitants of Calcutta, for the purpose of considering the best means of paying some sutable mark of Public Respect and Attachment to the Honorable John Adam, on the occasion of his retirement from the Office of Governor General.

We know not who took particular charge of the Requisition paper, but we know there are many in Calcutta who would have been happy to put their signatures to it, if it had reached them. Considering the shortness of the notice, we were surprised to find the meeting a very full one. There could not, meeting a very full oncwe imagine, be less than three hundred genthemen present, and among them were some of the first respectability and weight in society. We regiet our mability by a copious report to do justice to the eloquent and appropriate language in which the diswished to do honor, was justly culogised. All we can do is, to give an imperfect preers of the proceedings, and the sense more than the words of the different speakers. Nothing could exceed the harmony of the assembly, and if there was any difference of opimon, it was not as to the ments of the fate Governor General but respecting the most belitting mode of duly commemorating them. The Sheriff having read the requisition Mr. R. C. Fergusson was called to the Chan by acclamation.

Mr Firgusson opened the proceedings of the meeting by stating that the object they had in view required tew words from him. They were not called together to enter into particular discussion, nor was it his intention to go into debate. They were assembled to consider the best mode by which they could testify their respect for A. ADAM. The power of that person had not ceased—they were not at the close of his public eareer, and the event of his ceasing to be Governor General of India, was not the cause but the occasion, of their meeting.

Mr. Adam having passed his whole life among the inhabitants of Calcutta, no persons could be better judges of his merit than they were. His able conduct had increased the prosperity of the Empire, and added to the happiness of the millions over tedium of debate, but longed for the whom the British held sway in the East. In every situation, in short, in which he had been, he had conscientiously discharged his public duties. He (Mr. F.) enjoyed the friendship of that person, and one so singularly beloved there could not be. His kind easy manners, his amiable disposition. and his excellent understanding, created attachment and respect, and the soundness of his judgement and his acknowledged talents could be surpassed by nothing but the purity of his character and the solidity of his worth. (Here there was a burst of unanimous applause)

Mr. Fragusson resumed by saying, that he would not detain them longer-their object was not debate, but to shew respect to Mr. ADIM, and the mere simple the expression of their attachment was, the better. Respecting the most appropriate mark of esteem, there might be perhaps some difference of opinion. For his own part he more in detail. Mr. Hogg, in terms which considered a full length portrait of Mr. were echoed by the applicate of all who Adam, to be put up in some public and heald him, touched upon the private charconspicuous place, the most appropriate, acter of the respected individual who was It would remain among the inhab ants of the subject of his address, and declared Calcutta a lasting testimony of their respeet and admiration. Resolved

1st. That it is the opinion of this meeting that some public and permanent testimony of the high respect and esteem entertained, dress, by expressing his full and complete by the British Inhabitants of Calcutta for approval of the Resolution for the Porliait, the public character, and talents, and pri- since any other to vate vitues of the Hon'ble John Adam, ing and transitory. late Governor General of India

2d. That m order to carry into effect the preceding resolution in the most suitable manner, a Committee be appointed to wast upon Mr Anxw. and request that he will be pleased to sit for a full length Portrail, to be placed in some conspicuous situation as a permanent memorial of bispublic services and private worth. (Great applance)

Mr. Hose stood up to second, and not to support, the resolutions of his hind Mr. F. for he was conscious they required no support from him, even had he the ability io add in any way to what had been soocloquently goted from the chair. He would therefore the simply, that the Resolutions be passed as incorporating the feeling of the Inhabitants of Calcutta. Indeed he was conscious that they would be passed, and that by acciamation without debatefor that was no occasion for debate.

They were called upon to shew a mark of respect to a man of sterling talent, unsuakintegrity, and boundless benevolenceand at such a call he could not brook the but from a conviction that it was the most warmth of acclamation. (great applause.)

Sure he was that Mr. ADIM must value such a tribute of respect from his admiring Countrymen. Let if therefore be resolved on at once, for the tribute should be quickly paid when so justly merited. They would thus testify their feelings of attachment to one who was truly a great and a good man. Of Mr ADAN it night be said, that he had not merely passed through all the gradations of the service, discharging the duties of his situation ably and ho-norably, but that his talents continued enlarging with the enlarged sphere, in which he acted, until at last he had been called to administer the Government of this Country He depreciated Should Mr. ADIM any detail at that time at a future period be called away from amongst them, they would no doubt come together again, to record their opinions more in detail. Mr Hoos, in terms which that ever since his airival in this country he had heard his name associated with ged leave to propose the following Resolutions -- and good To that effect his friend the President of the meeting, had already eloquently testified, and the testimony of few would go further than his. He concluded his extremely effective and animated adsince any other testimony would be fleet-

Mr. LARKINS entirely concurred in the observations of the President, and in the spirit of those resolutions which he had so eloquently introduced. Their Chairman having abstaued from entering particularly into the public acts and administration of Mi. Adam, he would tollow his example, not only from a sense of its strict propriety, but from his utter mability to do justice to such a subject. With respect to a tribute of their respect for Mr ADAM, he did not consider a pie ure the hest, he would therefore propose a service of plate. He was well aware, that such an offering would neur considerable expense, but sure he was, that expense on such an occasion would not be a moment's consideration. He therefore trusted, that his proposal would be accepted as an amendment, and carried.

Mr. Fragusson explained, that all idea of expense was entirely out of the question,when a Portrait was proposed, it was from no considerations whatever of expense, appropriate, pleasing and permanent tribute they could pay to Mr. Adam. He would with pleasure put Mr. Larkins's amendment but it was necessary that Mr. Larkins should hand in a specific motion upon the subject to the chair.

Mr. Larkins then formally proposed the following amendment, which was read from the chair:

That in order to carry into effect the preceding resolution in the most suitable, manner a Committee be appointed to wait upon Mr. ADAM, and request that he will be pleased to accept a service of Plate as a memorial of the respect and veneration in which his character is held by the Inhabitants of India.

Mr. McCLINTOCK seconded the amend-

Mr Pilmer proposed that the meeting should pass a resolution both for the Portial and the service of Plate. The latter to remain as a record of the inhabitants of Calcutta to Mr. ADAM, and the picture as a record of him with them.

This amendment of Mr. Palmer's was received with much applause, and seconded by Mr. Trevor Plowden.

Mr Lyrkins withdrew his amendment on condition that Mr. PALMER'S be adopted.

Mr. B MARTIN certainly deemed a Portial by far the best testimony of respect they could pay to Mr. Adam. There were many objections against the service of Plate, and he would merely remind them that the sanction of the Court of Directors must be solutioned before Mr. Adam could accept of it. The other tribule was in every respect the purest, and it would identify the memory of Mr. Adam's services with surrounding monuments of usefulness and worth.

Mr Partle was of the same opinion.

The Rev D. CORRIE was anxious that Mi Anim should accept the service of Plate. He could not but wish therefore that they would put the question to the vote.

Mr. LARKINS had only withdrawn his amendment conditionally, he would therefore urge it again, if Mr. Palmer dropped his,

Mr. Palmer after what he had heard would not press his amendent.

Mr. HOLF MACKENZIL said that when Mr. PAIMER best put his motion, he certainly concurred with him, but since he had heard Mr. Marin's arguments, he had reconsidered the matter, and his sentiments were changed. There was not a doubt but a picture was the purest and most appropriate memorial. He could wish that Mr. Fragusson's words, if it were possible, could be conveyed to posterity, and a portrait of Mr. Adam would be the best supplement to Mr. Fergusson's speech for who could look at such a portrait without discovering in the mild features of a countenance so expressive of benigmty of character a confirmation of Mr. Firgusson's words

Mr Adam was still in a high situation heig, and a memorial that had the faintest remunerative character was objectionable. He was sure that it would be far more agreeable to Mr. ADAM's feelings that such a proposal should not be carried further.

Mr. Abay required no such monument as a service of Plate, to prouder monuments ho could appeal in his signal and mentorious services. If such a proposal were unred, it would deter many, he was convinced, from joining in testifying their respect to Wi A.'s character in that manner, but the other mode would be approved of by all For the Portrait there would not be a dissenting voice in Calcutta, or even in Mr. McCiln-TOCK's words in India.

The original Resolutions were then put to the vote and carried by a vast majority.

The Reverend D. Corrie again expressed his wish that the proposal for giving the service of Plate should be put to the vote.

The Reverend Dr. Bayer expressed his reluctance at addressing the meeting, but he confessed that he thought the meeting was taken by surprise. It was his intention tostake up Mr. Put Mr. 8 motion, and make it his own. He might stand in a minority. He cordially agreed in the proposal for the Portrait, but he thought it would be grateful to one of Mr. Adam's generous feelings to shew to his children a mark of the respect in which he was held by the inhabitants of India. Dr. Bryce concluded by taking up Mr. Palmir's motion.

The Rev D. Corrie seconded it

Mr. MARTIN reiterated his objections, and proposed that the further consideration of the resolution be postponed.

Mi. Flagusson explained, and protested against its being supposed, that those who would not vote for Dr. Brevel's motion could be swayed by any teelings, but those of deep respection Mi. Adam. Di. Brevel's amendment was then put we believe, but the majority of the meeting were against it. There was some desultory conversation after this, but the original Resolutions appeared finally to satisfy all parties. Indeed, both had only evinced a generous stringgle to do honor to Mr. Adam's character. Thanks were voted to the Sherift for the kind readiness with which he had attended to the requisition

MI. PAITIE voted thanks to the Chair. This was seconded by Mr. MARTIN, after which the meeting dispersed

The Committee, composed of the original Requisi ionists, are, we believe, to wait this day upon Mi. Advin, to communicate to him the resolutions of the meeting of the Inhabitants of Calcutta.

We have just heard of two measures, lately adopted by this Government, which we are sure our readers will rejoice to hearn. The one is the Establishment of a General Committee of Public Instruction, which is, we understand, not only to direct its labors to the extension and improvement of existing Institutions, but is also nathorized gradually to introduce European Arts and Sciences, and has at its disposal Funds for the purpose.

This arrangement cannot fail to bring to the recollection of our readers, the feeling and paternal speech of our late respected Governor Grasal, on the occasion of his Visitorial Address to the College Students. The pledge there given that "the attention of the Governor Graeral in Council's sedulously directed to the important subject of public instruction," has been amply redeemed, and redeemed in just such a manner as might be expected from the remainder of the address from which we have taken the above extract, and which we imagine defines, the wise and wholesome principles on which the work of improvement is to be conducted.

What man, who is at all alive to the feelings of humanity, but must rejoice from the inmost recesses of his heart at this practical effort at the diffusion of knowledge and moral cultivation of mind, joined with pate nal attention to the social comforts of his fellow-men? The other measure to which we have referred, is the appropriation of the whole of the Town Duties throughout the Country to the purposes fir t of loed, and afterward's of general improvement. The lands derived from the Town Daties are to be placed under the controll of Committees to be appointed at the several Towns and Cities, with very full powers to devote them to works conducive to the health and comfort of the people--such as opening new streets, making new roads, paying and widening old ones, clearing large and unwholesome tanks, filling up stagnant pools, &c. These improvements are in the instance to be chally confined to the City of Town in which the duties are collected, but ase the most urgent and necessary desiderata are Completed, the Committees are authorised to extend the benefit of this most noble boon to parts adjacent, even eventually to the extent of the province.

lus which will be thus given to the successful efforts, which have already been made to add, not only to the health and beauty of the City, but even to the minor comforts of its inhabitants. Much as has been done, this additional aid, in the hands of the active and able individuals who have hitherto so judiciously disposed of the funds derived from the Lottery, cannot fail to be felt, and we have no doubt but the effects will be shortly seen.

The extension of the plan adopted in Calcutta, as far as relates to the Committee, throughout the whole of the Territory, at once gives to the Motus II public the advantages of local improvement which have hitherto been confined to Calcutta. The means of defraying the expences of these improvements, too, are those best calculated to answer the purpose; for it is clearly evident that as the means of communication become improved, the inland commerce must increase, independently of the natural stimulus which is every where given to it as the comforts of the inhabitants are multiplied. We cannot in this place even allude to the one hundredth part of the advantages which press upon our minds. and which must inevitably take place on any given spot; but when we contemplate the vast extent of country over which these projects are simultaneously and simply to act, shedding the blessings of moral im-provement, political and social comfort over millions, we are lost in admiration at the simplicity with which so much good is to be effected, and are ready to exclaim "happy are the people that have such a Govern-ment."

The combination of these simultaneous improvements mutually increases the intrinsic value of each. Mere worldly comfort and property, without a mind property disposed to appreciate them, scarcely reach beyond animal enjoyment—and the Government which thus studies to combine the two, at the same time that it secures to the people the means of comfort and happiness within themselves, evinces a desire to obtain the affection and regard of its subjects on the most secure and praise-worthy grounds.

No human eye can foresee the full extent of the advantages which the above two projects united are calculated to produce. If we write warmly, we feel so; but we feel that we have not done justice to our feelings, not do we think, that any one who, for a moment, considers the prospects here held out, can abstain from joining with us in a grateful acknowledgment to that Government, which has evinced such a disposition to foster and protect the millions committed to their charge,

All the mention made of this highly interesting race in history, would lead us 10 imagine that they have ever been what they still continue, wild mountaineers will very loose ideas of the laws "of Meum and Tuum." Either from their insignificance, or sturdy valor, the rulers of India were never able to make any impression on them, not. withstanding their vicinity to the occasional residence for a long period of the Emperors of Hindoostan

In later times the Mhurs have been the terror of their lowlind n ighbours, and even the Rippoots, perhaps, with the sole exception of the Robillia, the bravest men in India, trembled at their approach. In appearance, the Whair for exceeds in mus culm strength any other class of na ives of India it has been my good or ill fortune to fall in with, hardy, active, contage ous, and brive to excess, hand to hand he fears nothing, man and beast are his natural foes, and on them he preys. The favourable rece tion which you of the Mhairs, I have been unable to the neighbouring people or of Hindoos generally, and I believe they make no objection to receive food from the hands of Eu-10 caus, but they still have some prejudices on the subject, which perhaps would induce the expression "low cast Hindon' to be applied to them. They do not hesitate in expressing the contempt they ontest in for even the highest cast Bramins. or Rajpoots, and in fact generally for all natives distinct from themselves. A people of such predatory habits as this will not n tur dly be fond of agriculture, or at any rate will not make it a favorite pursuit; trey have the some cultivated ground on the table lands on the top of the mountains, and the vallies appear highly susceptible of cultivation, having a fine soil and abundance of water. Their habits and customs would lead a traveller to conclude them not ing more or less than "Bhecle," but it is r ther a surprising fact, that that appullation is among them the greatest insult that can be offered. Such a sugma thrown on the most interior among them is only to be wiped away by the blood of the offender.

Tur country of the Whairs, a common obs rver would pronounce in penetrable, and so it certainly would be to any thing but Furopean valor, from what I myself have seen, I shald almost be inclined to say that impossibilities are to be surmounted to ell at an entrance into the heart of it. - Is inhabitant reside in the deepest jung es on the summits chicky of their almost maccessible mountains—then towns were securely hidden from all human search, the vallies were entirely deserted and not a trace of man was there to meet the eye of the stranger, who could only conclude the country to be a barren and unmhabited wate; while, in reality, the people constantly stationed in the watch towers, with which the summits of the mount ins are crowned, had in all human probability given the alarm, and the sides of the hills wife of ry who e covered with the Monutameers ready to rush down on their unsuspecting victim. Such was the sate of th country, but a very few years ago.

I recollect passing a spot which most owerfully brought to my recollection Sir W Iter Scott's heautiful description of the Ambuse de in " the Lady of the Lake, walch he thus describes:-

" Instant thro' copse and heath arose Bonnets and spears and bended bows; On right and left, above, helow Ep us wup at once the larking foe; From shingles grev their lines start, The bracken bush sends forth the dart. The rishes and the will a wand Are i ristling into axe and brand, And evers tuft of broom gives life To I laided warrior armed for strife."

Ind my imagination was so worked on, that a sould scareely rouse myself from the al-

east the', are quite distinct from those of most conviction I felt of my being rounded by the savage inhabitants deep and sequestered gien thro' walks was passing. From these fastnesses Mhairs were used to come suddenly do with an irresistible impetuosity, and ha and plunder the whole neighbouring course try—the people were paralized with dread, and the hardy savages were safe again be fore they could resume courage to ast of the defensive.—Subsequent to our attaining a small territory, and some raffuence i their immediate vicinity; they continued their depicdations, 'till our patience was exhausted, and it became necessary to teach them that they had a new and formidable too to contend with .- After every attempt had failed by parific measures to bring them to lister to reason, a torce was ordered to storm the only pass leading to their principal towns ,-desperate as this service was, or rather would have been under other encumstances, it entirely succeeded. The Mhairs on that occasion for the first time saw, and felt the power of Butish troops, and for the first time experienced the irresistible effects of good musquetry. Arrows (which I believe are thus-only weapons, unloss they occasionalely dait their spears) showered down from y invisible hands on our little band, 'till the Light Company was ordered to clear the jungles and rocks (behind which the onewere concealed) of the hidden foc. With meredible difficulty and perseverance the extreme natural difficulties of the pass were surmounted, and a general volley so frightened and termined the terror stricken Mh urs, that they offered no more rematance but fled in every direction, allowing our troops without further opposition to scramble up the pass, and take possession of their towns. They had never before heard the sound of a musquet, the effect that a well directed file had on them, may then be more easily imagined than described. A party of officers, which, but a short time ago, went up this very pass, found the load so extremely jugged and dangerous, that u uncumbered as they were, it was not without the greatest difficulty they could evercome the inconveniences they met wit, and which they declared they could not conceive surmountable by troops, consequence of our connexion with them has been, that altho' slight opposition was made at first, the lesson they received, almost without bloodshed too, has prevented their subsequently engaging in their old excursions, and they me now quiet, and have been so for some that vallies di play a most luxuriant cultivation, a recultural pursuits as the most beneficial and likely to encourage peaceable habits among the people are patronized, and Government ever auxious for the happiness and real welfare of the natives, is engaged in reconciling, and in some meacivilizing, these demi-barbarians by raising a Local Battalion in the midst of the country, half of which is to be composed of its native inhabitants. A short time ago so great success as could have been wishhad not attended the plan; none of the fine men could be brought to enlist; indeed enly old men tottering with age, and young boys still too weak to handle a musquet, ind without other means of providing for themselves, would make their appearance, and even they were scarcely manageable; but there is little doubt that the very able and conciliating conduct of the Political Agent and Commandant of the corps relative to them, will in the course of time establish discipline, and induce more serviceable men to come forward. They profess, and certainly entertain a great respect for the European character, and acknowledge us Their superiors very readily; and the confidence they have in our honor, induces them to put themselves in our hands whenever necessary. Wett every proper respect, they Bill have in their conversation with us a kind of manly openness and independance, which marks the wide difference between them and the Asiatics of the plains. A common native is either slavishly obsequious in his address, or he is insolent. There is no medium. The Mhair has nothing of the kind, his character is marked by that natural feeling of independence, by no means incom-patible with respect, which is so apparent in his discourse and in him, tho' a poor half naked savage, for he is no more, one cannot but recognise a man in some respects on a level with one's self.

I have spun out my letter I am afraid you will consider to a most unconscionable and inconvenient length, and I shall therefore hasten to a conclusion, altho' I could say much more of this wild, but certainly interesting tribe. Should you consider it too long, I need not say you are perfectly at liberty to curtail it.

I am, Sir, Your very obedient servant,

Barrackpoor; August 9, 1823.

P. S. In the course of my travels I have visited Jeypoor, a city little known, but undoubtedly the finest, may, the only sac city in India; should you wish it, I shall be most happy to communicate to you the few remarks made on it, and that part of Rajpootions in which it is aimsted ana in which it is situated.

we glad to receive an account of Jeypore from our intelligent Correspondent. In his last there were some passages respecting Bhurtpore, which had better been kept back, and which we know estaped our Correspondent's pen inadvertently. The greatest caution is requisite in writing dis cursively on circumstances bearing relation to our connection with Native Powers-especially when we are on friendly terms with them. Whatever may have happened in times past, the Bhurpore people are now our friends, and it is to be hoped will always remain so.-Editor._

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

Sin,—On Friday last I saw a great con-course of people close to my Factory on the banks of a nullah three miles below Santipore. On enquiry I found that these peo-ple had assembled to witness the immolation of a widow. I hastened to the place, and after having with difficulty made my way through the crowd, which was very great, I reached the spot where she st od, answering some questions put to her by the Jemadar of Thannah Santipore. She appeared to be not above eighteen, and I thought very handsome, perfectly free from intoxication, and had even a look of cheerfulness. A few yards distant, on a pile, was placed the body of her husband, who having suffered for above six months a lingering disease, which at length caused his death, presented the view of a very "unhandsome corpse." The Jemadar asked the widow why she wished to sacrifice herself—if it was the fear of poverty, or reproaches of her family that induced her to do so. She replied, that her husband had left her a sufficiency, and that the step she was about to take was by no means compulsatory, for she had herself insisted on following her husband to the abodes of the Blessed, which, she said, she could no other way expect to do but by becoming a Suttee. Her two infants were then brought, and their helpless condition represented to herbut vain was this powerful appeal to her maternal feelings. In short, the Jemadar, who appeared to be a humane man, used every argument to dissuade her from her obstinate resolution, but all would not do. The consent to follow her inclination was A TRAYELLER. reluctantly given, and received by the croud with a deafening shout of barbarous joy. After the usual ceremonies, which sho went through with great steadiness and presence of mind, she ascended the pile, to which she was immediately fastened, a load of hemp (paut) was thrown on her, and a blaze kindled, which in a few minutes consumed both the living and the dead!

Truly, Sir, you are a Wag, a very genuise, spirited, gentleman-like Wag (no offence I hope) as ever entered the lists against the drousy, do-me-good-for-nothing lack-a-daisy says of metaphysical jargon and produced the state of the state o and pompous inanity. Witness your sublime (I beg your pardon—you have nothing to do with subimity), I mean original lucu-brations on the "ample boson," "taciturn pature," and wonderful personalities of sweet Mrs. Glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of glaudelelitch of a certain learned and beneat The Control of a certain learned and honest Thebus! How adjointly have you managed by a few editorial, puffs to swell into columns rast and spacious what some dry causie sen of letjers would have been content to compressint a dozon lines. But then the Wit! You will say, the hu-mour! the Farce! the risible properties and Jocular catactrophs of the matter! these—these compensate for a world of marvellous nothingness. True, true, O most true! The Wit is all, the humour is every thing and so, with your good permission, I mean to be as joiniar sind as laughter-provoking at the hest of you. Be silent that you may heir. Now for it.

Your Correspondent FAIR PLAY (O mouse of a labouring mountain, methinks I hear you exclum in all the frenzy of disappointed expectation—but list and be not premature in thy remarks) FAIR PLAY. I repeat, his indeed displayer (wark you Sir & Pun) his critical sagaonty to the best advantage, and for me to add another word respecting the performances at the Juvenile Theatre, would be preposterous. I wash my hands of the Cutique therefore, and come to that delectable superabundantly harmonious, o (is you choose) harmoniously superabundant Prologue, which was said or sung by the immitable Diddler of a didding Firee.

Prologues, Mr. Editor, you will admit are very pleasant in their way, and you will further admit that a good Prologue is as necessary to a good Piny, as a merry Andrew Critic is to a tag-ray Poet—"A feeligh figure, but farewell it." As the proce in figure, but farewell it. As the proce in question is evidently the product of amateur talents,—talents that promise much · ood fruit if well cultured,-I think it will General newest cultures, I think it will be doing a piece of service to the young General (respected be his worth) by humbly poin ing out a few of the bouties and defects that are most spiking. The The author very properly commences with a very prident observation, and the opening is therefore humourously effective.

Prologues, 'tia inid, are grown quite pheciete; It must be so , witheas Chouseheghen Street, Bitley, Esq.

The Committee on reaching the House were introduced to Mr. Adam, who stead surrounded by several of his personal friends Mr. E. Rousson immediately addressed him as the subject of the r visit.

We regret infinitely that we have been unable to obtain even a sketch of this addiess, since we underst and, that in feeling, appropriate expression, and happy manner of delivery it was never surpassed.

We shall however if more successful publish it hereafter, the' we cannot but regret i's absence now; since the public will naturally be auxious to know what passes on this very interesting subject. After Mr. Fergusson had flushed his address these circumstances are so well calculated to produce, are aggravated by the manuer in which may kind friend, your learned Chairman, has announced to me the flattering intentions of the Community of Calcutta. Indeed these united powerful in-citements, while they convey the proudest and deepest sensations of delight, that my merits should be deemed worthy of such an konor, create at the same time an uncontrollable agitation, increased by the allusions of your worthy Chairman, which absolutely incappacitates me from returning any adequate tribute of acknowledgment for the high and mesumable mark of tavor and distinction wmer has been manifested towards me by the British Inhabitants of Calcutta. With the most bearfelt pleasure, shall I comply with the flattering request which has been so handsomely conveyed to me by you."

The agitation alluded to was, we under-

MURDER OF MR. RAVENSCROFT.

The fact of the murder of this unfortunate man appears to I have at length been established beyond a doubt. The Court of Inquity to which we alluded in the Gazette of the 17th of July, re-assembled at Bugah in Quee on the 2d a nd 3d of July, for the purpose of examinities the known and with a view to discover by whom the murder was committed.

It is greatly to be regretted that the original information on the subject was not If I were permitted, Sir, upon this occa-nore detailed as id explicit, so as to have sion to allude to any thing which is perso-percluded a prot nacted inquiry into such melancholy particulars. But when uncertainty remained, the full investigation of the unhappy occurrence, however distressing, became an imperative duty.

On the 23d of June an official communication was made by the Aumil of Baratch to the King of Oude, which contains the statement and deposition of Pirtee Sing, brother of Sheo Sing, Valookdar of Bugah, on the subject of the murder. From that communication it appears that Mr. Rivinscroff and the Talookdai had been for mamy years on terms of intimacy and friend-'ship, that in consequence, about four months previous to the date of the minder, he refurned to Bingah with the intention of it siding here, to which Sheo Sing consented, that he selected a small pot of ground, about one coss from the fort, in the skirts of the jungle, built a grass but for his residence, and having taken in farm two or three villages from Sheo Sink, commenced upon the acultivation of Indigo, that settling there he dismissed several Burkundases who had been in his service, contrary to the advice of Sheo Sing, who observed &ad he had taken up his abode in the neighbourhood of the jungle, and would require protection; -that Shee Sing for a short time sent some of his people he the evening to keep watch, but to at afterwards Vi. RAVENSCROLL prohibited their attendance, and he remained there with only ten or twelve dependents, who were in the capacity of Khidmutgus and bearers, Pirtee Sing, deposes to the death, of Mr. Ra-VINSCROIL, and subsequent burial by Mr. PIACE.

The Court of Inquiry proceeded to tife rave, and the monument erected over it being removed they found a Coffin and on opening it, a human body. After a minute examination of the corps, the progress of decay and corruption be no so great, the Court could not actually declare its identity, but from the appearance of the grave Clothes, stained in several places apparently with blood, they conceived it to be the body of a man seconds wounded and in the way Mr Ravenschott is said to have been. The Court remarked that the body had a large beard.

The hist witness examined on bath was Eusign John Privit, amember of the Court. He was present on on about the 6th of May 1823, when the late Mr. Rivenschopf died. and his death was in the witness's opinion, occasioned by the wounds he had received. He saw the remains of the deceased interred, and read the burnal service over bim. He indentified the coffin in which the hody was deposited. He concluded the body to be that of the Law Mr. Rivinschort, but obtain not seen on account of its decayed state. Mr. Rivinschoic had a large beaid at the time of his death. The witness had, heard that the ruffians, supposed to have committed the murder, were called Seor Murwaks. They were estimated at nearly a hundred in number. Does not exactly know what property belonging to Mr. Ra VLN8CROFF was stolen on the night of the attack. Mentions a double barrelled Joseph Manton's gun, a Rifle, and two Swords. He saw two of three camel trucks which had been broken open, and their contents taken out lying about the bed-room, and also a chest of drawers of which two drawers were broken, and their contents plundered. The property which was in a Godowe appeared to the witness untouched. Ensign PLAST shewed six wounds that he had received on the night of the at-

The second witness was Imandy, Sycc. In the attack he received one wound through the right arm, the in the left hand, one in each side, and one in the right thigh. From the dialect of the assailants he concluded they were Sear Mus walls. Swears to the corpse in the grave being that of his master, from the har and beard.

The third witness was Golaum Nubbee. Khidmutgar, who recognized the body of his master, from the ban of his head and board. The property which he knew was stoleti consisted of three swords, one do his harrelled gun, and one single harrelled gue. Every one says the murderers reted on his person five diff rent spear-wounds.

Emanduksh was the fourth witness. He saw Mr. Rayessekori de id. Assisted in washing his body, and held the book whilst him mester, Engign Paris, was reading be Sear Murwahs The pourle in undered were two Barkundases, two Washermen, one Grass-cutter, and a child. In all eighteen were wounded.

The fifth was Deenah. Saw Mr RANIAS-chorf dead, and held the Chatte over Ensign Prier whilsthe was buring him.

The sixth witness, Dulquequen, Tailor. Was present during the attack in the night. The Court perceived thirteen spear-wounds on his body.

Juggoo, Syce, the seventh witness depos-ad that he heard the thieves civ, "Dawa'se Makuraj shis morderer has come from Se-orors to settle here," and then saw them attacking all the servants. He was present when the corpse of Mr. RAVESCROFT was washed and buried, From the strange washed and buried. dialect supposes the ruffians to be Year Marwais? They were about a hundred. Reoppuiges the body of his master from the beard. The Court observed six wounds on the witness's body.

The righth witnest was Mureer, Syce, his deposition the hance is substanted as that of Jugges. The mistess showed to the Court a wound in his back. The rabbers seemed to be about one hundred in number.

The Court of Inquiry sat again on the 4th of July, in conjunction with the person deputed by the Aumil of Baraitch on the part lings we understand have been entirely, as of his Majesty the King of Oude, to hear of his Majesty the King of Oude, to hear whatever evidence might come before it, but after waiting the whole day without being able to procure from the neghbouring villages any further information, the Court was compelled to adjourn. Shoo Sing, Tatookdar of Bingah, and wisit he paid to the Court-declared that he keet nothing about the marderers, or the motive of the attack, further than that report said they were Sear Murwall, and that they fraided in the purguinals of Toelseepore and Rhaunah.

On the 7th, the proceedings were continued, and the Court addressed a requisition to Sea sing to produce both the Bramin and Ahoolahall, within the space of six days before the Commanding Officer at Sectors. The President of the Compt. Capt. J. PROVIDENTIAL BACAPF.

The publication of the following iccident. the particulars of which has been commumeated to us by a Correspondent, coupled with what we published yesterday will, we trust, produce a conviction of the neconsity of removing from the street those obstructions that so endanger the lives of the community By the statement of the accident in Ranamoody Gully, in yesterday's Journal, it appears a fidy encoun-tered great danger, and here both a lady and a gentleman were exposed the omment risk of their lives by an improper obstruction in the street. It happened as follows -

On Tuesday evening after duk the Revd Mr J. Hill, the much extremed and respected Pastor of the Union Chapel, Durumtollah, was proceeding in his bungy along with Mrs. Hill, down the Duriumtollah, at that part of it waren proses Wellington-Square. Between the west corner and the center of the new tank there was a curricle belonging to some Inhibitant carelessley left by the servants on the street Mr Hill, in consequence of its being dark, did not perceive the carriage until he was very near upon it, and in ende evouring to avoid it, he almostrup down a Native who wis passing, and who apparently stupified it the dunger and by the calls of the sines for him to get out of the way, made no chort whitever to escape, but appeared rivetted to the spot. To save this man, Mr ffill pulled the horse so violantly to the opposite fide is to break one of the terns. He thus lost all command of the aumal, which teching itself at liber-ty, started off at a gallop. With a view to seize and stop the house, Mr. Hill leapt out of the buggy, but falling in the exertion be-fore he could rise from the ground, the wheel of the buggy passed over his left thigh and leg, severely bruising the latter In the mountime Mrs Hill, who are armined in the buggy, and was humed along at the mercy of the animal, kept hold of the single rein which remained, and unwittingthe horse into the compound of a neighbouring house occupied by the Royd. W. Adam, where the horse stood still of its own accord. She thus escaped the most iminant danger; for the animal entered by a narrow gate-way, and had much greater chance of running into the drain along the food side, which being both wide and deep, would very probably have been alvended with the most fatal consequences. The friendly and professional assistance of Dr. Whs. (an able physician from one of the fereign Settlements now reading in Calcuta) was speedily obtained, under whose care we have no doubt Mr. Hill will speedily recover from the effects of this accident. We were happy to learn, yesterday, that the section Mr. Lill had met with, was not likely to be attended with any permanent Adam, where the horse stood still of its likely to be attended with any permanent injury, although it would subject him, for the present to very considerable painand in convenience. Happily no hone is broken, but his left leg, as was to be expected, has been very senously bruised by the wheel of the buggy having passed over it. He is in consequence unable to walk, and will probably be confined to his couch for sometime, Immediately after the injury, however, when the wound was recent, he made an effort to follow up on toot the buggy in which Mra. Hill was hurried away by the ungovernable animal, and speedily coming up with it af-ter it stood still they were soon mutually relieved from the agonized feelings necessatily excited by being separated from each other in such perilous circumstances.—Calculta Journal of this morning.

THE DIANA STEAM PACKET,

We are most happy to learn that the DIA-KA Steam Packet succeeds to admiration, stemming the rapid freshes of the river with a velocity perfectly astonishing. She left Chandpaul Ghaut at 11 A. M. of Saturday in charge of Mr. Anderson the Engineer and piloted by Mr. Rranch Pilot Bason, for Serampore, to take on board His Bxcellency Colonel Krefting the Governor; she manueuvred off the town for some time until His Excellency and suite combarked when she proceeded up to Chinsurah, The whole time occupied, in running the distance from Calcutta to Chisparah, was befrom the contrary, the freshes were very strong, running at the rate of at the destrict of the contrary, the freshes were very strong, running at the rate of at the freshes were very strong, running at the rate of at the contrary when her very superior accommod-boat moved up the river against this extra-boat may be proformed in her, are at the afternoon the vessel returned to Settlem boat the freshes will sover suffer rampore, where His Excellency and suite the river of the Hooghly, at homme a with the rest of the party on board, landed to so the Hooghly, at homme a contract of an elegant entertainment in the property of her. As the vessel passed up, the bank, of the river were crowded with natives, gazing with river were crowded with natives, gazing with stupid wonder on this novel scene. To be hold a vessel thus stemming a farjous tide without the aid of our or sail and sending forth from a blade adjumn standing in the minal place of a mast a volume of amore, was indeed a sight well calculated not only, to excite the curiosity but; to work on the appearations fears of the nativest they made on it with silent smapeness; of with the excited on it with silent smapeness; of with the excited on it with silent smapeness; of with the excellent of the property of the sellings of leav, or cariosity predominated, which has essel was impelled with such velocity. There is every reason to believe that this first trip up the river as the Steam boat, will be succeeded by many others, for all the party speak with rapture of the delight they experienced in the trip, and declare they never passed a pleasanter day in India. To those who have only one day in the week, in which they can either for recreation or the renewation of health, loke a trip up the river, to Chandernagors of Chinagrah, the steam-boat presents the only eligible opportunity of indulging their inclination-during ance, when they prevail, the day would be half gone, ere they could reach the length of Scrampore even. The present party was planned by Mr. John Hunter, and compositions of the series ed partly of some of the Officers of H. M. S. Jupiter, and several resident gentlemen of Calcutta. They are unanimous in recommending the steam-heat to the patronage The hire of her for a day is of the public 200 Rupecs; but when it is considered how namerous a party she will accommodate, and that the division of expence will reduce

The banks of the river were crowded all the extent of her cruise with Europeans as well as natives, and many expressions of wonder and surprize escaped from the latter at the, we had almost said, omnipotent powers of steam. The attempt has thus been made at steam navigation in this country, and that too, on a river remarkable for the strength of its carrents, the number of its shouls, and the intricacion of its channels. The result is that the attempt was crowned with complete surcess, and we trust that it will now be followed in such a manner as to ensure to be natives of this country a continuance of the advantages to be derived from its more general adoption.

AN AFFECTING PRCIDENT.

To the Editor of the Bengal Burkery Sin, -As a party were proceeding up the river on Sunday, in passing Isharah, their and tention was attracted by the cries of a child, and on drawing near the shore, they were redoubled. Near her, there were lying heap of ashes, not quite extinguished and which appeared like the remains of a recent concremation. A number of children were atanding near her, and at a hittle distance three or four grown up people looking on very content diy. An anguiry was made by a humane individual of the paity from whence the cause of her distings proceeded, and it was some time before an answer could be obtained. At length, it was ascertained that the ashes were those of the funeral pile on which the mother of this unfortunate child had immedated he istly along with the dead body of her husband, and that the lamentations of the child were or casioned by this cause. This circumstance certainly is a singular one, but I have no doubt that it is time, for the account of it was given me by one of the party, and hy the individual who interested himself in the manner I have just described

In the course of conversation no the subject the following circumstance was mentioned as a proof of the good effects of the friendly interference of Europeans in preventing the immolation of human victims. A bearer who had lived for a long time in a family was taken ill, and was on the point of being carried to the banks of the river, for the parpose of being given over to the friendly care of the Ganges to be conveyed to heaven Before he was conveyed there, however, he requested to be allowed to speak to his old mistress, and on being taken to her, he begged has to interfere to procuse for him a rea pite el three days. On her interfering some remarks were made by his friends as to the expence which would be incurred if that were to comply with this request. His mistress promised to pay all the expenses that mught be meurred, and the result is, that the man who was so near death hve or an yearsago, is now alive in Calcutta, in the daily execution of his business,

These circumstances are thus narrates to prove that the triendly interposition is fadividual; as of infinitely more value that all the official interposition of magistrates and that the projudices of the nature, although may be oradicated by kindness, can be ver be foreibly rooted out with any prospect of success.

"Gentlemen, I should not venture to intrude upon you a second time, if, in yielding to my own feelings, I were not fully aware how much I shall gratify yours. I propose the health of your Governor, Sir Thomas Munko. It would be ill-judged in me, who am a stranger amongst you, to dwell on merit with which you are already so well acquainted: but happy I shall have reages to consider myself, if any services which I may be enabled to perform shall secure for me the high estimation in which that distinguished individual is held in England for his administration of the affairs of this Piesidency.

Sir Thomas Munko then rose and said.

On the Evening of Thursday the 24th In- Lord American has paid me a very stant, a Splendid Entertainment was given high compliment, and it may be expected that I should acknowledge it. I am justly sensible of the favourable terms, in which his Lordship has spoken of me personally, and of the service. The administration of this Government is comparatively an easy task. All we have to do is to give effect to the course of proceeding marked out for our guidance by the Supreme Government, and by the authorities in England. But it has during a long period been the good fortune of India, to be placed under the rule of an illustrious line of Governors General, who by their emment talents and virtues have adorned their exalted station. Under such auspices has our Empire acquired its present extent and stability. I am satisfi-ed, that this line of illustrious men will be " As an Englishman, I have, at a distance, prolonged in the person of Lord AMHERST. and that his Lordship's administration, like those of his predecessors, will at once promote the welfare of India and redound to the honor of our country."

The Honorable THE GOVERNOR then gave the healths of SIR EDMOND STANLEY and the other Judges of the Supreme Court.

After which Sir Edmond Stanley rose, and begged leave in his own name, and that of the other Judges of the Supreme Court, to return their sincere thanks for the polite notice and mark of attention which had been just paid to them, by the Henorable the Governor, and the Gentlemen presentthe heavy duties which he had discharged that day in Court to a late hour, rendered him unable to express his feelings on the occasion, as fully as he would have wished to have done. He was happy to observe the general harmony which prevailed at this Meeting, and among all classes in this Settlement. He could not omit this opportunity of declaring that often as it had fal. len to his lot in the course of his life to be present at hubble assemblies, and to hear distinguished diagracters deliver their sentiments, heaver was more gratified and pleased, thus he was that night by the sentiment deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral he was that night by the sentiments deliveral her was the night by the sentiments deliveral her was the night by the sentiments deliveral her was the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments are night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by the sentiments and the night by th timents delivered by the Nuble Lord, the Governor General of India—those seattments so appropriate to the occasion, and expressed in such dighified and handsome terms, he confessed made a deep impression on his mind, as he believed they had done upon the minds of all who heard them, and he took the liberty of saying, that he foreboded the most happy and beneficial consequences not only to India, but to the Empire at large, from his Lordship's administration. He congratulated this settlement, upon the event of his Lordship's having done them the honour to visit it in the course of his voyage, as it afforded them a better opportunity of judging of his Lord-ship's high qualities, and appreciating his value, than they could have been able to do, by a more distant acquaintance with

Sir Charles Grey in returning thanks observed-

The sentiments, which the Chief Justice has so well expressed, leave me little more to do than to utter with my own voice, the thanks which he has given in my name. Yet upon this occasion of celebrating the first coming amongst us of the Noble Person, whose government of India may be said to commence from that time, I must not omit to offer individually, what we have already offered collectively, the most sincere and cordial wishes for his success and prosperity in that Government. I cannot wish him better than that he may realize as much, of what is possible to be done for India, as his pedecessor did; or as he has done, whose acts we have a nearer opportunity of observing-I mean nor you have done myself and the other Judges of the Supreme Court in drinking our bealths.

Sir WILLINGHAM FRANKLIN concuired with the other Judges in the sentiments they had so ably expressed, and begged leave to return thanks for the honor conferred upon "The health of LADY AMHERST" was then given, after which the Company proceeded to the Umeer Bagh to attend HER LADY-SHIP'S Drawing Room-at which there was a large and brilliant assemblage.

CORRESPONDENCE:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

SIR,-It is with much satisfaction I resame my pen for the purpose of communi-cating to you the tew remarks I made on Jypore, and the adjacent country during a hasty journey thro' it a short time since; should they prove at all entertaining or serceived I should thereby hest explain to you my feelings in viewing the objects I attempt to describe; you must therefore etcuse the rusticity of the stile, which some of your Calcutta literati, most of whom of course you reckon among your reader may think reprehensible.

Lly route on this journey was via Nustrale schrabad, which place I tormerly alluded to as a considerable out-post station on the western frontier, situated close to Ajmeré; and as I at that place hist came to a resolu lution of keeping a diary, I cannot do it such injustice as to pass it over unnoticed, but as I believe I have been auticipated on that subject, I shall not trouble you with a very copious description of it.

Nussecrabad then I am led to understand derives its name from the title of "the Nuwab Nusseer Ud Dowleh," bestowed by the court of Delhi on Major General Sir David Ochterlony, Bart., by whom on its formation the station was considerably benefited. It is situated on one of those boundless plains peculiar to Rajpootana, intersected by small ranges of barren, rocky hills, and covered with innumerable pieces great and small, of loose rocky flint, as well as huge masses sprouting out of the earth, which may justly be trained the only pro-duction of the soil, (which they so abundant are, they very nearly hide), for not a particle of cultivation, and except in the rains not a blade of grass is there to be seen. To the rear (S. E.) and left of canour own Excellent Governor. Let me re- trail' to bound the more than the presents peat, more distinctly, my thanks for the hominated by the horizon, but to the front (N. W.) and on the right at the distance of from 3 to 4 miles successive ranges of these same unimer sting hills, of the real appearance of which language is unable to give you a correct idea, form an effectual barrier to the survey. Notwithstanding tho levelness of the plane, advantage has been taken of a slightly (se neely perceptible) rising ground on which cantomneut is situated, and to give you some idea of the extreme fertility of the country, I must inform you that from the most elevated spot, but one stunted, dwarf tree, which by some fortuitous chance has sprung up in the centre of a road in the very middle of the station, and not a particle of vegetation, except what is produced at a very considerable expence in the gardons of a few, who can allord the luxury of raising vegetables, meet the eye altho' it wanders over many miles of country. This tree you will readily believe is looked on as a great cu-riosity, so much so that it is called "Meer Khan's tree," by which name indeed it was known when the spot was selected for a cantonment. Water is by no means so viceable to you it will give me much pleasure. I have copied verbatim from my abundant as it would be convenient to have journal writen on the spot, because I con- it. Government has at a most enormous pression dug would be misapplied here's a number of wells, and a tank; but the few wells which are not brackish are chiefly dry in the hot weather, and the tank affords but a slender supply of water for not less than 10 000 people, besides the horses of the Cavalry and Artillery. So great is the distress, that Sentrics are constantly posted to take care of the water in cantonnients, and during the hot weather that valuable is juid is brought from a distance of one and even two coss from some parts of the station, for dimking, tor fit ties you may get it as you can To account for this great scarcity, I must inform you that about 5 feet from the surface is the solid rock, from 60 to 70 feet of which must be blown up before water is discoverable, and even then, the chantes are very much against its being drink ible. The expense consequently is gient,—on in iverage about a thousand Rupers -so that but few Bun-

From the wint of jungal and timber, fuel is of course very expensive, what hitle there is, is brought from the adjacent hills, where i kind of brush wood very sentify grows, but timber for building or any other purposes is transported from Agra and Muttra, upwirds of 200 miles distant and Muttra, upwirds of 200 miles distant I shall not dwell much longer on the beauties and comforts of Nusscerabad, suffice it therefore to say, that as a caltonment it is extremely well and regularly land out the public buildings are all pucka, and on the most extensive scale, we may therefore conjecture that the post will be permanent. The few Bungalows there permanent are, are extremely superior tor such a place, but of coarse very dear, novertheless, I tear those who built them must have suftered considerably is half their original costs are not procurable. The best Bung ilow in the station cost 21 000 Rupees, and none at all habitable have been built under 5000 Rupers, it present such are to be had ac or hin, to circumstances, from 1 600 to 2 > 10 Aricket court, and large station Bing flow, including a theatre, reading rooms, &c &c hid been commenced on by subscription and I suppose are by this time imished, Indeed there appeared a general determination to drown melincholy and the blue devils by gaicty and pleasure Dum virinus vivanus,—'Us a good motto, and I should strongly recommend every one similarly situated, to adopt it. May they be successful in their o ideasours, they have my best wishes. The Sudder Baz ir is very fortunately well sup-plied, the of course at dear rates, and even a solitary merchant or two from Bombay resort to it with cloth and European luxuries. Immediately in front of the Cantonment is the oucc royal city of Amere, situated at the foot of a range of hills, on the top of which at its N B. extremity is the Fort of Tairaghui, given up to us, I believe, in 1818. On a very clear day, the Port is distinguishable from the Flur Staff top over the forcmost ranges of hills. In a straight line it is not more than 4 or 5 miles distant, but by the road which runs thro' a pass in the hills, it is upwards of 14. The Political Agent has converted into a very constituble residence an old native building past without the city, which is surrougided by a wall and ditch capable however, of affording little profection against an experienced or powcitul enemy. The city of Ajmere may be ranked high among the first class of Native towns most of the houses are pucka, the sticets are wider than usual, and some of the buildings afford convincing proof of its tormer opulence. During the troubles consequent on the appearance of the Pindarrees in that neighbourhood, and the petty wars and devastations which prevailed, Ajmore suffered considerably, but under the mold and bencheent rule of our Government, and the constant attention and exertions of the Portical Agent, it is recovering its pirstime celebrity. The fort of Triagurh which commands it, is naturally so strong as to be impregnable to open force, only on one spot is it possible to climb the jugged rocks by which it is protected, and there is path the only one leading to it, and the only possible mode of entrance is said to be nearly 3 coss in length. The small space of level country in front of the city forms an imply theatre surrounded by low ranges of hills, the soil is every where sands, and quite meapable of cultivation. The Dowlut Bagh in which the royal p lace once stood, tho' small, is very metty, and is a tuated on the banks of a pietty clear lake, not less than six miles in circumsterence. Some remains of old buildings belonging to the palace which overhang the lake, have been converted into quarters for the Officer on duty, Commissatiat Officer, Assistant Political Agent, &c. &c. The Like is well stocked with fish, I should imagine, nevertheless that very deurable addition to a good breakfast is but very seldom to be met with either in cantonments or at Ajmere. Alligators, thanks to the prejudices of the natives, who take out to keep a good supply abound, and they may pe - hips make free with the rooce mutch ex. On the opposite side of the Lake, a lotty range of hills, without a break in them, with the exception of a someely passible pass leading to Pohur, a celebrated place of religious resort tamed too for a large cattle fair in November, effectually shuts out the view, and by no means, you will guess from what I have generally remarked of the bills in Rajpootana, adds to the beauty of the scene. I am proceeding in my description at a very slow rate towards Jeypore, and as I have itraed away so much paper without confident to the point, I think it advisable to fill up my sheet with further descriptions. with further descriptions of the country on the road to that place, forbearing to speak particularly of it till my next letter. You see what you have drawn on yourself by accepting my offer; you did not expect. I dare say, that I considered "the adjacent country" in so indefinite a sense; howover should you think this too uninteresting, you can suppress it, and a few days will, I hope, bring you what little I have to say of Jypoor itself. But to proceed.—After passing the first day's halting place, my route lay in a N. E. direction, parallel to a range of hills, which I kept at no great distance on my left for several days, and which, I have little doubt, is the very same of which I shall hereafter speak in my mention of Jypoor. The third halting place about two or three and thirty miles from Nusserabad, is the commencement of the Jypoor territory, the intermediate one being in the country of the Raja of Kishengurh, the capital of which of the same name lays about 7 miles North of Deedwana at the foot of the hills on the summit of which the fort is easily distinguishable at some distance. The Rava of Kishengurh is an independent Prince. but of no great power or influence He resides in a fort close to his capital, on the banks of a pretty lake, in which he obligingly permits gentlemen from Nussecrabad to fish. The extreme beauty of the spot and superior salubrity of the air, in-duce parties of pleasure and invalids to avail themselves of the permission, it being situated at so convenient a distance. But situated at so sonvenient a distance. But caught, I am spinning out my letter to too great as " Mother! mother! O my dearest mother!" length, therefore adieu for the present.

Your obedient Servt.

A TRAVELLER.

Barrackpore, August 12, 1823.

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

Sir .- The generous technis that actuated your correspondent, who hist proposed the erection of a Cenotaph to the revered memory of the late Mr. Ward, deserve the highest commendation. He proposes that the subscriptions towards erecting it, should not exceed One Goldmohur each person, but who is to receive these subscriptions !-if I may be permitted to sug gest, Messrs. Marshman and Carey should be the gentlemen into whose hands the subscribers should pay the amount of their contributions, and I have no doubt but that if this proposal were hinted to these gentlemen, they would, without hesitation, open a book for subscriptions. That it would soon be full, there is no question-for your amend to the hallowed memory of departed worth?

It was a sweetly pensive hour of calm. The Myna chirp'd upon the stage bough. And gently coo'd the Ring Day 'midst the . leaves.

I heard a littul cry of infartifiall, Tramulous floating on the little of eve, And paus'd to histen—while she words I

Near a beap of ashes smouldering drear Weary and desolate, a little child. One they hand a drooping flow i held fast, (Emblem most meet of that unhappy child) The other wip d away the scalding train That from her dim black orbs came rolling down.

As on that ashy heap she gaz'd intent Repeating still her civ of infant wail, "Mother! mother! O my dearest mother!"

The drear procession reach'd this fated

The din of deathful discord rose, and smoke Ascended blackly through the sunny air. The croud dispersed, but still the babe remain'd,

And has remain'd since that dread morning hour,

Weeping and gazing for her mother there, And finding nought but loneliness and ashes. Mark the wildness of her young despair. As on that ashy heap her gaze is fix'd With bitter tears and thick convulsive sobs, And hark again her cry of infant wail, "Mother, mother—oh'my dearest mother!"

AUGUST 18.

Yesterday's Report announces the arrival of the Portuguese Brig Nevo Destino, Captain J. J. Fontas, from Rio de Janeiro 5th June.

We have received Cape Papers in irregular files, from February to the latter end of June, but they contain no intelligence of general interest. It would appear that the loss of the Apollo, under peculiar circumstances, had occasioned a good deal of animadversion. We forbear at present from entering into the particulars alluded to, lest we should be prejudging the conduct of individuals delicately situated. Lord Charles Somerset, we observe, has been engaged in one of the most arduous but pleasing duties of a Governor—that of enacting rules for the amelioration of the classes that most urgently require protection from supreme authority. We have subjoined his Lordship's proclamation for improving the condition of the slaves in Southern Africa, and it strikes us that the spint it breathes is humane, philanthropic and wise.

"We have had rain here almost every day since the 23d June, and the showers have been frequently heavy. The price of grain has risen considerably, and is likely Go rise still more. So continuous a fall of rain is prejudicial to agriculture in general; it impedes the growth of the sugar cane, a staple article of produce in this chuckleh; throws back the ploughings of land designed for wheat and barley, and prevents the ryots sowing "oorid," koottee, &c. in lands of an inferior quality. The loss of two ploughings is serious to people engaged in the cultivation of lands, which require much labour. Weeds spring up in every direction, and not only add to the labour of the Ryot, but impair also materially the fecundity of the voil. By the destruction of the "Bhudovee" crop, the Ryet loses two menths provisions, and is compelled to commence borrowing either grain or money from his "Sahoo" two months earlier than he would have been, had the weather been more seasonable. Farmers are hereditary grumblers in every part of the globe,—and every Ryot in India is a small farmer. Of a truth, though, all Ryots in these parts, saving those lucky fellows who happen to reside in villages, the greater parts of the land of which may be adapted to produce rice; have some grounds for complaint at present. The Indigo must have suffered too from the rain, the new plant not having been pro-perly weeded is scarcely visible; the eld p'ant is stunted, and many of the leaves p'ant is stunted, and many of the leaves have a seared and withered appearance. My 'Jotickee,' (what shall I call him?) weather-wise Bramin telfs me we are to have twenty days of rain in Bhadoor and five in Kear. He foretold 25 wet days in Sawun; we have had 14 days decent earnest of his prophetic talents. You have read Forbes' Oriental Memoirs; the Bramins, he mentions are more rifted then those in this mentions, are more gifted than those in this neighbourhood, who on the strength of a " Puta" or almanac, purchased for an anna or two from some copyist at Benarcs, presame in a very Glendower-like manner to east nativities, fix fortunate and unlucky days, and would fain control the elements. Aware that these modern Calchase's are equally ignorest of "que sunt que fuerunt que mox bisture trahuntur,"—Why, you may ask, consult them! I reply, that you must humour the prejudices of the natives ere you can subdue them, that a side-blow, an apparently unpremeditated hit at priestcraft exposes its deformity more, and shows it in a truer light to its victims, than the would-be-moving-hopes of an elaborate fulmination against the faultiness of any creed or the artifices of any sect. Let a man who assumes infallibility as his birth-right commit himself by giving a decided opinion, if the event proves such opinion unfounded, the veriest coolie will be able to discern that the original pretension was-"row et pretered whil." The fact of two aspirants to the legacy of St. Peter, fighting with pike and haubeik for the possession of the nominal keys to Heaven, and the real territories attached to the Papal See, and this fact "oculis subjecta fidelibus" was perhaps more impressive than any of the tirades of Luther.

As our Theatrical establishment has just recovered from a state of collapse which threatened to prove fatal to it, it may be profitable to its interests to point out what-ever appears prejudicial to it with a view to reform. Whatever tends to damp the ardour of Amateurs, or to disgust their feelings, must directly operate to the prejudice of the Theatre. Under this head may be placed the extreme inconvenience occasioned to the Amateurs by persons unconnected with the Theatre going behind the scenes and into the Managers' room. It is imposaible to conceive the annoyance an Amateur feels when on entering the Manager's room, tued and heated by his exertious on the stage, he finds it filled with strangers entertaining themselves at the expence of another. Nay, they do not stop there, but even intrude into the dressing room, an intrusion almost intolerably disagreeable to Amateurs, who are strangers to them, and who do not like to be stared at in such a peculiar situation.

We would again suggest the propriety of having a refreshment room in the body of the house, and we hope to see this fine provement adopted by and bye. Some time ago Mr. Tivers made an experiment of retailing refreshments in the componist of the Theatre, but it was not found to succeed, inasmach as though there were deinkers in plenty, there were no payers; and Mr. Tiver found that he was keeping a field hotel not for the good of his family, but "pro bono publico."

But to return from this digression to the intrusion complained of above -- Private remonstrance was first resorted to, but this being found inclicatual, a notice was added to the Theatmeal advertisement, mentioning the inconvenience experience ed by gentlemen, not Managers or Amateurs, going behind the scenes during the performance. This notice hon ever, strange to say, was totally without effect, and the inconvenience approaching almost to nuisance, if any thing, increased, -for besides those who were in no way belonging to the Theatre, any gentleman who had ever formed one of a band of soldiers, played the Cock in Hamlet, the Groan in Richard III., or snuffed candles, or had been a walking gentleman ipso facto instantly became a sor disant Amateur, and conceived himself privileged to interrupt the real Amateurs by taking up a gossiping, lounging. staring position at one of the wings, or more

To remedy all this, we understand a resolution was passed at the last meeting of Managers, when it was unanimously agreed that no persons whatsoever but the Managers, should, in future, be allowed to go behind the scenes; and the better to carry this resolution into effect. Managers were desired to use their authority to prevent the recurrence of the abuse. To avoid invideous distinctions, no Amagers, excepting the actual performers of the night, will be admitted behind the scenes. Of course those gentlemen who are Managers as well as Amateyrs, are privileged men.

We have the pleasure to announce another regulation that will tend considerably to the improvement and comfort of the house. In consequence of the extreme heat experienced at the last play, another ventilator is to be put immediately over the Governor General's box. This will be of considerable benefit to all, and particularly to his Lordship. The chandeler also that hung over the state box; has, we learn, been taken down.

We are sorry not to have it in our power to mention what the next play is to be. The delay has been occasioned not by any want of zeal in the Amateurs actually present, but Appellion 1 from the smallness of the Theatrical band and the paucity of Volunteers. We hear that light Tables over the Rudders; Balls of the Amateurs having understood the inconvenience felt by the audience in consequence of the long though unavoidable interval between the pieces, with a laudable attention to the public comfort had resolved to get up a Comedy; but their numbers are be obliged to double it, as the Theatri-eal phrase has it—that is, the same Afra-teurs must act in two pieces that require not the strength of a regular Comedy or Tragedy. We think it probable that "The Children of the Wood," and a new farce, in one act, called "A Cure for Coxcombs," will be the next bill of fare at Chowringhee. In the former piece, we whould hope to see the part of Walter in the hands of our excellent veteran the Jack Ardourly of a late performance; and some hints are abroad of a debutante in the part of the f male child.

The characters of the short farce will, we suppose, fall to the Tom King, Jack Ardourly, and the admirable Mousieur Morblieu of "Monsieur Tonson."

For the last sixty hours, or more, it has been raining at the Presidency almost wi hout interval. Last night and the night before especially; the showers were incessent and heavy. We fear that the inelemency of the season has completely blasted the prospects of the Bengal Indigo Plantcis for the present. The streets in several places shew the injurious effect of the weather. Several spots, therefore, require 10pair ramong which we might mention the right side of the Course, which is a good deal cut up. deal cut up.

tention for one moment to a few remarks on the general state of the country, and on the personal appearance and character of the Rajpoots in the province of Jypoor, which I trust you will not consider foreign to the subject. The country has suffered so much from having been for a number of years, · previous to the overthrow and exteriuination of the Pindarias, overrun, and laid waste by those formidable banditti, together with the internal dissensions and hostilities which prevailed, and thereby hastened its rum, as by no means to have recovered its. tormer state of population, in fact, the mehabitants having been compelled for their personal salety to quit their villages, and fly their country, have not yet returned. A great proportion of the few villages recattered over the country are entirely uninhabited and fallen into rulus, and those which are still in preservation have so scanty a population as to be qualificated quate to the cultivation of the county, not a hundredth part of which bears the least appearance of ever having been touched by the plough. The appearance of the planes then with which Jypoor abounds, is desolate in the extreme; hour after hear, destater day, and I had nearly added week to week, does the same monotoness unstaying scene of desolation meet the eye of the traveller, except in the immediate vicinity of villages, where only just sufficient coin is grown for their own consumption, not a particle of vegetation is to be found, the plains are covered with dry grass, and with here and there a small stunted bush, or dwarf tree affording neither fruit nor shade

The villages and towns are confined to the high roads, and even there very unsocially situated at 10, 12, and even 20 miles apart, in the interior, desolation and barrenness are predominant, and the country is, in the literal sense of the word, a desart. The tow places I have seen, deserving of the name of a town, are surrounded by rather formidable mud wills and ditches, with generally an interior fort, or citadel of pucka work, and some have even to boast of one or two ruined pucka houses, the residences of the Qileday and other great personages, with a few neem trees thourshing about them. To such places the parsent small population of the country betake themselves; thither they flock for self pigservation. a sure proof of the litime dependance they have on protection from plunder and rapine under native toversument. The villages, many of which are miserable in the extreme, composed irequently of not more than a dozen hars or the most inferior description, are also for the most part lockhed with the remains of a mound or wall, and protected by a mud fort either in the interior or imminediate vicinity. Such precautions in such a country, however apparently travial and maignificant, were by no nieans useless loving hands of horsemen traversed the country in souch of plunder and even the weakest will and ditch were sufficient to stop the progress of such troops and save the lives and some put of the property of those who fled to their protection. The Rajpoots mean person till and robust, and are generally estimmed braye, their occupitions are those of the soldier and agricultu-11st, the former of which however they seem o picter. The troops which they bring into the held are chiefly horse indeed they appear to enterthin rither a slight opinion of a faot soldier, they are extremely fond of borses, which they take a pleasure in breeding, and their mode of training and manocyer ing them when mounted is super-excellent, their feats are only to be equilled at Astley s, and were they disciplined they would be inferior to no Cavalry in the world. Independent of these reasons for the disproportioned excess of horse the niture of the country seems peculiarly adopted for that description of troops The immense plans enable Cavalry to act with peculiar choics, and render it miesistible when of pool don't to the unconneeted and undisciplined Infantry of a Native Army The Rappoots are of a high east, and evince a reflict ince to intermix with the Natives of other parts of India, whom they look down on with contempt They are extremely fond of a red turban, which appears to be a national distinction. equally gratifying to them all old men and boys, and even their women inclining to this color. The people are by none cans re-markable for hospitality, but I believe it not offended they will not generally in terfers with or insult a Puropean, the nativ - of other parts however do not think it side to trivel done through Rappootmy and where some of those have lone so, they have then some untilly been untildered. But to a time to the subject of dered my letter from which I have too widely windered, I have not though, from the shortness of my reu tiks said ope half of what I could have wished to have written either on the state of the country or char actor of its inhabitants you must therefore attribute the imperior ton of the description to my being at a loss for toom, rather than to any other caus. On approaching the cit of Jypoor the country becomes unusually sandy, and assumes, it possible, a more desolate appearance than ever, it is co cred with high grass, or rather reeds, and without any appearance of vegetation, uit within half a mile of the walls when a mest invariant cultivation buists upon the vi w, which with the splendid appearance of some of the fine buildings, which over top the walls presents a highly gratifying interest to the general britenness of the control The much esteemed and hospi-

in a garden, about a cess in front of the ci-To the exertions of this excellent gentleman, are travellers in that part of the country indebted for every comfort they derive, by his representations, regulations have been mide, and orders have been issucd, which prevent in most cases the possibility of just complaint. The police, as far as it regueds Europeans, descrees the highest credit, and I am happy in bearing testimony to the civility and attention to our comforts which his exertions have procuted us and which I experienced in the most gratifying degree. Shortly after my airis d I proceeded with a party to visit the city and palace, the Resident having kindly secured for us permission to inspect the latter. It will almost be unnecessary to observe that the city of Jy-poor which was built about 70 years ago by in Italian, during the reign of ly Sing, from whom I conclude the city was named is the cipital of the province of the same name, and one of the three principal Rajnot states, the two others being Oudepore and Joudpore It is an a struster city, st-tuated N E E of the Cantonment of Nusscer thad, at a distance of 82 miles, in a valley of a crescent shape formed by the surrounding hills, which are strongly fortified both by nature and art, and afford in ample protection to three sides the fourth having no defence but the my wall, which is of stone, with a puck if reing without cither ditch or compact This city presents a remarkable contrist to the a herality of native towns, and is generally estermed the most beautiful in India streets are most conveniently broad and run parallel, and at right angles with the greatest regularity and correctness, unfortunate ly, however the Buneca's have been allowed to erect booths in the centre and on the sides of some, which greatly distiguic then On entering the town, the first street bears evident trices of former grandeur and it 15 still (altho sadly neglected, and in some places from the sloth and selbsh prejudices of the natives, going fast to deciv) very pretty. It is not less than 100 feet in breadth, and in cleanhae is, notwitistanding its dil ipidation, might vie with the best in any second rate town in England top of it four streets meet, and one of them, the grand chook, is the principal street in the city, its broadth is from 40 to 50 yards, and beneath the centre of it is in aqueduct, which affords, by me ins of wells placed at every 10 or 12 paces, a plential supply of water, when it is not blocked up, which unfortunately is the case at present. In the centre of this street is the principal entrance to the palace of the royal family, of whole I shall speak berealter, and another leading from it in which the Huwa Muhulis situated, 19 remarkable for its being paved, of which I believe there is not another instance in id Resident has bitted up a native house India. The whole of the buildings in Jythe grand choose wants and registry in the server of the s gate, as they could not be admitted within it. Our servants were also denied admission, it heing contrary to the enquette of the court to allow menials to enter; we bowever, had every attention paid us by the officers of the palace, who were deputed to attend on and point out to us the curiovities of the place. So great was the variety of splendid and elegant apartments into which we were ushe ed, that I am at a loss where to commence in my description, my paper will not admit of my mentioning a twenticth put of them: I must therefore content myself with noticing such as more particularly attracted my attention at the t me. The Dewan Khas, (had of audience) was, I believe, the first place we were shewn, and I must confess that I feltmuch disappointment in it. I had been led to expect in the hall of audonce one of the most magnificent and melly adorned apartments in the palace, to my great astonishment however, it was a large stately massive building, open on all sides, and supported by marble pullars, but without any of the rich ornaments I had been induced to expect, on the contrary it was remarkable for its simplicity, and in this respect totally diderent from the interior of the palace. From the nall of andience, we wer led to a spot for the purpost, as the Darogak (Chamberlain) conindentially informed us, of being viewed by the Riner, (the mother of the present Raja, the R mer, (the mother of the prevent Raja, who is an intent of 3 years, and considerably still confined to the women's pharticette;) we tried had to get a per p at he kinhows; but altho we were shown the window from which she was surely and the Ramps a state get a single glimpse. The Ramps a state apartments are extractly apartments are extractly apartments are extractly apartments are extractly apartments and the markets and manner. The round man apartment and the markets and meaning. The round manner are surely and markets and feveracid, with prictures and coveracid, with prictures and coveracid with the flacest white cities in the extending the markets were being the stangly fastened, and so well covered with grants. fastened, and so well covered with rause.

however, more particularly attracts admiration; in it the most beautiful ancocaptily imitated, and the colling decorated with the greatest infinitely taste, and at an expense which must be been enormous from the profimered a them. Attached to several of the seements are beautiful marble bather shadowed by orange and other odories surabs, which spread the most exchange pertumes throughout the place; in fact, no luxury, no clegance, of which we read account in Eastern Tales and the Arabian Nights Entertainments, seem wanting there, to charm the senses and roll me the passis ons. The gardens which are laid out in the European manner, are surrounded by lafty walls and terminated by a large artificial lake, in which are a multitude of turtles, so tame as to assemble to be fed on a certain signal, which they well understand. The gardens are of considerable extent, and are wittered by fountains in every part there; are a great variety of very pretin tires, and shinks, and amongst them the express. and other evidently exotic. Within the exterior will of the palace is an Observitory built at the same time with the city, we unfortunately from the latoness of the hour did not see it, but, I learnt that it was handsome and well built. It is immentable to reflect on the impolicy and enacity of the custom, which prevents the liberation of the" unfortunate women immured in the Zenang. an Bastern Prince after his drorque All the females on the establishment of the late Raja of Jypore are still confined in the palace, never to be released, except by death. How praise-worthy would it be to break through such a dicadfully transical oustonn, and how much is to be regretted that some georrous poble minded man bean does not such the example, and such miner to so ennatural a gustous.

The present Reta will not be release from the female apartments 'ull house y are old, when he is to be crowned, and at the same time fetch home his wife, for he is already esponsed.

As yot no man has seen the future Seve reign except the Prime Mimster, who w permitted as the greatest favor, in comderation of his high rank and relationship to the Rance, to see him; such an honor being altogether contrary to eliquette.

During the minority of the Raja, his mother is Regent, and with the assistance of a ministry, composed of the principal Thakoors, exercises despotic sway. The extent of the palace is immense, and the quantity of marble which must have been expended in building it, would be sourcely credible, were it not known that that stone abounds in the hills in the vicinity of Jypore, from whence the greater part, if not all, of what was used in erecting the Taj, was procured.

All the temples and monuments commemorative of suttees are of marble, and many of the houses, if not entirely composed, have some parts formed of it. There is but one objection which I could discover in this truly elegant palace, and It is one which must emmediately strike an European—the want of more capacious corridors and passages; it is remarkable that the passages leading to the principal and most splendid parts of the palace are so marrow as scarcely to admit two people abreast, and many of them without light.

Elephant fighting seems to be a popular diversion at Jypore; we saw several Ele-phants at the palace, of a most enormous size, and so savage as not to admit the mahouts to approach them. In the rear of the city are some very pretty gardens, and summer houses surrounded by groves of orange trees, and cooled by fountains playing around them, and a number of very elegant light marble temples give the whole scene an appearance of such beauty, as well nigh to make you doubt its reality. Jypore is not celebrated for excellence in any description of manufacture; it has no corn or other articles with which to carry on a trade: I am therefore at a loss to understand whence arises its prosperity and wealth, for it certainly is, as it appears a rich and thriving city. Some very pretty toys, &c. &c. were formerly carved in marble in a most superior stile, but for some time they have ovidently fallen off, and now very few, and those quite inferior, and at an advanced price, are procurable.

Ameer, the former capital, of the prosurrounded by lofty hills, which are similarly fortified to those round Jypore, from which place it is distantabout 5 miles, near-the country is extremely and unpleasantly ly North. The road to it lays over a very sandy, and strongly impregnated with salt, difficult pass, in the rear of the city, which a great quantity of which is collected and for the convenience of communication has exported from theree. Judging from the

ascertaining that point precisely. Report had spoken of the palace of Ameer, as far superior to the new one in magificence and elegance of appearance, but from personal inspection I can speak confidently to the maccuracy of the report, and the whole party coincided in opinion. And yet to do it justice, the Dewan Khas is much handsomer, and the whole of the marble is of a purer nature, and even the workmanship in some particulars is undoubtedly superior, yet the whole design of the building is far less grand and elegant. The decorations of the apartments are too gaudy to be admired by good taste, still there is much to be seen at Ameer to recompense a traveller for the fatigue of coming from Jypore. Just below the palace is the city, which appears to have been handsome, tho of course much deserted, and therefore falling to de-cay. The pucka buildings are numerous, and give the place an an of magnificence; but there is none of that regularity and uniformity which so materially improve Jypore; after seeing which, the appearance of Ameer would have afforded as little musement or pleasure, we did not there-Die minutely examine, ch may account for the paucity of my remarks on it.

Of Jypore I have little more to say; my stay there was too short to enable me minutely to inspect it, or several places in its vicinity well worth seeing; of the city it-self though, what little I have said, will, I hope, serve to give you some idea of it. Circumstances obliged me to hurry through the palace without allowing myself time to examine many things highly deserving of attention, and the same cause compelled me to leave the place without secing the Huwa Muhul, Observatory, and other great curiosities in the city and its vicinity, a description of which would, I am sure bave interested you. I trust though that some of your correspondents in that part of the country, will oblige you with further particulars regarding the city and its neighbourhood, more entertaining than it has been in my power to give you. Of the climate and soil of the province of Jypore I have hitherto said nothing; in hopes, however, of a short account of them proving useful, I will as briefly as possible make known to you what has come to my know ledge on the subject. The soil throughout been paved, but nevertheless the road is appearance of the crops in the vicinity of naturally so bad as to be scarcely passable. The palace which since the death of the supply of water, I conclude that the soil late Raja has been uninhabited, is going is decidedly favorable to agriculture, where fast to decay. It is situated half way up the earth is unincumbered with rock and a particularly high hill, on the top of which kunkur. I have seldom remarked a more last over the palace is an apparently strong.

servations were by no means confined to that apot, or even to its neighbourhoed. Were the population at all adequate to the cultivation of the country, and the ryots protected from violence and oppression, I have little doubt the greater part of Rajpootana, miserable as it now is, might be converted into as fine a corn country, as any in India. Gram, wheat, barley, and even oats, might be cultivated to great advantage, and with salt and salt petre, and other trilling articles be exported to balance the importation of a number of comforts, and even necessaries which are much required.

The climate is beyond a doubt healthythe rains are delightful; whilst they last, the weather is temperate, very frequently sufficiently so to make a cloth coat essential to comfort. At that seasor a westerly wind prevails, whereas in the Duwab, and I believe throughout the provinces, an easterly wind constantly blows. The cold weather is very pleasant, although some-what foggy at times; the mornings and evenings are stremely cold, but duri the day the hear is considerable, from the reflexion of the sun's rays by the rocks and sand. The hot season, altho' perhaps the healthiest, is certainly the most unpleasant period, and the heat's generally intolerable. The hot wind blowing over such an extent of parched country, burning sands and rock, is peculiarly distressing, but the greatest mnovance are the high winds which prevail at that season. From the beginning of February to the beginning of July, for a tortnight and three weeks together it blows day and night without intermission a complete gale of wind, and the quantity of burning sand which it raises, so as absolutely to obscure the sun, is most overpowering No exertion can keep it out of the house, it penetrates the best doors; it mixes with your food, which is generally in the proportion of one-fourth sand ;-if you venture to open the door, you are nearly buried alive with sand, and it you close rt, you are half killed by the heat. But still with all these disadvantages it is a beathly season as is the climate generally, and from what I have seen I still hope that the time may come, when a great improvement in the state of this extensive province may take place. A mild, generous, and wise government will effect this by affording its protection and supported the ryots, and I may yet have it in my power some years hence to inform you that my hopes and wishes relative to Rajpootana have been realized.

The Sun had set—the tingy sky
Proclaimed that night was drawing nigh,
The village Minstrel was tuning his last lays.
As the Curfew toll'd the knell of parting days.

Homeward returns the Shepherd with fleecy care,

With family and friends his frugal meal to share;

He wants but little—he asks no more . Than to keep the wolf outside his door.

His little cot, all neat and trim, His walls bedeck'd with polished tin, Around the hearth, where bright embers

His children sit, telling each their story in his turn.

The sick Sepoys have been obliged to be removed from then. Hospital, and have got into an old Dwelling House, near to the Provincial Court House. The burying places are both under water, so that an European Soldier was obliged to be interred behind the Hospital. There are a number of lahourers, aided by some of the European Soldiers, employed in raising a small Bund with a view of preventing the water from entering the Cantonment Barracks, but whether it will prove effectual is at present All the Country to the Eastward dubious. of the City (Pendall and Ufzul Baghs, Chumpa, and Moidapoor) is in like manner becoming one expanse of water, and how far it may extend, and to what height it may attain, does not at present appear to be within the compass of conjecture. It is hoped that the houses within the European Cantonments are sufficiently high to keep out the water at the highest level it may attain, but great apprehensions are entertained that the centre square will be overflowed. Intimation has also been received that the whole Country from Plasses, to Berhampore is under water, owing it is said, to the Bunds having broken in seven different places ; the whole crops are destroyed, and many Villages carried bodily into the river; yet the river continues to flow with such a flood into the interior, that great damage must ensue.

The local authorities, we understand, are now very busy, but it is to be feared their exertions will do little good in the present

This is a most disastrous and distressing occurrence, and on which all dilation is superfluous—the simple statement will convey a far more adequate idea of the distress and devastation, than any amplitude of exp ession which we could employ—unaccompanded by particular details.

Although the Steam Boat did not reach the Jupuser in the time expected by her Commander, we certainly think that she effected more towards establishing her character, than if she had actually made the passage in six hours in fine weather. She did it in less than twelve against a fresh gale, as will be seen by the following extract of a letter from one of the Gentlemen who went down in her to join the Jupiter; and we very sincerely congratulate the Proprietors on this convincing proof of her qualities as a Soa Boat. We ardenly wish there was another established as an Anchor and Life Boat, and really think it deserving the consideration of the Insurance Committees:—

After opposing every obstacle in point of wind and weather we have reached the Jupiter at 7 o'clock.

It is now I think ascertained pretty certainly what she can do against half a gale of wind and the sea so heavy that she took it in over all, and frequently right into the after cabin, she behaved uncommonly well. It was blowing so hard here when we arrived, that the Ships had their top gallant masts down. Extract of a Letter from Patna, dated August 9th, 1823.—" Such incessant rain, I hardly ever recollect; I do not believe we have had above three or four clear days since the 23rd of June, and the whole country is under water. The Bhudwee crop is entirely destroyed, and the Rice crop very much injured. If we have not clear weather soon, I much fear we shall have a scarcity. The Indigo Planters have suffered dreadfully, and I am afraid eners is no chance of their even saving their expenses.

"Since witting the above, the river has risen most rapidly, and was this morning within a few inches of the steps of my house."

Luckily it has begun to fall, or I know not what would have been the consequences. It was all over the Parade, and the Bazai near Bolt's two feet in the water. A great many of the Houses were thrown down, or rather washed down, and the people nearly drowned as well as starved, for giota has become both scarce and dear. Twelve seers of Rice only tor a Rupee, it has been fair for the last two days and I hope will enable the people to plant rice, wherever the ground is not entirely covered with water, and probably prevent a famu e, who lithey appear to expect. By a letter which I received from Tirhoot this morning, I am sorry to find, that the Indigo Planters crops have been entirely swept away by the unusual hash rise of the Rivers, the people there are actually staiving, they cannot get grain is consequence not only of the scarerty but the impossibility of transporting it by land, from the Bunds and Roads having been destroyed, and there having made no provision for getting it by water. The account of the misery and distress of the people, is most melancholy, I trust however it will only be temporary, there can be no doubt the grain merchants will raise the price of grain as high as possible.

AFFRAY IN THE BOW BAZAR.

An Officer of a Ship in the Free Trade, made, it appears, a complaint at the Police against a Scaman who torm rly belonged to the same Vessel, but who had been discharged for ill conduc', for assaulting him in the streets in consequence of some illwill no doubt he bore him while in the ship. A Police Officer was sent to apprehend him, who found him in a Punch House in the Loll Bazar. The ship officer pointed him out to the Police Seige at, and the Seigeant informed him of the nature of his visit and desired he would accompany him to the Police Office. The Scaman immediately got up from the table where he was sitting, in a great passion, and with a knife in his hand, threatened the mate of the ship. The Serjeaut however interfered and provented him carrying his threats into execution. He then requested the Serjeant would allow him to finish his breakfast which was complied with. He proceeded as the Serjeant thought to resume his former seat at the table where a Magistrates, we retain from noticing the number ofmore Seamen were also collected. but on his getting a little distance from the Police officer, he ran to the door where the Mate was standing, and commenced a violent assault on him. The Serjeant was prevented from giving any assistance by the rest of the Scamen who kept him from going out of the room. He however effected his release by rushing through them, and immedicately seized the delinquent, and was taking him away when some of his ship mates and other Seamen who were in the house attempted to rescue him; the Serjeant it appears (from his evidence before the magistrates,) had 5 or 6 Scpoys, of the Town Chard, waiting for him at the street door of the Panch House, to whom he called for assistance. The Seamen commenced by rescuing the prisoner, but the Sepoys took him a; un, and kept the fellows at hay while the Serieant was carrying off his prisoner; more Seamen coming up and some of them having armed themselves with sticks, began a furious assault on the Guard, the latter keeping retreating and preventing the Scamen from overtaking the Serjeant. On coming to the cross loads at the Bow Bazar they overpowered the Sepoys and was very near coming up to the Seijeant, when an. other of the town Serjeants hearing of the disturbance proceeded and met 6 or 7 of them within ten or twelve yards of the Chokey Gate armed with sticks, and a little further on, another party beating some Sepoys He immediately called out more of the Sepoys who are stationed in a Barrack opposite the Chokey, but before they came out he ran to the assistance of a Sepoy who he had seen defending himself from He knocked the attacks of two Seamen. one of them down and laid hold of the other. The first party turned back, and joined by the other Seamen, who were in the fear commenced again the affray—but the Sepoys who were called out coming up and setting some of their brother comrades wounded and bleeding, a battle ensued, and after a good many cut heads &c. on both sides, the Seamen began to run; some were apprehended, and the rest took refuge in a Punch House: a Scrieant proceeded with a party of the Sepoys to the house, in front of which were a number of Natives collected. A Buggy in which were two Gentlemen drove furiously thro' the crowd and un-fortunately run over two of the Sepoys who were much hurt, one of the gentlemen jumped out and ran away, the other remained in the buggy, and began to use his whip right and letton the people; he got thro' the mob as far as the Police Office, when his horse was stopped by a Police Officer, who after taking his name and place of abode permitted him to go about his business, with a equest that he would attend the Policer Office at 11 o' clock that morning, to answer to the complaint. He did so, and as the affair is still under consideration before the matter any further at present.

The Seamen on being brought before the Magistrates, and asked the eause of their behaving in so riotous a manner in the Town, declared it was their own fault, and they could blame no one but themselves, and in their own phrase said—"The liquor overcame them."-On their expressing contrition, they were reprimanded, and released.

A Suttee took place on Thursday last at Serampore. The victim was a fine young woman, of 16 years of age, the widow of a. man of the komar or blacksmith cast. She was the only child of her mother. The immolation was deferred from an early hour in the morning until nine o'clock at night, during which time every exertion was made use of by the Magistrate Mr. Holhenberg, and by the Rev. J. Marshman, and the rest of the worthy individuals who composed the Scrampore mission. Her mother also vio-lently opposed the horrid ceremony. But all was in vain; actuated by a false enthusiasm, she put her finger into the candle to shew that she despised the pain, and rejoicingly told that she had before immolated herself in a similar manner twice on the same spot, and that she gloried in again having an opportunity of shewing her devotion. She was free from intoxication, and the magistrate took especial care that no violence should be offered to her to induce her to comply. She mounted the pile with cheerfulness, and expired without a groan or a ruggle. Too much praise cannot be bestowed on the worthy individuals who endeavored to prevent this immolation, for their exertions were indefatigable.

THE HINDU WIFE.

After the usual ceremones which she went through with great steadiness and presence of mind, she ascended the pile to which she was immediately fastened, a load of hemp was thrown on her and a blaze kindled, which in a few minutes consumed both the living and the dead

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

SIR,—The remarks in your paper of to-day concerning the Theatre, about persons not attached to it in any shape coming behind the scenes, are just and correct; this, however, may reach those not in the Service, and whatever their situation in life may be, are regarded by their superiors much in the same light as the scene shifters at home are by the first-rate performersuseful but beneath then notice. Will this, Mr. Editor, extend to persons in the Service? No-when I say in the Service, I mean those gentlemen in the Military or Civil line, who, perhaps, having appeared once or twice in subordinate characters, and are willing to come forward again, would think it hard to be denied the privi-lege of visiting their brother performers in that place, where they had often been to prepare themselves for the public amusement, merely because fortuito is circumstances rendered their services uscless that evening, might prove injurious to the interests of the Theatre by withdrawing themselves when most wanted, under the pleathat they were exempted from those claims which have stood from the building of the Theatre.

I do not mean, Mr. Editor, to cast any animadversion upon the superior sudgement of the Managers in the regulations as printed in four paper-lai from it; for if they stand good, and no "maidious distinctions whatever me made," no one as in Amateur can object to it; but when this distinction (as I am afraid will be the ease) will not reach those in the Service, Amatears out of it will of course look upon it more for mockery than for use, and the same abuses will still exist.

You must be well aware, Mr. Editor, that the complaints of strangers intruding behind the scenes are generally brought by those gentlemen who may think themselves authorized to do so, by being either Wanagers or persons high in the Civil or Milit iv soi vice. If you look into this, you will find that the abuse so loudly complained of, a ise from those very gentlemen." who are desired to use their authority to prevent the recurrence of the abuse.

To make these regulations fixed and unalterable, I may point out one or two ways. In the first place, that channel thro' which these intrasions are navigated, ought to be shut up; I mean the door leading into the Managers' room from the boxes, for whilst this is left open, either for egress or ingress. the cvil can never be remedied. It's well known-or at least to those whom it chiefly concerns—that Amateurs not performing that night, have one ticket given them besides to be some indicated for themselves, which could only be shiftined (having disposed off his privileged tickel) by going over the stage and making the Managers therefore if this door is closed up, this channel will be shut to the Amateur, and his proceeding round to the box door without a ticket, of course will not be admitted, as it is not supposed that the person placed there can possibly know an amateur from a stranger,—and if he did, without some document to show, would not allow him to pass through

Now, Mr Editor, to obviate as much as possible the evil complaned of, I would propose an ivory ticket, with the Amatoui s name upon it, (as is the custom with our English theatres) to be given to every performer-that is, to gentlemen the Managers may deem worthy of it. I do not mean for the Cock in Hamlet, or one of the Soldiers in Richard III, or even to the Walking Centleman, but to those who have played respectable characters and Patriotlike stood firm to the cause of the Theatre through every trying occasion. This cuthrough every trying accasion. This enwe should see by the M in gersoffering this ticket (of good'se untransferable) whether the persona arrances were darful or not to thos to whom this offer might be made and in the next place would be a parsport to the or to the front of the house willout in-Astering with the Wandgis a door.

As their is no general, rule without in exception, that instead of the regulation of no Amateurs, excepting those performing that exempy, being those performing that exempy, being idented behind the decrees." I propose a small singular ment—which is, any Amateur honored with this distinction, should singly the same previous 4 at it as going hallow the same previous 4 at it as going hallow to seem so is those allotted to the Alanigers, with this exception, however—that he bings no one with him. This lettle change I have advected to, is worth trying and von may be rest assured, that the fillux of strongers would be prevented, and no doc but those the Managers have saved as a greater secrific, let a Stability plaged as a greater secrific, let a Stability plaged at the stage door to admit home but those with this taket. The Managers, the going disc the first taket from this rule, but were there is about the rule stranger. In the hopes of bearing more about this business.

The observations made in the Calcutta Papers regarding the ago and character of the Ship Swallow lately lost, having led us to make enquiries on the subject, knowing that she was built at this poin, we publish the result which we believe to be accurate as far as respects the intermediate periods of her destiny, having no doubt of the correctness of the first and latter part of the ar count

The Saullow was built in Bombay Dock-Yard by Manackjee Lowjee the Head Builder, Uncle to the late Jamsetyee Romangee. She was laid down in 1777 and launched on 2d April 1778 She was first employed as a Company's Packet as I made several trips to England, we was then taken into the Bombay Marine, and after a short time returned to the P. cket service in which she continued for many years.

She was commanded by the following persons viz. Captains Bendy, Hall, Prony. (while in the Marine,) Anderson, Caus. Chiton, and Spard, and during the period sue was employed as a Packet, to be tollowing Public Characters wer passengers on board her .- Lord Micartney returning to England from his Government of Madi ..., Lord Corow-llis, on his appear tenent to ir dis as Governor General; she convered the same Nobleman back to Eagl and from C 4. cutta, sir John Shore from his Supreme Gr. vermient, Mr. Petric from the Council it Madras, and various other functionaries of

The unusually heavy rains of this season have produced the most rainous effects throughout the country. Even the higher provinces have not been exempted from the devastating consequences of the inclement weather Letters from all quarters describe the misery of the poorer classes, who have suffered from the general cala-Accounts from Secrora, in Oude, dated the 8th instant, mention that it had been raining there for about eight days, up o the date of the communication, without utermission. Up to the 4th instant the nullabs continued rising to, a most fearful On the 5th the waters entirely overflewed the ground-so that as far as the evo could see, it only met a dreary prospect of mundation. The like had never before been seen by the oldest inhabitant of the place. On the 6th the water still continued to T. e., till not a dry spot could be seen, and the bungalows of the station (with two exceptions) were so completely hommed in by the water, that it was found necessary to have recouse to boats, which accordingly were seen puddling or sailing hom house to house. During the 5th, 6th and 7th, the damage done was enormous. and the Officers at Secrora have sustained a very great loss by the injury done to their bung along and out houses; several of the litter have been entirely destroyed. For two days there was upwards of a foot of water within the hospital. The surrounding villages, as may be easily supposed, suffered incalculably. Even in the small town of Sectora, 96 houses or huts had tallen in. The crops of course have been Frais vere entertained that destroyed has might have been lost, but no instance of casualty had been heard of at the time our Correspondent wrote.

From Mooreshadabad and Berhampore the accounts are it any thing mo: dreary. We subjoin extracts of letters from the latter place and Monghyr. At San-Mrs Mary Ann Cumming, Misses Isahella Nash, Jose Nash Maria Pengol, destroying the hopes of the husbandman and destroying the hopes of the husbandman and fipore the river had risen to a dreadthe dwellings of the peasantry; several local instances are given of the rumous effects of the mundation, and the height and extent of it, but at present we do not deemit necessary to quote them more particularly. It is most distressing to think of the sufferings of the poor people unoughout the inundated disirrets on this awful occasion. We most confidently antisipate that Government will, as far as is possible, adopt measures of relief, but we fear a consequence may ause, for the relief of which we can alone look to a mercial Providence. Most happy shall we he if our apprehensions of coming scarcity and discase, in the hundated parts, should prove groundless, but from all we have fearnt, we much fear that they are too well founded.

> Instances of bunds and embankments giving way before the waves of the sea, or using toland waters, have occurred so t.equently of late, that ones attention is naturaily called to the subject, and surely it becomes a matter of the most grave considera jon, whether human life and property may not derive greater security from the adoption of some improvements in the art of raising Bunds and Embankments. We should imagine the subject a good one for a prize essay; and were the Agri- of her affection and the devotedness of her cultural Society to offer a prize for such attachment by the last mountful sacrifice of an essay, we have hardly a doubt but abroken heart. In every relation of life Mis. men of experience and science would be stimulated to record then views, or offer suggestions that might prove highly useful. We suspect that as bunds and embankments and mounds are made at present, the principle of a general cohesion of the materials is not duly studied. Perhaps they might be rendered more firm by being planted with certain grasses and shrubs or trees. Even the sandy mounds and promontories of Islands that have to brave the fury of the Atlantic are preserved cohesive by a kind of grass thinly growing over them, the roots of which keep the sand firm and massy, that it pulled out would permit it to crumble downwards, thus at once making way for the ocean waves to make a breach over vast tracks of ground. Possibly our observations may be deemed of luttle consequence or weight, but if they should succeed in exciting the attention of one single individual of experience and ability, to a subject which appears to us to be one of very great importance, we caunot but reflect with satisfaction on having ventured on them. As it is, our motive must be our apology for offering remarks which we could wish were less crude and meagre.

" Berhampore, 21st August.-We arrived here after a tedious passage of 14 days, in which I had the misfortune to lose my Cook boat. We have had a good deal of rata and contrary wines, and altogether a very lbad time of it. The country is one vast lake-all the yillages where they have not been carried away, nearly described, and great loss of gram in consequence. Hardly any thing can be got, and we have been almost stanced. The oldest residents do not remember the River so high. It has done much damage, and I should not be surprised if it be tollowed by a scarcity."

" Monghyr, 12th August .- We have had two months of excessively heavy rain and Bo great a rise on the River as is said never to have been witnessed before. The whole face of the country is mundated, and I much fear when the water hegins to subside, it will be very unhealthy."

After the notice that lately appeared in our paper respecting the death of Dr. Krys, we did not expect that we should so soon have to repeat the melancholy task of recording another casualty in the same family. We regret exceedingly to learn by last evening's dawk, that Mrs. Keys departed this life at Meerut on the 8th instant. After the death of her adored husband, she fell ill, and in the course of a few days followed him to the grave,—thus proving the strength attachment by the last mountul sacufice of abroken heart. In every relation of hie Mis. Keys wes most amiable, most estimable, and most beloved. Were we to extend this paragraph to the limits which her worth claimed, and which our own inclination would prompt, those who knew not her merits might accuse us of exaggeration but those who knew her well and held her most dear, would say that no culogy which we could pay could be more than was due We shall therefore merely sum up by saying that her virtues shed a grace upon societythat by her acquaintance she was universally respected, and by her friends as siecerely beloved as she is now most decity and descreedly lamented.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZITI:

SIR,-I dare say that the expression of "sweep away the ashes of the Lady, and bring a clean chair," appears to many of your readers to be a mere joke, but sure as a Lady may become a widow, she may be swept away, as we have all aitnessed at Meetit, and of the manner in which this occurred, the following may give you an

Between three and four o'clock yesterd iy afternoon, a tremendous uproar was heard in the Bazar adjoining the lines of the Battalion of Native Infantry, and the rumour of a Suttee was soon spread on all sides, I hastened out, and passing through an immense crowd of people with gay and holi-lay faces, reached the spot, scarce two hundred yards distant from our Bungelows, where a few Brahmins were rejoicing over their willing victim, and whispering encouragement in her ears

. She was seated close to a small pile of wood prepared for the sacrifice, her father, brother, and a few other near relatives were with her, waiting with Hundoo patience and indifference for the event. The Brahmins, as well as herselt, appeared to be inspired with that which the indulgent commentate s of Hafiz prously interpret into divine love, but with how much justice I am not competent to determine.

She was not one of those simple looking little girls that one imagines may be easily persuaded to any thing; nor was she exactly what an Englishman would have called a beauty, but a fine full formed woman of two and twenty, with large expressive eyes, and as sensible a countenance as Lavater could have wished to see, and such as a Hindoo would not have deem'd unworthy of a place at the beavenly court of Indra,

She was neatly dressed in garments of deep red, the festive color of the fortunate, and was literally loaded with ornaments of gold and silvet, she held a cocoanut in her hand, which she was continually tossing up and catching, singing all the while "Sut dehee," "Romehundra sut de." Seeta Ram kee jae"—" Strengthen me Oh Goddess,"
"Divine Rumchundra give me firmness"—
" All held to Sueta Land glory he for Rem!" " All hail to Secta! and glory be to Ram!" and other sentences of a similar nature,

Į

She appeared distressed if any of usspoke to her, and to an offer of money, replied, What would be the use of heaps of gold to. me who am determined to follow my hus-band. Why do you interfere with our ancient customs, that have been for ever, and for ever shall be! I am determined to burn myself whether I have your permission or not: And then looking upwards, with a smile she continued—"Oh Ramchundra, give me firmness that I may burn."

It was about five o'clock when permission came from the Judge for her to burn herself, but it was not to take place in the Cantonments, this was scarcely communicated to her, when she started up and rather flew than ran forwards, the crowd making way for her. A Brahmin and her brother-in-law took hold of her aims, hastened with her for about a mile to the Soorujkoond, (a beautiful tank to the eastward of the town of Meerut) and on the banks of which are groves, rendered sacred by a number of Hindov temples and tombs of fakeers.

In one of these groves a pile was immediately raised—it was hollow, like a cradle, in the middle: into this the poor woman was assisted, and without showing the least alarm or hesitation sat down; and taking off all her ornaments, gave them to her brother-in-law; he gave her; a mouthful of something to eat, and a draught from his on a log of wood, and I balled her head on a log of wood, and I balled her her moved on a loke after.

Not a moment was now lost a several large vessels of glice were emp ied on her liead. and a shower of wood fell on her from all sides, till the pile rose several feet above her head, so that it was quite impossible for her to have moved,-and a quantity of dry straw and reeds was thrown over it. It we sthen set fire to, and the whole was immediately in a blaze; a few of the people near the pile began to run round it, shouting all the while, but not so loud as to have preyented my hearing if the woman had soream-de at all, for I was not then above two yards from her; in about a minute the straw was bunt out, and there was a herrid pause, during which it was thought the file would require to be relighted. Still there was no sound from it, and the wood at last taking fire all was again in flames, and as it burnt away, the figure of the woman was seen exactly as she had at first scated herself.

What feelings, Mr. Editor, can these Hindoos have in common with us, who can thus calmly see their children or sisters put to death, and who can look on not merely with indifference but delight, for I sought in vaid. for a soriowful countenance, even among ther female relatives; and as for the orowd. you would have imagined from their faces that they hid assembled to laugh at the tricks of then Mimicks or Jugglers. Habit cannot have reconciled them to it, for it twenty-four years since a Suttee was known at this place.

Among the many thousands that were present, the only persons that were at all interested in it were her brother-in-law who robbed her of her ornaments, and a Brahmin who was paid for the occasion, and I really believe that all the rest would have been much more delighted to have seen these two worthies get a sound beating than they were.

The brother-in-law has thrown his chuppur over the spot now sacred, and is hourly growing rich from the contributions of numberless pilgrims who go to pray at the shrine of their departed Saint. HAFIZ.

Meerut, July 4, 1823.

HAFIZ has cur best thanks for his communication, and we shall always be happy to hear from him.—ED.

Mr. Mooke's name no doubt is familiar po many of our readers as connected with a happier days when he was the manager of the public festive entertainments of Calcutta. "Mecan's Rooms" ne e cace, what the Town Hall is now—the scene of fashionable resort, and elegant revelry. In endeavouring, however, to give the greatest bulbancy and ellut to the entertainments which gave so much satisfaction to the public, Mn.
Moore got into irrett evable debt. Suffice it, that he, whose house once resounded with the "song and the dance," and whose

The smallest donation will, we have every reason to understand, be most astropublic and most gratefully appreviated. Of this no further proof need be adduced than the fact of the suffering object of this address having to our knowledge made application within the last few days for articles of food and clothing! Distress has little further to go than this.

As the rate of Interest in the Indian Funds seems to be fast approaching the standard in England, every one antiquates a further reduction in Government Loans, and that at no very distant period. Four per Cent, may now be said to be the utmost obtainable in any secure transaction, and the Government Funds do not, at the pretest premium of Company's Paper, yield more. Considering then the immense wealth of Natives, who have no said alternative to obtain income but the Government Funds and landed property; it may fails be inforred that the latter will rapidly approximate, if not reach, the value of such pro-party in England. Good freehold property there is worth 25 years purchase, or an estate producing £100 per annum sells for £ 2,500. Agreeable to this calculation, landed property in India netting Sa. Rs. 1000 per annum is worth Sa. Bs. 25,000. 1000 ger annum is worth Sa. Es., 25,000.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZITTE. Sir.-All the papers of this presidency have been filled with accounts of the extraordinary inundation in the upper parts of Bengal proper, and so far as I can judge from my gage, a more than usual quantity of rain has fallen in the neighbourhood of Calcutta this season. It is rather singular, however, that the Hoogly has not yet visen so high, along Garden Reach, as it did in 1821, by nearly a foot;—almost all the pa-pers have represented it as higher this year nished with a gage of a nature which can-not err, and after the most acripulsus at-leution to it. CALCUTTA.

SEPTEMBER I.

By late accounts from Liucknow, we regret to learn that the cases of European casualties have been unusually numerous. In the list of deaths at that station we have to record the names of Dr. J. J. Gibson, Mis. Gibson, and Capt. For the

THE THEATRE.

Our Thespic fane, we were glad to observe, opened on Saturday evening under the happiest auspices that could be derived from a full house, able actors, and good humour in the audience. The evening was rather sultry. This circumstance, however, apparently had not affected the energies of Theatre-goers, for the house, as we have said was a full one, and it was satisfactory to think, that its being so was purely attributable to dramatic attraction alone, and to no extraordinary or adventitious circumstance.

The novelties of the evening were a little Comedy called "SIMPSON AND CO." and two payends candidates for histoionic tame in the "CHILDRIN of the Wood."

Simpson and Co if we remember right, has only two acts. We choose, however, to call it a Comedy, as it has none of the extravaganza of Farce, and appears constructed upon the principles of pure Comedy. A cotemporary a few days ago gave a sketch of the plot and characters, which saves us the trouble of presenting any other to our readers:

" Mr. Simpson and Mr. Bromley are partners in a mercantile concern in the city. They are both mairied men, and reside in the same house in Mineing Lane. Simpson is a steady character, and Bromley the reverse, and the latter has an intrigue under the feigned name of Captain Walsingham. Simpson's wife takes up a pocket book which contains the miniature of a lady, and this circumstance, combined with others coupled with some hints thrown out by Madame La Trappe, a French milliner, creates in the mind of the lady a strong suspicion of Simpson having violated his conjugal vows. His wife consequently upbraids him with his supposed infidelity, and Mrs. Bromley tells the affair to her husband (the real in-trigging gallant) as before related. On this, Bromley, to carry on the deception, endea-yours to confirm his wife's suspicious, and still further rallies Simpson, whenever ho meets him, on the subject of his supposed intrigue, and its being inconsistent with his pretended steady character.—A young widow, named Mrs. Fitzallan living in Haraley Street, now appears on the stage, who is a friend of Mrs. Bromler's, and who is by her introduced to Mrs. Simpson. From the likeness between the portrait found in the pocket book and the widow, Mrs. Simpson is fully impressed with the idea that she is the object of her husband's supposed intrigue, and consequently she becomes more incensed against him-she upbraids him with his supposed intrigue, and thus places him, innocent as he is, in a very awkward predicament. Simpson, finding his disavowal unavailing, determines to play off a hoax upon the parties prosent in retalistion fer their unfounded suspicions of him, and accordingly declares that the widow has a portrait of himself, and minutely describes the dress in which it represents him, at the same time that he also fully describes the exterior of her house in Harley Street, at which that lady is paturally enough surprised. If turns out, however, that Simpson obtained his knowledge of the house, by having, on several occa-sions, waited on the outside of it for his partner Bromley. The denovement now has-the on, Bromley asks Simpson for his bocket book, the identical one which had excited Mrs. Simpson's jealous suspicious. under the mistaken idea that it belonged to her husband. She matches it from him, when Simpson declares, that it is not his, but Bromley's, upon which Mis. Simpson discovers her error and embraces her how. band in extacy in being thus assured of his constancy.

Perhaps the hint of this petit-Comedy was taken from Muhphy's "All in fill wrose," where there is the same unfounded jealousy to annoy an unoffending husband and a similar mistake about a miniture.

The first act (excepting its conclusion) went off very heavily, and this must alway, be the case when the author of a prece like this inflicts a long explanatory dialogue without incident upon an audience. The ancient chorus was a clamsy enough way of letting people into the plot of a play but clumsy as it was, we should infinitely prefer it to the interminable prosings of two persons laboriously endeavouring to ham mer into our sculls the history of persons unknown to us, and the interests of people indifferent to us. We certainly felt inclined then, to blame the author of "Simpson and Co." for a little too much chorusing, but the liveliness of the succeeding made up for the heaviness of the preceding part, and we should always prefer a prosy beginning and a brilliant term mation to the reverse.

The parts were thus cast:—
Mr. Simpson,—Jack Ardourly (of "Monsieur Tonson.")
Mr. Bromley,—Morblicu of ditto.
Mrs. Simpson,—Adolphine of ditto.
Madame la Trappe,—Mad. Bellegarde of ditto.
Mrs. Fitzallan,—Mrs. Bundle of "the Waterman."

Mrs. Browley, by a lively performer, whose line was wont to be pert chamber-maids and such like.

The gentleman who had the part of Mr. Simpson was extremely happy in it Nothing could be more natural and easy, and perfectly unconstrained than the mitemanity beau ideal he gave of the useful unpresuming citizen perplexed by coolnesses, and insinuations in his family, for which he could not account.

The dashing rakeish Bromley was in the best possible hands, and occasioned much amusement, especially in the equivoque parts with his puzzled partner, and the meeting with Mrs. Fuzzallan. His manner of leading her off to the next chamber, and the sneaking up toe style in which he quitted her there in the abashment of a most awkward rencontie, were exquisitely ludit erous.

Mrs. Simpson pleased us much more in that character than she did on a late occasion. She was better dressed, and in more natural tone; the extasy of discovering that her husband had not failed in his duty and hidelity, and the affectionate caresses that resulted from that delightful feeling, were extremely well conceived and executed. Madame La Trappe as usual in every part she undertakes, cheited much applause, and the fair representative of Mrs. Bromley took a higher range of character than was her wont, and succeeded in a manner extremely creditable to herself and pleasing to the audience.

There is something in the CHILDREY OF THE WOOD that almost always insuces at indulgence; but when performed as it was on Saturday night, it can never fail of being completely successful. The story of this little thing is dear to Memory as a tale of other years, when the young Imagination delighted in such legends, and when joung Sensibility was ever ready with the tribute of its guiless tears. To bring before the gaze of every-day life a wood wild legend like this, and to present before the unbellieving eye the fond illusion of the befieving Imagination, is no easy task; and yet this task was ably got throubg on Saturday night; for the dark, cruel Sir Rowland, the ferocious Oliver, the kindhearted Walter, and the devoted victim children of the nursery, appeared before us in reality, such as they were painted in the baronial castle and the lonesome forest. The characters were east thus:—

Sir Rouland,—Mr. Simpson of the former part, Gubriel,—Bromley of ditto.
Olivel, --A respected Amateur returned.
Walter,—The Bundle of "the Waterman."
Apathy,—Thomson of "Monsieur Tonson."
Lord Alford,—Useful of ditto.
Winfied,—Madame Da Trappe of the first piece:
I ady Helen,—Mrs. Simpson of ditto.

Lady Helen, Mrs. Simpson of ditto. Josephine. – Mrs. Fitzallen of ditto. The Children -by two Juvenile Debutantes.

The scenery was most beautiful, but we cannot say much for the singing. Six Row-land looked and acted his part very finely. Walter was great-great in his conception of native kindness of heart and pathos, and great in his affecting defineation of them. The whole of the expostulary scene with Olver—the combat, and the final terrific hirst of teching on discovering the loss of the children, were most powerful appeals to nature and we were not sorry to find that the sensibility of many present testified to the correctness of this remark, and the emment abilities of this veteran favorite of our Drury.

The Children went through their parts in a wonderfully correct and pleasing manner, and were most affectionately applauded throughout.

Apathy was a most capital representation of the tippling cateless tutor. Gabriel was delightfully drunk and droll.—Lord Alford and Oliver were excellent.—
Winified was most particularly admired es the pest personalization of a kind hearted superstitious old cottage Dame that ever was.—Josephine was very good in that part, and far superior to her first effort of the evening as Mrs. Fitzallen. She should keep in that line indicated by her capital performance in Mrs. Bundle, and her successiul endeavours in Josephine. The fine lady is too much for her. In singing she pitched her voice too high.—Lady Helen was very agreeably done. Perhaps she should always dress if possible in coloured drosses.
The removal of the Chandelier over the Governor General's box is decidedly a eff great improvement. We consider the introduction of chairs in the same light. There is a crying necessity for a Refreshment room and an Amphytrion to supply obvious liquids to those who need them.

It is satisfactory to find that our appeal in Mr. Moore's favour is likely to be productive of the effect which we contemplated when we made it. By reference to the letter of "A Subscriber" in page 198, it will be seen that we rather fell short of the absolute hardship of the case than over-coloured it in our statement. It now appears (and we have found this to be the truth from other sources besides "A Subscriber's' letter,) that Mis. Moore shares her husband's captivity and state of checiless deprivation. Such an instance of purely disinterested attachment, thank Meaven, is not a rare feature of the female character, nor shall we expand the upon it. but it would be improper to overlook it entirely. Mr. Moore has, we understand, now endured seven long years of captivity, and had not the faithful com-panion of his prosperity cheered the darkness of his adversity, it must have been intolerably bitter. Putting it in its best light, how few of our readers could look forward with composure and fortitude to the prospect of spending seven years of blank existence within the walls of a jail? Mi Moore, however, after these dreary years have ran their course, has 20 prospect of leaving his present melancholy mansion. We know not who his creditors are, or what renders them so rigorous -but really a pemod of seven years captivity in a foreign cinne, we should unagine, ought to weigh duly in the bosom of the most exasperated cicditor, even granting that cause existed to make him justly incensed against the individual whose body is his sole property. It has been proposed, should the subscription for Mr. Moore amount to any sum of consideration, that trustees should be appointed to watchits proper appropriation so as to render it more solidly useful than mere desultory occasional contributions could be The Commercial Bank, we are authorised to say, will receive such sums as may be subscribed, with a view to be distributed by trustees, and in the Commercial Bank for the present we mean to lodge such confirbutions that have and may trach us. We have been requested to give insertion to the following letter,

To G. UDNY, Esq. President;

DEAR SIRS

Holding situations of responsibility under two ancient Societies in communion of the Church of England, viz. "for the Propogation of the gospel in foreign parts, and for promoting Christian knowledge," we cannot look with indifference on the proceedings of the Church Missionary Society, founded. 22 of essedly upon the same principles, for the maintenance of the same object, and actually leagued with those two Societies. m what is, beyond exception, the greatest Missionary work yet undertaken in this country. Allow us therefore under these claims (to which may be a fed he cordial Subscription of one of us to you Society in the character of a Church Missonary Society, and the as cordial disposition of the other to avail himself of any safe tory conviction of the reality of that couracter to subscribe) candidly to state to you the sentiments, which the projected formation of a Church Missionary Association at this time has excited in us. And we trust that we shall appear to have been actuated by no ther mouses than those of conscience, vicen we are reduced to the painful nethose of persons, for whom we in commons entertain the most sincere personal respect and regard.

If there is any principle which appears to us essential to the very existence of an episcopal Church, it is that of the Apostolicak martyr St. Ignatius:—'That without the Bishop nothing can be legally done of things pertaining to the Church'—and nothing surely comes under this character more than the work of commissioning and employing Missionaries, a work which belongs to the Church, go it is the Church; from which every thing relating to its connexion with the state is, by the nature of Christ's Kingdom, no less than by the policy of all equal and tolerant Governments, expressly excluded; and in this notion of the Church, it is well known that there exists at present no Episcopacy of our communion in India.

To our unfeigned regret we feel the conviction forced upon us, that this essential principle has been overlooked in the new arrangement, projected by the Committee of the Church Missionary Society acting in Calcutta. We cannot, however, separate the general recognition of it from the society and the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of it from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the society acting the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the general recognition of its from the gener ween the duties, which we owe to the Episcopal authority as Ministers of the Esta-clishment, and those, which we owe as Members of a Society for advancing the progress of the Gospel; and more especially when the avowed principles of that Society are those of the Episcopal Church. Under all the peculiar circumstances of the case, the proposed measure seems to us to be fraught with danger to the peace and welfare of the Episcopal Church in India. The new Bishop may be expected to arrive in little more than a month hence; and we have asked the question with the utmost astomishment, and it will be asked by others,—Why is this period, which (just as it were studiously) anuidates his arrival, fixed upon as the "time which has at length arrived for forming a Church Missionary Association."

It cannot be unknown to any of the Members of the Church Missionary Committee that the grand and comprehensive scheme of Missionary excition planned by the late Bishop of Calcutta offers a full participation in all its advantages to the Church Missionary Society and that the only difficulty, which seems to stand in the way of a cordial co-operation, is the intimation of a doubt on the part of their Committee in Calcutta respecting the construction to be put upon certain Statutes, on which they have officially expressed their interior to make communications to the Bishop on his airival. We cannot, however, but view with alarm that intimations, connected, as it seems be, with this projected association at such a moment. The Bishop is known to be at least a subscriber to the Church Missionary Society on its avoised principles in England: and we cannot, therefore, without the deepest regret regard a proceeding, which appears to admit the principle of giving up Episcopacy altogether, except as a State convenience for some part of the Externals of Religion, which loves sight of its uportohe character and authority, and sets the Church of Christ, as to its extention in the World, on a totally different tooling trust we shall not appear presumptuous in thus setting the obsoleteness of our opinion against the increasing popularity of that which we deprecate: seefeel that our ordi-nation vows most solemenly bind us to this ONLY view of the case, nor can we consider it any other than a short sighted wisdom, which would contemn all the institutions of our ancestors, in works intended for posterity.

We see no advantage to be derived from thus precipitating a measure, all the objects of which might be attained as readily and with much greater consistency with the character of a Church Society a few weeks bence, and more particularly as we are well aware that the sentiments of the new Bishop are expected by the Members of the Committee to be fayourable to their views. We can only view it therefore as calculated, by setting up a new and independent authority in the Church, to produce a breach of Unity and Peace. With whom this heavy charge will lie, the world must judge; it certainly is not to be expected that the Bishop will in any way concede that charactler, with which his consecration has invested him, nor abandon in any degree those principles which are recognised by all true Members of the Episcopal Church.

Most earnestly and affectionately, then, we intreat that this declaration of our sentiments may be considered with charity and candour: that so we may look torward to a cordial Union in the great and common cause between the Committee and ancient Societies of the two venerable and ancient Societies of the Church; an Union, however, which will hardly be promoted by any ill-advised or precipitate measure on the part of the Church Missionary Committee, at the very moment previous to a general and satisfactory arrangement to be anticipated from the only legally constituted authority

Having thus discharged our conscience, we shall only add, that the documents now existing are sufficient to prove that this desired Union and co-operation depends on the Church Missionary Committe alone. Should this expression of our opinions fail in the effect, which we carnestly proxit may produce, we shall at least enjoy the satisfaction of having discharged a paintal obligation, and shall readily submit our sentiments to the consideration of all who protess to be friends to the Church, as well as to the three Societies, whose avowed principles are entirely hostile to any presuming contempt of Episcopal authority.

We remain with sincere respect and regard. Dear Sirs,

Your faithful and Obedient Servants, W. H. MILL, Principal of Bishop's College, and Constituted Agent for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

J. HAWTAYNB,
Secretary to the Calcutta Diocesan Committee of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge.

PROSPECTUS

For establishing, by means of Steam Navigation, a communication with Calcutta and the East Indies generally, via the Mediterranean, Isthmus of Suez, and the Resident the Voyage out and home to be some pleted within 120 days.

I deem it unnecessary to dwell upon the Miciency of Steam Vessels to navigate upon the open Seas, and to encounter severe Gales, even with greater advantages than these provided only with Masts' and Sails. Persons who entertain doubts on this point, will be best answered by perusal of the dif-ferent Reports of the Committees of the House of Commons.

It would be superfluous also to attempt to demonstrate that which is in itself evident I mean the very great advantage that would derive to Merchants individually, and to the Public generally, by the means of speedy communication with our Asiatic Dominions.

How this desirable object may be attained with the prospect of a tair remuneration to those who are its promoters and supporters, I will endeavour to shew, advancing always my opinions with diffidence, and inviting inform ition from Gentlemen whose experience on some points, or whose data on others, may enable them to detect inaccuracies or suggest imp ovements,
The difficulties to be surmounted are of different degrees, and present themselves in a natural succession, in which I propose to discuss them.

And, 1st. The Route up the Mediterranean, across the Isthmus of Suez on Camels, up the Red Sea, round Ceylon, and up the Bay of Bengal to Calcutta, appears the most ducce.

We have next to consider the capability of a vessel to carry fuel for the greatest distance, that between Socotra and Cochin, of 1350 miles. And although in calculating the expense of Coal, I shall assume that a yessel of 400 tons, with an Engine of 100 horse power, may obtain nine miles of speed from the consumption of nine bushels of coals, or that the expense of coals will on an average he equal to one bushel per mile; still I think the vessel should at each depot complete to at least 60 chaldrons, which on the greatest distance would admit of their making as little as five miles and a half per hour, for the whole passage; and on the distance between Plymouth and Gilralter, where at some seasons the greatest resistance may be expected 60 chaldrons would be sufficient at the rate of four miles and a half per hour. And if the calculation be made on Ten complete Voyages in the year, at the greatest consumption, i. e. suppo ing 60 chaldrons to be supplied from each depot at each demand, we shall arrive at a quantity that may be considered as sufficient for the first supply to the different depots, to be afterwards kept up according to the actual expense. And it will be-

Next is to be considered the Passage of the Isthmus: -and, until negociations are entered into & arrangements actually made, we must be contented with a calculation of the Expences on a scale which will certainly exceed the reality ages, the rate of passage may be lowered to 1501 fixing the interest at 12 per cent. and setting apart a sum for redeeming the capital, for experimental purposes, and for constructing a carriage road across the Isthmus, with proper halting places, a point which, by the judicious application of one or two thousand pounds, might be effected through the Pacha of Egypt.

Having, I trust, demonstrated the advantage likely to result from the proposed Establishment, it only remains to devise the means best calculated to promote it. And I can speak positively to the cordial cooperation that will be given by our Asiatic friends.

In the foregoing Prospectus I have calculated on an expense which would be adequate to the establishment of a number of Vessels sufficient to keep up a constant communication with India. But as prejudices are to be overcome, it will perhaps be prudent to begin with only Two vessels, one on each side the Isthmus, and to increase the number as the confidence of the public betomes established.

In making this Estimate, it would have been unfan to calculate on contingencies, but there can be little doubt that the expense for Faci might be very considerably reduced. Ships proceeding to the Mediteriancian, and which now frequently go in ballast, would it a demand existed, be glad to deliver Coals at an advance of from 10s. to 15s. on the shipping price in the river.

The Insurance and Wear and Teat are also estimated at a very high rate; whilst on the other hand no profit has been anticipated on the carriage of letters and dispatches, which would certainly accrue, since the Post-office could never afford to establish an independent conveyance.

J. H. JOHNSTON.

Most of our readers, we imagine, are prepared for the foregoing prospectus for establishing a Steam Conveyance to England. It is now submitted to the public consideration, and it is proposed, after it has been a sufficient time before them, that some proposition should be founded on it. It has obtained the countengues of those most interested at home, and the Committee of East Inda Trade have entertained it very warraly. Feeling satisfied of the perfect leastbility of the plan, they have requested Mr. Briggs, of the House of Briggs and Co of Alexandria, to correspond with Mr. Sulti and to make, himself, personal application to the Pacha of Egyp., for the purpose of ascertaining how far he may be inclined and enabled to allord assistance and projection to the passage across the 1sthmust Mr. Briggs was to have England in August.—The Board of Controul has expressed a favourable opiaton, and the subject was before the Committee of Shipping, Maddifications in the Quarantine Laws were about to be introduced during the present Sessions, and we trust that the scheme will receive every aid in this part of the World.

Our readers will readily believe that we inserted the prospectus of the Steam Navigation yesterday with very great pleasure. When the subject was so much commented on a few months ago, no objection of a more positive nature was stated beyond that of the necessity for quarantine. This objection has not escaped the notice of the Gentleman who has projected the scheme, and accounts are shortly expected from England which will render it no longer a matter of consequence. The next difficulty is the passage across the Isthmus. On this subject we feel quite saushed that, every day, journeys of far more difficulty and an-no face take place in India, and that, afto a proper and regular communication shall have been made with the Pacha of Egypt, the facilities which will be afforded will tender it a pleasant relief on the voyage to England. We think the projector has in no degree been over sanguine. The first calculation is the distance and the time it would take to run it. In the event of the perfect establishment of Mr. Peikin's improvements, which will reduce the luck more than three fourths, there will be no necessity to touch at any of the intermediate ports mentioned, and consequently not only will the distance be considerably shortened. but also the delay at anchor avoided. The average too we think is under-rated, and should be disposed to make it seven miles an hour instead of five and a half, at all events the projector has most laudably refrained from any thing in the slightest degree exaggerating.

The expenses will of course be lessened by the reduction of the quantity of Coals required; and all the other estimates appear to have been made with such a studied anxiety to show the greatest possible expenditure, that we imagine the scheme will not be opposed on that ground.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Sir.-I have but just seen (at 8h. 20' P. M.) your praiseworthy appeal to the public in behalf of Mr. Moore, who has been so long confined in the Calcutta Jail, and I immediately write these lines, which will be forwarded to you early to-morrow with a subscription of ten Rupees. This small sum is sent, in order to induce others to subscribe who cannot adord to give any thing consi-It persons of influence in the society will contribute an equal sum (sending privately such farther assistance as they please to afford) the subscription may become general, and effectual relief (such as can be given to one en Jail) be afforded to Mr. Moore without any contributer suffering the smallest meonvenience

My principal inducement to addressing you on the present occasion is, to mention, that Mr Moore is not the only sufferer, he is accompanied by Mrs. Moore, whose con-Jugal attachment, causes her to share with her husband his present misery, although she labours under great bodily infirmity, and, if I be rightly informed, she night by going to her family in England, enjoy not only the necessaries but all the comforts of life -as far as relate to food, raiment and shelter. -- If you be kind enough to write a few lines on this point, I think it probable that the society will be moved, by compy'ssion for the long sufferings of Mr and Wes. Moore, and through admiration of Mrs. Moore's laudable conduct, to afford them material pecumary aid, and probably to effectuate their liberty

To my knowledge I never saw Mr nor Mis. Moore in their better days, but a knowledge of their present situation is sufheient to create an interest in their behalf in the breast of any man who is not a disgrace to his species, and especially in all who abhor the law which indisciminately authorizes the imprisonment, the unlimited imprisonment, of Debtors Few me can more abhor this most unchristian law than,

Your obedient servant,

THE FOLLOWING REGULATION IS PUBLISHED FOR GENERAL INFORMATION.

A. D. 1823, REGULATION VI.

A REGULATION for authorizing the institution of summary suits to enforce the execution of certain urities engagements for the cultivation and delivery of Indigo Plant, and for declaring certain principles in egard to the same:—PASSED by the Go-vernor General in Council on the 10th July 1823, corresponding with the 27th Assar 1230 • Bengal era; the 17th Assar 1230 Fussily; the 28th Assar 1230 Willarty; the 2d Assar 1880 Sumbut; and the 29th Sowaul 1238 Higeree.

THE poverty of the lower Preimble. orders in India, and particularly of those employed in agriculture, occasions the general use of borrowed capital for the production of the chief articles of trade and consumption. The capitalist advances his money and sometimes the seed likewise, upon a contract to receive the produce of a defined quantity of land, either at a certum fixed price, or at rates to be subsequently determined with reference to the market price at a spe shed season; and this system is understood, generally, to prevail in the province of Bengal, in the cultivation of the plant from which the Indigo dye is extracted. According to the exist-ing Regulations, it the contracting ryott should fall to cultivate the land in the manner specified or having so cultivated the land, should sell the producto another or otherwise defeaud his credi or and fail to execute his contract by delivery of the stipulated irticle the person with whom he has so contracted has no other remedy than aregular action for the recovery of the penalty conditioned in the agreement. It is usual for the courts of justice, in detecting such process to inverd with limited penulty as may, in each inside app ar to be a fan compensation to the person making the advance for the non employment of his capital In the abs nee howev r, of my rule for the regulation of the discretion thus assumed much confusion has arisen from the conflicting opinions and judgments of the several junioral officers, as to the extent ecoverable on agreements of of penulty this nature Under the rules for imposing at imp duty it is provided, that ill deeds and agreements shall be written on paper b aling a certim stimp, proportioned to "the value of the property transferred, or otherwise affected." But in agreements of the kind above described it is not clear whether tie amount of the st mp ought to be fixed with reference to the sum actually advanced, or to the penalty or penalties which may be specified as eventually exigible on the tailure of the contractor and it is of great importance to the part es, that this point should be determined so as to prevent the risk of bona fide deeds being rendered void, in consequence of any inaccuray in the description of stamp paper employed in drawing up the agreement. It seems reasonable also that the person who advances seed and capital, or capital enly, for the expences of cultivation on a defined parcel of land, should be considered to possess a hen and interest in the Indigo plant produced on that land when so the pulated in a written engagement hetween the parties, and especially in cases in which such witten engagement nav have been duly registered, under the provisions of Regulation XX, 1812, and that it should not be in the power of a ryott who has already conditioned for the delivery of the produce of his land to one person, to break the condition by a clandestine and traudulent trausfer of such produce to another. The system at present in force provides, as above observed, no other semedy for parties injured by this dishonest practice, than by a regular action in the Civil Court. The difficulty and delay of obtaining redress by that course, have not unfrequently led to acts of violence and even to serious affrays, and the more frequent occurrence of such affrays is to be apprehended in consequence of the eager competition which now prevails amonest the Indigo manufacturers in sems parts of Bengal, arrang from the unsually high price of Indigo The Covernor Gene-1 I in Council has in consequence judged it expedient to declare the principles on which the points if ove stated shall be settled, and to provide for the more prompt adjustment o disjutes, and ento comerts of contracts of the nature above specified, and the following rules have necordingly been passed to take effect in the several distrits compused we has the province of Bongal, from the date of their promulgation

SEPTEMBER 4.

The weather for the last few days has been and is now extremely sultry and oppressive. As yet, however, it has not proved particularly unhoalthy; nor is there any reason to apprehend that it will; but people would de well to be gautrous in not exposing themselves to solar influence at present, and temperance perhaps claims more particular attention to its rules during this turn of the year than at any other period.

A Native letter states, that Cholera was not prevalent at Lucknow. We have not heard any particulars respecting the recent sudden deaths there, nor can we pronounce at present whether these were actually caused by Cholera or not.

There is a report that a Rajah who was on a visit to Benarce, was killed by the house in which he resided falling in upon him in consequence of the heavy rain. Several of his people were killed with him. Wo have not heard of the R yah's name, nor do we vouch for the correctness of the report.

The price of grain is rising, and we would advise those who require gram to lay in a stock without loss of time.

Reports from the up country continue to describe the distress of the inhabitants of inundated tracks and villages.

Calcutta is no less distinguished by its Theatrical than by its Critical spirit. Ligo's sentiment appears to be generally set of upon—" for I am nothing if I am not critical." Our Chowringhee Drury it seems is not the only Thespie Temple in Calcutta that claims the plaudits of a audience, or calls fouth the liquid none of the Critic. We are ashamed to confess that we know not the localizes of the Minor Theatre at Pollock Street, consequently we have never seen the celebrated povente GARRICKS and PRINCE WROS who strutteen little hourthere: but in all conscience we have heard enough about them. Our read as would be surprised were the to tearn the number of Critiques, Panegyries and Anathemas that have reached u , having for their subject the late performance at Pollock Street. It is impossible for us to submit the whole of them for publication, but we have inseited two of them. Some of those in our possession betray an ungenerous spirit utterly unworthy of legitimate crincism, while others evince an amitrary usurpation over the King's English of a most de-potic character. We also protest ag. . t certain personalities which some of our Pollock Street Critics are rather inclined to. A Critiomay fairly give his opinion that an actor's countenance and appearance fit him more for Tragedy than Comedy, and vice versa, and may hint to a canditate in delicate terms, that he is not suited for the stage at all -but offensive allusions to personal defects or peculiarities of legs, arms, face, body, and so forth, should never be made. A Critic should like any other Christian, do as he feel he himself could meet with perfect good humour were he the actor.

There is to be a performance at Dum Dum on Wednesday the 10th instant, to consist of the Comedy of "The Rivals" and the beautiful Melo-drama of "The Broken Sword." As it is for the benefit of the performers, we trust that the friends of the Drama in Calcutta will on this oc casion cheer the Thespic band of Dum-Dum with their presence or their patronage. Those who may not be able to go so far, may, we trust, find it convenient to pur-chase tickets for their friends. The weather it is likely will be favorable, and the drive therefore agreeable.

We have received R. M. B.'s donation of 50 Rupees for the widow and family of the 2d Officer of the Swallow. We have lodged the sums received on Mr. Moon's account in the Commercial Bank, and were glad to see the names of other subscribers to the charity there, besides those previous-ly published. There is an erroneous impression, we fear, respecting the Detainders ag unst Mr. Moore. At any rate, it is but just to remark, that an European gentleman who suffered great loss by becoming joint security for Mr. MOORE has no detainder lodged. The conduct of this person to Mr Mooke, as well as we can understand, has been most forbearing. We have permission to mention his name, but that is unner stary we conceive, and we only al-lude to the subject at all to rescue this person's name from a particle of erroneous odium should such have most unjustly for a moment attacked to him in this matter.

To the Editor of the John Bull.

Sir. - In transmitting to you for publication in your Paper the accompanying Letter, I am directed by the Calcutta Corresponding Committee of the Church Mussionary Society, to press their deep regret at being under the necessity of doing so in their own justification. They highly deprecate discussions of this nature in a Newspaper, and conceive that in most cases, they might he prevented by private friendly explanation.

It will be learnt with astonishment, that no attempt was made to obtain any such explanation of a measure, as the Committee apprehoud, so unreasonably censured; nor did the Reverend writers even wait for the Committee's Reply, to their official remon-

On the verno other observations but such as he should morning of the day (the 28th,) which the feel he himself could meet with perfect good Committee had fixed for considering their answer, they find with pain this serious protest against their proceedings, inserted in a public paper.

But independently of this consideration, the Committee regret the appearance of the Letter on a much graver account. They cannot conceal their surprise that individuals professing a cordial attachment to the discipline of the United Chur h, should venture thus publicly to arraign their Brethren, and to assume the right of passing judgment on their Seniors; more especially as two of the persons, thus publicly censured, hold under the authority of Government, agreeably to the Act of Parliament, the high Office of Commissioners for the Ecclesiastical affairs of the Diocese. They conceive that such a course exemplifies that very spirit of schism, which the writers so much deprecate

Calcutta, 28th Aug. 1823. §

> TO THE REV. W. H. MILL, Principal of Bishop's College, and TO THE REV. J. HAWFAYNE Chaplain of St. James's.

Rev. Sins, -We acknowledge the receipt of your Letter of the 25th instant, and are much concerned that the proposal contained in our late printed Gircular, respect-ing the formation of a Church Missionary Association, should have called forth such a Letter from you, as that to which we now reply. Our concern is increased by the conviction that, (owing to the different characters under which you have addressed us,) no reply from us can be completely satisfactory to both. One of you declares himself not yet satisfied as to the real character of the Church Missionary Society. If therefore in his estimation the Society itself be of dubious character, it is scarcely to be expected that any of its operations should be approved. He who avows himself unfriendly to the Pacent, is ill qualified to judge impartially of the offspring. It is obvious that we only meet one of you on common ground; and it would be more did to conceal that we do so on the present day caston with considerable pain. We had hoped that his acquaintance with the dayle-ty might have impressed him with the conviction that it is at really in union with the United Church, as it professes to be; and we could not read without concern the riterated passinges, where the words avoid and professed used in reference to the principles of our Society, by being underlined, convey an impression to the Reader, that we are guilty of insincerity.

Before we proceed further we cannot forbear animadverting on the encumstance, that the Chaplain of St. James' should have addressed us to the character of the Sceretary to the Calcutta Drocesun Committee of the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge. This signature assumes an authority, which does not exist. The writer will be considered by those who are unacquainted with facts, as acting by direction of that Committee, and its Members will be displeased to find that the Secretary has, without any authority whatever), impugned the conduct of a body who themselves form a part of the Diocesan Committee, all of them being Members, and one of them pro tempore its President. We are at a loss to conceive how the Secretary could venture to write as the agent for an ancient and venerable forceto, of which we are in common with himself the warm supporters, no discussion on the subject having taken place at any Meeting of the Committee May not this give rise to the supposition that there has been some collision or misunderstanding between us and that respected Society ' Such an event has never taken place, nor can we auterpate that it ever will. We deem it of importance to guard against theidea that they rolest contained in your letter har, in any degree, emanated from the Calcutta Diocesan Committee, our business being at present with two individuals only

We are not called upon at present to vindicate the Church Missionary Society for Its proceedings are before which we act. the world When not only many of the most distinguished personages and Peers of the realm, but Prelates and Dignitaries of the United Church, rank among its Patrons, it is painful that a suspicion of its want of identity in doctrine and discipline with that Church should be entertained by any of her Junior Members; and it has always appeared to us that on subjects wherein the opinions of the best and ablest, men in the same communion are divided; Christian candour requires that no interence should be drawn against either party's fidelity to its avowed Church principles.

We come now to the main point in your letter, and on the supposition that the character of the Church Missionary Society is fully understood, we feel a real pleasure in meeting the conscientious suggestions of its friends (as one of you professes to be), and awail ourselves of the opportunity now afforded of explaining what may appear open to objection. The objections in your letter may be reduced to two-one regards the measure itself, and the other, the time in which it has been be ought formard.

With respect to the means itself, your letter appears to have been seatten under a total misconception of the core you represent the proposed association as fraught with danger to the reace and welfare of the Episcop & Church in India. as " a proceeding which piears to admit the principle of giving up episcop ev altogether," and " as calculated, v setting up a new and independent authority in the Church, to produce a breach of unity and peace," it is evident that its real character is unknown to you. If by any legitimate construction, these serious charges could be in the smallest degree substantiated, wo should be amongst the earliest to discourage and deprecate the measure. The projected association is intende simply to strengthen the hands of the Society's Missionaries by the co-operation of laymen, chosen from among at those who dwell in the district, which form the princip I sphere of the Vissionary's work for the purpose of adme the cause by the clocal experience and activity. These (from their habits of intercourse with t -people) are all ways found to be valuable co-adjutors. At the pre'immary me ting when the resolutions were introd, the objects of the assoclat Th in the deb ed as appears in the pre ted Cure "The objects of this association vici these or the parent instrtution, comprehending their love whatever may and to advence the Mission-ary cause according to it's plinty and resources, and especially to all forth the zo I of well disposed person, in the established Courch to support Missionary ex-citions to collect, and disperse, as widely as possible, information connected with Missionary subjects, to print religious Tracts, and superritend Schools for the poor Native Caristians, and the Natives of India in general " This regulation is in exact conformity with the printed regulations of the parent institution, modified according to the existing circumstances of an association in this Country, for the seventh of the printed regulations for the associations in England, (with which you cannot apparently have made vourselves acquainted) describes the object of the Committee as follows .- " The object of the Committee shall be to call forth the zeal of well disposed persons, and particularly those of the established Church in support of the Church Missionary Society, and to recommend proper persons who may offer themselves as Misperson as widely as possible Missionary information, to promote the formation of branch associations, and to procure collections and other contributions. Every attentive reader will perceive that the regulation for the English Societies has, in fact, been made the ground work of our own Such alterations and omissions as appear on a comparison of the two annihilate the injurious charges contained in your letter. It being obvious that what nught possibly seem to imply, or rather what might by uncharitable objecters be considered as implying, the assumption of episcopal power 18 omitted, and other clauses are added descriptive of lay co-operation in a Country the this. In the present instance no new and independent authority is contemplated. The friends of the Church Missionary Socepty, out of whom the association will be abound, have already existed, as a Missionabody, helping forward the cause by Leaving the cause of the cause of the cumary contributions. They are now liked upon to do more, to contribute a contribute a contribute a contribute a contribute a contribute a contribute and opportunities. Missionery objects, in union with The Missionary objects, in union with District Computers Committee Christian Knowledge, Promoting composed also of Clerical and Lay Mcmbars, conduct their important operations at their respective stations in England, and in this Country Nothing can well be imagined more remote from an independent body, acting separately from the Bishop, than such Committees. It is well known that the proceedings of the several Dioc san Committees are regularly so'm itted to the Bishop; and the labours of this proposed association will, in like manner, he submitted to our Diocesan, they will be conducted under his eye, and subject to his revision

It grieves us to be under the necessity of adding (to which necessity however your letter has brought us) that it will be no part of the business of this essectation (as you have assumed) to be commussion Missionaries." It can attempt nothing which is exclusively episcopal. It is mexpressibly, painful to us that the insumation has been publicly thrown out in your letter from proposing to act independently of the phocesan, and this norm so as you your elves well know how anxiously us have expressed our own, and the porent Society's wishes that all our plans and proceedings might be placed under episcopal superinten-

After this plain and simple statement of the measure proposed, we confidently hope that no enlightened friend of the Church will see any thing objectionable in it, or any thing which in the slightest degree departs from the professed character of the institution. Nor can we perceive the connecting link, by which you have interfered that such an association is meanistent with our desire of a full participation in all the advantages of Bishep's College. The Church Missionary Society has sought that participation, having contributed largely to its, foundation, in common with the other two Societies of the united Church, and we have ourselves carnestly solicited it, and officially expressed our anticipation of a satisfactory. result, on the arrival of our Bishop. Our cause is indeed in every sense -one; we are injured when any institution to the contrary is made. The Clerical Members of the Committee feel much pain in adverting to your mention of the solemn obligation enforced upon them by their ordination vows. Claiming with yourselves a deep regard to those obligations, and anxious to discharge them fully, in their spirit as well as letter, they have in vain sought for any appearance of meonsistency with those vows, in the measure they now advocate. They conceive that nothing but an entire misconception of the case, could have led to such a conclusim. The measure of an association for Missionary objects is similar to what has taken place in all the Counties of England, and they are convinced that the formation of such a body by the aid which it will afford to the Missionaries already established here must essentially promote the cause and contribute to produce that organised state of things which the new Bishop will be glad to witness when he shall take possession of his charge.

In what has been said of the measure itself we have an impated much that might be urged in regard to the time for bringing it forward. Having shown the nature, moreover, and import once of our proceeding, we have substantially met all your observations respecting the puncture for its origination.

Under your total misconception of the measure concemplated, it is not surprising that the time selected should appear objec-No time could be suitable for such nonable an institution as you have represented ours to be, for what is repugnant to Church order and disciple, must continue to be so, and can never be seasonable. But viewing the measure in its real character, it appears to us that no time can be unsuitable. In fixing on the present juncture however, we have been guided by circumstauces. An association has been long contemplated, and frequently urged by the Society from home: In undertaking this new work, we felt pur need of additional help, which is happily atforded, as we have stated in our printed Circular, by the arrival amongst us of the Revd. J. Wilson, a regularly ordained Chargyman of the united Church. In saying that "the time was fully arrived," for the a-sociation, nothing more was intended then this—that no further obstacle templiced to the torniation of what had been so long. wanted, now that he could engage the services and leisure of an English Missionary

It will be a subject of regret to us if the above explanation of the proceeding which you have represented in such injurious cofours should not be deemed satisfactory by the public to whom you have appealed. It however any misconception should remain, we are persuaded it will be soon removed, as we doubt not the association will commend itself by its own operation. To our Diocesia (whose speedy and sate arily il we cancerty desire,) it will be our privilege and duty to com numerate on this and on ill other matters connected with his high charge and we trust that our conduct will prove the structury of our professed attachment to the Church in which he presides, and that he will and in us hearty supporters of the Mission iry cause committed to his superintendence

As this correspondence, will be submitted by us to the Bishop of Calcutta on his uni val in this Country, we must decline my further discussion through the public Pa-We re, 11615

The house was almost crowded before the hour of seven, which evidently testified the liberal assistance this nominal Theatre receives from those of their own society that are admirers of the Drama, it is therefore adviseable for the proprietor and managers to insule a continuance of the patronage and support they now obtain from their generous minded friends, by strongersty on deavouring to render equitable pleasure and satisfaction in results. I would fam refrain from saying ary thing of Puff. This Amateur unfortun Tely possesses not that garety of spirit to enc animation to this whimsical character, consequently the meeting with his boistetous mistiess, which is humorously drawn by the author, was fairly lost, -neither did his dress represent him as a servant, Jasper played tolerably. In the After-piece, Lawyer Scout was played by a gentleman, whose dormant passion long since indulged, and hitherto fruitlessly cherished for personating this chanacter openly, was made chert on the Pol-lock Boards. Every time he appeared on the stage acknowledgements of success crowned the efforts of this dispairing votary of tame, as if the Muses had conspired to realize his anxious wishes this evening. The scene wherein he meets with the miser Wool-merchant a second time after imposing on him for the cloth-his pretensions to insanity-the starts and wavering articulations for wholely deciving him, and the happy termination of his well directed intrigues by resorting to the Birch Broom,was admirably sustained, and afforded much merriment. Snarl was quite at home, but Charles, his son, I am sorry to say, succeeded a itin his parts; if the latter was given to little Richards of the former occasion, it would have been better played. Planway in the same took up Justice Mittimus, and main-tained it very creditably. Yesterday's Report announced the arrival of the Ship Madras, Captain D STER-1180, from Rangoon 16th August.

It gives us great pleasure to record an insome of liberality highly creditable to the Insurance Offices of this city They have, we understead, subscribed is a present to Captain Harding, the Officers, and some of the men of the Argyle, as well as the Pilot Mr Warms) who was on board when she was found to be on fire, one per cent upon the sum instruct a each Office, making an aggregate of allove twelve thousand Rupies, as a rink of their approbation for the exertions made by the parties referred to, to putting out the face. Such a praise-worthe donation so judiciously histowed, will serve, we trust, as a stimulating example to o hers to any similar case.

An agreeable change took place in the cathery extendity,—from extreme muggisless to a pleasant coolness, in consequence some refreshing showers.

RENOTE SINGE, it is rumoured, contenplated a campaign in Mooltan, after the rains. The name of a Mr. Jackson frequently occurs in the Ukhhars as one of hearing its Sindars. This person, we believe, was formerly a Leutenant in the H. C. Artiflety.

The beating of tom toms, the waving of banners, and the turkling of cymbals, early vestered as morning greeted us in our ride, reminding us that the festival of the Moburium had commenced the evening before. As the streets are apt to be crowded on this occasion by noisy bands of holiday resulters, every precaution becomes necessary for the conservation of the peace. Persons riding, or driving skittish or tund horses, should also be particularly on their guard in approaching or passing by the turnultiously musical votaries of Hussein and Hussein, especially at night.

The Rajah whose death was noticed in our last paper, as having been caused at Benares by the falling in of a house, was Rajah Dulgurjun Deo, Zemindar of Pergunna Bullia, in the district of Gazeepore. Mr. was sent in to Benares by the Judge of the Gazeepore district agreeable to the order of the Court of Appe I, under instructions from the Sudder Dewanny Adamlut, issued in conformity to Regulation 52, 1808, will a view to ascritain the state of his mind, the Board of Revenue for the Central Provinces having had reason to deem him disqualite on the ground of nantal derangement, produced by an excessive use of opium.

At the meeting of the Medical and Physical Society, held on Saturday evening last, there was a very numerous aftendance of members and of visitors interested in the prosperity of the institution. Two distingurshed individuals, Major General Hyan WICKL and the Hon'ble So C. GREY, of Madras, were elected Honorary Members of the Society, and several new names were added to the fist of Non-Residents. We are happy to learn that this is daily increasing, and already comprizes a very large proportion of the Medical Gentlemen of Loth services on this establishment, besides some belonging to the sister Presidencies. til the advantages to be derived from such an association properly conducted, there can exist but one opinion Societies of this description at home have conterred lasting benehí upon Science, and we confidently entertain the hope that an equal degree of use fines will ultimately be found to result from this one now established among ourselves. Among many instructive communications read at the meeting on Saturday, there was one of more particular interest from its detailing the offects of the new remedy fodom in Gortie (Gluga of the natives,) This discase, wo understand, is extremely common in some districts of India, and the acquisition of so powerful an agent in its removal becomes therefore an object of the first Though known for several importance. years to the scien the world as a distinct chemical punciple similar to Oxygen, Clotine, &c . Todate has but very recently be so applied to the practice of medicine, and it is on that account the more essential that every fact connected with its administration in Goitre of other diseases should be carefully noted and recorded. We should be glad tooknow whether, as it is a marine production, some plants or fuer may not he Yound on the shores of India to vield Indine in greater abundance than those from which it has hitherto been obtained at home. This would seem highly probable from the water of the ocean, containing a larger proportion of saline lagredients in hot than in temperate elimates, and thereby it may be presumed imparting a character of greater intensity to the vegetable elements, in whose formation it is accessory. Another subject of great interest to all classes of the community, was brought before the Meeting; namely, the destruction occasioned to timber by various kinds of insects. Specimens of the Paroges were exhibited, of the Temas Fatalis, or white Ant, and the Teredo Navahs; and the Members were solicited to direct their researches with a view to discovering the best mode of preventing these destructive effects.

The Masked Ball given at Nusseerabad by the gallant Commandant of that station, is described as a most builtant thing. There were several excellent characters and groupes. A Barrow woman Tom Jerry and Logic, the Devil, a Dandizette, and a great fat Frow, are described as having been capitally supported. When we remember the localities of Nusserabad, and the difficulties of procuring there the elements of elegant entertainment, we cannot but admire that generous spirit of polished sociative which can convert a firstant and a barren spot into a smiling scene of rational pastime and refined amusement.

The Subscribers to the Irish Relief Funds wilbe happy to learn that the sums collected in this country were likely to prove very substantially beneficial. We refer our readers to the letter of Mr. Smith, Chairman of the London Committee, to the Honorable Siff. W. Macnaghten, Chairman of the Calcuta Committee. It will also be satisfactors to those who subscribed in this country for the relief of the distressed Sutherland Highlanders, to learn, that the amount raised, in addition to Government bounty, had enabled many indigent familie * to emigrate to the back settlements of Canada. We have seen letters from this newly established colony, and the perusal of them has satisfied us that their change of destiny 19 to themselve, a matter more of smeete congratulation than of legict. The linguish apathy of Despan had given way to the teaction of well-grounded hope, and Industry was rapidly improving their late as well as the free of the wood wild Even in the commencescenes around, ment of their labours and the outset of their carrer, these expatrated sons of Caledonia had not forgott n in their speculations of profit what was due to i ducation and religion. A regular system of parochial instruction was established, -a Church built, and a Miester and Elders appointed, that the people might follow the form of worslap derived from their tathers. The Gaelic of Erse is the common language of those people and it is rather a matter of curious reflexion to consider that a language which is now comparatively dead in that country where it was originally the prevailing tongue, should in a manner take new joinciples of resurrection in the wile sol America. By and bye, judging from the effects of a new system of political economy pursued by the highland proprietors, the native character with all its bright spots on 1 all its defects, will become lost in the general overflow of common-place manners ideas, and men, which that system (hoppily perhaps in the end) is calculated to produce, and instead of lo king for the genuine flight inder of yore on the heath-covered hills of Albin, we shall have to seek him in the fresh independence of his faculties, and the warmth of his native temperament, in the woods and diugles of Canada.

To the Honorable So FRANCIS WAC-NAGHTEN, vc. &c &c.

IRISH COMMITTEE ROOM. London, 13th March, 1823,

SIR,—On the part of the London Committee for the relief of distress in the Southern and Western provines of helium 1 have the honour to acknowledge the recipt of your esteemed communication from Calcutta, dated the 19th of October 1822, in which you have had the goodness to apprise the Committee of a genitance having been made to Messys. Coutts and Co. of £4000 in Bills drawn on the Honourable the East India Company, on account of this Committee for the relief of the suffering poor of that part of the Uniced Kingdom.

I have great pleasure to state, that a notice has since been received from Messrs. Coutts, announcing the safe arrival of the Bills, and their intention, in obedience to your directions, to place the same, when realized, to the credit of the Irish Computate for the charitable purposes under their special care and management.

The Committee have also had an interary with Mr. Fulton (of the house of Rickinds, Mackintosh and Co.) from whom they have learnt, how deeply the cause of Charty is indebted to the generous and powerful efforts made in its support by yourself and other distinguished indistinct on an occ sion so truly interesting to Great Britain and Ireland

It is proper for me to state for your information, and that of the gentlemen with whom you are associated that a very consider ble sum (not less in the whole than £300,000) has been raised by Voluntary Subscript on in this country, in addition to the sums granted by Parliament, for the immediate relief of the starving peasantry of the Southern and Westera provinces.

The greater part of this magnificent contribution was forwarded to the distressed districts in the course of the last summer, in Money, Provisions and Seed Potatoes, to arrest, as far as possible, the progress of famine and disease and it may, with great truth, be affirmed, that thousands must inevitably have perished had it not been for the prompt administration of the liberal means so opportunely afforded.

A very layourable Harvest of Potatoes has providentially occurred, and has much relieved the temporary difficulty which arose from the previous scarcity, but, it cannot be concealed, that much yet remains to be done, in order to put the people in a condition to avail themselves of this relief, and to provide, by a settled system of Industry, for future emergencies.

By way of explaining more particularly the actual state of the Irish Poor, and the views of the Committee thereupon, I beg leave to enclose the copy of a letter addressed to the Right Honourable Lord Amberst, a few days previous to his Lordship's departure for India, written, you will perceive, before the accounts could reach us of those proceedings which the humane and liberal spirit of our fellow subjects in that distant part of the empire, had induced them to yet on foo.

Be assured, Sir, that the generous sympathy now evenced will be duly appreciated—and that the liberal subscriptions already announced, as well as those which we are allowed further to anticipate, for the relief of the indigent Peasantry, shall be applied, with most scrupulous care, in the endeavour to effect some permanent amelioration of their condition.

Permit me to add that such an enlargement of our charitable fund, at this time of extreme distress and want, cannot fail to be productive of the happiest effects to the proper threselves, and to perpetuate those technics of grateful attachment towards then tellow countrymen, which must greatly tend, along with other measures of a remedial and conclusion nature now in train, to the lasting peace and prosperity of that part of the United Kingdom.

I have the bonour to be, Sir. Your most of edient and faithful

FESTIVITIES AT NUSSERABAD.

The potens of Laetasque deget, eacheet in diem Dixe e, vivi.

To the Editor of the Journal

Sin,—Our Assembly Rooms are at last finished, and the whole station met in them last evening at a Masquer de and Bill, by the invitation of Su D. Ochterloaev, and I have seldom witnessed a scene of more joy and hilarity.

"I can't describe it, though so much strike, Nor liken it—I never siw the like"

I will however do my best to give you some idea of the different characters.

Our excellent host was drest in the fall costume of a highland chieft un, as was also another son of Caledonia. Mott FLANNAGAN was supported with great tact, and OLD SALLY was munitable; her soldier's jacket and coloured handkeichief, her ready repartee, in fact, her tout ensemble excited the admiration of all. His sable Majesty was there—" seeking whom ho might devom:" this character was well sustained. Two SAILORS were admirable: a Danbyzette, a dancing bear and leader, a Jew, a Clown, and Harliquin,—a Lidy of five and twenty stone, a MAGICIAN, several old Ladies, a HUSSAR OFFICER, two or three Moduls. Tom, Jerry, and Locic, were all supported with more or less vivacity, and went off with celat. Dr. Spinz-i HEIM'S dress and manner were excellent, and excited universal admination.

At about 10 o'clock His Majesty's Court of King's Bench was opened by Lord Chief Justice Prosen, who delivered an admirable address. The cause tried was Lady Bridget Fe-Fa-Fun v. Miss Polity Whispernuch, for Defamation, The pleadings were opened by Mr. Seijeant Split Case, and carried on by Seijeant Hotblatm, for the plaintiff and Seijeants Wrangles and

Spin-Cist, for the defendant. The witnesses were Dr. Spurzheim, Tim O'Livey, and Mr. O'BRUN, O'PHILIM, O'NEAL D'Courcy, O'HALLORIN.-Dr. SPURZHEIM dilated with a great deal of gesture and spuit on the amiable "boomps of the ade," conspicuous in Lady Bringer, and those of a contrary nature on the cramum of Miss WHISPERMICH: the Irish evidence excited applause, and that of Mr. O'HILLORAN was given with such knowingness, in such a brogue, in fact with such Trishness, (if we may so express it) that the whole room was in a roat—as the card of invitation imposed no necessity of coming in character, many appeared in propria persona

None of the ladies were in mask, and only five in lancy diesses; one appeared in the becoming and handsome diess of MARY QUEEN OF Scors, made of white satin, with black trimmings, and a could almost fancy myself in company with that beautiful and once happy woman, a second lady was diessed in the Swiss costume, an booked well two others in the habits of country guls, with cottage bonucts. The exquisite simplicity of this dress, (which, I think, the prettiest I ever saw), the case and grace of the wearers, arrested the attention and drew forth the applause of all, a aith lady appeared in somewhat of the Greeian cosfume, her hair being dressed in the true Ioman style which is particularly becoming. All the other ladies were in ordinary ball dresses. At about twelve, most of the maskers unrobed and re-appeared in their usual dress; the dancing then commenced and was confunded with great spirit until two, when supper was announced, and the company adjourned to tents, where they sat down to an excellent repast. After supper, and, "the Ladies," "the King," "the Duke of York," and "Sir E. Paget," had been drank, the dancing was carried on with great vivacity until 4 o'clock, and the ladies departed just before "old Titan's daughter tanged the eastern sky"-and the genthemen returned to the supper table, there they quaffed

"The claret smooth, and as the hip we piess In sparkling fancy, while we drain the bower The mellow tasted burgundy; and quick, As is the wit it gives, the gay champaign."

and it was not until Phoebirs had "driven far his fiery steeds" that all the guests retired.

We are happy to inform our Military friends, that an order for the relief of the Troops was issued by His Excellency the Commander in Chief at Benares, on the 21st ultimo. We hope to be in possession of the particulars in a day or two, which we shalf have much pleasure in publishing Excellency's Head Quarters were at C huna: on the 26th ulumo.

The following parficulars of the loss of the Ann Law a has been obligingly communicated to us by the Pilot in charge, and may theretore be depended upon.

The Pilot went on boated this vessel on the 23d of August at half ast 5 o'clock in the evening. On the 24th got into the South Channel-on the 25th found the ve sel had sprung a leak, and that there were only two buckets to bale out with-on the same evening at half-past 7 the vessel went down, when seven people as belofe stated were drowned. The Pilot, the Captain, and six natives got upon the raft, which was prepared when she was found to be sinking. The following day two men who could not hold on the rait any longer were drowned. On the 28th got on shore between Bercool and Balasone about five miles from the latter place. The natives treated the unfortunate sufferers with much kindness at Balasore, Bercool, Juggernath, Kanti, and every where in the course or their journey to Kedgerce, and we are requested thus publicly by one of them to offer this testiment of gratitude to them for their kindness. The Pilot walked from Balasore to Juggernath without On the whole, nothing could have gone offe shoes or stockings, jacket or waistcoat, and better than this entertainment. I cannot while on the rait during the whole of the three days, they were without any food of any description. When the vessel was found to be sinking, she had two anchors to her bows, one of which was out away, and the other kept, and the vessel was run into shoal water. No hopes are entertained of saving any part of her carge, which consist.

ing of salt must necessarily be spoiled.—The yards were cut away for the purpose of making the raft, but the vessel was so destitute of stores of every description that not even a harmor and nails were to be found on board her. A ship was seen going in on the 24th when the ensign was hoisted, Union downwards, and a whiff for a boat, and although the vessel was only five miles distant and could plainly see the signals, she paid no attention to them.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

To the Editor of the John Bull.

BIR, We have read with the utmost surprise and grief a Letter addressed to you by the Rev D Corne, and feel the utmost delicaey in replying to assertions and sentiments, so uncongenial with the general character and feelings of the individual, from whom they proceed, an individual, whom we have ever regarded, and ever must regard, with sincere personal affection and respect. We regret as much as he can do the necessity of making public our difference of sentiment. But the astonishment of your Reathers will be increased when they are told, that we did wait three days, the longest poscable time, for a reply to our Letter. It was not till we were positively germain that no reply no micaled, that we relicitantly sent out letter to the Press for we do not consider it, nor will any reasonable mand conder it, as a reply to a remonstrance, first to carry the obnormus measure, and then to inform the objectors that their suggestions had been unattended to. We know, that on the morning of the very day (August 28.) on which they had already resolved to cai-By their proceedings into effect, the Church Messionary Committee were not agreed whether any answer was to be sent up to the period of sending our Letter to the Press on the evening previous to the intended Meeting, we had not even an acknow-ledgement of the receipt of it.

We have fully excilpated ourselves in the following letter from the charge of having arraigned" their proceedings, or of having in any tespect, assumed the character of Judges; but we have also asserted our right of passing an opision on a public measure equally of Semority in a Church, of which we are qually Preabyters by ordination. For the long services, the piety and wittues of the individual, to whom we reply, we feel as men the highest respect to his "high office as Episcopal Commissioner" we asknowledge all the deference, which our fully and allegiance to the Government, whence he derives that authority, demand; but we entirely separate this character from that, in which alone we addressed him, and in which we owe him no canonical obedience, that of a Member of the Church Missionary Committee. It was not in the character of Episcopal Commissioner that Mi Cortie became connected with this association but to represent a variation of sentiment from him in either character as "Schism," so long as we adhere to the ordinances of the Church, argues, we conceive, a total misapprehension of the meaning of the term, and of the liberties of the Church.

We are, Su, Your wost obedient Servants,

Calcura, 2d September, 1823.

To G. UDNY, Esq. President, and the other Gentlemen Members of the Corresponding Committee, of the Church Missionary Society in Calcutte. Dear Sins,

We have considered with much regiet your answer to om Lett not the 25th Angust, betraying, as it does, a feeling of asperity which we did not conceive our Lettor calculated to excite. Having assumed no authority as Judges, but only having asscried as in hyddua's, closely connected with the two ancient Church Societies, our indisputable right of expressing an opinion on a public measure, in which both those Societies had an interest, we load hop d that the general tone and temper of our remon- race would have sufficiently shel-Leisdus from all such personal reflections as we find in your Reply. We are mor: particularly concerned at the obvious attempt to seperate between us on a subject, on which our sentiments were expressed in common, and are indeed in the most perfect unison The claim of the Church Missionary Society, to be really regarded as such, depends, mour united opinion, as well as in that of several of its members, for more on the future than on the past: and while, we agree in warm attachments to the objects proposed by your Society, and are no less agreed as to the character of the measures which we deem necessary to support its pietensions, we cannot admit the distinction, which would represent one of as a friend, and the other as an enemy. It was simply our joint desire as friends to press upon your notice the inconsistency of the measure then proposed, but not yet adopted, with the character and name of your Society; and in doing this, that use of the terms "annual" and "professed," which is so much complained of an your answer, must appear to every candid reader unavoidable.

With respect to the individual so prominantly morked out in vivil and the society of the control of the con

With respect to the individual so prominently marked out in your Letter as distinguished from the other by a peculiar feeling of hostility (uhich, however, he uholly disarows,) we cannot fail again to perceive the tendency of your remarks to excite unpleasant feelings in the Members of that Society, to which he has so long devoted his services. As Secretary of one of its Diocesan Committees, he is responsible Servant to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge: and in using that designation, he has "assumed" no "authority," whatever, he did not claim to act as 'Agent" for the Society or the Diocesan Committee, still less to represent the sentiments of either (not indeed did the other signature as actual agent to the Incorporated Society pretend to represent the views of that body,) but as the three Societies were involved in the question, it was obvious to prefer this signature to that of "Chaplain of St. James's Church," in which character he might not immediately arpear to have any connexion with either. For thus declaring his opinion, he concorves no authorny to be requisite.

Having premised these necessary explanations, we must distinctly avow our opinion, that none of the circumstances, which called for our remonstrance are removed, or even effected by the states ments contained in your reply. These circumstances, therefore, we beg leave to represent as follows ,-

First -That when it was put entirely within the power of the Church Missionary Society, as our documents show, to connect itself with the regular episcopacy in India, or at least, when the only doubt that appeared to remain, as stated by yourselves in April last, was to wait the solution of the Bishop on his arrival, the period just preceding his airmal, was fixed upon as the moment for new modelling the proceedings of the Society at Calcutta, for we cannot fail to recollect, that the arrival of the Rev. Wr Wilson, took place so long ago us April last.

Secondly.-That the association then formed for the purpose, as you state, of "employing and aiding Missionaries" was organised, not only without Episcopal sanction, but without the least mention of the Bishop as having any concern in it; who, however, according to the principles recognized by the Church Missionary Society itself, is the only legitimate centre of such operations. And here we beg to remind you, in reference to a remark in your Letter, that no District Committees can be formed

Thirdly, -That this Association was in-deed so constituted, (and that differently from all associations of the saids name in England) that the Bishop could not its Hishop, assume the Superintendence of it, consistently with the order and Polity of the. United Church. He might, indeed, if he were pleased so far to lay aside his office, sit as a Member of the committee with Ministers of other Communions, united with his own Clergy and Laity, to govern what is termed exclusively a Church Missionary Association.

These three facts speak for themselves, The inconsistency of them with the whole constitution of the Church, whose name they bear, is to our minds so striking as to call for our remonstrance as a necessary duty. The last fact, especially, we waid even now endeavour to recommend to your candid and serious consideration. English Associations (of the nature of which we are not so wholly ignorant as your reply supposes) being intended for the mere purpose of circulating information calculated to excite an interest in Missionary allairs, are not so as cessarily connected with the Eerlesia-jeal Government of the place, in which they are holden Yet your Society has thought it due to the reality of its character of Church Missionary Society to enact, that the Government of all such Associations shall be committed to a certain number of Lay Members of the Church of England with all Clergymen who subscribe, as assessors. But in framing this Calcutta Association, which is in fact a body of Missionary Labourers, this condition so essential to the professed character of the Society is omitted. It is not Cay. Members of the Church but Laymen in General; and not all Clergymen subscribers, but all Ministers of the Gospel connected with your Society, who are to direct this most important Association. On coupling this with that passage in your Letter, which states the Association in Calcutta to have been modified after their Associations " according to the existing circumstances of this Country," only one conclusion can be drawn, viz, that you conceive the existing circumstances of India to call for a relaxation of our Church Polity in at least its Missionary concerns. Now if this is really the opinion of those whom we address, we do not imagine that they would besitate to avow it, but the same candour obliges us to express our disecut from this opinion, as dungerous both in its principle and its conclusion.

Convinced that the order and discipline of the Church propagated from the earliest times, and from an authority, which we oonsider as Apostolic, are not only essential to the well being of our Communion at Home but are if possible, more peculiarly necessary in her relation to the Catholic Oburch abroad, we carnestly deprecate the adoption in India also ten; which anni-kitata the distinction and annually conhilates this distinction, and antually con-founds our Church with any other. Protest. ant Community engaged in Missionary und dortakings. The state of our Missionary Church in the Dioceses of Quebec and No. va Scotia, planted by the same Incorporate rejoinder. Your own Suciety's influence in Travancore, the most important and interesting beyond comparison of all its Eastern Sindions, depends altogether upon this character of our Church. It is a fact, to which we would ever implote the attention of your Committee, that the fruly Christian labourers of your realous Missionaries for the Spring Church in that Territory, would be in unngered defeat and rum, if the Metropolitan Cherry and Larty of that awarent Church were invited, as we have been to consider the late proceeding here as recognized in principle by the Engtish Charah; had in daing this, we feel that we have made the strongest possible appeal to ing mous and collectioned minds. For this fact, that one of us whose you have the get lit to distinguish as "a pressi," consuler himself responsible: it is whit he has repeatedly and earliestly urged to one of your body in where at least this mate open expression of his sentinents can create no surprise; and the application of the fact he willingly loaves with yourselves.

We conclude with expressing our deep to ret. That I have met, at least, if I have not very highly merited, the approbation of the Government, whose Servant I am, since my return in 1822, may be very fairly gathered, from this Government having appointed me, to the situation, which I fill in the Civil department of its service. But it is known to you, that from the day, on which this appointment was announced, I have been the object of a series of the most gross libels and malicious calumnics published in the Calcutta Journal. Had the Public Press confined itself to fair, and proper animadversion, on the incompatibility of a sacred and a secular occupation, in one, and the same person, I should have been the last man to complain of it. The Local Authorities, who may be presumed, to be the best judges of the question, had decided, in the very act of my appointment, that the duties of both the situations, which I hold, may be properly performed, by one and the same individual; and I have yet to be informed, that attention to the one, on my part, has encroached on what was due to the other. I have heard with contempt, and treated with utter re-gardlessness, the allegations of ignorant presumption, as to what are the law and prague of my Church. These allegations betrayed an ignorance of this Church, which I scarcely expected to have met, even among those, who can only be supposed to know our polity, as one of the subjects of that general information, possessed by all, who pretend to an acquaintance with the history, and institutions of Great Britain .-The remarks, therefore, of the men, who set themselves up as champions of the Church of Scotland, against her Clergyman atthis Presidency, who, without vanity, may say, that he has done her "some service," in his day, I allowed to " pass by me, as the idle wind, which I regard not." But when libels affecting my own Character, in the most tender points, were repeated, day after day, I found it necessory to appeal to the Laws of my country. The Report, published in the Calcutta Journal, of the Judgement you pronounced on those libels, renders the prement address to you, a duty, which I owe to myself—to the Members of tay Congregaexercise of all the rights, and privileges of an Established Church-of which, in the mean time, the Local Government most liberally refused to denude them-I reckoned it not unbecoming, to discuss the question, through the same channel, by which my opponents called upon me, to support my pretensions. When at length our rights were secured, beyond further controverse, by the passing of Mr. Caming's Maritinge Bill, into a Law, I retued from an arena, into which a determination to maintain these rights, again t all who might call them in question, had est introduced meand before the Mirror Paper wis sugaged, in what has been all along talsels represented as a personal alterection with the late Mr Buckingham, I, at reast, had given up its management.

I am truly reluctant to intrade so much of my private, and individud concerns, upon your attention; but accused of an unworthy love, at once of money, and of state, I may be permitted, in justice to myself, to appeal to my Friends, Messre Larki's, Lockett, and Di. Lumsder, whether I did not, on my late arrival from I'm land, refuse the superintendence of a N ws-Paper, at a proffered Salary of 1,200 Rapees a month. These gentlemen will readily b ar witness to the truth of this statement and they know, that I declined not the occupation, from regarding it, as in itself improper, or meompatible with Cherical duties, but solely from a determination, not to engage in the disputes, which at that time no conductor of a New spaper could have avoided; and into which, I think a Clergyman could not have entered, without giving to many well meaning people, cause of offence.

After having been so much in the public mouth, it may sound strange to many, to hear me claiming all the praise of a retired and peaceable Citizen : but having given my libellers an opportunity, of proving in a Court of Justice, that I am not entitled to this character,—which opportunity they have allowed to pass, without making good their Charges,—I may expect, from the man of candida, and economo justice man of candida, and economo justice.

of my Church, at the outset of my life in this Country, until I was assailed through the Public Press, and even held up to you my individual opinion of the Letters, which the law had denounced its severest penalties. It was not, until thus assailed that I betook myself to the Press, as a wearpon of defence; and while I was taking the firmed a most casential piece of acceptant penalties. The manufacture of the Letters and the Fattern to Me. Babara to mecessary steps, with the General Assembly to the best interests of virtue, and good or and Board of Controul at home, to secure der. The literary merits of these Letters to Presbyterians in India, the undoubted excellence. They vindicated the 'absent living, and the venerated dead.' from calumnies, which distanc and death prevented the suffering parties from repelling; and they displayed throughout, a tone of honourable, and generous feeling, for every thing praiseworthy, so exalted, that to have been their author is, in my humble opinion, to be proclaimed the champion of all, that is viriuous, good and graceful. I speak of these Letters thus fully, that you may not imagine, for a moment, that had I been really answerable for every line of them, I hould feel o herwise, than proud of them .-- I stop not, however, to insult your good sense, by any laboured attempt to shew, that it now at least, signifies not one tota, whether I wrote the whole, or any part of those Letters. It I claimed them as mine. vanity would, doubtless, be the charge against me-if I disclaimed him. I should he met by incredulity - I k ow Sir, that I am so far digressing, but I do so the more willingly, to shew you and the world, that with every disposition to refrain from censure and severity of remark, on an absent individual -I have yet a greater and a fearless regard for what is due to TRUIH, and Candors, to Honour and Honesty.

It is very true, that those, who would fasten these Letters on me, as their author, assign to them a very different character, from that which I have now given them-They represent them to a public, uncoquanted in a great measure, with their real complexion, is every thing nefacious, s midalous, false, and calumnious; and they crose the catalogue of their iniquities, by proclaiming Dr Bryce, to be their author. It was to seek gredress for this among other injuries, that I called my calumnators into a C ur of Justice, when they might have proved, had they been able, alike the calumnious and disgraceful character of the Letters, and the fact of my having written them. But, Sir, if I am to believe the report of . what there took place, as it is given by the libellers them e ves, the very act, for which I sought the remedy, which the laws afford. was made by the Judgo himself, who administered these laws, an "excuse" for ratistion!

have never, until now, delivered my apinion on these Letters, in such a manner, as to give them eyen the removest chance, to being made the ground of newspaper throughour. I cannot, indeed expect, that the semiments of so hundle an individual,

y rsy, I have only to protest against being held up as its regenerator; and to state, that a regard for my own character, having compelled me tius to speak of them to you, the sauc mitive will lead me to be silent with every other person.

If therefore, I am now found in the field of discussion through the Press, let the cand d and impartial say, if I am a volunteer in this field. I have at length been driven before a Tribunal, which I studied to avoid, by my reported reception at one, which I much preferred, as actuated by purer mo-tives-guided by more impartial, and better defined rules -- divested of prejudices, and bound, and ready, to banish from before it, the lying tales of common 1690rts Yel, at this tubunilisms reputation stated to have been so for swiffed to rumour that I retire from it with a character judicially pronounced to be less valuable, then the character of any other Cleigyman in this country!

Where I sought reparation, I grieve to sas, that I am thus made, to have found the most material injury, I have yet sustai red. Those, who know, and still respect me, lament indeed, that I should have ever brought this action,— an action, which, as if there had been something criminal, or illegal in the very act of raising it, von are represented as saying. I was justified, in bringing! and you would give me damagesto shew so I not-what I went into Court alone to seek-damages to shew, that the I w, which protects character and reputation, had been violated in my case, and should not be violated with impunity. My enemics, on the other hand, can scarcely conceal their joy and surprize, that they should have found so powerful an auxiliary, as you are made to appear, in the Report of the Calcutta Journal. That Report may never, perhaps, have reached your notice; and you may not see in it as faithfully given in this letter, enough to demand of you, to call the Reporter before you, for a gross contempt of your Court. It belongs to me, if so advised, to care the offending parties to your bar, for the new libel on my character, which it contains .- But in the mean time, its commission, and a masson why a Clergy-let me observe, that the sacrifice of my good man should be deprived of the full proteon name, by this Report, has been made, not trop of the safeguards of character and the to mere remove—but to rumour, first called into existence, by my calumniators, as the base, on which to build the libels, I have been assailed by -then fastened on, as an apology by the libeliers themselves-and lastly received as an Licuse by the Court, to ubick I complained I acknowledged, that I anticipate wonder, and incredelity to the statement, which I now make, and as myself, abould gittact so nuch notice; I must hasten to prove that I "nothing ox-inf another bay one he found, sayer to fus-tend to, not set down aught in malice." to op them, at the origin of a new contro- The Report of your Judgment, as given in the paper of my libellers, is detailed in the

If he (Dr. Bryce), stood before me, merely in the character of a Clergyman of the Church of Scotland, he would be entitled to very heavy damages. But there are circumstances, which change this character. He was Believid TO BE THE ALTHOR OF THE LETTERS OF THE FRIEND OF BANKES, not merely because it was reported in the Newspapers, but believed, from his having formerly edited a Newspaper, called the ORIENTAL MIR-ROR.* The report arose from the time the Letters began to be published, and as they were never disavouced, if juthered strength, as they proceeded. I do not say, a man is bound to contradict every surmer, that is eviculated about him, altho' called upon to do so. But when the tast is proved of a widely spread reporr of this kind being uncontradicted, IT At-FORDS SOME INCUSE TO THOSE, who believe in it, and to the Editor of a public Paper, AGAINST WHOM THEY WERE DIRECTED. It is true, that Mr. Buckingtom, on whom those attucks were made, 15 NOT 1111 DEFENDANT IN THIS ACTION; but connected as he is with his Successor, and those other persons, connected in the Paper, THI SAME INCUSE IX-TENDS TO THEM, since they must feel a deep interest in what effects him Such being the case, it does, I way, IN SOME DICKLE AFFORD AN EXCUSE to the parties, and the libels are not the same, as they world have been, if directed AGAINST ANY OTHER CLERGY WAN.

Upon the whole of the evidence taken together, I should wish to give such damages as to show, that the Plaintif was 108 fifted, in coming into Court to closs his character; that the Paper had limited him, in attributing to him the improper nightees character. Had it break the individual to the Clergyman, again I say, I would have given much larger damages, it will be right in anoarding the amount of Sieva Rupe. 2000—or Four Hundred Rupes, for each of the Counts.

Allow me now. Sir, to request your most serious attention to the injury, which such a report is calculated to do to me, and the dangerous consequences, which must flow from your judgment to the public welfare, if that judgment be correctly reported.

It is possible, I think, to confine this view, within very narrow limits. The question is sufficiently simple; and they only have an interest in rendering it intricate, who see in its solution, the after confusion, which must await them... I attempt it thus:

Immediately after the appointment, to which I have already alluded, I was exposed to the most gross, and libelious attacks on my character, as a Clergyman; I bore them, for a while, with patience; for nothing is more arksome to my feelings, than to drag any man into a Court of Justice; and until now, I have passed this life, without appearing as Plaintiff, or Detendent in any Court upon earth. At length, however, forbearance became, not merely a weak. ess but a crime; and satisfied, that in your Court I should meet with justice - and the more encouraged, to betake myself to it, from the declaration of the Senior Judge, who presides in it, in a late case, I that it the libellet and the calummator, were brought to his bar, he would punish them, I approached your tribunal with confidence, and I brought my action, in a shape, which allowed my libellers, to prove, it they could, then charges. You need not be told, that they I id not the courage, to put a justification upon the record -they tested their ples on the general usue; and on that ground I met them.

There was no difficulty, you will readily admit, on my part, in proving the libellous tendency of the publication, of which I complaned the liability of the defendants, to answer for these Libels, and the injury, actually done to my 4,000 name, was too abund ntly established. I am well aware, that under the plen of the general resue, the Defendants were at liberty to go into evidence, shewing, if they could, that I had provoked the attacks, which I had sustainad; and that, therefore they were entitled to claim at least a mitigation of damages. Had they succeeded in proving this, I hould have had no ground of complaint—But you are aware—for you have in effect admitted it-the Public, too, are aware, that there was not one shadow of proof offered, that I had ever provoked the attacks. with which I had been assarled. Failing in this-which, indeed, the Defendants did not even attempt, they did not, however, fail in procuring from you, a untigation of damages: and according to the report of your judgment, a ground for this mitigation is distinctly stated-it is, that I came not bedistinctly stated—it is, that I came not cefor eyon, merrir in the character of a Clergyman of the Church of Scotland,—I minatindeed, in candour confess, that the eastdote is, in some measure, supplied with the poison; when you are made; size this, to state what it was, that charged this, character, and gave it less value in conferce, than the character of any other theoryman

Editor India Gazette.

[.] No such Paper I believe ever existed in India....

-It was in effect-because I was once reported, and believed, to be the writer of certain Letters, from which the late Editor of the Journal suffered very material injury .-You , ust, I think, have forgotten that I was standing before you, complaining of this very rumour as itself a libel, and of the Defeudants, as its propagators, if not indeed its parents | and you must have overlooked, if I can depend on this report, that the late Editor of the Calcutta Journal was not in any shape within the walls of the Court. I am, however, saved from making so erroneous a supposition as the latter, at least, of these two, for the Report goes on to say, that you expressed yourself thus - " It is true Mr. Buckingham, on whom those attacks were made, is not the defendant in this action "-I would fain prescive my veneration for the Judges of the land; but the Report before me sets me affoat aundst folles, dangers, and absurdances, and I know not how to turn, to preserve at once my regard for the Law, and my deterence for those, who dispease its blessings. I never, Su, demed, I all along admitted, that rumour did point me out, author of the letters which my libelpronounced infavaous, calumnious and disgracef il. I charged the detendants with being the authors, and propagators of this rumour; and when they established, what indecil app mong other things on the very face of my P formed in part 1'10 une's of my action, that such a rume did est, you are mide to say that therefore you held Mr. Buckingham's successor and friends, in some measure excusable for hitching Dr. Bryce! This Sit was much-but it was not all-you are also made to add, -"THEREFORE Dr. Beyce does not come before me MYRTIY as a clergyman of the Church of Scotland, THEREFORE, Dr. Bryce is not entitled to the same Damages as unother Cleryyman would have been-ilad I, Sin, denucled myself of the character of a Clergyman of the church of Scotland, by any act unbecoming that character-had it been in evidence before you, that I had stepped from the peacetul paths of religion to attack the late Editor of the Calcutia Journal, or any other man, then let too suffer for the deviation from propriety of clerical conduct. But because it is merely rumoured, that I have done so one of the very libely wit which I complain, and for which I-seek vation, because he had violated her laws, by writing redress,-gracious heaven! am' to be thus in a Magneine! This Libel was aggravated by the

ple of Law, and Justice forbids it-overy honourable and generous feeling of the mind revolts from such doctrines.

To escape from the evil consequences of your reported judgment may not be easymay not be possible. But to protest most solemnly against it, is at once within my power, and called for by my sense of dary. At this moment I am suffering from this judgment to an extent, of which I am persuaded, you are not aware The men, who have hitherto entertained malice and aurmostly towards me, of the most implacable nature, have taken comage from your judgment, as it has been reported, and they are again exerting themselves to delamo me still further. I may not be advised to seek igain a remedy through the Liw, and already, since the report of your judgment appeared, have I been warned, by my anonymous standerers, that if I bring any new action against the Journal 'my blood must be upon my own head ' I despise the threat, as much as I pity the man, who could send it, in the distaidly manner, in which, with others of a similar nature it has been conveyed. But I beg of you, Sn-I beseech of you, to look to the consequences, of being made to found judical decisions, immical to a good name, on the bare existence of the very ramours, which, as spreading rain over character, it was the province of the law to punish.

It might, indeed, be alleged, that when rumour was affort, it was mine to contradict it, and I have heard not a few allege, that it was highly culpable in me, to allow it, as you are made to say, "to gather strength as it proceeded." On this point, at least your opinion and mine coincide, for you add immediately, what must be apparent to every man of general observation, that I was not bound to give any contradiction to such rumouss. I was therefore guilty of no breach of duty, where no duty existed; and no stigma ought surely on this account, to be used on Dr. Bryce. It is, however, a point of too trifling importance to dwell upon; but as we deal with many, who do attach moment to fuffes. I may add, before I take leave of it, that when once before charged by the Calcutta Jourheld up to contempt and scorn! and is evelike on my character to be 'exensed,' compassion, to overlook the breach, but that I was looke retented its subject, from either the like Editor, or his lowrun!!! Every princiby, write in a Magazine I and this Libel, the Re nal, with being the author of a Letter, which he sugmatized as that of a 'miscreant,' I establish, when, in a Court of Justice I vas prevailed on to publish an explicit demal of it. The Calcutta Journalist very politely replied, that could be believe the denial he would be very sorry for the mistake!! This you will admit, was no great encouragement. to offer future demals to charges, arising from the same source.

But Sir, I have a question to ask, in which I have a very near interest. I heg to know, at what period, it ever the bann, under which your reported judgment has placed me, is to be removed? Is my character to be open in perpetuity, to the libellers of the Calcutta Journal, because runnur once said I may be libelled I injured its late Editor to morrow - I have been libelled, since your judgment of At I complain again, to Apoet the same qualified receptions and reporation for the improy! These Sn. are questions in which I not falone- am intimatch encoured I am conscious of no discrepant to year, in putting them, and until regard for the purity of judici 14 to ceedings. shall have been sacrificed, at the shine of person d difference, no man will lay such to inv charge.

Neither, S.r. can you be surprized-I speak not of offended-at this address. The Report of your Judgment, and its grounds, has found its way, into all the Newspapers of Calcutta; and these Papers may convey it to those in my native country, who have lutherto respected me; but who, after reading this Report, might well be staggered, in then regard for me, if it reached them, unaccompanied, by explanation. They may carry it to the Honourable Masters, whom I serve, and who have hitherto, I hope, considered me as a Gergyman, whose conduct has not disgraced the partiality, which selected me to the situation, I hold in this country-they may carry it to the Members of my Church, whose approbation, as her Minister, at this Presidency, I have already been honoured with, in very flattering terms--They may carry it to the Father and the Fanuly-but I stop, Sir. and I merely remark, that it is for them, that I now write, more than with any hope, that I can imprence there in this country, whose minds have been poisoned against me, and I feel satisfied, that with the explanations, and statement of facts, which I have now given, the candid and impartial will come to one, and the same concinsion. They will see, and acknowledge that my clorical character and reputation, so far as they have suffered under the report of your judg. ment, have been sacrificed to a mere rumour which I raised not myself-which I could not prevent-which I did all that was required of me, to contradict-to a rumour, moreover, whose truth, the men who raised and spread it, shrunk from attempting to turnished them with the opportunity. I have the honour to be, SIR, Your most obdt. & respectful servant,

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

SIR. - Having observed in your paper of Thursday the 28th ulumo a letter signed "ROBERT KENNEDY THOMSON, Lieutenant R N dated H M. Ship Jupiter, August 19th 1823," reflecting on my character, I consider it incumbent on me in vindication thereof, to request you will insert the following simple statement of facts, which I trust will convince every can lid reader, that Lieutenant Thomson has beought the subject (quite unneces sacily) to public view, in very cironeous and expressited terms.

On the 16th white o, about 2, 30 a. M. 1 was awoke by a dorse as my gate, consequently I hurred out in try hight dress, and procerding to the gate, deman I. I the business. of the person outside, who replied "he was Lacutement Thomson, of H. M. Ship Jupiter," and apologized for disturbing me at that hour, observing at the same time, "his visit was unavoidable, as he was an entire stranger to the language," therefore wished me to explain to the Boatman to proceed without loss of time, as he was anxious to join the Ship, especially on account of a sick Midshipman he had in the Boat, (he neither expressed a wish to enter my house, nor to bring in the Midship. man in question) I accordingly, without delay, complied with his request, in his presence, as the many had come with him, who, Lieut. T. said, "objected to go down to Saugor, notwithstanding he had re-"crived orders to do so from his Master, "Mr. McClintock; that Gentleman having "assured him (Lieut. T.) he would reach "the Ship is the morning, as the Boat was "perfectly safe and capable of performing the trip; and as he was also of that opinion, he had come down in her in preter-"ence to other Boats which had been of fered him, concluding with the remark, "that he considered her a superior Boat, and urged me again to state to the mail "the promise made by Mr. McClistont," which I again repeated to the many and desired my servant to see that the Boat quitted the creek to perform her trip merecably to Lieut. T.'s wish, who stated he was apprehensive that the Jupiter would be sailing.

Here our conversation ended, and I posttively declare I did not experience the slightest inconvenience from rain, although I stood with him (Lieut. T.) at the gate and was no more sheltered than himself the whole of the time, and only in my night dress, and returned to my bed without shifting. Lieutenant Thomson further states, that he sent to me twice, which I positively deny any knowledge of, and solemnly declare that nothing further passed between Lieut. Thomson and myself than what I have herein stated, and that the conversation did not last more than five minutes.

I am, Sir,

Your most obedient Servant, POST MARTER AT DIA-

MALICE UNMASKED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZITTI.

Sir.—Can Hoppersollor date to say, that he has a spark of candar, elevated teching or kindness? If he produces to say that he has, I hast flidly tell him with young Seward in Machett.

---- 'Thou 'horsed tyrant, &c.

Is it honorable to ridicule inexperienced persons—is it Christian-like to expose personal defects—is it justice to condemnising mentr—and is it warrantable to wound the young mind with the weapon of malice.' A man who is guilty of such conduct must be a nusance to the Little Theatre, and the Managers better adopt measures to shut the door against such a nuisance!

But let me beg of the young actors to treat Hoppergollop's intatation with better feelings than he has shewn towards them. Since H. in the smooth garb of humor and pleasantry has aimed his malevolent satire,—let them be unmindful of it. Let them steadily pursue their course They have got up their Theatre with much pains, and many are very well satisfied with the exertions. And surely from what they have shewn us. I am confident they will rapidly improve. A scribbler will scribble—but why should menit be abashed at a scribble 's a 'inck'?

I asente you, Mr. Editor, Hoppergollop's letter was read with general disgust and indignation. The Editor of the Bengal Hurkers has given an account of the Little Theatic, from which you will see how guilty Hoppergollop stands before your readers. And I wish from my heart, good Mr. Editor, that you were present. O, a whole empire would not induce you to publish remarks which have nother candor or kindness—And is not this a detected way to avail himself of your credulity? "O shame, where is thy blash!"

I am, Sir.

Your obedient humble Servant, ONE OF THE AT DIENCE.

September 6, 1823.

P. S. As you have published letters against the Little Theatre, I beg you will not withold this defence from the public

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZDATE

En verité Monse, L'Editeur of the India Gazate, you must indeed have been sleeping the sleep of Death, and probably have just arisen, and scarcely shaken off the deadly effects of a more than Lathian slamber, when you penned those sugra mes remarks relating to certain communications in your possession, classing under the head of "Minor Theatricals," which flame in capitals in the first page of your last paper. Bless me Sn, how how could you he so thoughtless, so mudicious, so regardless of your own interest? Were you not apprehensive that some of your random strokes. the' aimed in the dark, night peradventure light upon, and inflict a mortal wound on some highly-gifted and favored Correspondent, -Mynheer, the gentleman with an outlandish name for instance, and thus nea prive you and the public of the profound criticisms of one whose midnight oil is consumed in your service, and whose recondite and elaborate labours, as it is some where sud of a gallant officer. (tho' in a cause that ennobled his efforts, however unfortunate the result,) certainly do no discredit to a Newspaper and could you, Sir, risk losing so able, so witty, so amusing a conductor in cheing out a column for you now and then, and all for the sake of merely indulging yourself, out of a foolish sense of justice and generosity, in a few common-place, trite observations, which have long ceased, as to their force or value, to be regarded, felt, or understood? Really Sir you have been hasty,—pardon me for saying so,—over-hasty,—for nothing can be more clear or certain, than that, if you had been suspected of sincerely enterstaining the sentiments you have expressed, the Community of Calcutta would have had to lament the loss of Mynheer Hop-and-gullop's (the aforesaid gentleman and critical delectable, super-abundantly comic, irresistibly diverting, and treble-refined specimen of Histionic eriters...—and you to rue the day when your anti-rational, exploded, and no-body-cares-for notions stood in the way of your gratifying your readers with so choice a Morecaus through the medium of the India Gazette. How fortunate that you escaped so dise a calamity! What a subject for congratulation, that so unique a Gem has been preserved, to illumine and chify future crities, altho' in the ephemeial co-

lums of a newspaper

Setting aside however this unprofitable waste of words, which you, Mr. Editor, may perhaps think savours too much of the style and manner of My theer, I would fain ascertain how far this unity gentleman's criticisms on the last performance at the Little Theatre comport with the standard laid down by you, -and how far, had they been directed against any of the Amateurs of the Chowringhee Theatic, whom the critic facetiously would have been "met with perfect good humour". This is a knotty question, and Mynheer, I fear, would find it not a very easy task to answer it satisfactorily. Nor is it necessary that he should attempt it. He knows very well whom he has to deal with, -- and it is this knowledge, this cousciousness, that has emboldened him to take a degree of license in his fulminating tirade (for to dignity the pitiful production with the name of endicism any longer, would be to prostitute the word) against the Amateurs of the Lattle Theatre, which otherwise he would have been the last to venture upon. For the honor of my countrymen, I hope he is not one of them; and yet I cannot suppose that he is a Briton, a name connected with all that is manly, open, generous, just, and libera'.

I have trespassed longer on your time, Si, than I intended, but I trust my motive in doing so will, with you, be a sufficient apology.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,
A COUNTRY-BORN.

September 6, 1823.

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

Sin, Being in the habit of reading the Newspapers of the Presidency, I have observed almost in all the papers an account of the Performance on Monday the ist of September 1823, at the Juvenile Theatre, in Pollock-street. However accurate the accounts might have been, I am influenced from motives of benevolence to address you, and to express my regret at the disappointment of the young amateurs, (I at least suppose it to be so,) from the repeated marks of disapprobation, which still continues to appear in the papers. I think it, Mr. Editor, to be very ungenerous on the part of the critics to offer in return such treatments to them, whose sole delight was to amuse the public,—and pray what must be their teelings, after a most zealous and ardent desire to ment applause? I extractly advise the managers of the Juvenile Theatre not to take it to heart; but continue with additional courage to please themselves, however disagreeable to others, (for they have to pay,) otherwise it would be agreeable enough.

With friendly eyes behold whate'er they do, Holding in mind such thin s to them are new, And let their errors whether great or small. In your remembrance find no place at all.

A little work has fallen under our observation, which calls for a remark of two. It is entitled " MILITARY SERTORES OF THE Google H War in India, in the years 1814. 1815, 1816." These meagre sketches extend to 54 pages only, and so far as we are aware of, the facts they illustrate are rigidly correct. There is, however, a tone of prejudice—and that prejudice of a deep rooted nature—betrayed in these pages, which we cannot but deprecate. It is evident that the writer himself is not a militury man, and we doubt not but many of our readers could at once guess who the individual was were they to read the sketches. The movements of the division under Sir DAVID OCHTERLONY are the most minutely deserthed, from which an interesce may be drawn as to the identity of the author. In the preface be says-" Next to injuring the public body, with whose prosperity my high welfare is intimately connected. there is nothing which I deprenate more than the ill-will of any part of the Bengal army " and yet he, in a few sen-tences after this conciliatory hint, makes an assertion, which, to say the least of it, is ranh, and which we feel perfectly certain that every Officer, who has had experience of Native Soldiers, will indignantly repel as a most injurious calumny, "A Native Soldjer, of whatever rank, has no herousin, and he is ignorant of honor in every sense of the word." Surely a man of cautious consideration would have paused before writing a sentence that is in direct opposition to the recorded experience 'of CLIVE, LAURENCE, of MALCOLM, and even of Wellington, putting its injurious tendency out of the question. We have of Wellington, patting its injurious tendency out of the question. We have also, in the course of these sketches, a very notable project, and certainly a most capital one, provided it could be adopted. ed as easily as it is proposed. - It is nothing less than to make labourers of our Sepoyar-to accusion them to the spade and the pickness. Mr. HARINGTON rose to propose the reception of the report which had just been read, and to which he was convinced no one would object. He would only remark that the general committee had commenced oper tions, and were actively engaged in prepring a report of the state of education throughout India, and that according to the provisions by which that committee was appointed, they had appointed sub-committees in the different districts to correspond with them on the subject, and he did not doubt but that the result of their labors would be highly satisfactory.

This motion having been seconded, and passed, the President idverted to the vacancy in the member of Vice-Presidents, occasioned by the resignation of the Honble Sn Edward Hype East, and proposed that it should be juted by the man of all others the most hi, Mr Harington, This motion having passed, the President observed, that Dr Lumsden who had formerly been a Member of th Committee, wished to resume his labors and regretted that as it now stood, the Committee, which was composed of a President, tom Vice-Presidents and twenty Members had not power to add to then numbers Many prisons he observed who came to Udcutta for a short time, and who were willing to render their assistance to the So ercty were deterred on this account.

TRADE OF SINGAPORE.

We beg to call the aftention of our readers to some interesting extracts of a letter from Singapore. They place the local and commercial advantages of that post in a very strong point of view, and we heartily, rejoice at the success of the first free con tion in the Indian sens The resort of the Chinese to it must very materially tend to increase this prosperity, and already it appears that two-thirds of the population of the island consist of that race, who have thus voluntarily submitted themselves to our Government, under a firm conviction of tis fostering care and just and protecting principles. The expectations too, that were formed as to the advantages of its situation for conducting a tride with Siam and Cothin China seem likely to le tealised for already have two junks belonging to the latter country visited it with sugar, and aship belonging to the to mer, with pep-per. This list is said to be gran excellent quality and is preferred by the Chinese to any other. The King of Slam himself sends annually 20,000 piculs to Chica, and the whole yearly produce of Slam is estimated at 80,000 piculs. Its cultivation is principally confined to the coasts of the Guli of Kamboja, and the principal pepper ports are Chambon and Tung yas. This branch of trade thus likely to be brought to our porty is a very valuable one, mariouch as it furnishes us with an article of trade with China which its inhabitants highly sprize, and we are convinced that the prosent hberal and enlightened Resident it Singapore assisted as he will be by his local in formation and experience, will not fail to ensure this advantage to his country by availing himselt of all the means in his power for that purpose. This will be the more easily effected from the circumstance that the Stimese receive our cools to exchange for their own from the Chinese, with the additional charges of tright and other method expenses, while they can promote them at a much lower rate atout parts. " Singapore, 9th July. -"Singapore is one of the worst places for an idle person that can well be imagined-I see all around me so busily engaged in their several occupations of buying, selling, &c. that I cannot help looking upon myself as an intruder, or as being of a mercial emportum ever founded by our national different nature. It is so different in Calcutta, there you have libraries, newspa-pers and various other means of passing the time agreeably, and at the same time, beneficially, and it the hours should hang heavy, you have the pleasure of sceing many others in the same hopeful state of idleness But enough of these complaints. the climate agrees with me, and I manage wonderfully well—I go out with my gun every morning at day-light, and seldom return before breakfast time.—(Never mind whether I kill any thing or not)-After breakfast I study Main, read the Encyclopardia Britannica, pore over the lear ned payes of the Hurkaru, and occusionally have the delectable pleasure of writing long episiles (like the present) to my friends

The trade of Singapore continues brisk, and the quantity of goods imported and afterwards exported, are rapidly encreasing, but opium will always be the st ple commodity The trade with home is greatly enlarged this season. There is one free trader completing her lading for London in the roads, and two or three are daily expected with large investments of Eiglish goods. belong to wealthy Chinese merchants, whose enterprizing spirit contributes hot a little to the prosperity of Singapore. The Government have by no means been behind in the construction of the necessary roads, bridges, &c. The bridge over the river is now almost finished, and the road which is now in progress through the morass at the back of the town will soon make a large track of land (now lying useless) a valuable acquisi-tion for building ground and small gardens, &c. The Chinese constitute more than twothirds of the present inhabitants, and the demand for laborers and mechanics is so great, that numbers are flocking from all the Dutch Ports in Borneo and the Straits. The lands which have been cleared, are already covered with flourishing crops of pepper coffee and gambie (terra japonica or klut), and in short the little colony presents the most flourishing and happy specimen of the effects of a liberal and equitable system of Government with which we are acquainted. If ever there was a free port in every sense of the word, it is Singapore. It is the same to all nations and tribes without distinction. All leases of lands, farms, contracts. Government bills, and all other things that are disposed of by the Resident, are put up to public auction and sold to the highest bidder-a plan which gives and ever must give universal satisfaction for this reason-that it precludes all partiality or cause of complaint.

EMBALMING THE DEAD.

To the Editor of the Journal.

Sin,—The skill of the Egyptians in embalming, their dead, and the perfection at which they arrived in this art, is well known to most persons, as well as the remarkable tact that no modern experiments to preserve the body from destruction, have succeeded nearly so well; though all the chemical knowledge that money could procure, has been used to effect it. H. radous has given a very detailed account of the manner in which the embalming process was performed, and one would think that it would be easy to follow in the same steps. In the course of the last week, however, in looking into an old book, entitled "The Historical Library of Diodorus the Sicilian, made English by G. Booth, of the city of Chester, Big." in small to it, printed at London in the year 1700, I find it stated in an account of the bitument, of a most peculiar kind, floating on the dead sea, the following passage—" And this profit and advantage the backarians temp from its they transport this pitch into Brypt, and there each it for the use of endaming the dead; for if they do not max this with other evonatic spaces the backarians to preserved long from patrefaction."—B. 19. c, 6, pp. 651-52. This bitumen was, in former times, thrown upfrom the bottom of the dead sea in large quantities; but as volcances of time became extinct, so this submarine discharge has ceased; and the bitumen of the lake. Asphaltes, so peculiar in its qualities, & differing from almost all other kinds, is now found in the smallest quantities only. The want, therefore of this indispensible ingredient may be well considered sufficient to account for the failure of the moderns in all their attempts to imitate the Egyptian made of emblaning the dead. The subject is one, which might interest the man of science as well as the philosopher, and I shall be glad to learn the opinions of any of your intelligent correspondents thereon, being, Sir, your's obediently, Boghlypoor.

SIR.—The Little Theatre has made a great noise indeed! For my part, I am heartly tired of reading the squibs against it. But as both sides are now heard, pray do Mr. Editor, vouchvafe to decline future warfare, and think how the public must be pestered with a subject which is not of general interest.

Say by what wond rous power am I Compelled to taste with apathy,

The fresh-blown odours of the grove, Say why the balmy breathing air Fails with its sweets this heart to obeer.

Thou art not present here, my love!

The zephyr gently plays upon The dew-moist borders of the lawn,

Solt sounds the cooing of the dove; But O! my soul, the conflect breeze An I softest note will but to please

Withou: the prescuee of my love!

See how bright appears the bower;

Perfume breathes in every flower.
That decks the verdant arched alcove; Beneath its shade to rest, how sweet While roses kins thy beautoous feet. But 'tis not sweet without thee love!

Behold the crystal rivulet, ... Meand'ring on its pebbled hed, ... How sweet along its banks to rove,-While Philomel melodious thrills In chorus to the falling rills,

But what is sweet without thee love!

Behold the orient beams display The glorious ruler of the day

The welkin is all bright above-Glad nature hails the welcome light, But 'tis not cheering to my sight-Thou art not present here, my love! L. B. D'M.

SEPTEMBER 15.

Intelligence has been received of the ar-, cal at Madras of the H. C. Ship Princess Charlotte of Wales. She sail dan company with the Wellington from Phymouth on the 29th of May. We have been fortunate enough to hear what Europe news she may have brought.

A report prevailed on Friday and Saturday, that Dr. Luxuore had died at Lucknow. This, we are happy to say, is a mistake, for a letter was received from the Doctor on Saturday, dated Lucknow, 3d instant, at which time he was in good health, and we trustia so now.

It may reasonably be expected that the rains will not be over the the equinox (21, 22d inst.); and as our Chowringhee Drury is to open on Friday, the 19th instance of its to be hoped that the air may be suite; and is cooled by passing showers to make a full house comfortable. The pieces to the Evening are those we led our readers to expect on a former openion. "The Point of Honor's thus east:—

Chevaher de St. Franc,-Walter of the Churren of the Wood, Valence—Gabri defluitto.

Durimel—Sir Rowland ditto.
Stemberg—Apathy ditto.
Mrs. Melfort—Josephine ditto.
Bertha Ludy Helen ditto.

The 2d piece of "Anateurs and Actors" is likely to prove highly attractive. The dialogues are lively and bustling, with himorous quibbling and fun about Amateurs and Actors. An Amateur, whose musical talents are justly admired and appreciated, will sing a good song. There will be a very amusing quintette, and a comic song from the irresistibly ludicrous Gabriel of the "Children in the Wood!" The cast of the piece is this:—

Mr. O. P. Bustle, Provincial Manager, Superintending Private Theatricals, -by the Chowringhor Stage-manager.

While on the subject of the Chowringhee Theatre, we are happy to be given to understand, that the condicts of the audience are likely to be increased in a way to which we adverted lately. Messes Toulmin and Co., we have heard, have sent in proposals to erect a Soda Water Fountain in some part of the Theatra compound, and as the beverage will be drawn off by a cock the noise of flying co ks will not interrupt the performance. This proposal, however, is is yet under consideration, but we smeerly forst it will be adopted, and that Mess,'s Tourney and Co will find it a very prosperous speculation.

WITCHCRAFT.

I beg to communicate to you some ar-Ton accompanied him as his Stuff, and al- cumstances of a wonderful nature. At the ter having repeatedly traversed the tope house of my aunt Mrs. Pereira, in Bow without finding any one in it, the General Bazar near the Bytakonaah, about eleven resolved to return to Camp, and proceeded o'clock in the forenoon on Monday last there accordingly, as he thought, towards Head- being no person except herself and Avah, quarters. However as the mgi t was clear, (Moofee, aged twenty-five years or thereaand the constellation of the great hear was bouts) several earthern plates, and one dish near the mendian, Captum Lambros no- of what is called Queen's-wave, which were tieed, that instead of proceeding souther-placed on a Shell in the Buttle-khannah, ly, as was necessary for reaching the Camp, fell down, and all broke except the dish, the division was advancing owards the without any visible cause, in a little time north—that is to say, on Tippoo's whole aratter, several wall shades, and other things, my; and immediately warned General Bird the furniture of an ormaniental side table, of the mistake. But the General (who trou-were thrown into the middle of the floor, bled himself little about astronomy,) replied though no person was in that room, then that he knew very well how he was going some china in another apartment was in like without consulting the stars. Presently the manner thrown into the middle of the floor detachment fell in with one of the enemy's and broke, and as the pieces lay, they mapoutposts, which was soon dispersed; but ped and flew just as they had been thrown on this at last led General Baind to apprehend an exceeding hot firm; the globe lamp which that Captain Landton's observation might hung in the stair case was thrown down and be correct enough. He ordered a light to broken; an eight day clock by McCabe fell be struck, and on consulting a pocket com-down on the stairs, and a glozed earthcia pass, it was found (as Colonel Lambton pan containing salted pork, flew in proces used humorously to say) that the stars and the pork fell about, and many such like were right!
uncommon things happened, which causing and Buggies, ran into the house, some supposing it to be on fire, others thought the house had been struck by lightning, for the clouds at the time were full of electric fluid. However all concurred in moving the goods, and Mr Pereira, together with her Ayah, went to Mr. De Silva's, a Portuguesegentleman who hees in the next house to Mrs. P. roirs, whither the goods were carried, and porticularly a tray full of china, an iron fread basket ispanned, 'wo toon-wood teapoys, several bottles of different sorts of liqueurs, a gallipot of jelly, and a pier glass worth about fifty rupees, which glass was tiken down by one Mr. Joakim da Cruz (a neighbour to Mrs. Pereira) who handed it to one Philip Dunlop, and a part of the gilt work on each side of the frame flew off before he could put it down in the garden; but when it was Ind down, remained without fuither dimage till it was tiken to Mr. de Silva's, and put under a sidehoard, where it flew to pieces Mr. da Couz going to drink of a bottle of run & a bottle of wine, they both flew in pieces, though they were uncorked; the china to the tray flew in pieces, some while it was in the house and the rest in the garden, whither it was removed by the affrighted spectators after it began to break; the bread basket was thrown down and broken, as also was the pot of jelly, together with bottles of liquois and just of managepickles, all of them the proper y of Mrs. Pereira Mrs. Pereira becoming ill with the fright was bled by Mr. Dobbins, who practrees as a Surgeon and a man midwife in Chitpore road, who borrowed a pint china bowl of Mr. da Cruz's people to receive the blood, which being afterwards set upon a side board, near a bottle of brandy, the property of Mrs. Pereira, both bottle and bowl jumped on the floor and broke, the bowl going into five pieces (a piece of which is now in the possession of Mr. Dick of Zig Zag lane,) Mrs. Pereira then went to Mr. De Rozario's, next door to Mr. Da Ciuz's; but during their stay there (which was but very short) nothing extraordinary happened; from whence they went to the house of Mr. Jones (to whose wife Mrs. Percira is related) on the Bolliaghaut road about half a mile distant from her own house, when they found Mr. and Mrs. da Cruz, Mr Dias and his family, it being about dinner time they all dined with Mr Dias. Sometime af-ter dinner Mr. Pereira's servent was sent home to examine into the state of the house, and returned with an account that every thing there had been quiet from the time they left it. In a little time after the return of the servant, Mr. and Mis. da Cruz went home (nothing unaccountable having yet happened at Mr. Diases: but Mrs. Pereira and her servant stand. and about seven o'clock in the evening the same kind of uncommon operations as had been seen at Mrs. Pereira's began at Mr. Dias's, by seven pewter dishes out of eight falling from the top shelf of an Almirah in the bottle-konna, without any apparent cause, which was followed by an infi-nite number of examples not less strange, particularly the following: a pastle and morter used to pound sugar in, and the curry stone androller, jumped from then plac a about six fact, a row of china plates fell from the second shelf of the Almirah on the ground, and being taken up and put one in the other on the side table which is about three feet high, they were thrown down again, and by to the same manner as plates are generally placed on a shelf An egg flow from the lower shell over the Alme in, there was another egg on the shelf which did not move the whole night. A tumbler, or runmer, with a little rum and water in it, standing on a waiter, jumped about ten fort and broke; the table then overset and threw off a selvermug of Mrs. Percoa's -two hams which had been hung up in the cook tooks, feli down, though the and and strings on which they had hong were not broke or misplaced, -in short about from o'clock in the morning of Tuesday almost every thing in the house became anomat de and nede such a racket that Mr. Dias's Av. h. 100-10. the children's room, tore open the magainto curtums, and took the children out of hed, and carried them into the stable added, thinking it was not safe longer to stay in the hout. Mrs Percirethen so metac general confusion went with her As it across the road to Mr. Rappa, the same gentlemann a is lamous for his skid in playing ther buy and, on the organ), and were accempanted by Mrs. Dias and her son, about a varof age, and the contusion at Mi Dis' immediately ceased. When Wil Rimpa h d let them into his house he ordered his sovants to light the fanouses or oil lamps, let they were soon the own to the ground by some invisible in sit. Mr. Rappa upon this told Mrs Percira he feared she had been guilt, of some had act, murder at least, as it was plain that the cluse of such wond ifull events was carried with her, but Mis. Pereira*answered that her consecute was clear from any extraordinary exit, and that she could not tell the clase who she was on troubled, or such like words, however, Mr. Rappa desired her to quit his buitse, as he could not afford to have his goods, destroyed; whereupon Mrs. Prom. and her Avah. lefthishouse, which has been quest ever since, and returned to her own, and a 1 w hours after their airivil semilumobee was upset without apparent cause. Mrs. Percira has however discharged for Avan and the house now remains undisturbed,

Some places of Mr. da Cruz's by way of the constituents of which were waited upon trial were placed upon the same shelf with by a deputation from the police office some those of Mrs. Pereira, the former stood unmonths ago, and furnished with lodgings at the whole of Mrs. Pereira's were broke the public expense. We give the notice:—in pieces.

The Ayah is gone home to her mother, who keeps a dancing Goat and Bear in the Barrackpore road, and what furniture remains is now just as manimate as the furniture of other houses.

Mr. Lefevre also informs me that he understands the Avah, whose name is Mootee, is the sister of the man who the other day ascended St. Andrew's Church steeple by the lightning conductor and sat sometime astrice the weathercock, and descended unburt. This man was taken to the Potentie Office on account of the mad trick, and I hope that Mootee Ayah may be also apprehended and examined touching the witchcraft with which she seems to be wickedly endowed.

FRAUD IN THE TREASURY.

We are given tounderstand, that a fraud has been committed in the Accountant General's Office, by a native who had the registering of Interest Drafts. He contrived to embezzle sums of money to the amount of 5,000 Rupces. He has absconded; but the Police are on the alert to apprehend him, and information respecting this matter has been sent to the country courts.

It is our painful task to record in our columns, almost every day, accounts of nefarious transactions committed in this city. We again express strong hopes, that these depredators will be discovered and pumished in the most exemplary manger.

FORGERY

We expressed our regret, vesterday, at the number of nefamous transactions, of which it was our duty to record accounts; and, we now lay before our readers, a no-tice respecting a forgery. In a city of the sort which we inhabit -containing a large, victions, and shifting population -it Cannot be expected that any vigilance of the magistrates can prevent occurrences like those in question. The ingemousness of the hangers-on of the society of this place, and the dexterity with which they clude the grasp of justice, have ever occasioned much annovance and vexation. But, although dothing can keep these villainous people from the commission of crimes, yet if an example were made of them whenever they were deteeted, we believe that there would be fewer complaints on account of delinquercies. Perhaps, these fabrications are from the House of Messis. Fraser and Co; some of the constituents of which were waited upon by a deputation from the police office some months ago, and finrnished with lodgings at the public expense. We give the notice:— "Notice is hereby given, that the underneath described 6 per Cent. Promissory Notes are forged Documents, and the Public are hereby cautioned against receiving them, should they be attempted to be negotiated.

No. 2762 of 1821-22 for 50,000 No. 1429 of 1822-23 for 83,000."

LIBERALITY OF INSURANCE OFFI-CES

We had the pleasure of noticing the liberality of the Insurance offices to the Captain of the Argyit, on the late occasion of a fire on board that slap , another instance of that disposition, so prevalent among the mercantile body of Calcutta, has sime reached us. The Asiatic Insurance Oitice has bestowed a donation of twenty per cent on the proceeds of block and cargo of the brig HILLIN, which, it will be recollected, was wrecked on the Kedgeree beach in May last This vessel was lying at Sangur, when the gale came on, with the LIVIRPOOL and ORIGINISM, and would probably have shared the same fate as those ships, but for the collected conduct of the Captain and Pilot. To it, under Providence, is attributable the alvation of all on board, and of so much of the property. The presence of mind which suggested in the horrors of a tempest, and a pitch dark night, to carry the ship out of certain destruction, into a situation where it might be altogether safe, and at all events afford a partial security, can only be appreciated by those who have had to exert it, and merits the reward it has thus obtained.

The crew deserted as soon as day-light enabled them to see then way from the wrock not forgetting, it is feared, to plunder presiously so that all the after-labour fell on the captain, his mate, and the pilot; principally, of course, on the two former; one of whom, the mate, we regret to say, has since died, probably from the effects of fatigue and exposure.

The names of these meritorious individuals are Captain Rowson, Mr. Catt (decensed), and Mr. Bagster of the Pilot service.

MR. ARNOT.

Mr. Arnot having declined to give security, was yesterday arrested by the police officers and carried before Mr. Paten, the sitting magistrate, who served on him the warrant of the Governor-General ordering his confinement in the Fort until a ship was ready to convey him to England; and he was accordingly delivered up to the charge of two police officers, who conveyed him to the fort, and delivered him up into the custody of the Town-Major of Fort William, where he now remains. We are happy to be enabled to state, that he is treated with all the urbanity and indulgence which his situation admits of: and we believe that, the' he will not be suffered to 'eave the Fort, he will be permitted to take the air within its walls, and not be at all subjected to any thing like rigorous imprisonment. We understand he will be detained in ou tody until some ship belouging to the Ho iourable Company may be ready to sail for Great Butain, when he will be immediately sent ou board.

LIEUTENANT JACKSON.

In a paragraph copied from the INDIA GAZETTE of Monday last, into our paper of Tuesday, it is said, "The name of Mr. Jackson frequently occurs in the Ukhbars as one of Runjeet's Sirdars. This person, we believe, was formerly a Licutenant in the H. C. Artillery." But we have good authority for stating that there is no foundation for such a behef. Licutenant Jackson, formerly of the Artillery, went to England direct from this country; and about the year 1805 6, he is said to have proceeded to St. Petersburgh, and entered into the Russian service—We know that there are two Erenchmen, styling themselves Chevaliers, in the service of Runjeet Sing, commanding what are called, French Troops; but we have not heard of any Russians being employed by that Chieftain. The re is another European in his service named Walker.

SINGULAR ANECDOTE OF A CAMEL.

SIR.

It requires but very little observation to convince us that there is an immense distance between the stupicity of some anin a s and the signoity of others, considered as separate races, as much indeed as there is between the ignorance of some and the wisdom of other individuals of the same race, as well among brutes as with man. In both cases, too, it will be admitted, that though superior sagacity might to enable its possessors to become the most useful beings of each class, yet it is often the distinction of the most mischievous only, as the swindher in the human race, and the monkey among brute animals. So also excessive stupidity may now and then belong to the most useful of each, as the country clown who cultivates the earth for the use of man, and the camel, who perhaps, renders more service to its owner, for the cost of purchase and maintenance than any other animal known, and without which indeed the intercourse with all distant countries separated by barren wastes could not all exist.

It is of one of the last mentioned animals, and one highly prized for its excellent qualities by his master, that I intely heard the following an edote, the authenoity of which may be clied on, though its parallel in supposity will not be easily found.

This camel belonged to a gentleman at Dehli, and was delivered of its first born at the usual season. It happened, however, that after the linth, the young camel was taken from her, and the first object on which the dam cast her eyes was a young man who had been sent to attend her during the delivery. The camel mistaking this youth for its own offspring, caressed him as if he were actually her offspring, and became so yealous of his moving from her, that he could never get away without throwing his outer garment round a person of his own size, and leaving him to keep his place till his return.

To add to the excessive stupidity of this animal in making so unnatural a mistake, it should be mentioned that, when its own real offspring was brought to her, she realed it entirely, and continued her material attentions to the young adopted son for months afterwards.

Deciming this a fact of toocurrous a nature to be lost I send it to you for inscrition in you interesting paper, to be added to the great variety of facts of which it has already been, and will I hope long continue to be, the repository.

ACCIDENT.

We understand that a serious accident happened on Sunday in the Bow Bazar. As a Gentleman was going up that street in a poncy buggy, the horse took fright at a flag, placed as a sign over the door of a punch house, and setoil at a full gallop. The Gentleman leaped from the buggy, and falling, fractured his skull, and we are sorry to state that his hie is despanted of. His wife who was with hou in the buggy, with admirable piess noe of mind kept her seat, and the horse coming in contact with a hackery, was stopped, and she luckily escaped without any injury.

ST. ANDREW'S STEEPLE.

On Wednesday a man climbed up by the conductor to the top of St. Andrew's Steeple for the purpose of removing the turban which we stated had been tied to it some days ago by a man, supposed to be of insane mind. We understand that frequent applications had been made at the Police to remove this article, but at last it was done by one of the peons belonging to the church.

MONSTROUS SERPENT.

(Translated from the Sumuchar Cowmuddy.)

We learnby a letter that a Serpent of an procommonly large size, which is supposed to have been brought down by a current from some mountain, has taken shode at a place bear Brahmuncetullah, situated on the north of Santinore. It has not much breeth but is 22 to 23 cubits in length As some people have seen it from the public road which hes directly on the west of its den, we come to know thereby that the Setpout at imper of rest collect its body into a form resembling the potter's wheel, but at the notes of man a approach, stretches itself and jumps up to the distance of 25 and 30 cubits; fortunately it has not bitten any one but has occasioned great alarm to the passengers. Some of the respectable inhabitants of the place with a view to kill the monster had gone up with a body of psen, with muskets and bludgeous in their hands, but being trightened at its dreadful sleape and terrible his jug, they could not command courage to advance neater.

SIR STAMFORD RAFFLES.

The following is an extract of a letter from Singapore, dated July 14th, 1823.

'o Sir Stamford Raffles left Singapore on the 9th June and was obliged to touch at Batavia on his way to Benecolen. On reaching the former place he sent his 4.

10. C. on shore to acquaint the Baton (Vander Capellan) of his arrival, which had been caused purely by accident. To this the Baron replied, that as he had come, he might land if he pleased, but that he (the Baion) should never have invited Sir Stainford to visu Java. So ungracious a reply of course did not tempt Sir Stamford to land although a passport was obtained for het Ladyship's dibarkation the next day, in consequence of the delicate state of her

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

Sin,-Independent of a general partiality and admiration of the Brama, which has led me to attend our Indian Theatres as often as an apportunity has been afforded me, your notice of the object of the per-formance at the Dum Dum Theatre lost evening, made me particularly auxious for its success. I have had prony opportunities of witnessing the evertises and inerits of the performers on that, stage, and as they have always elicited very general and wellmerited appluase, I attended with a foll conviction that, for their benefit, a general muster of the lovers of the Draina would evince the high estimation and regard in which they are held. I rejoice to say I wis not disappointed in my caps clauses notwithstanding the manspicious state of the weather the whole foremon, the The tre was crowded, and seats were some dy procurable a very considerable time before the rising of the curt on , it gives in pleasure to be able to add, that the low graced with a considerable portion of the beauty and fashion of Calcutta, from wheree as well as from this place, large parties were attracted, and I trust that many who were unable to go attended to com ret memendation in sending for white. The performance was the much admiced control of "The Rivars," with a very pretty new Melo-drama called "Thi BROKEN SWORD" These pieces were selected for the occasion by the performers theniselves, and I am happy to say that they met with the most complete success. The part of Cuptain Absolute was taken by one of the bost actors on the Dum Dum stage, (Mr. Frankhoe ; Notwithstanding the disadvaniage he labonred under, from having but just recovered from a service illness, he supported his part with teste and spirit, and fully maintained the high character be hore as a very superior Comedian. Sir Laine O'Trigger (Mr. Faweett) could not have been surpassed; his higher perhaps was somewhat too corputent, but his representation of the character was correct to a nicety! this cool, easy gentlemanly deportment in the scene where he meets and challenges Absolut . and afterwards in the duel seeme, were inimitable, and precisely what the author, consequence of the delicate state of her heatth. Sir Stamford then remained quite meant to represent in the progne too, where so many, fail, he was particularly by the English gentlemen residing at Batavia during the whole period of his stay, and even by several Dutchmen. I was a little manner which does him inhibite credit; in surprized to find this personal dislike exists the interview with Absolute, when he ensure the flaton, and an astronautive that counter-like, he did not over a good knowledge of the character; and hished that counter-like, he did not over a good knowledge of the character; and whelm Sig Stamford with kindness.

ed appointed applicase. Sir Anthony Abtolute (Mr. Hutchiuson) was throughout well acted; and Fdulhland (Mr. Baguely) tolerably so, but the character was not suited to the performer who take it; in fact very few of our best actors out make any thing of it, But Sir with what forms of admiration shall I speak of Mrs. Malaprop. (Mrs. Gotlieb); her seenes with Captain Absolute, and siterwards with him and Sir Anthony, the former especially,—were entitled to the warmest appropation: the whole audience burst out into enthusiastic expressions of admiration, and rewarded her with the most rapturous applause. Her indignation at the attack "on her orthography and parts of speech," was extremely well acted, and her whole performance on this occasion has seoured to her what she indisputably meritsthe title of a good actress. Her best characters are evidently those of sour-tempered scolding, or offended dames, and in that line to which she has been hitherto much confined, she has greatly distinguished herself. The part of Lydia Languish was taken by an actress well known to both our Indian Theatres-(Mrs. Francis;) she performed It in her usual very correct manner, but I cannot help remarking what has been so generally noticed-that the sameness and uniformity in her style and voice are tiresome; and unfortunately, for she has evidently a good taste for the stage, and would she correct herself in these particulars, she would be still more strikingly superior than she at prevent is. I will not omit mentioning what I know has been much admired—her very correct and elegant taste in dress, which shows her off to much advantage on the stage.

Mele-dramas I have ever seen; the dresses, scenes and decorations were all new and remarkably pretty, but the mountain scenery and torreut in the last act was beauturl beyond description; it is possible, certainly, thatit might be equalled in Chowringhee, but I am certain that it could not be surpassed there, or on many stages in England. The offect was grand and magnificent, and as true to nature as possible. In one of the scenes a correct view of Como and her late Majesty's pulace at that place was intro-duced. The extreme applace which this little piece universally met with, most satisfactorily testified the admiration of the au-s new piece. Nickl," which was amplianced dience at the exertions of the performers from the stage. I trust you will recommend

Mr. Blackmore as Captain Javier was quite at home; he succeeded particularly well in performing the part of a kind, warm hearted, honest tar, and elicited much applause. As Colonel Rigolio (Mr. Bagueley) too, ought to be a recommendation. I w

Pag: and antiquently with Sir Lucius, was very excellent, to such characters he while waiting to the opponents, he attract—always distinguished himself, and it is a pity he is not confined to them. Returned was in the hands of Mr. Frankling; it has therefore needless to say that his performance was highly applicated, and mot with disversal approbation. Mysisto, a dual boy, was performed by Mrs. Francis, with infinite credit; the affectionate routh warm gratitude to his ben factors, plous and excessive feeling on beholding the bust of his father, affectionate regard on regor nising Estevan, and indignation on spens, the villain Rigolio, whom he immodiately recollects as his father's murderer, were noted to the life. Mr. Morgan as Publa was very good, and the female parts, which did not admit of any great display of acting were in good hands. In the second add band of villagers, men and women, perform ed a very lively dance with much celat, and one of the men surprised the audience with the grace of his movements and the superiority with which he acquitted himself. I cannot take leave of the performance of last evening without noticing a circumstance deserving of the most marked reprehension. and which gave the greater part of the audience much uneasiness. From the smallness of the stage it was found impossible to prepare the torrent scene previously, and there was consequently a very trifling delay, as it had to be prepared during the performance of the scene preceding it. Some vulgar persons, too unfecting to make aldowances, and too ignorant to appreciate the merits of the performers, commenced a violent hissing; but I reporce to say, that these marks of dis approbation, which wern confined to very few, were quickly drowned in the enthusiastic applause which burst spontaneously from the better judging part of the audience, and when the curtain did rise, and display so magnificent a scene, the surprise was not that there had been delay, but that there had not been more It gives us pain too to be obliged to mention the improper conduct of several persons in the boxes, who by the loudness and impropriety of their remarks gave great disgust to the audience, and evidently annoved and inconvenienced several ladies, near whom; without any regard to propriety and good manners, they had posted themselves.

I am happy to inform you, that the Dum Dum Theatre is again shortly to be opened-I believe next Wednesday week-with and every one connected with this delight— to your numerous fuends and readers to ful little Theatre. muster strong on that occusion, and I can promise you that they will experience treat of the richest kind; for the play, learn, is strongly cast, and every prosped is neld out of complete success—its novelts

Proposal of the Calcutta Bethel Union Society for ameliorating the State of British Seamen in the Part of Calcutta.

The Calcutta Bethel Union Society has now existed long enough to have learned experimentally the feasibility of its objects, and the degree of support which it may exe pect from the public, the knowledge thus acquired is of such a nature as to warrant the conclusion that the time is come when it is proper to extend the field of its operations. It is a matter of no small consequence that the Gospel has been preached to successive companies of British Marimers; that tracts and other books of religious instruction have been circulated and read, and habits of daring and rumous proflig icy have been broken in upon and checked at least for a time, and that time, perhaps a most critical one, the most beneficial result unavoidable, it is certainly highly necessamay in many cases arise from these things. But much more must be done to render the house for our injured friends.

Calcutta Bethel Union thoroughly ellichent, But is it practicable! All dif ging an individual institution, and as a link in the rapidly extending chain of kindred institutions. It is felt deeply that our ininstitutions. It is left deeply that our inare such as are applicable to Seamen in all be superiority of the arrangements last Umon, a boarding house for Seamen, in yening convinced me that I had not been which their wants would be supplied with hisinformed; there was no unnecessary de- hospitable liberality, and at the most modeay between the acts as heretolore, with rate charges, where rational means of amusrhich, and other improvements, the audi- ing and instructing the mind would be nee seemed much delighted; and its com- adopted, rules of sobriety strictly entoiced, ort, so far as regards the visitors from Cal- religious instruction afforded, and divine utta, &c. &c., it is intended to increase. I worship conducted. It cannot be doubted pave beard, by the crection of Stables, and that such an establishment would be good and useful, but it may be asked—Is it peculiarly needed? Is it practicable? And it may be answered -- that it is both necessary and practicable.

The necessity of it may be rested upon a DRAMATIS AMICUS. few simple tacts which must be very generally known, the houses now open for the reception of seamen in Calcutta are too well known to need description. The public streets and the Police Office afford perpetual examples of the baneful effects produced by them. It is most distressing to see our Countrymen reeling with intoxication under the Meridian Sun,-the contempt of Heathens,—in many cases the seeds of fatal disease are sown, and sometimes immediate and dreadful Death takes place; such instances have come to public notice; and much feeling has been excited on the occasion .-- Even when the health remains unhart the morals do not, and much of the insubordination on Shipboard, with all its attendant cycls no doubt springs from the same source.

> It is a melancholy fact that these houses exist, but perhaps the worst of it is, that there are no other .- A plous Sailor complained, the other day that he could find no lodgings in Calcutta, except in these ahodes of vice, surely then this is a strong case. If such places as we have mentioned exist, if they so contribute to rob Seamen of their morals, respectability, health, and life, and if they are thus ry to provide a hospitable and comfortable

But is it practicable? All difficulties in the case must be either of a general or of a local nature. - Difficulties of a general nature are such as are applicable to Scamen in all noisome receptacles on s. ore, to which Seamen to say that they will not be disposed are of a local nature, such are the disposi-tions, it may be said with which Scamen come ashore in a foreign port, and after a tong voyage that it is not to be expected they will voluntarily deny themselves their wonted pleasures, and submit to the restraints of sobriety and decenoy, and such is the state of Society in Calcutta, that we do not possess any thing like the facilities enjoyed at home for the establishment of lodging houses.

No doubt there is force in both the objections, and yet they may both be used to urge us to the very measure against which they are brought .- If the ground of the first be true, it only proves that the danget of Scamen, in Calcutta, is peculiarly great and alarming, and it should therefore the more intensely interest every feeling of humanity in their cause. It the second be true, it only proves, that the evil complained of is not one that will rectify itself. If the state of Society is such, that suitable private families cannot be found to open their doors to strangers, there the defect mag: be supplied by public means

But Scamen are not so universally nor so thoroughly deprayed as is frequently supposed. At least afford them the possibility of doing otherwise than they now do before they be given up as hopeless, and if we " should not be able to induce them, on landing, to turn their steps immediately to our Boardinghouse, yet let it be open to them as a refuge when the first delirum of debauchery has subsided, and they have come to themselves

The Bethel Union begs leave to press this subject most carnestly upon the attention of the Public. The making the experiment is fully determined upon. The pecuniary means are wanted, and information for perfecting the necessary plans. - Assistance in both respects is solicited from Merchants and those Gentlemen who may feel an interest in the welfare of Seamen. To the Captains and Officers of Ships the Society would particularly address uself. They may do much for the proposed Institution by their influence over their men, and with economy to themselves they might contribute considerably to its support by using the superior accommodations which it would offer them. The assistance of Gentlemen in the Marine is also requested, and will be thankfully received, and to publie benevolence at large, a confident appeal is made. The institution may be expected every day to be doing good in the ordinary course of its proceedings, and may become peruliarly useful to the cause of humanity on particular emergencies. In cases of Shipwreck the unhappy crews might be brought to it, at once as to a home in which they would be sure to receive every requi-

The most plausible objections, however site attention, and from it authoritie statements of their wants might be issued reo that real distress would be certain of relief, and the public would not be imposed apon-It the Institution should even bring in any. profit, it will be scrupulously devoted to the relief of those cases that must otherwise be referred to public generosity; and in a. short period of time, it is confidently expected, that the house will fully support itself.

Messis. Palmer and Co have obligingly consented to receive Subscriptions to the object, and fetters containing information. and suggestions, the result of experience, may be addressed to Mr Gogerly the Secictary .- or to Reverend J Mack, Serampore; Rev. D. Schmid, Circular Road; Rev J Statham, Howish, and P. Lindeman, Esq. Dhurtomtollah, who are appointed as a Sub-Committee.

GENERAL ORDERS. No. 2979.

Referring to the period at which the Volunteering to the 13th Regiment was sauctioned from Corps then ordered from India to England, it was not known at that time that His Majesty has been graciously pleased to command, that that battahon shouldbe formed into a Light Corps.

In consequence of the want of informa-tion on this point. Men were allowed to enter the 13th as Volunteers generally were into other Regiments, without advertince to age, height, and strength, suitable to such active excitions as the Drill and prescribed duties of a Light Corps orquires.

Under these circumstances His Excellency the Commander in Chief proposes that that part of the arrangement which threw open the 13th Light Infantry at the former Volunteering, should be aftered in bic most convenient manner for the Soldiers concerned,

Lieutenant-Colonel McCreagh will immedrately select such as joined him from other Corps since his a myal in India, who are not duly qualified for his particular line of Service, and the Lieutenant-Colonel will send as soon as practicable a Catalogue made out alphabetically, to the Adjutant General of His Majesty's Forces, informing previonsly the Men concerned, that they may make choice of any of the Regiments of Infantry serving on the Bengal Establishment, into which they may wish to transfer their

Although these are circumstances calculated greatly to aggravate the offences of this Officer, still the Commander in Chief is willing to hope, that in yielding as far as he feels, it is consistent with his duty, to the carnest intercos-sion of the Court, he tuns no risk of shaking the foundations of discipline and subordination. This day's Report announced the arrival of the Ship, Hydroos. Syed Meer hilly Heef. from Mocha 16th August, and Allepee 6th Septembers,

The performance that was adaptined Chowringhee for to-morrow avening, is the veidably postponed.

We regret this springerance not so much on second of the play, which we trust will not be the less brilliantly attended for the delay alluded to but for the cause of the postponement, which, we are sorry wholerstand, arises from the indisposition of the amateur who was to perform the parts of the Chevalier St. Franc and Mr. O. P. Bustle. The play according, ly will be acted on Wednesday next-the intention of fixing on Wednesday is, that the Amateurs may as soon as possible be able to get up one more performance before the Theatre closes for the holidays, and also for the purpose of giving the favorite Amateur who lately appeared in the char-acter of "Morblieu," an opportunity of taking his leave of the Chowringhee boards, (of which he has been such a distinguished ornament) previous to his departure for Eu-

GOLDSMITH'S excellent Comedy of " She stoops to Conquer" is spoken off for the occasion, and we have reason to expert that the cast will be unusually strong. We shall take an early opportunity of procuring, if we can, a correct "Dramatis persone" list for our readers. We shall therefore content our readers. ourselves for the present with mentioning that the public may expect to see our theatrical "Proteus" as Marlow, and the hu-mourous "Gabriel" as Tony Lumphin, and though last, not least, an old favorite sup porter of the Drama in the part of "Old Hardcastle,"—we mean the Amateur who performed Major Oakley in the "Jealous

By an obliging communication from a Correspondent at Goruckpore, dated the 5th instant, we learn that there had been a sudden inundation in that part of the district, through which the Kowannah river rans. The inundation took place in three hours, and not less than 200 villages are said to have been swept away, and there was a sad mortality. Grain was searcely to be got. The cause of the inundation is not exactly specified.

A HINT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BENGAL HUREARU.

Sir.-It is much to be lamented, that the two pieces announced as being in rehearsal at our Drury, should both prove to be indifferent farces. Performances such as these, tho generally enacted with considerable colat, seldom possess any very great attraction to draw good houses, barely from the circumstance of their too frequent repetition which in no small degree detracts from the rhich otherwise may have characterized their introduction.

Whense may originate this sage furous, while Comodies calabrates in excellence and esteemed for their excellence and esteemed for their merry are suffered to sink in piter oblivion. Would not, perhaps, become me to investigate; but I may be allowed to remark, that he public, who not long ago detired so much amusement and satisfaction from witnesses, performances which would do benot to the London Stage, cannot but mark such a change with unfeigned regret.

Perhaps deficulties and obstacles may be said to exist, which unaveleably preclude the representation of a Tragedy; but maining of the kind can, I believe, be utged for withhelding favourite Comedies, which, in the absence of what I apprehend we shall not soon again see, would in some degree compensate the Lovers of the Drama.

To remedy the eyil in the present case,

To remerly the evil in the present case, could not apparently be found practicable, could not apparently be found practicable, as the pieces have been fixed upon; but let me hope, that our worthy managers, whose exertions on every occasion have been duly appreciated, will'in future gratify the Public with Cumberland's "Wheel's Fortune," "The West Indian," "The Jew," or "O" Keeffe's Wild Oats," and such pieces, which were before got un with statinguished anowere before got up with distinguished success, and whose repetition I feel persuaded, would be better and more generally approved and accepted, than old and hackaged HAMLET. farces. 13th September, 1823.

The Wheel of Fortune was played 14 or

The Wheel of Fertune was played 14 or 15 months ago, and is both "old and hack-nied." The present numerical strength of the Chowringhee Corps puts it out of their power to play either "the West Indian," "The Jew" or "Wild Oats." With respect to the latter piece, I heard that it was in contemplation, but that it was obliged to be abandened from the cearth of amateurs. It it true that "Sit George Thunder, Royer, Harry and Jehn Dory" might be filled, but in the mean time, what becomes of "Farmer Gammon, Ephraim Smooth and Sim," three character's requiring first rate acting.

The small but united band of Chowringhee seem to be fully aware of what suits them best. They have adhered to the maxim of "Ne sutor ultra crepndam." Had Hamlet attended to the advice contained in it, he would not have acted the "indifferent farce" of publishing his injudicious remarks on a subject of which he appears so entirely igno-

ACQUISITION TO THE BAND OF THESPIS.

Great is the satisfaction we feel in an-mouncing to the public of this city, the arrival in India of a French actor and singer from Paris. He is now at Madras, and we from Paris. He is now at Madras, and we shall no doubt soon see him upon the hoards of the Chowringhee theatre. If he is a man of talents, he will not be contented with the patronage of so, small a society as that of the stater presidency; but proceed to the capital where his merits may have a chance of being appreciated and duly rewarded. We cannot but congratulate our readers in town, on the acquisition this Actor is likely to prove to our corps drematique, the more particularly if he should happen to undertand the English language, without which his musical talents only day to evallable to us, he can be of builties and diffe ever but us, he can be of builtitle use of the orier; but his other qualifications will no dealer afford the highest pleasure to the manife.

Having thus endeavered to preposesse the public, in favour of a person who has come to so distant a place, for the perpose of entertaining them; we beg to express hope that he will receive a good redeption on his arrival in this city of palaces. on his arrival in this city of palaces,give a part of his advertisement from one of the Madras papers; which will serve to give our readers a better idea of the views of the person in question, than any thing that can fall from our pen.

"Mr. Heymerdinger, French Actor and Singer, Pupil of the Conservatory of Paris and professor of Music, having lately arrived at Madras, has the honour to informathe Ladies and Gentlemen of the Settlemont, that he intends giving at the Pantheon, on Monday the 1st September next, a Scenic Representation, consisting of four grand Scenes, selected from the best modern Operas, and in which he will act under appropriate Costume, and sing six chosen

Sonatas with the accompaniment of a grand Orchestra. Mr. Heymerdinger will not fail to use every exertion towards meriting the kind suffrages of the Ladies and Gentlemen of this Settlement; and wholly relying on their generosity, he trusts he will be hanoured with their encouragement and liber-

We have much satisfaction in appounding that Government have authorised the contruction of Bungalows and Seraces on the Military Road from Calcutta to Benares for the convenience and accommodation of travellers. The distance is about four hundred and thirty miles, and the Bungalows are to be 40 stationed so as to divide the road into thirty stages. Travellers proceeding from the Presidency are to obtain the permission of the Post Master General to occupy the Bungalows, and these on their way to Calcutta are to apply for it to the Dep. Post Master General at Benares or some of the subordinate Postmaster on the road, paying one Rupee for the use of each Bungalows.

The accumulation of the above fees is to go towards the repairs of the Buildings.

In all probability, Kitmutgars and other servants will be induced to reside near the bungalows, to be at hand to attend to al the wants of Travellers, supplying them with provisions, &c. &c.

We need acarcely enlarge on the very great public benefit, that will be derived from this considerate measure, its effect! will be too feelingly appreciated to rendes any other testimonial of its value neces-

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the India Gazetta. Sir,—Although the infrequency of Theatricals in Calcutta is a subject of much regret with the real lovers of the Drama, yet the play-loving folks I am suce are always much obliged to the Managers of the Chowringhee Theatre, whenever they get up a Play, whether tragical, comical, or threckel. In a community like that of Calcutta, consisting of Europeans, Indo-Britons, Portugueze, Jews, Armenians, and others, it is impossible that any public establishment can please every one. I have often observed anonymous suggestions in the papers regarding the Theatre, so characteristic of a variety of taste, that were the Managers to bestow the least attention on them, they would find themselves in as perplexing a situation as the Old Man, his Bon and his Ass in the fables of Esop. A communication of the nature appears in this day's Hurkaru, and as it is something of the cyrious kind, I spend a leisure hour ist making a few remarks on it.

The writer who signs himself Hamilt lamonts that the two pieces in rehearsal should prove to be indifferent farces. Now, Sir, any common Sircar who can read Engfish, and who has never visited a theatre. would from the advertisement alone, enter a protest against the "Point of Honoi" being called a farce, but this sage discerner of the Drama calls it, and the after piece, Indifferent farces! In vain have I luoked for the proof of their indifference, unless it be in their too frequent repetition, which HANLET asserts is the consequence of their in no small degree from the merit of the plays that novelty and interest which otherwise may have characterised their intro-duction. This is strange reasoning, and of very recent date, but however strange, it affords no proof that the pieces in question are indifferent, for frequent repetition and meagre audiences cannot affect the real merits of a piece, nor divest it of its beauty. &c. But I hope HAMLET has something like reason in stere to prop up such a crooked and weak argument, for he cannot forget, if he has read the "Point of Honor," or he must be very ignorant indeed if he does not acknowledge, that this piece contains in any excellencies, and will inevitably be a source of much enjoyment to the votaries of the Biage

The second paragraph calls for a few questions. How does HAMLLr know that the public mark the change he so deeply laments with unfeigned regret! He does not 'stand up to speak the wishes of hundridge, then how can be empress what he can mover know? He will perhaps reply, that he judges from the small audiences generally assembled. Then for what reason has the audience heen equally small on occasions, when Comedies "celebrated for their excellence and esteemed for their merits," have been represented?

Hawler's suggestion to the managers for getting up certain Comedies, all of which have been performed on the Chowringhee boards, is ridiculous, after asserting that "frequent repetition prevents overflowing houses, and detracts from the merit of the plays," &c. I will not, however, dwell further on this paltry production of as paltry a dictator, whose letter from beginning to end betrays a want of knowledge of the Drama, and who has written about things, he certainly shews very little capacity to understand.

Your obedient servant.

We kately re-published the Prospectus of Lientenant Johnston, of the Royal Navy, for establishing Steam Navigation between the East Indies and Britain. We have the pleasure, in our present number, to submit an address from the same gentleman to those who are interested in this subject,—as who is not? We heartily wish every success to the plans of this public spirited and enterprising individual, which appear to us most feasible. No doubt a meeting at the Town Hall will be soon called, to consider the question with all the attention and encouragement it so well deserves.

av address,

TO

The Gentlemen interested in promoting a communication with Great Britain by means of Steam Navigation, and who have favored me with an assurance of their attendance at the Town Hall, should a Niceting on this ruleiciting subject be convened.

Gentlemen,—In the prospectus which I have circulated, I have gone into the detail of expence that would probably be incurred by an establishment of Steam Vessels, adequate to ensure a monthly communication with Great Britain.

With the fullest confidence of the ultimate success of this project, I would not, if Funds were at my disposal, embark at once to the full extent. I think the preferable mode would be to begin on a small scale, say, two Vessels on each side the fathmus, of such a size as might be available for other purposes, subdid, the scheme by any chance fait. This size would probably be from 200 to 350 Tans, with 100 Horses power: such Vessels would be sectul, as Tugboats, or to carry on a communication with Madras, in splicit, shundant employment would be found at all reasons.

In the exist things, however, that will follow in this paper, a boil, square myself to the original proposal of Waysels of 400 Tons.

The first measure necessary to the promotion of the object in question, is to obtain adequate Funds, or the certainty of procusing them when required.

The second is arrangement for the passage of the Isthmus.

The third, the establishment of a co-ops-

The Funds necessary for the small entablishment of two Boats on each side the Isthmus would prehably not exceed this Lacs of Rupers, and to raise this sum the most desirable mode would be to establish a Company, and to subdivide the amount required into a given number of shares.

From a participation in this plan, however, the most interested persons would find them-velves excluded. I mean Goulamen of the Civil and Multary establishments, who are prohibited engaging in any Mercantile speculation.

Another means which may be resorted to, is that of soliciting a Loan from the Public, and of taking the whole responsibility on myself, and this I am willing to do from the confidence I have of the ultimate success of the undertaking.

In soliciting the Loan, I would suggest that the amount individually subscribed be confined to such a sum as the Subscriber would willingly give as a premium, for the promotion of this desirable object, from which such great benefits would be derived.

It would be most satisfactory that a Committee of Management should be appointed from the Civil, Military, and Mercantile interests, and this for many reasons, one not the least, is, that application to the Government for aid, in various ways going from a Committee would carry more weight, and meet with more attention than if preferred by an individual.

It would next be necessary to visit Egypt, with a view to making arrangements with the Pacha, and I am of opinion that this arranged ment ought to be of a private and commercial nature, as that made some years ago by Mr. Briggs, for the conve, ance of goods from Kossier to Cairo, when the Pacha engaged to furnish any number of Camels with an escoct, at the rate of two Dollars per Camel, and one Dollar per Camel, as duty.

Of course such an arrangement must be made through the Congul Mr. Salt, to whom Letters should be procured from this Government, and from the Presidency of Bombay.

FRIDAY, SPPT. 19TH, 1823 -Before the Hero of Malown, arrived off Police G'au Hon'ble Sir Francis Machaghten and Sir Antony Buller in Chambers.

The case of Mr Atnot was argued to-day, when Mr Turton was heard in favor of the writ of Habeas Corpus, to which the Advo-cate General replied Mr. Turton rejoined, and the Judges having retired for more than half an hour, on their return to Court proceeded to give judgement. Justice stated that he much regretted that it was not likely the Court would be unanimous on the subject, and that for his part he was clearly of opinion that the Governor General had no right to confine Mr. Arnot, and that he ought to be discharged. This opinion was delivered in an animated and impassioned speech, of which we regret our inability to give more than the decision to-day. Sir A Buller was of a contrary opinion, and stated at considerable length the grounds of his dissent. Mr. Arnot was of course set at liberty immediately, in consequence of the decision of Sir Francis Macnaghten.

the Drame, in spite of rain and connect.

First, note in most things are heavy things. Even in the Drama of life, the first act is varify disagreeable. One experiences comercial or the same senantional towards a dies act, that one does with a new acquaintage. There is an affort in roughly the attention while to aversation languishes and the profit is store of the interview each office, reading the bere of the interview each office, reading the bere of the interview each office, reading the bere of the interview each office, reading the bere of the interview each office. The store is the second under an imported, acquaining in the most friendly interview and interview becomes the first and last. Let it is an interest with the characteristic than that had been each that had been one interest with the continue of the sense of the first act. A small each is a man interest in the lifet act. A small each is a man and a soldier—Oh acting, but we have been and a soldier—Oh acting, but when it was an acting the first act. A small each each of the whole is a specific dist then the act is a small each of the sense of the sense of the profit in a time and the sense of the profit in a first act. The morality is a sense of the value of the profit is a factor at the sense of the profit is a factor.

The manufactor flower. However, the major of the present floring appeared in the star of the present floring appeared in the star of the present floring appeared in the star of the moral sentiment in the land hold of the moral sentiment in terest that here which his former disguise had chased away. He created a powerful interest that never quitted him afterwards, and grew more infense, until he was blind-folded near that costs, into which with breathless expectation, we expected to see him fall superstanding, we expected to see him fall superstanding, we expected to see him fall superstanding the exally looked the character after the change of dress to which we alluded, and it has extremely pathetic interview with his lather in the prison and at the Death parents, did it eminent justice. The yeteran St. Franc could not have a more perfect representative than the part had, it was a very finely sustained chastened down performance, full of paternal dignity. The moving paris told extremely well, particularly in the last scene, when he rushed is the desperation of parental agony between his son and the levelled pieces of the soldiers.

Nalcour in the earlier scenes where buoyancy and volatile humour were called for, was excellent—but in the sentimental parts it was apparent that his genius felt under restraint. Stringers was as attractive as such a part could be. The first officer was very correctly supported.

Mrs Melfort has but a second rate interest in the piece,—and that second rate interest was respectably enough sustained. She was dressed with propriety. We must hint to her, that dignified remoustrance must not degenerate into sookding energy. Bertha, under different circumstances, would have been more unanimously and unequivocally appreciated. As it was, the house was dull. and heavy and yawning. The weather, as ge have hinted had damped the finer sensibilitles of the heart, and blunted the edge of dramatic celish. Bertha, accordingly produced not that general pathetic effect that otherwise she might have done. Somehow or other her dress was defective. We cannot tell how, but so it struck us. There was some defective jan as see qual, as there was in the mode of setting off the face with that supplemental bigom which the stage requires. In some of the touching parts she quires. In some of the touching parts she was highly meritorious; and this remark applies to almost the whole of the prison scene, from the moment of her awaking from a disturbed dream, to the departure of Purinesh But—to faint well requires peculiar qualifications. The least verying from a certain waving line of fragile relaxation endangers the tracic effect relexation endangers the tragic effect. From the sublime to the ridiculous is, but a step, and as fainting; and shricking are the sublime of female tragedy, and Taggedian can succeed well who is not quite of the hoth. Not that we would insinuate that Bertha did not faint well and shrick well, we cannot deny but she have here are story. As much depends almost well and shrick the officer might have been greater. As much depends almost up on the fainter as upon the faintee,the fainter seize the fainter too abruptly, the effect is apt to become perilously ludierons. It is the same if the faintee hold the fainter too high or too low. In shart, we must have an essay on theatrical fainting, and we mean to consult some admirable adepts of our acquaintance upon the subfeet. Fainting, standing, is always danger-ous, unless the heroine measure her length upon the floor, which we hold to be the very climax of the art. Fainting on a sopha is comparatively easy. Fainting into the arms of a weak female attendant is very peulous, as the latter is apt to stagger backwards, and the line of fainting beauty is accordingly lost. The sublimest speci-nen of falling into insensibility we ever beheld, was the great JOHN KEMBLE'S full in the last scene of Corwlanus. The birst time we saw him in it, he was (as some ot our readers may remember) standing with that air of god-like grandeur which distinguished him, among the Volsces. Then upon their stabbing lum while standing thus with his full face to the audience, he fell be kward, upon the stage. The effect was indescribably grand and terrable. It was like the fall of a towering precipice into the sea. Latterly as he become more feeble, he fell into the arms of those about him, and though a portion of the terri-ble effect might thus have been lost, the grandeur was preserved in its full force. Again recurring to the execution scene of the Point of Honor as acted last night, we cannot but give it the tribute of our warmest approbation The fine old Chevalier St. Franc rushing between his son and the soldiers, and falling into a fit of hysterical insensibility, was one of the most powerful pieces of acting we have ever seen. The procession of the soldiers was extremely w.ll managed, but why have the halberts at all, since Durmel was not fastened to them? Perhaps the dread solemnity of the scene might have been increased by marching the coffin before the victim, as in real mulrary executions.

Of "Amateurs and Actors" we have litthe to say, for a good reason—because we heard but little of it. The rain at the commement of it, began to fall in more violent to results than before, so that with the whispering of many of the audience within, the general heaviness of all, the loud pattering of the rain without, and the still louder chattering of coachmen and heavers in the

in in the second of the second head and pinion and the second star in a pieceaut we have the second we have a survey of the second which quaintly orawing about never longhed itself, though it made others hold their sides. It was queer phicaging switch simplicity and imperturbable oraziness personified. Geoffry Muffiness is a kind of Dumbiedykes or Domini Sampson of a lower order. order. The performance ranks in the same scale of excellence that the "Nicholas Twill" of a well remembered amateur, now unfortunately absent, did. The audience in encoring his song acted upon the impulse of an instant. A moment's consideration would have placed the impropriety of such an encore in its proper light. The amateur in condescending good humouredly to gra-tify the encorers, sated as we expected he would—but still we deprecate encores of this kind. They are, to be sure, flattering marks of the comic power of a favorite amateur, but then is it not pushing his good nature and urbanity a little too far? Mr.M. O.P. Bustle was admirable. His dress and address were inimitably suitable to the character. The scene of equivoquable tween himself and Elderberry was exquisitely laughable. Wing could not be better. It was a most capital heate ideal of a ranting vagrant votary of Thespis. The same observation applies to his erra-. tie partner Mrs. Mary Generil. She got through her part with the greatest possible spirit and comic humour. The scenes between herselfand Wing were irresistibly ludicrous. Elderberry was in the best pos-sible hands, and bustled about very amusingly. David Bulcet, Esquire, and his sloping spouse Miss Mary Hardacre, were very deservedly applauded. Perhaps David Duleet and Wing ought to have exchanged parts, on account of the bits of songs with which Duket intersperses the dislogue, and which would have come more home from the other. Elderberry sang, or rather how led up into a corner by the wocal powers of "Cupid" singing Wing, was one of the most laughable scenes of the piece.

In going out of the house, we could not help recurring to our wishes, and wishing over again, for the hundred the true, that there were a Saloon or a lobby adjoining the Theatre for the accommodation of the audience, and that the facility of calling up the coaches could be increased. Facility did we say? It is with feelings of annoyance and difficulty that one must stand shivering in a cold stair case for half an hour before being able to get away. This may, and ought to be, remedied.

The Theatre opens again on Friday week with the favorite Comedy of "She stoops to Conquer." The parts will be uncommonly strongly cast, and the Geoffrey Muffincap of last evening, we are sorry to say, will take his farewell of the Chowringhee Boards in

LOSS OF THE SHIP ATLAS.

The ship Atlas, whilst-at anchor on the 21st instant, off Hogg river on her way to town, in one of those sudden flurries so common in the freshes during the springs, took a violent sheer, when the chain cable by which she rode, suddenly checking her, occasioned her to lorge a head, and bring it under the forefoot, (that is under the fore-part of the vessel's bottom) by which her stem was nearly rung off, and she sprang so dangerous a leak, that the pilot, in order to save the lives, was forced to run her ashore in the creek, where she now lays with the water up to the hatches of the lower deck. This is not the flist accident of this kind produced by a similar cause; the fact is, that however superior chain cables may be to those made of hemp, in road steads and in overs where the tides are not very rapid, it is the opinion of many nautical men, that the use of them in this uver during the fre-hes, is constantly attended with danger. In the present instance, had the cable been hemp or corr instead of a chain, it is more than probable that the Atlas would not have been lost, for the smoothness of surface of the former would not admit of its grasping the vessel's bottom long enough to have occasioned serious injury; whereas the hollows between the links of the chain admit the edges of the ship's keel, and when pressed by her weight. they grasp it with what seamen call a dead nip, from which the vessel is not extricated until seriously damaged. The Jonathan Liverpool ship, was lost in the same manner. and about three years ago, a cotton-loaded ship, was forced by a similar accident to unload and go into dock. She was saved only by the most extraordinary exertions of the crew, in lightening he, a large portion of her cargo was damaged, and her voyage broke up. This should certainly be looked broke up. This should certainly be looked any attack on the cover, and a small to, and the underwifters would do well, we quantity of the same mixed with the colour think, to call a meeting of competent perfor the edging would also preserve that sons, to decide how far the use of chain part. Books bound without any precautios cables in the Hoogly during the freshes is consistent with the safety of the vessels they insure.

The Ship Oyle Castle which, our readers will remember was obliged to put back in a leaky state sometime ago, is now in Mr. Brightman's Dock, at Howrah; a considerable part of the cargo has been taken out of her, but as yet no leak has been discovered: and it is apprehended, that it will be necessary at last, to stup the whole of her bottom for examination. If this should really, be the case, it will, we tear, be a serious source of detention to that vossel, it is to be hoped, however, that the leak may yet be got at, without having recounse to this last measure; and that she will soon be in her own element again. The ship King George the Fourth, of which mention was made in our pages a few days back, has already had most of her damages repaired, and will be out of dock in a day or two.

PRESERVATION OF LIBRARIES.

To the Editor of the Larral

Sir, - When we consider the rayages the are made in library's by insects, in this country especially, it behaves us to seek for some temedy that may tend to put a stop to this earl

Books are bound in Calcutta, by several persons who warrant that they will never be subject to the attacks of the worm-as far as my experience goes, this is correct. as regards the binding, but I am not so certain the that pages themselves escape.

A correspondent in the Technical Repository proposes, that paper-makers should mux a certain quantity of corrosive subli-mate with the pulp of which the paper is composed, and that the book-binders should boil it with the glue, and paste which are used in binding the books. I am afraid that this practice however individually beneficial, would be generally dangerous in the extreme—as far as regards mixing the sublimate with the pulp of the paper. We mustall recollect, that at school, paper is frequently chewed by the children for the purpose of play, and I need say no more. to point out the danger of their being point soned. In regard to using the sublimate for mixing with the paste for binding, the same obaction does not exist: the leather prepared for book-binding might be advantageously steeped in a solution of corrosive sublimate, which would effectually prevent nary measures being taken for their preservation, might also be saved from the attack of insects, by hanging behind the shelves of libraries a few small bags filled with theu last legs, and as the play will be percamphor, or spunges dipped in spirits of formed in the month of October, we may turpentine. CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETIF.

Str.,-The kind and flattering reception which my former letters, descriptive of Jypoor, Ajmere, &c. &c. met with, encourages me to resume my pen for the paipose of communicating to you the few remarks which I made on my route to Agra, after quiting the Jypore territories, and should you think them sufficiently interesting to merit a place myour highly entertaining nature, now that the particulars of tail late Europe in intelligence have met with insertion,

they are very much at your service

The touth day after leaving Typoor I encamped at the foot of a range of hills close to a Pass near the village of Billto ree distant from the april 66 miles, as near 's I could ascertain' Scarcely had I proceeded a coss on the following morning, when he eviders improvement in the aupearance of the country convinced me of the proximary of the Bhintpine country, the bound rus of which I soon passed. The teritories of the Rajis of Japon and Bhurtpore are separated by successive ranges of piccisely the same description of hills which I have already had occasion so frequently to mention, on my prospect of getting rid of which, t assure you Theartily congratulated mysclt. After ero sing the Pass in the tra range, I found myself in Bhurtpore, and the change was cert mly most gratifying, -- instantaneously, as if by magic, the vast, uncul ivated plants of Rajpootana vanished, and gase place to nume rous beautiful mangoe tops, and a most extensive and luxure at cultivation. Of the extent of the province of Bhurtpo. . I can by no means speak confidently, but us me in breadth ctake to be about 60 miles and its length I should imagine, cannot be more, it is a level country, possessed of a fine soil with abundance of water, and apparently every requisite to ensure the prosperity of agriculture, which is evidently the chief and favorite employment of the mhabitants, no manufactures of any consequence existing, or being desired. If the extent and luxurrance of the cultivation may be considered as any signs of the prosperity and happiness of the people, which with any not of justice and liberty, they certainly must be, Bhurtpore may be reckoned amongst the most thriving provinces in India-certainly far beyond any I have seen. Every description of grain peculiar to the Upper Provinces appeared to flourish, and great quantities of coin which are grown in excess to the consumption of the country, must be exported. The villages are numerous, and in their appearance industive of the wealth of the people, many of them credit of being particularly impenetrable, is Ware, a considerable town, all the approaches to which are corefully guarded to prevent a European even yetting a sight of the fortifications, of which they are very jealous. To my knowledge there is no place of any great eclebrity, except the capital, and that I unfortunately did not see, although I passed within a very few miles of it; but eard I om an Officer, who remained there several days, that great additions had been made to the fortifications on European plans, and that there was nothing curious or entertaining to attract the attention of a traveller of person the inhabitants of Bhurtpore are tall and robust, courage 19 a virtue highly regarded, and very general-Is po sessed by them, but generosity and bosp tality are little known, and less pracafised. In every town or village through which I passed, I was subjected to taunts and mortifications, which I could ill brook; and more than once was I obliged to turn a deat car and effect a comfortable ignorance of insults, which had I appeared to notice I must have punished. The most exorbitant pizees were demanded for every necessary of life, and double, treble and quadrupled rates were universally insisted on, these unpositions they were not backward in supporting by force, and on one occasion at a virtage called Goordah, when I expressed a determination of resisting them, and only proons what they allowed to be the usual process, a body of imagers, headed by an insolont rascal, calling himself a Sepoy of the Baja, coolly told mo that my baggage was my their power, but that was all brayado, for when I gave orders, and made preparations for resisting the attack, they thought it most advisable to reflect a little, as I convinced them they would meet with a pretty warm reception.

Like their neighbours in Jypoor, the Bhurtporeans are constantly aimed, and seem to pay very little regard to the preservation of human lite, which is wantonly saenfect in their almost daily quarrels and tends on the slightest provocation. From the observations which I have made, I am fundy convinced that a European in the least degree, even unwittingly interleting with their prejudices, entering into, or in any way laving himself open to a quarrel, would run the greatest risk of being murdered. I should not torget, while on this subject, to mention, that they have the greatest veneration for the pracock, and that the wanton destruction of one would place the life of the offender in imminent perd. In addition to my other annoyances. in marching through this inhospitable province, that of being half starved, was added: it was not always that I could procure a little wood and milk, which were all that being chiefly pucka, and almost all strong. I required for myself, at my prices from the ly fortified, amongst those which have the obstinacy and insolence of its inhabitants, who you will easily guess are no great favorites of mine. Like the Rajpoots, they are experienced horsemen, although I imagine somewhat inferior to them, their management of their steeds, use of their swords and spears, me well worthy of imitation. The sharpness of their hirs enables them to turn and manœuvre the horses as they please; and then feats, when mounted, give them, single handed, a decided superiority over the troopers of our cavalry. The soil of Burtpore is rich, and very tavorable to cultivation, and the chinate is temperate and bealthy, so that under a mild and benchcent Gover, ment, its inhabitants ought to be as prosperous and hapty as those of any part of India. The fort, which was surrendered to us in 1803 or 1804, is built of a red stone peculiar to Arra, and is with the improvements and ademons, which have been made to it since its capture, sufficiently strong to resist the attack of any Native or European power without a regular siege. It is situated on the banks of the Jumna, and is surrounded by a ditch capable of itself of putting an effectual stop to hostile approach. This fort from its strength and situation is an excellent depôt for all the mulitary stores, guns, &c. &c required for the troops cmploved in that quarter. A description of the T.j. would of itself require a volume, and to giv an adequate idea of it evoued be for beyond my ability, suffice it then to say, that however high an opinion description may have given you of its elegance and really magical splendour, it would prove, on examination, far below the reality. In Agra and its vicinity are other splendid buildings,—in particular at Secundre, 5 miles distant, the Mansoleum of the Emperor Acber, and in the fort the Motee Musgid is allowed by many to exceed in brauty even the Tau itself. So very general an account of such building sperhaps you will think a fault; but I believe the majority of your readers who have not seen them, will have read descriptions of them much more interesting and correct than I can give; besides I have already written more than I am justified in supposing you will be able to insert. At the fort ghaut is the tamous gun captured with the fort; its size and excessive weight have hitherto prevented its ber g transported to Calcutta, for the purpose of being sent, as I understood, to England. An unsuccessful attempt was once, I believe, made to put it on board a boat, since when it has remained in its present position. The exact size of this pronstrous piece of artillery, I regret that I did not ascelt in, but as far as I recollect it was about 4 feet in diameter; but doubtless, should you desire it,* some of your correspondents at the place will lurinsh you with the measurement. The Natives assert that there are considerable quantities of the precious metals in it, and that its value is several lacs of rupces, one lac has, it is said, been offered to Government for it I am, Str.

SIR. - The non-existence of some regulations to prevent the insolence of the Teck. Bearers in this extensive city, is an exil universally felt, and certainly much to be regretted. The numberless complaints which have been made against the improper conduct and rapacity of this class of people are certainly descrying of some attention, but I do not find that the inconvenience is at all remedied. Not keeping in my service a complete set of bearers, and wishing to proceed to Bairackpoor this day, I desired two or three tecks bear; ers to be procured for me in addition, but these independent gentlemen, I am told, will not come without receiving their pay in advance. Being in some respects a stranger to Calcutta, I know not how to account for such conduct. In the upper provinces, I am aware, it would be considered (and treated too) by the Europeans, as it universally is by the Natives, as unpardonable involence and impertinence. By what law or justice, I should like to know, do these people presume to require their pay in advance? That there is none I am well convinced of, and should it he conceded to them, in what manner is it possible to enforce their performing their duty, if they feel inclined to abscond ' For my own part I would with satisfaction walk to the place of my destination were it necessary, rather than allow myself to be so grossly insulted, and I shall be glad to find that a few more of your subscribers and correspondents will by my example

Six -In a notice to Correspondents in the Calcutta Journal of the 1st Sept. is the following --

" We have received a letter signed Ca-RYOPHALIUS, in defence of the Quarterly Recaut, of Crawfurd's Indian Archipelago. As the writer admits, that he never rend the work reviewed, he is baidly entitled to obtinue his orimion on the auble, and as his partiality towards the actioner is so strong as to lead him to deny that he has been guilty in any due instance, of the walt sa degree of garbling, misrepresentation, urtainess, of eno. of any description whatever he appears disqualified for bee of Umpire which he has under-With this letter, the let er dinded i ik to we be put into some braids, and I trust you will see the Carvopa, liasness not obtinded his opinion of Mi Crae furd's work upon the public more than in Selending the Reviewer of r in the Quarterly from the accusations brought against bim in the Journal was justificiale. The Editor of the Journal is indecorate in saving, that Carrophyllus has undertaken the office of Umpire- ho undertool, to xpose several unjust charges brought a ams Sn Stanford Raffles by a writer uncer the agasture of Carus-he thought he and succeeded in doing so, and sent his letter to the Journal, because Carus letter had appeared in it-and he had not known and letter wasever rejected by the Editor of the Journal on such pleas as he has now made all off. The charge of partiality may be met by a retort, for it does not appear impartial to admit serious accusations against an individual designated by name. and to refuse insertion to replies made to them. The only ground that I should have thought a proper one for rejecting such, would be then mantility to the accused party or their intemperance; but the Editor does not say that the letter is rejected on either of these accounts. He does not even say that the arguments are inconclusive. After the passage I have already quoted, the Editor says-"Caryophythus moreover judging from some hints in his letter seems to be an enemy to Colonization." Caryophylius has kept no copy of his letter, but he thinks this will not appear from it. He quotes a passage (from the letter of Caius) attributed to Mr. Crawfurd for the purpose of ridiculing it, not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on Coloniza-The Editor ends his note by giving tion as a touch-stone to discover the friends of good government, which, it not a good touch-stone, is a monstrous good joke. Let us see how he does this—"Now we hold that question (Colonization) to be the touchstone of the soundness of views of all men regarding India," and afterwards--" We grant, that the word Whig, is as applicable to the politics of this country as to those of England or North America, and considering it being interpreted to signify a friend to good government, we included all the friends to Colonization under the generic designation of Indian Whigs, and reject all its enemies as Indian Ton's " A friend to Colonization is an Indian Whig an Indian Whig is a friend to good government. He rejects all its encoures as Indian Toric . Does he mean to say that all who think unfavorably of the project of Colomgation are chemies to good government? It appears reasonable to allow the friends of Colomization credit for sincerity, but it is too much when they assume either all the ability or all the honesty that has been brought to the question to themselves. The Caurita Journal has long boasted of being open to fan controversy, and it is obvious therefore, that its columns ought not to be shut against any man on account of his opmons on any given question when he comes forward to vindicate the character of a person accused in them, and I am anxious that you, Sn, should consider the serious nature of the charges made against Su Standard Raffles before you reject my com-munication commenting upon them. The day's paper in which they appear I cannot tell you, but I find from the same paper m which the Editor's note above referred to, is contained that it is to be found in the 4th Volume of the Journal at page 497

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CALCUTTA JOURNAL,

Sin,—In recommending to the attention of your readers the letter of Caus in your Journal of the 6th instant. professing to

Now, of writing liphabets, the happy situation of it by this you mean that the rules of fair Banca and its advantages, his account of criticism were transgressed towards Mr. the cultivation of spices in Sumatra, and Crawfurd, I totally disagree with you I his mistakes concerning the clove and nutdo not think I ever saw a fairer article or meg' No, no, 17 pages might hold a great

which attempts to stigmatize

In the first place as Sn Stamford Raffles as only supposed to be the author of it, I think his name ought not to have been made so free with, nor ought he to have been has-tily accused of "gaibling" and of "breaking the connexion of an adversary's text and severing a sentence member from member" for the purpose of misrepresenting his opinions. Having said this much, I shall now remark upon such passages of Cams' letter, as he seems to think bear herdest on the Reviewer. Carus icmarks that a few incidental errors are balmed upon the reader as "specimens of the general tone and spirit of the work," which words he quotes from the Reviewer, and it might be thought that in the Review they applied to the incidental errors which Caius admis, but such is not the case. The Reviewer having ably exposed the absurdity of Mr. Crawfurd's suppositions respecting the Great Polynesian nation and language, and his theory of alphabets, has these words, before he proceeds to point out "inciden-tal errors." "Having been led to extend our remarks on this portion of the work to a greater length than we intended, we cannot trust ourselves to go into an examination of the various subjects which are treatthe general tone and spirit of the work may be pretty correctly estimated from the specimens we have afforded. Its principal defect is that which we have already pointed out as the prevailing foible of the agenamely, a rage for generalizing on partial and insufficient data, and the oubstitution of bold speculation for the patient investigation of facts.

We are favored by Caius with a very new, if not a very imposing way of judging of the value of Mr. Crawfurd's work. He supposes that 17 pages would contuntal the erroneous matter that has been commented upon, and therefore as the book contains 1617 pages, that 1600 pages of information and speculation would remain, and these 1600 pages too, a perfect, that no mistake could be exposed in them by the Reviewer. We are told how many chapters are damag- be insisted, that the latter implies a right of ed, but not the length of these chapters, nor private property in the soil so unjustly and private property in the soil so unjustly and what remains of them in respectable con-

Crawfurd's Indian Aichipelago all Mr. C. has written on the aboriginal in--you are pleased to observe, "that in this habitants of the Archipelago, the Great Posubjects of which it treats. I beg to offer Reviewer says—"Thus in describing the you a few remarks on the letter of Caius, saqueras, several names are which attempts to stimulation. saqueras, several pages are verbatim trans-lated from Rumphius' vol. 1, page 59, &c. without any acknowledgement of the source, although an extract from a different part of the same work is annexed in a note, as Rumphins's account of the tree, He thinks the author should have been more particular in distinguishing what is borrowed from what is original, and adds—"The same observation might be extended to all that relates to the vegetable productions, which occupies so large a portion of the work and which consists almost entirely of translations (not always accurate) from Rumphius, with occasionally some alteration in the expression, and very little new matter: the whole of the native names are likewise taken from the Herbarium Ambomease, exactly as they are given, and seldom altered from the Dutch orthography." Ca us thinks that the references to and quotations from Rumphius are so frequent that Mr. C is to be traced in what he has borrowed of his descriptions, and therefore that he did not intend the whole should pass for his own The Reviewer seeing that much is taken while very little is acknow-ledged, thinks differently. Casus says, that the Reviewer does not venture to shew that the applause bestowed upon the Spaniards was unfounded, but we can do this by ed of in the same summary manner, but quoting one sentence he has himself given us from Mr. C -" That the Chinese heartily and universally joined in the cause of the English, as might be expected from the cruelty and oppression with which the Spanish government had always treated them." With respect to the system established in Java within the Company's jurisdiction, Mr. Crawfurd could not now wish that the praise he has bestowed upon at had been withheld nor does the Reviewer, as Caius insinuates, make any unfair use of it, he does not persuade us that the same course was adopted at the Spice Islands, nor that the course adopted at Java was all that would satisfy Mr. Crawtard; he merely shews that Mr. Crawtard admits that it did honor to the British name and character. Caius gives an exquisite quotation, shewing what would satisfy Mr. C.—" It need hardly be insisted, that the latter implies a right of absurdly with-held from our countrymen in dition. But I fear we are not fairly dealt, with India, for without it the settlers would be no better than disreputable vagrants, having no attachment to the land, nor to the goverament that afforded them protection." Do the settlers at Sincapore come under this severe sentence? Are they disreputable vagiants, having no attachment to the land nor to the government that protects them? In ! inging forward the next charge The accusation of garbling is repeated, but very unjustly. It may be true that the Resiewer has not quoted a whole sentence, but he has by no means perverted the meaning of Mr. Crawfurd. Mr. Crawfurd admits that the settlement of Penang was made "on principles of true wisdom and liberality," but according to your correspondent declares in the very same sentence that "it was formed chiefly by two private merchants, James Scott and Francis Light" and from this your correspondent would have us to believe that Mr. C. denies to the British authorities the merit of the principles upon which the settlement was formed, which would be making him more uncauded than he appears to be, as he must be aware that Penang (see Hamilton's Gazetteer) was granted to Capt. Light by the King of Queda, in 1785. "Captain Light King of Queda, in 1785. "Captain Light transferred it to the East India Company, and was by them appointed first governor of the Island, where he arrived in Augt. 1786." Captain Light's having proceeded Captain Light's having proceeded to Penang appointed governor, with the principles laid down for him on which he was to govern, has no claim to the merit of the principles on which the settlement was tounded, unless it is proved that he suggested them. How well he carried them into effect is another question. Mr. James Scott, however, much by his enterprise he might have contributed to the rapid im-provement of the Island is totally unconneeted with the principles on which it was occupied.

It Mr. C. does not reprobate, he at least ridicules the idea of cultivating spices out of the Moluccas, on which head his error has been satisfactorily proved. The Reviewer alluding to a display of eteniology on the part of Mr. Crawfurd, says.— When an author plays the critic in this style, he ought to be very sure of his facts if he would avoid a ridicule; every one must know that the clove of commerce is in fact the flower before its complete expansion, and that the fruit is a different thing after the flower before its complete expansion, and that the fruit is a different thing after of commerce." Caius thinks a little more precision might have been used, and says.— It is not the half-expanded flower, but the flower is unfolded. Now here too the flower is right again, and Caius wrong for the clove of commerce is the flower before its complete expansion, cally, cordinating as Caius asserts. Your correspondent falls.

into a very great mistake in supposing the modifications which our policy has undergone in the Eastern settlements was produced by Mr. Crawfurd's work. They had been carried as far as they are now before it was published, and long before it was rective Sincapore had been occupied ed in India. on the most liberal principles nearly two years before. To Sir Stamford Raffles these favorable changes are mainly owing, though to Lord Hastings much is due from his having enabled Sir Stamford to carry his views into effect. I have made these remarks on your correspondent's letter, under the disadvantages of not having Mr. Crawfurd's work and never having read it. I have seen it, but I found it so insupportably dull that I soon laid it aside. I believe I was unfortunate enough to begin at the Polynesian part of it. All I now remember is, that it gave me a great curiosity to read Marsden's Sumatra, which seemed to have been very freely made use of, and the extracts from which appeared very superior indeed to the orinigal part of the work of 1617 pages. Having no desire, however, to become notorious from the number of my pages,

I remain, your's, CARYOPHYLLUS.

Yesterday His Grace the Duke of Budge Budge entertained a numerous party at his splendid resi-dence in the Bortakonnah. Among the company we observed Sir Bowauny Sing, the Earl of Chingery, Viscount Halwaun, Gopee Mohun Choop, Esq. M. P., Hingun Khan, Esq. M. MASKED BALL,-Mrs (hillie, the lady of Kirkum Fuss Chillie, Bsq M. P. had a masked fete on Friday night, at her spacious manifol, Chitpore street. The rooms were lighted up in the finest style, and a standing Supper, consisting of the most savory eurries, with picity of sherbet, dhie, ghee, and other deheaces, was laid out in the eastern balcony. There were some admirably supported characters.

Mars Chillie herself, in the part of an intriguing Ayab, was capital. Nothing could exceed the grace with which Miss Mootee Mullick glided about as a Nautch Girl. We particularly admired the exquisitely coquettish spirit with which she had her tace in her robe, while her ankle rings tinkled chaiming. by in time; Seekshurrun Doobee, Esq acted the part of a Sampwallah to the life. There were some musing feats in lingthing, and a histoorthy exhibition seemed to af-god anoth pleasure to the puzze music of the party. (RIM CON -The case of Seengh Seer versus Paggul, was decided on Wednesday in the Supreme Court. The prosecutor is a gentleman of distinguished worth and hospitality, who had invited the defendant General, Sir Seeboo Paggul, to pass a few weeks at his beautiful seat in the Sunderbunds. The I dy is the daughter of the late Royah Sculkum Sing, and Sister to the present Rajah so well known at the South end of the town. An old S tear blubbering in a corner, struck us as a trouble for it fi callustration of the moving power of eloquence We mean by the day after to-morrow to submit a full report of this speech to our readers. It unites Asiatic apl ndour with European ratiocination. The Counsel for the defendant, Dalcheener Cowmuddy, Exquire, seemed quite taken, aback by it, and Counsellor Moorgee, who rever loses an opportunity for cricking a joke remarked that his brother Commidde appeared rather dem-couled. MORAL MONSTER—A "Moral Monster" was put to death on Monday at the Loll Bazar. The Sherift of Calcutt, directed the business. The Monster was carried to the Loll Bazar in a carry after which a rope being fastened to his neck; the was with much solemnity suspended in air until the perpetual motion of life ceased. This we think is a develop hard case, and cills loudly for the life ference of Pathament. The name of the moral mouster was Achien Chew, a Chinaman, the reason of depriving him of life so preposterously, was, because he had thought proper to certain pressing reasons to cut off his wife's head. We are come to a fine pass cert unly, unless a man be paramited to shorten his own wife's stature without being brought into crouble for it.

TRIBUTE TO MERIT—The Electors of the Borough of Durruntollah have, we understand, presented Durance Bapter-hap, Esq. M. P. with a silver stew pan, as a mark of their cordial approbation of his Parliamentary conduct.

Thursday being the anniversary of the election of the Hon'ble Hingan Wah-wah, Member for Entallya, the friends of that Gentleman, to the number of two hindred, commemorated the occasion by a dinner at the Guava Hotel, Wellington Square. The eatables and drink ibles were excellent, and several loyal and constitutional toasts were drank. The friends of Mr. Wah-Wah have determined to solicit that gentleman to sit for his profile, which is to be placed in the Town Hall.

Mr. Golanm Hilsa, it is supposed, will succeed the late Alderman Guttlerice, in the ward of Colingah. Mr Hilsa's merits are well known to our readers, and we sincerly trust that this city is destined to have the benefit of his talents, and his patriotism in its councils.

We hear that that delightful Poet Beitchoo Bulbul has a Poem in the press, the subject of which is to be "The Loves of the Devils" Report speaks favourably of the execution of the work, which we understand, is to be dedicated to a certain lady of literary celebrity in Nulpoker Lane

The scene is laid in Bengal, during the Souba-ship of the grafty, witry, politic, shrewd, and frequently cruel Jaffler Khau. The DUKE of BUDGE BUDGE moved for a Committee of enquity respecting the statue voted to the Marquis of Wellesly, when Governor General of India. (Hear, hear)

After some observations from Lord Doudlesack, the motion was negatived without achieston

Lord Nimboo presented a petition from the Hindoos of Chandov Choke, praying the House to pass an act empowering them to eat beef. Ordered to be on the table. A similar petition was laid on the table from some Mussulmans of Patina, entreating to be allowed to eat ham—and drink wine. The Bi hops gave it their cordial support.

The Marquis of CULUMBER presented a petition from the women, both Mussulman and Hindoo, of Behar, praying that every man should be limited in the matimonial state to one wife (Hear, hear) He could not pretend to say that he was perfectly acquainted with all the facts, but the petition was respectfully worded, and he thought should be received.

Lord MUSSAUL would give the petition his warmest support. It was consonant both to reason and experience that Monogamy was the best state, God knows he thought one wife quite sufficient for any person (a laugh). Noble Lords might laugh, but this was no laughing matter, and he would repeat it, one wife was as much as a man gould manage confort to himself. (Hear). It Polygamy had been intended for many kind generally, surely the creator would have provided Adam, the father of us all, with more than one wife? It was just as reasonable for one woman to have a dozen husbands as tor one man to have a dozen husbands as tor one man to have a (Hear).

The Bisnor of Saugon would oppose the measure contemplated by the petitioners on the ground of its great inexpediency. They had no right, sitting as they were there, tashly to surrender the choice privileges they had received from their ancestors to the clamon of any temale tadicals whitever, (Hear, hear, hear) He for one the instant he quitted the bouse, would add at least and zen more wives to his own establishment (Hear, hear) He would do so from principle, (a laugh) He was not award what circumstances had concurred to give the Noble Lord the strong prejudice that he appeared to entertain against a most rational custom. He would pry into no man's private concerns, neither would be presume to speculate on motives, but he diprecated the application of a particular issue to a general case. If the Noble Lord had family reasons, he ought of to make that house the depositors of them (Hear, hear) It was agreed by all that happiness was the principal object men had in view when they entered the married state. They had sufficient proof. before them in the history of the European nations, demonstrating that the molacyamical system had completely failed in securing that object. Innovation (continued the Bishop) was the besetting sin of the age, but before making such radical changes in our institutions, he would intreat that house and the country to consider the dangers that were grafted upon a change like that proposed (Hear, hear,) which of you, said he, would consent to diaggle through existence fettered to an unsuitable mateli'e ill matched horses in galling harness? In the th e of the noble Lord's allusion to Adam he would as cit without fear of contrad ction, that Policamy wa the natural state of man in common with all oth | gregations animals (Hear, hear, hear) Will the whales of the ocean subjult to be dictated to as to the number or the choice of their mates. No-perish the thought, (cherrs) Adam might have his own reasons, as the Noble Lord up doubt has very cogent ones for confining himself to one wife; but what was sauce for the goose was not sauce for the gander, though a trie saving had erroneously so athroid t great changes had taken place in the world since Adam's time. The pastoral ages had passed away yielding to the commercial, the manufacturing, legislating and political ages. (cheers)

The Bisnor or Hoodly tollowed on the same side Lord MUSSAUL would be very brief in replying, He had grounded no motion on the petition he had commended to the House-all he wanted then was, to have it laid on their Lordships' table. The discussion which had been held, -pretty clearly showed how the wind of their Lordships' inclination blew-He was not surprised at the strong gust which came against the petition from the Reverend Bench oppo-Bite TheRightResallishop of Sangor was right in saying he had reasons and cogent reasons for supporting thepetit on. He had also tamily reasons, and the far mily reason that chiefly snaved him was an anxious wish for improving the real happiness of the family of mankind. (Hear, hear, hear) His Lordship would not tollow the Right Rev. Bishop into the oce in after whales, or into the forest after buffaloes. They were not assembled there to legislate for whales and buffaloes. (A laugh) The avalogy between the brutes that pensh was degrading to human nature. But if the Right Rev. Bishop found arguments for Polygamy in the sea and the wild; he could discover arguments for Monogamy there also. In that very forest where the Right Reverend Bishop found example among Bullstoes, Bu-would look higher, and ground his contract, mun the Example of creatures before whom the Bullstot trembled with tear. He would rather follow the light, the monarch of the forest, or he would assert in the ladder of example, and point out for initiation creatures that sound hearer heaven; The fathful turtledore and the devoted nighting in morely were as choice patterns of connubial happiness as bulls and porposes (Hear, hear.) As to solomon, whatever he might think of his other qualifications, he could not say that he admired his taste. But the Right Rev. Bishop when he mentioned his seven hundred wives with such apparent satisfaction at the precedent, ought to have added King Solomon's comment upon Polygamy In the hitterness of disappointment, and in the desolation of satisfy be had declared that it was vanity and VEXATION of spirit (Hear, hear, hear) Perhaps Noble Livils would experience the galling truth of that observation before arriving at life's goal Go to the cottage of the poor peasant in that England which had been alluded to, and they would find in its quiet happiness, and chaste felicity, a rehuke to that system which he was sorry to say had so many advocates in that house. The affections of the linman heart were by nature holy, and by nature they are twined round one object, and in the majority they would continue to twine tound that object till withered by death However, that house would act ultimately, it was consoling to know that woman here, as elsewhere, had discovered her own proper place in society. She would no longer consent to be the slave of appetite but the Empress of fate (orice of Question) He was sorry to trespass upon the patience of the House, but appearing there as the advocate for the rights of woman, he appealed to the gallantiv of the House for a few minutes more (cheers) In that cheer he recognised a pledge of future support in that House, when he should ground a specific motion upon the which he had seconded, and similar petitions which he knew would pour in upon them. (Here the Marquess of Harem shook his read.) Yes, he felt that there were the state of the felt that there was a pledge in that cheer, well that standing the dissentient shake of the head of the New ble Marquess on the cross beich. HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Mr. Philippo Scugg presented a petition from the Hackery drivers and Kuranchy divers, and propiletors, of Calcutta, who prayed to be heard by counsel against the crucity to animals bill, an affecting their Referred to the privileges and nights committee on the circles to animals bill.

MR. GOPFE Month Choop presented a in the Marshalson on ten years of the petition my and sedition. The project of the petition and sedition extraordinary. treated that house to interpose its mercy between him and a state of bitter durance by ordering his head to be struck off decently, at as short a period as possible. Lind on the table.

Mr. Dunnet Bap-ri bap presented a petition from the Steam Company, stating that the increase of Balloons was destructive to their interests, and praying that Balloons be abolished.

MR. KIRKUM FUSS CHILLIE defended the Balloons, and stated that it was his inten ion at an early day to make a motion relative to the Balloon proprietors.

SIR BOWANNY SING was happy at having an opportunity of saying a word in favor of Balloous. He had the evening previously taken a sky in one to Thibet where proof of his assertion he could inform the House that the Lama Gudda Persaud Glum was no more, he had died from a surfect of Perigord pie, just exactly an hour and two minutes and one second before his arrival at Thibet. His body was to be embalmed.

This intelligence appeared to create a deep sensation in the House.

The Right Hon'ble Prinn Deik Derk beld the late Lema Gudda Pe saud Glum, in as high respect and veneration as any man, but at present there was no official information of his demise before the House.

MR OMBAO KUTSHUT, deprected the introduction of Balloons. Perhaps the House was not aware that the Hon'ble Basoo tree had cloped with Lady Mary, the 2d daughter of his noble friend the Barl of Curix in a Balloon within the last six hours! (Heat, heat, heat.) The match was decided by in opposition to the wishes of their noble telatives, and he had met the Earl half an hour before in the greatest consternation and preparing to set off immediately in pursuit of the fugitives in another balloon, which to tunately was disengaged at the time. The young people, it is supposed, have gone towards Circassia to be married there, by the Archbishop. (Hear.)

Viscoust Hooger could not see how the folly of a young man and a woman should operate to the prejudice of the petitioners.

The petition, after a few observations from the Right Hon'ble Prawn Deck-daree was laid on the table,

LORD JOHN MUZZLE gave notice, that on the 18th of next month he would introduce his motion on the question of a reform in Parliament.

Mr. B Foo Foo presented a petition from the Mugs, couplaining that their name was disagreeable to them, and praying that they be called Jugs or Jorums, and entreating that a bill be passed to make it felony to call them Mugs in future—referred to the committee of nomenclature. The improvement of the oreed of Lizzard's bill was read a third time and passed. The lattening of Mango Fish bill was read a second time, and ordered to be read a third time on the 3d proximo. The Spider Web collecting Bill was read a first, and ordered to be read a second time that day two months.

Mr Fanoos Gup gave notice of a motion for the passing of a Bill to be confiled "a bill to enable the Members of this House to bilk their tailors, bathers, and shoe-makers with perfect impunity."

THE CHANCILLOR OF THE FACHLOUER said, the Ball should meet his most conclud support and he doubted not, the tollovery one on his side of the House.

THE RIGHT HON'BLE GOPPE QUITY would also give his cordial support to the Bill. He was sure his side of the House would give it no opposition, and that it would not be treated as a party question, (cheers.)

Mr B Foo Foo repoiced to hear that the Mend er for Origunge was to bring this interesting subject to der the notice of the House. It was only two days ago that a kingly of the thimble had dared to arrest himself. (Hear.)

MR. B. MUDLIF presented a petition from Gridhatee Chowbee of the Cossitollah, stating that he had runed his private fortune in inventing a machine for killing Cockroaches, and program the house to grant him a reward to his avention.

THE CHANCITION OF THE EXCHIQUENT thought it the height of aboundity for any person who chose to embariass has affairs by killing Cockroaches to come for compensation to that house. On a division the pet tion was rejected,

V hen we entered the house we found Mr Hoolta Poolia on his legs with a petrtion in has hand from Mrs. Debt Daw, the widow of Bunneah D. w. staring that while burning on the functal pale or her fusband, she was dragged off in a half roasted state. In Mr. Hooka Poolta's opinson this was one of the most flagrant cas's of oppression that ever came before that house " (He a, hear, hear ! He would not rest until he had righted the petitioner. While he held a seat in that House he would e bully watch the liberty and rights of the popi and prevent the least infine ment on them (Hear, hear hear) He held it is an elestract principle, that men and women it they chose might roast themselves. (Hear.) Here was a woman who acting upon this principle was dragged forcibly away, and prevented from indulging in that which gave her satisfaction. It was monstrous oppression this-and must be checked. He therefore moved that Sircar Hucker-Muckerjee, Bunneah Sook Narrain and Gorachund Thakoor, who dragged the widow Daw off the pile, he called to the Bar of the House. (Hear, hear, hear) The Right Hon'she Prawn Deek Darle thought it quite unnecessary to call the persons alluded to before then bar. If he understood the Hoa'ble Gentleman right, the widow Daw in this case contended for her right to roast one side as well as the other Most undoubtedly all this is very reasonable. Let her roast away till she cry bues, and he could assure the Honomable Gentleman that it was not his wish or that ot his party to deprive any one of his con-stitutional rights; and if the Honourable Gentleman brought a motion before t at house for having himself and all his party half or wholly roasted, he (Mr. Deck Darce) would not object to it (cheers.) Mr. Hoolta Poolta consented to withdraw his motion since the abstract principle was acknowledged.

SIR Toom MUCKENTOASE asked if it was tine that China had a fleet in the Eastern Sea ready to fall upon Borneo? Prince Bewookoof Kant of Siam had it seems entered Borneo with an Army, and issued a proclamation instituting a new junta of government in opposition to the constitutionalists. (Hear, hear.)

THE RIGHT HON'BLE PREWN DEEK DARFE was not aware of the circumstance of a Chinese fleet being ready to make a descent on Borneo. He had seen the proclamation of Prince Kant, but come what may, the government were determined to keep this country neutral.

MR AGIFIE BLOOM could not restrain his indignation at the degrading pitch to which this country had been brought by the gross misconduct and disgraceful subserviency of ministers. Had the Right Hon'ble Gentleman the proper sense of what is due to the country, to his own gross incapacity for his situation and to the national glory, he would resign instead of being sentenced the felon of the Treasury Beach to hard libeur, submitting to the torments of siting in a divided council, detested by his enemies, putted by his friends-let it be, that he at a critical moment, when his admission into the cabinet depended upon my Lord Doodlesack— he who, forsooth, would not truckle as he said last night to my noble friend berind me, that he should exhibit an inciedible instance of monstrous truckling to take office, such as the history of political tergiversation does not parallel.

Mr. Deek Danie here tose, and waimly said, "Sir, you are an Ass."

This expression was followed by loud eries of "order" from both sides. Mr. Broom was about to leave the house, but was recalled by some of his friends near him.

The Speaker thought the expression repugnant to order, and begged Mi. Deck Darce to retract it.

Mr. DEEK DARFF was sorry he had offended the rules of the House. He would therefore withdraw the offensive expression. but | y jingo, the sentiment he could not rec de irom.

The Hon'BLE MR. Here the matter dropped. The House then entered upon the order of the day-the inquiry into the conduct of the Kuthwal of Dooblepoor

SIR R. CKANE in the Chair.

BITTCHOO called in and examined by the Chanman,-keeps a grog shop in Dooblepoor.

By Col. Squirry- Do you recollect a party at Dooblepoor in the month of Decomber last! I do-Who were they! There was myself, and Dandee, and Fandee, and Squandee, and Brandee, and Randee and he Kuthwal. Did the Kutwal look finshed in the tace. No he looked blie, (a laugh.) Did he do any thing particular? He did. What was that? He sneesed,

By Sir T. Muckuntoiss-Is he in the habit of sneesing ' No. (Hear, hear.) Then what made him sneese ' What do I know. Did not some one of the party on his sneesing say "God bless you." Yes, Randee said so. What was the size of the room? I cannot tell. Were there no oranges on the table? No. Did not the Kuthwal on sneesing retire abruptly? He retired. What to do? What do I know.

He did. (Hear, hear.)

BY MR. DEEK DAREE .- Are you sure it was not a Lemon? My behef is it was-an Orange. Do you know the difference between an Orange and .. Lemon? Yes I think I do. State it An Orange is as it were an Orange, and a Lemon is a Lemon. Is an Orange sweet or sour! It is sweet Aie there not bitter Oranges? Yes. Was there not a bottle of spirits on the table at vonr house, when the Kotewal was there !- Yes. Was it a bottle of a brass pot?—It was a large brass pot or lotah. Why then did you say it was a bottle? I forgot at the moment. If any person threw that brass pot at another, say a Rajah, what would you think of it'-I should think it a most brasen ac ion, Did you hear Squandi sav d -- n the Rajah Porro Necessarium Swellesly '-Yes, What did the Kotewal say to that '-He winked with his left eve, hiccuped and said Chee chee. Are you not aware that Cheechee has a peculiar meaning when accomprinced by a luccup and wink of the left eye? No answer. Question 14 peated. No an-Witness ordered to withdraw.

> Mr. Qui Hy thought it highly important to pursue the evidence respecting the brass pot, the orange, the inccup, the wink of the eye, and the mysterious words (heechee. At present he suspected the Kotewal confoundedly.

The House then adjourned.

To record in an obituary the virtues of the deceased, is an ordinary and daily performance, and the exaggerated pruise bestowed, often exceeds justice and oredibility; but when virtue really calls forth the meed of applause, it then becomes an imperative duty to pay a tribute to departed ex-cellence, by an unvarnished relation of those qualities which had endeared the individual to society and to friends and acquaintances. Possessed by nature of an affable and obliging disposition, Miss Jane Harvey neiver failed to conciliate the esteem and affection of those who shared her acquaintance, while her uniform politeress and the mildness of her temper held forth a charm which Time cannot soon obliterate from the minds of her surviving triends. Lu gering for a period of eight days under the die dful juffuence of a putrid fever, she at last fell a sacrifice to it, on the night of the 28th of August, in the 26th year of her age. The tomb has now closed over her; but her memory will long be cheusned by the writer of these lines, who shared in her acquaintance, and now pays this tribute to departed worth in sincere sorrow for the sad loss. -Requiescat in Pace. Great loss, devastation, and misery have been caused by the late floods and rising of the River, in consequence of the spring tides. At present we do not like to enlarge on the subject, until we are in possession of more particular details. Serampore, we learn, is inundated to a considerable extent, as is Howrah, and we have heard that many, atas! too many lives have been lost. Several individuals have also perished on the river.

Were some public spirited individuals to send to Behar ior a supply of grain, we are convinced it might sell to great advantage in Culcutta, and force the Bunneahs to lower their present enormous prices. As yet there is no general scarcity, nor should the rates of the maket be so high as they are. If this should meet the eye of some qualified person at Dinapore or Patna, we trust he will take the hint, and send down some boatfulls of gram without delay. The present Calcutta price is 2-4, 2-5, 2-6 per maund, and expected to rise.

So many accidents happen from incautious driving, that the public cannot too often be put upon their guard on the subject. Our present number contains a letter from a Subscriber complaining of this evil. As somewhat germane to the subject, we cannot belp thinking that some decisive measures should be taken for regulating driving, especially on the Course, where Jehus occasionally drive on the wrong side out of mere frowardness,—a thing they durst not do in England. We observe, too, that the Equestrians on the course most unwarrantably usurp the middle of the pathway, much to the peril of others as well as themselves. We hope the irregularity will in future be avoided—if not, we trust it may be made a matter of magisterical reference.

We refer our tea drinking readers to the letter of "A LOOKER-ON" in a preceding page, combating what appear to us the erroneous arguments of a cotemporary, by very plain and obvious facts. We have no time at present to enter more fully into the matter.

Were we to consult our own comfort, we should not say a single syllable about the performance at Chowringheo to-morrow evening, for we anticipate an overflowing house. The east of She stoops to Conquer is To the Editor of the India Gazetter as follows:-

The managers, we learn, have acceded to Messrs. Toulmin and Co.'s proposal of cytablishing a Soda Water Fountain in some part of the Theatre,—a circumstance upon which we congratulate all thirsty souls.

It was formerly a great inconvenience for distance as the Theatre for tickets. This at length, we are happly to say, has been obviated by the kind consideration for the accommodation of the public evinced by Messis. Smirn and Co. of the Huikaru Library, who have undertaken to dispose of tickets for the Theatre. Such of our playgoing readers therefore as are stationed in town, had better send for tickets to the Hurkaru Library, rather than be at the trouble of sending out to the Theatre for them, or carrying Rupees in their pockets. We observe that a Correspondent in the paper of a cotemporary dissents from us in thinking that chairs add to the comforts of the house. Chairs, in our humble opinion, are far superior to benches on this account. Every person has an independant space which cannot be pressed upon by those next him. The thin individual is not likely to be crushed to death, or squeezed into a fever between two persons of bulkier dimensions There is greater room for ventilation, and the spectator is at least ten degrees coolier than otherwise he could be. The performance will commence upon the entrance of the Right Honorable the Governor General. TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

Sir,—The Editor of the John Bull this morning in his laudable anxiety for supporting monopoly and its concomitants. so well calculated to fetter trade, to stiffe competition, and to check British industry, hes given us an unqualified proof of his grown want of correct information both as to the causes and effects which operate on the Tee market in London, in New York, or in Calcutta; and he finishes his erroneous remarks by gravely telling us we may all reap the advantages of the Company, by becoming Proprietors of India Stock. To talk of any advantages of the Proprietors beyond the mere fact of a fair interest for their capital, is indeed nothing short of constitute ignorance, since it is a notorious fact, that oll what would be a moustrous profit were the trade in the hands, or rather ander the management, of individuals induatriously but not ostentatiously seeking a life alithment for their families and employ-mention their ships, is totally consumed in improve of patronage which the best political organomists do not appear to consider beneficial to the country. I may safely add, that I have most grave and well-leynded doubts of its being beneficial to China.

He asserts as a positive fact that the Company have the choice of the teas at thing, and that the choice of the teas at thing, and that the Americans can only proper a second quality of every kind of the Now this I most positively day, and value to assert that it is very far wide of the feat state of the case; for I verily hellowe that the Americans, whenever to promote the success of a subscription for they desire it, have the first stop, teas of so benevolent and so Christian a purpose; the earlier the meeting he called the better reasons: and first not their includes of their teas and every other produce of China with hard dollars, which permanent with hard dollars, which permanent with hard dollars, which permanent with hard enternance. With the American merchants it is all tais whether American merchants it is all fair dealingno occult Factory policy—no wheels within wheels—no drawbook of red chest Paper—no annoyances—no incumbrances. No—the active intelligent American fractor walks into the market with his case in his pocket, and purchases as much as will lead his ship from the very choicest productions of China, (if indeed the choicest is ever deli-vered to foreigners) without favor, affection or fear, or the trouble of barrier. He has A. S. Consul always at China, the marchant has nothing to do with him, beyond the common courtesy due from one man to another; he cannot either of his own authority or thro his influence detain an American sup one moment, nor interfere with him on any one stage of his mercantile pursuits. Now I think I have said enough to prove that the Americans have the choice, and there-fore can, when it suits them, take away from China all articles of its produce of the very first quality, and I know they do so; and I have, I think, said enough to prove why they pay a less price than the Righis Comthey pay a less price than the singlish Company. I shall now endeavour to prove why the Company pay more than any other merchant, and why they have not choose the power of selecting the first qualities. It is a well known fast that the Company import into China. Compail tin, pig lead, and English broad dottie, as a very considerable amount in English convenit that the consumeration of which is tacked, the convenies extravagant chapter which the Company are obliged to disburse to apport appearance, and patronaga, though the at all vital to trade or necessary for the second contract, at a vertual value, or which the contract, at a vertual value, or which the long merchants by ab inspired contract, at a vertual value, or which the long in order to save thousand the case. I had almost forgot to mention, that far this said tin, load, and elect, the Conjour (as they do in all their purchases) when the second purchase them for swink is including and condition, bear and accompanied by some condition, binding the after, to bring up their influence and apport, whether parliamentary pany. I shall now endeavour to prove why rather their agents, have occasion for such services. By this means the Proprietors of India Stock not only pay a much higher price for all their purchases, but are supplied with goods of an inferior quality to that which an individual going into the market would choose; who has no other motive in making the purchase than fair speculation and some reasonable prospect of gain. The splendid vessels which the Comp my employ to bring home their teas, are more like King's Yachts or first-rate men of war, than merchantmen, not one of which ever make their voyage under forty pounds per tou, (and a very smill ton too it is) and the voyage is considerably longer than it ought to be: indeed many American ships make the entire voyage, while these stately floating hotels are ceremonously making the passage from Blackwall to Bengal or to Whampoa, and yet these vessels next to His Majesty's Ships are perhaps the flectest that plough the deep seas. I have not leisure to go into this matter so fully as it deserves or requires, and I must here conclude by stating that the Souchong teas sold in Calcutta are of a quality which never reach London but in the shape of presents to the Directors or some other great men, and that every pound of that tea costs at China as much as the Southong tea sold in Landenhall-Street at 4s 4d., to which is to be added before the old women can sip a drop, 4s. 4d, on each pound for customs and excise. and the same may be said of the Hyson, for tea of the same quality, including duty, 15 never sold under eighteen shillings per pound in London: indeed, like he Southong tea, it raidly appears on the test tables in London In short, Hyson tea of a very inferior quality sells in London, with the duties on 1 by whole sale, at 98. 4d per pound, while the very best Hyson Choulong sells here, including a very heavy-duty, at 6s. 6;d. per pound, and before the tea can be put on the table in England, it stands (I mean tea Hyson of the inferior quality) the consumer n at least twelve shillings per pound. Every man who has lived in London must know how very indifferent the green tea (as it is called) is, for which he is obliged to pay twelve shillings per pound, or go without it. I cannot think it is ignorance which influenced the Editor of the Bull to make such a statement. He says, "it is not the E st India Company, but the East India interests which are singaged on one side. What then is to become or the Company if the East India interests are to be neglected? Is the Company not supporting itself, when it advocates the cause of "East India interests?" The ship Ospray, lately arrived or otherwise, whenever the purchasers, or tardy, vexations, and expensive regulations of monopoly : she quitted this river in December 1822 with a full cargo, she delivered that full cargo in safety and in good order; she took in a full cargo for this port, and she was safely moored in this river early in this month, September. I say "this speaks volumes." But I must have done for the present, and close with an offer of many apologies for this lengthy intrusion on your time, and on the space of your paper, should you deem it worthy of a place.

Your obedient servant, A LOOKER-ON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

SIR, -- You will no doubt willingly insert in your invaluable paper the following circumstance which took place yesterday evening about 6 o'clock.

That gentlemen should drive through the crowded streets of Calcutta in the evening, or in fact at any time, with as little concern or caution as a man would drive across, Houndstow Heath, or over Salisbury plain, is a practice, in my humble opinion (to use no harsher term) highly reprehensible, and certainly from the many accidents which in consequence daily occur ought to be dis-continued. Two gentlemen in a Buggy at the time above mentioned was suddenly overtaken opposite the new Tank, Durrumtollah, by one of those headlong neck or nothing furiosos, who although loudly called to, to mind how he drove, what pushing on quite reckless of the consequences likely to ensue,-the accident occured, partly ewing to his determination to go on the wrong side, although he must have perceived that this could not be done without mischief. As the Buggy before him was obliged to be pull'd close up to make room for a Carriage which was then meeting them, this ratile brain'd gentleman whom I shrewdly suspect belongs to the Sister Isle, and who had driven through the street much to the consternation and astomshment of the numerous pladding pedestrians, made a tremendons tush at the small space between the buggy and the side of the road, the consequence was that he struck it with such a terrible shock that it immediately overfurned, and the two persons thrown with great violence to the ground, one of whom iell against the hindmost wheel of the carriage then passing by. I shudder to think of what must have been the fatal consequence, had this accident happen'd but one moment sooner, in that case they would in this river, is a fair specimen of what can inevitably have been precipitated beneat be accomplished by British capital and the carriage wheels. I never before within incustry when untettered by the nessed such a hair breadth escape; upon inquiry I found to my utter surprise that whereas, if the hearers had been contented moment considered themselves; it is indeed deeply to be lamented, that from the want of a little caution in drivers so many accidents should happen. I hope this will on their guard in future.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant A SUBSCRIBER.

Calcutta, 1st October, 1823.

P. S.—I know you do not ske to publish anonymous letters, but the above you may rely upon as being a fact. I have reasons for not putting my name to it, and have therefore signed myself what I really am-a Subscriber, and take this opportunity of to say a very particular well wisher to the India Gazette. My name it required shall be sent.

To the Editor of the India Gazetit.

SIR,-I was glad to see "A TRAVELLUR'S" letter the other day in the India Gazette. respecting the non-existence of proper regulations to counteract the insufferable insolence and lately assumed independance of the Ticka Bearers. It is an evil which calls for immediate redress. Exclusive of the inconvenience you incur by the delay of these rascals, bartering I suppose with your servant, concerning the price, &c , you are subjected to their impudence when they do condescend to come. Sometime ago I wanted particularly to go up to Burackpore, and in consequence sent my Peon for some Ticka Bearers to take me to the Ghaut, conjecturing that by the time we reached the river side, I should be exactly in time for the tide, which the Manjey assured me was returning in my favour. You may guess my astomshment when the servant returned with this independent answer-"Tell your master that the Rupee which he bas sent is not enough, we must have I Rupee 8 Annas." Not choosing to gratify such exorbitancy, and by my concossion in this instance to impel them to still higher demands for the future, which they would naturally have recourse to, when they saw that the extortion in question was successful, I was obliged to postpone my departure until 2 hours after, and did not arrive at my place of destination till after a wearisome and solidary voyage of 8 hours;

there was no very serious personal injury with the usual price, I would not have lost sustained—the buggy was much damaged, so much of the tide, and might have perthe harness broke to pieces, and the horse formed the passage in the fourth part of the slightly hurt; both of the gentlemen com- time. This increase of demand has taken plained of being a little bruised, and the place within these few months, and I preblood which ran down the forehead of one sume unless vigorous measures be adopted of them was a proof that they were per- or some remedy instituted to restrain this, haps more hurt than they in the heat of the rapaciousness, it will become in a short time very formidable.

Now I wish to know, Sir, can there not be the application of some remedy to impede entirely, or at least to diminish this unjust induce at least some of them to be more and unheard-of fraudulence? Is it to be tolerated, that a few rascally bearers should compel a price more than adequate for the usual fare of a Hackney Coachman, who may go three times the distance, and have to feed a couple of hungry horses, besides his hungry self?

One may talk of the extortion and rapacity of these Hackney Coachmen in England, and perhaps with justice, but when contrasted with the insatiable demands of these hearers, they are "honesty itself," and moreover for the most part observe eivility towards you; whereas the latter invariably behave insolently and with bravado. The explication is this—the one class is severely pumshed for their mal-practices, while the other cheats and laughs at you with impunity.

You will do me a favor by giving insertion to this in your useful and entertaining Gazette, and will be doing an advantage to others. I have added my testimony to the statement of the Traveller, so that it may appear a general complaint, (as it most ceitainly is) and not an individual inconvenicace.

NOT FOND OF BEING CHEATED

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

Indy, thou hast got into a scrape. Thou art under the ban of Calcutta Parhamentary displeasure. Knowest thou not that the gross errors of commission and omission in the report of the Parliamentary proceedings especially, had very nearly lodged thee, the Printer, and all the dia-bolous imps in Newgate, Fact, Indy-up got the Right Honorable Prawn Deck Darce and a flaming speech issued from him, accusing thee and me of breach of privilege, and moving that we, Maphistopheles, -- thou Indy, and all the inmates of thy Pandemonium near the Leonic Mouth, Duirumtollah—should be dragged before the bar of the House! The Honorable Hugun Wah Wah seconded the motion. I sat in the gallery all the time, and laughed in my sleeve. The idea of arresting me is truly ridiculous. The honorable house might as well endeavour to seize upon the intrenchant air. They do not know, Indy, that I, ME-PHISTOPHELES, am an inhabitant of the invisible world! They do not remember that it was I who led Dr. Faustus by the nose (or as I rather choose to term him more familiarly, Faust) to the witch revels on the Brocken, and finally to the infernal regions! Seize Mephistopheles, indeed.— Too, too, too! Perhaps Indy, thou art puzzled with too, too, too? This interjection my dear fellow, was introduced into the English language by the great Dr. Johnson; who, whenever he heard any thing that tickled him, was wont to exclaim Too, too, too, just as I do at times when reading pages of a certain cloven footed newspaper, conducted by a ruminating animal. Well, as I was saying, the Hon'hle Mr. Wah-wah seconded the Right Hon'ble Mr. Deek Daree's motion: but lo, up got the independent Member for Durrumtollah, Mr. Dumree Bap-ri-pap et mehercule—how he gave it to them! He declared that you and your establishment, Lion and all, being in the borough of Durrumtollah, were his constituents, and that he would never suffor a constituent of his to be oppressively used At length it was decided by a great majority, among whom were many of the muisterial party, that you should be allowed to escape Scot free this time. Take care Indy, and the next time zerise my communications, or by the lips of Proscrpine you shall be cut by Mephisto. In Lord Mussaul's speech especially, there are several errors, but I trust they are obvious, at any rate I cannot condescend to point them out, since I observe that even yourself never deign to have a table of creata; and you are right: who the deuce would correct the leading article of a Newspaper? By the way, do you know I suspect that Miss Chee Chee has a bit of a penchant for you! Lucky dog. I caught her by accident writing a copy of verses headed, "Ougmar Phetry for the India Gazette." On seeing me she rumpled up the paper hurriedly into her bosom, blushing at the same time like an under-done heef steak. There's a simile for you Indy! Thine in baste, Great mischief, we are so ty to say, has been caused by the bursting of the Bunds of the Damoodah River, -aided, pechaps, by the overflowing of other streams. At Burdwan the effects have been very severely felt. Picture to yourself (writes our informant) a flat country completely under water, running with a force apparently irresistible, and carrying with it dead bodies, choppers of houses, palankeens, and wreck of every description! The inundation commenced at Burdwan on the night of the 26th September, and continued unabated for three days. About 12 P. M. on that evening the European inhabitants were roused by their servants, who reported that the water was getting into their out-houses and compounds. The next day the water ran through the lower apartments of the houses, and several houses fell in. For miles round not a mud bouse hardly was standing. For three days all communication was cut off, and most of those who had pukka houses, took refuge on the roofs. The water made a complete breach over the lines of the Provincial Corps, carrying away every hut. Most of the men saved themselves in trees, but some of them, we learn, were drowned. In the villages, we understand, hundreds of human beings have perished, Our readers may imagine the extent of the inundation, when they learn, that on the 29th ultimo a boat that arrived at Burdwan, which had gone that the way full sail, across the country. from Calcutta! Lives, it was apprehended, had been lost by snakes. Hundreds of these reptiles might be seen swiming about for their lives in all directions-nor was it possible to keep them out of the houses. The trees also were full of them. The immdation has also produced very Mere effects at Chandernagore, Chinsurah hid Merampore—especially the latter, where many houses have been demolished, and much property destroyed, especially among the poor natives, who received the humanest attention from the Governor.

The rising of the River at the spring tides has been greater at Calcutta, and its neighbourhood than for many years before.—
Much loss and devastation have accordings by been produced on both banks, especially at Howrah, and about Chitpore. We have heard of an appalling accident on the river, in consequence of a budgerow striking against a budy among the shipping and instantly foundering. Every soulicon bound was lost, It is reported that there were mine or ten Europeans abourd, but we trust the number has been exaggerated. The number of the unfortunates who thus perished are not yet known.

THE THEATRE.

Our anticipations of a delightful entertainment and of a will house on Figlix evening turned out to be correct. The cuttain rose on the entrance of the Right Honorable the GOVERNOR GENERIL and the Lady Amiliast; who were received by the audience with the usual demonstrations of respectful welcome. The evening was warmer than could be wished, but the silence that prevailed in the house; so difterent from the chit chat buz of a former occasion already 'alluded' to, evinced an interest on the part of the audience in the business of the stage, which acted as a spur to the amateurs, judging from then efforts, which (with some exceptions) were never surpossed. There is in every thing that Goldsmith whote an unoblusive charm that coarries is away we know not how on the scutty flowing tide of his subject. This charm, we believe, is nature. All his characters are in nature, and they speak a language which is familiar to all. but which, gevertheless, possesses a native grace of genuine and elegant simplicity, for which do other writer is so remarkable. These observations applyers much to the Comedy of Shik rights to Conduct," as they do to the moves of the Victor of Wakefield; thought of records the litterest of the field; thought of prourise the literest of the latter is tall if the nature of things it must be) more intensely pathetic. In both we see a singleness of character, that exertes merriment, but this merriment is always chastened by respect. In both there is a glow of good old linglish feeling and hospitality. In both the following human nature are touched by the tender hand of a generous humanist, and not tilszoned forth odiously, and the tender by an unfeeling satirist. feeling satisfist.

Nothing can exceed the natural case of the dialogue in "She aroors to Consuga." It runs on in a sprightly current of charming vivacity, unambitious and unforced. Each person speaks exactly that language sterling merit. If was a most masterly pic-ture of the old school, with the richest colouring, and in the finest keeping. In dress, tone, look, attitude—in short, in every requisite, he was perfect. His instructions to the servants were inimitably given, and there could not be a finer specimen of pure comic acting than in his perown risibility. This was not lost upon the Young Marlow and Hastings was admirable, and his anxiety to tell his story about the ' great Duke of Marlborough' (or Prince blank look of disappointment at finding himself unlistened to-were admirable. His surprise and perplexity at the apparently the entertainment of others. Vive-valeque! strange conduct of his guests-his expostulatory efforts, and his astonishment at meeting his wife at the bottom of the garden, were similarly ably conceived and executed. Taken all in all, the Hardenstle of Friday was one of the very best come personfications we have seen on any stage. It was a finely wrought, a true, and a chaste portrait of the old English Country Gentleman. With such powers-such knowledge of the stage-such a fine tasto-and such admir-Nature, and naturally available in art-we cannot help regretting that this amateur does not make his appearance oftener upon our boards.

Of Tony Lumpkin we sprok with mingled pleasure and regret-regret, because we understood him to appear on those boards for the last time. Even now we remember his first appearance on the stage of Chow- Theatre, and so highly entertaining to the ringhee. We then said that we expected public in this very difficult line of character. ringhec. much from him. We have been observant of his the arrical career since—and whenever he "stratted his hour" on the boards as an actor, we strutted ours off them as the critic. Indeed we may say that we com-monced our pilgrim go forether in both characters. No wonder thought we should contemplate the parting hour with regret; and putting other products out of the question, we do so the more especially from the consideration that the loss of such an ama-teur is almost irreparable. Well have our anticipations of his success been fullilled,

In testimony of this we have only to appeal to his three last performances, each ex his brilliant and exquisite Morbling his quaint and admirable Geoffry Muffinger which we should have expected from him, and his original, droll, and inumtable Tang and no other.

Lumpkin! He never appeared but the Hardenstie was a performance of the most hearty laughter and applauses of the audience proved with what true vis comic he supported his part. He rolled and shuffled about the Apollo of a mother spoil darling of a self-willed, wild humoured; mischief loying young Country Squire. Even the nerves of a Puntan—yea, of the most woe-begone disciple of Heraelitus— must have relaxed into mirth at his most mission to Digory to laugh at the good stor flirtation with Constance Neville,—the jewel in ry, the recollection of which moves his scene with his mother, and the denouement of his driving hoax upon her cum multires house, which testified its applause most chis. At only now remains for us to express loudly and cordially, as was the case our sincere good wishes for this amateur's indeed throughout. His reception of future fate. His theatrical career has com- world Marlow and Hastings was admir-menced and closed among us. He is one of the bright points of our remembrance. Our Druig owes much to him-much that Eugene—we forget which)—his mode of the public knows not. He was a true and telling it—his prosing glee—and finally his zealous brother of the sock and bushin, and ever cheerfully sacrificed his personal convenience to the interests of the Theatre and

Young Marlow was by a novice, and the performance evinced the inequality of suc new to the boards. His best scene, perhaps, was that one in which his misunders standing with Hardcustle comes to an open rupture, and he declines quitting the house at the old gentleman's command. His mavaise honte, in the first interview with Miss Hardeastle, was too much in caricature.

Hastings was, as every performance of able tact and perception of what is true to that amateur usually is, a gentlemanly and pleasing delineation of character.

Roger gave a debutant to the boards. whom we hope to see soon in another part. The little Roger had to do, was well done.

Mis. Hurdcustle was in the best possible hands, and the part added another laurel to the brows of the worthy amateur who has proved so emmently useful to the Theatre, and so highly entertaining to the

Miss Hardcastle has placed the theatrical claims of its air representative upon much higher ground than they occupied before. It was really a very excellent and natural performance, and exceedingly judiciously supported. She mistook, however, the sease of the text once or twice. She should not have appeared so downright angry as she was, when Young Marlow offered her bperties. She should rather have repelled him with a certain smartness of maunor, than with the out and out vehemence of h offended pade. We have very strong hopes of this per comer's capabilities. Let her only a sindy as attendedly as she appears to have done, and pay great attention to dress and by play, and she will become what she has made progress towards already—an excellent actions.

Miss Neville we think more agreeable in the closet than of the stage. The part was respectably enough sustained, not over well dressed certainly. We could not omit observing a great improvement in the stage , lights before the orchestra. They cast a steady splendour upon the stage, thus leaving the audience in a shade of rollef, which is highly favorable to scenic effect.

After the above was written, a friend, to whom our Gazette has been more than once Indebted for kind aid, sent us a Critique on the performance of Fuday. Had we re-Recived it sooner, we should have given the whole, and written none ourselves, but that was not in our power, as our own observations had gone to press. We find that our brother critic's opinion agrees so much withrour own, that we have therefore omit-

It is difficult, however, to set bounds · to possibility flow often, do we see in , nature skies and landscapes which if delineated on canvas we should pronounce never to have had an existence, and in life who has not met with occurrences which In the pages of a govel or romance would be pronounced, like the plot of " She stoops to Conquer" impossible. That travellers should mustake the mansion of a Country Gentleman for an Inn. is not indeed an every-day occurrence; but it is not an impossible one, since we know that Goldsmithin his juvenile days had an adventure which suggested the plot of lus Comedy, and which, as it is short, it may not be out of place to relate in the words of his hiographer :- "On his way to Edgeworth's town at nightfall he found himself in a small town named Ardagh. Here he enquired for the best house in the place, meaning an lun; but, being understood too literally, he was shewn to the house of a private gendeman, where, calling for somebody to take his horse and lead him that follow, are derived from a letter to a tothe stable, he alighted, and, was shewn into the parlour, being supposed to he guest come to visit the master, whom found situog by a good fire. Otiver accordingly called about him, ordered a good supper, and generously invited the master, his wife, and daughter, to partake of it; treated them with a bottle or two of wine, and at going to bed ordered a hot cake to be prepared for his breakfast; nor, was it till at his departure, when he called for the bill, that he found he had been hospitably entertained in a private family

With regard to Tony's rogush prank of carrying his "mamma" round the house. and at last depositing that pink of old ladges in a horse pond, we confess we have no precedent to plead in its defence, but the incident is in itself so ludicrous, and gives rise to so humourous a scene, that we cannot find in our hearts to quarrel with it.

The doors of the Theatre were opened at the usual hour, and before the curtain rose, the house was, in every sense, respectably filled, and presented a "flowery parterre" of beauty on which the eye of a Cynic might delight to dwell.

The Governor General and Lady and the Hon'ble Miss Amhers I honoured the Theatre with their presence, and when the plaudits which welcomed their arrival had subsided, the curtain rose and displayed to view. Mr. Hardcastle and his inimitable spouse. The amateur who personated Mr. Hardcastle seemed perfectly at home in the character, and his conception and performance of it appeared to us perfectly faultless, or, we should rather say, most excel-His dress and deportment embodied in the most perfect manner to our view the idea we have been used to form of Mr. Hardcastle, and a countenance abounding in archness and humour of expression enabled him to give the fullest effect to the charac-

Sir Charles Marlow, represented as he was by the veteran amateur who lately appeared as Elderberry in "Amateurs and Actors," sould not be otherwise than good.

The particulars of South American news gentleman in town, dated Rio Janeiro 7th July :-

🌿 In mine of yesterday's date I mentioned to you that nothing was known of Lord Cochrane's fleet, nor of his movements; but de San Pauto; there be thought proper to disarm all the vessels except his own 74, and a small frigate, which he manned with foreigners—English, French, Americans, and the commanders of the other ships were appointed Lieutenants on board the 71. The mutiny was occasioned by the Portuguese European sailors on board, who had been pressed at Rio for the Imperial service, 7 of whom were shot by the Admiral's order. It is reported that he has informed the Government here, that if foreigners are not sent to man the other vessels they will certainly fall in the hands of the Bahin fleet; that all he can do is, to hover about the vicinity and wait resources. The Portuguese sailors and officers that were landed at this place had made for the interior, and it is supposed they will exert themselves to join their comrades at Bahna. It is also rumoured here, that it . was the intention of General Madeira to avail himself of the insubordination that had happened in the Brazilian army, and attack their lines at Ittaparica; the Portuguese fleet would also join by sea. The small port where Cocurane's vessels are laid up, forms the landing place of these lines, and it is here that the Portuguese Admiral intends to co-operate with the land forces, and at the same time take possession of the vessels. Pernambuco was, in a very unsettled state; they have refused to comply with all orders and decrees that have been sent from here; they would neither sequester, nor even attack Portuguese property, but have allowed free commerce beincen that place and Lisbon: altho' they are decidedly against the Cortes still they wish to maintain commercial relations.

"Para Maranham were all in favour of Portugal; the latter place had sent a ship loaded to Lisbon with produce, and half a million of dollars, to be offered to Government, to enable them to send troops so as to keep the place in submission and pre-vent anarchy. The European troops at Monte Video had been joined by the Spanish Guerillas, and after having defeated General Leeor, who has esponsed the Imperial cause, they were marching towards the trontiers of Rio Grande. The Govern-ment of Buenos Ayres had furnished the Portuguese General with money, and requerted him not to abandon the Eastern shu, c of La-Plata, as they were determined not to let those provinces be united to the Brazils as an empire. These events, and we may say the total failure of the expedition against Bahia, has puzzled the Min-

by one of the coasting crafts that came in steers so much, that all they think of doing to-day, it is ascertained that a muting hate is, to confine people in dungcons,—and even taken place on board the fleet which completes the people in to tack to the southward, and go taken state of things cannot last long. Inspire, into a small portion the coast called morro of the non-intercourse with Portugal, the merchants have managed to send considerable sums for account of European resign dents in foreign ships to England, Gibraltar and Holland: the English ships have had most of the trade; upwards of 70 haves been loaded: this property is all covered by English houses, who receive enormous commissions in compensation for the services rendered. Mr. Chambetlain, who was for merly British Envoy, and Consul General, has been divested of the former character, having received orders from his government to consider himself as merely a Cousal, as for the present no diplomatic relations could? be maintained with this government. I hapeto be able to state more decided events by another ship, which will sail in the course of a month,"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE. Sir,-To show the inutility of sending Letters everland, I beg to mention, that one dispatched from this on the 15th April, 1822, was not delivered in London until the 30th January, 1823. Had it been forwarded by a scar onveyance, it would, no doubt, have arrived earlier, and the heavy amount of postage would have been saved. The letter in question was one of importance; but its defined receipt by the party to whom it was addressed, frustrated the intention, thich induced the writer's availing himself 1 40 expen ive (and now apparently useas a mode of conveyance.

From a kind Correspondent at Nusseerabad we learn that Sir David Ochreriory still continued to honor and gladden that Station by his presence. We formerly adverted to the gareties which occurred there under his cheering influence, and it would seem that the same generous anxiety to render those around him happy had induced Sir David to extend still further patronage to a Station which he has already conferred so much benefit on. Hard oash is in general a very substantial reason why a man should (if he desired it) have a choice of an article in any market, and I have yet to learn that hard cash does not always carry with it most plausible, or If John Bull prefers it, most specious and withall agreeable reasoning. I made use of the words "verily believe" in their literal est we under a conviction, (which he has no itered) that what I was stating was true, because it so happened that the facts Mitted to had fallen under my own obserr vation during many months solournment, at many different seasons, in China, trading to the injount of taklis of dollars, and seekresidents as from the Hong Merchants, during which time I had frequent, and I will day, most pleasing intercourse with the American Merchants and Commanders of things, all of whom I found active minded, well informed, intelligent men, with perhaps gather unpolished manners, but from whom I specived all due civility and much preful information, out of which I have often times in my further travely derived a listing be-facilit. I admit because I have witnessed it, that the Americans do occasionally take do Chien the fruits of their laborious and sot unfrequently hazardous traffic, from the Parific; but while I admit so much, I do indistain that it tells in favor of my own argamper, that the Americans have, wheth-Ther they desire it, the choice of setecting their return cargo: and I will self you why. What the American importante China from that quarter is, generally speaking, longht to with a vidity by the Chinese merchints. and that the importation of such articles is almost iffuor altogriber, a favor conferred on the Charges while the Hongs in receiving nietals, cloths. &c. from the English, know they are conterring a favor on the Cappany actors the activation too leaving and so they are by all foreigners who deal largely. By its modifies the ships arrive at Whampen, several months prior to the arrive; from the infector) of the new teas. When they do arrive, the Company's teas are passed by their taster, and so it is with the Americans, with the difference, that the Americans merchants are each their that the American merchants are each their own tasters, which by the way is another expence they avoid. Fo prove that the Compamy pay more at home for their goods, and that the extravegance of my picture (as the Bull calls it) is not so overcharged. I have merely to refer to the fact of these very Americans going occasionally to England, and there loading with Camblets for the Chus market (a previlege denied by the conditions of the Company's charter to our ships) which they can and actually do soil at China to a profit to themselves, althot they deliver them at Canton fully "forty per cent." less than the Company charge for the same quality of goods, on which John Bull acknowledges the Company lose; and that they do derive a great profit on their teas in London, is proved by the Company's acknowledgement, that their China Trade pays well. True it is that the teas are sold in London by public sale, but it is equally true that the tea is put up at a certain price, under which it is not sold, although one farthing advance upon the fixed price, not unfrequently sells, thousands of pounds; and let those who are actuatomed to profit and loss, say how much, even one farthing on the pound in advence, is, on say twelve hundred tong. What proof, I ask John Bull, has he given of the "notoriety of the fact, that the Company have the exclusive selection of the "China market, and the Americans the refuge" The is the first time I ever heard of such an enfair preference being refree." This is the user time a vine heard of such as enfair preference being granted by the Chinese to any foreigner; and I fancy in an experience of more than thirty years, k have heard and learnt as much of the Chines trade and of every thing connected with it, agithe hour Built. There is no place in the world place there is so there is always to be found in China, and there are certainly no niere honorable men in their miscessification than the Hong Marchants, but, they here who normals men negliallom with joint and their marchants, but, they here with each the is the horse are in the control of the here with the partial of the persons the here with an are the persons and in their speed, who pay he here with the partial of the property of the highest prices with each, thalloyed by bartely are aligned about the difficulty of proving that the freight of Chingships is only £12 per ton, and that it is not as I stated £40 per ton, when all the number ess contingencies, of keniledge, victualing, ton-nage, privelige tonnage, are taken into the account, which (so unnecessarily to the safety of the teas,) are included in the tonnage of the ship, and take up so much space which ought to be occupied with cargo, beenuse the whole of the tonnage is paid for making, as I said before, the value of each ton of tra brought home, full 40 & even in pence. In time of wat the price of a ton not untrequently amounted to £50. The Regent, Captain Ripley, in 1818 was taken up at £22 por ton on the measurement tonnage. That ship measured 930 tons, and onnied home short of 800 tons, including all the privilege; and anwards of 200 tons of kentledge. As to Parliamentary influence, its too notorious to be doubted by any pereers of the China Ships investing their funds in the highest priced toos, does not prove that they obtain the highest flavored or the first qualities, and dealing as they wery frequently do with the "out door werchants" at Canton, it is not likely they con obtain a choice selection. I remember once buying a part of "officer's privilege tea," (being told it was sure to be fine), and when I brought it home and made it, I found it not drinkable, altho' it cost me fitteen shillings per pound. Jahn Bull says, now the prices of teas in Calcutta is in eleant to the question of East and West India interests -so I say; -but why did he first draw the comparison? However I have now done with him for ever on this score; and with my best thanks

To the Editor of the India Gazette. Sir,—Ic duet see a letter from "A Subscriber" co. spfaining of incautious driving until to-day, otherwise I should have troubled gon with this time enough to have appeared in to-morrow's Gazette. As you have been pleased to remark that the public gament he foo often put upon their guard them this subject, I deem it unnecessary to apologize for thus intruding upon theirs and your notices, therefore proceed at once to state, that a similar accident happened to myself in the same street (lauremotollah) and two months ago, and which too was occasioned by the mad-cap endenvouring to pass on the wrong side; whether from ignorance or wickedness I will not pretend the determine, or whether with microscopic by the had magnified the space between me that the wall do not know; but tone it is the wall do not know; but tone it is the wall do not know; but tone it is the process upon the ground; but I must do

With this he jump'd into his buggy, and like Pegasus upon the wings of expedition, was out of sight before you could say knife. –Now, as I am a man somewhat stricken in years, and like most long residenters in, this country a little nervous inclined, I do. confess that from the shock I received I was so agitated at the time, that I did not properly understand what his name was, or where he was to be found; for which reason (should this meet his eye) I heg to mention that for a new frame and other repairs done to the buggy I had to pay 24 Rs. -If, Mr. Editor, some of your very intelligent correspondents would but now and then condescend to notice localities of this nature, they would indeed be confering a partirular obligation upon the inhabitants of Calcutta. Why, if I had the pen of a MEPHISTOPHFIES, or a Mr. CRANIBILL, I would methinks bring as much noise and uproar about their ears as ever the white wishers, painters, &c. did about those of he est Midas Suckwell, Esq; and the prohability is, perhaps, some conviction too, if 'twas only to teach these aptly tim'd Furiosos that the wrong side of the road was not the right path to pursue, this alone would in a great measure give coundenec and security to many, and to mone profit than,

CALCUTTA.

. We have at length ascertained the parti culars of the late Thundation at the Danish Settlement of Serampore. It commenced on the 29th ultimo, and was pitticipally oc-casioned, as we formerly intimated, by the overflowing of the Damoodah River. It rose to the fullest height on the 2d instant, when the water was about 6 or 7 feet in the lower apariments of most of the houses and washed away about one thousand of the hats of the Natives. The general dis-tress surpassed any thing ever before seen or heard of in that part of Bengal, and several thousand Natives ran for refuge to Serampore, not only from the district of Hoogly, but also from the settlements of Chandernagore and Chinsurah. These were received in the most humane and kind manner by the Governor, who immediately caused the Church and public godowns to be opened for the reception of the unfortunate and distressed sufferers. The water, we are happy to state, has now almost entirely receded. The Governor, Colonel Kuffring, we understand, intends to appoint a committee to investigate into the ditress which this dreadful occurrence has caused, in order to relieve the sufferers as far as circumstances may admit of. To say any thing further in praise of this worthy and philanthropic person would be superfluous. His excellent character is too well known to require further comment from us, since we know him to be held in the highest esteem and regard by the Europeans and Natives of the Settlement over which he ıules.

We rejoice to first that our observations respecting the Monument to Burns at Kirk Alloway, have even already been attended with a successful effect exceeding our expectations. We trust that others will be a imulated by the example of the understanding to add their mite to the fund, whose object is to do honor to the mimory of one of the most extraordinary men, and most genuine and original Poets of the 18th century Subscribers to Burns' Monument of Alloway

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the India Gazette, .

Sir,—It is now nearly two years since ! left the political world, consequently I refdom see a Newspaper, however, as your's is one of the sheapest, and still not the worst, a Pensioner lent me your paper of the 29th ultimo, wherein you request any of your correspondents at Agra to favour you with the dimensions of the famous gua at that place. Conceiving, that both your-self and your "Subscriber and Traveller" are Johnny Newcomes, allow me to take the liberty of informing you, that a full ac-count of the gun appeared in the "Oriental Star" in 1811, and again when the late Mr. Pratt purchased the office, it appeared in "The Star" of 1819,—not having the files, my memory cannot trace the monthor but this does not matter, as there is fro doubt the files are in your office, and from hem it can well be copied a third time so the amusement of your prospective readern General Sir Seeboo Paggul, His Grace tha Duke of Budge Budge, &c. &c and you, British readers will peruse it with avidity, if you will kindly give it the following mot-

"Wash me well, and spunge me clean, And I'll carry a ball to Calais gieen"

This, I also suppose, will prove an incentive to the commandant of Agra to use his mental faculties and bodily powers to the atmost stretch, to send the gun to Calcutta and from thence to England, and if he should fail. I have exhaustless hopes, that either of the ærial navigators. Hudson of Calcutta, and Boyce of Bombay, will fly away with this monstrous culvering as their first prize to the "land of the e." There is also another advantage attending its insertion—which is, that, howsoever the Duke of Wellington "might have dimined the lustre of his fame in the share he had in the inagociations, especially as respects his advice to Spain, and his sophisticated concessions relative to the Army of Observation and other points to France," yet, it is not too much to say, that himself and his brave Waterloo boys may be induced to come here, to drag it to its destination, and with its thunderings make the Revolution strand once more wish for peace. Remarks by the Commander to Chief. Although the Commander in Chief can entertain no doubt of the Fact of Ramzaun Khan having been privy to the atrocious at-tack laid in the foregoing Charge, and con-sequently Approves and Confirms the Finding and Sentence of the Court, still, as the only material Evidence adduced in support of the Charge is that of his own confession, and as it appears that this Confession was improperly obtained from the Prisoner, under the unauthorised Promise of Intercession for his Pardon, the Commander in Chief feels that it would be inconsistent with strict Justice to enforce, under these cucumstances, the Penalty awarded by the Court, and therefore directs that he be released from Confinement, and discharged from the Corps of which he has proved himself so unworthy a Member.

EXPEDITION TO NAAF RIVER.

We stated a few days ago, that the communic tion hetween Colonel Chapland's and Brigadier Puntage's detachments, was infor the safety of both these small parties, In this, we were in some degree mistaken it appears; the communication between these Officers indeed is stopped, as the Burmha forces have got between these two posts : but there is no cause for any alarm, as to their being cut off, since Colonel Chapland

Burmhas having conquered the Assamese and which led on by the hope of plundar, and taken their capital, have got, as stated, and confiding in the security afforded by the already partially between the two places, weakness of our detachments, is doubtless Chittagong and Dacca; and apprehensions augmenting every day. arc entertained of their taking Islamabad, which is very near the former. If they succeed in this, and there is little hope of their failure, (as there are only five companies of the 13th N. I. to protect all that district,) they will then effectually stop all communication by land with the detachment at Chittazong, and place it in great peril.

We understand that Colonel McCreagh of the 13th King's, is to be sent in command of the expedition to the Naaf river. This able and experienced officer highly distinguished himself in Europe, and is understood, as a natural consequence of his skill and gallantry, to have stood high in the fasor of the noble Duke under whom he served. All these preparations evince a de-, termination to repress'at once and effectually, the encroachment of the Burmhas, and to convince them by a lesson of experience they can never forget, of the folly and danger of provoking a power that can at any time overwhelm them.

It was reported vesterday, that another whip was taken up for the expedition to car-To an augmentation of the force already under order to sail, of 800 men; but we learn that instead of this, the fact is, that a ship and a brig are taken up to proceed direct to Rangoon, for the purpose of rescuing the European inhabitants there, from the anticip ited vengeance of the Burmhas, as suggested by us a few days ago. A rumour was indeed prevalent, that the monsters had actually beheaded them already; but we mercly state it, in order to expless our convi tion that it is utterly unfounded. The only recent arrival from Rangoon, is that of two boats by the inland navigation, and whatever intelligence the people on these boats may otherwise have brought, it is certain they have communicated nothing of so dreadful a character; and it is equally are ain, that if such a shocking event had occurred, they must have known it.

We have been informed, however, that theops have been ordered from Barrackpore, to the scene of intended operations by the inland routes, and that the Steam-boat was dispatched on Monday, by the outside passage we believe, and not by the Sunderbunds, as was rumoured yesterday. Captan Chespe of the Engineers, and the Master-Attendant of Chittagong, are the only passengers by her. In the mean time it is to be feared, that before the re-inforcement can reach its destination, our widely extended south-eastern frontier, reaching trom Chittagong in the south, to Assam in was at Chittagong, and Brigadier Pephilis the north, will be devastated by the numeric at Dacca; and if attacked could retreat rous though undisciplined army of the Bar-further into the Company's territories. The mhas, already in considerable force there;

LORD BISHOP.

On Sunday the Lord Bishop of Calcutta. attended divine service in St. John's Cathedral. The Rev. Mr. Corrie read the Liturgy; and his Lordship preached an appropriate sermon, from the Gospel according to St. Mat.c. 22, vrs. 37, 38, 39:-" Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy-self."-On this heautiful summary of "all the Law and the Prophets," the Bishop descanted very largely; and, although we were not near enough to the pulpit, to bear distinctly some portions of the Discourse. but from what we did hear, we left the place of worship confirmed in the opinion we had formed of his Lordship's eruditien and profound knowledge of the Scriptures which be so ably expounded. The public have already seen specimens of his Lordship's literary talents, and no eulogy of ours can add to the high reputation they have attained for him; but we cannot to bear transcribing the following paragraph from the Salopian Joinaat, copied into the Morning Herald of 25th of April, 16lative to his Lordship's farewell address to his parishioners at home :-

"On Sunday last, the Rev. Dr. Heher preached his farewell discourse in the parish church of Hodnet, prior to leaving this country to assume his distinguished functions as Bishop of Calcutta. The church was crowded to excess, and the veneration and esteem in which the character and virtues of 1)r. Heber were held by his parishioners, was forcibly evinced by the silent tears and suffed sobs which were universal in the congregation, and which his powerful and pastoral address, was so well calculated further to elicit. Previous to Divine Service, the tureen purchased by a subscription among the parishioners, was presented to Dr. Heber by the Right Hon. Lord Hill, in doing which his Lordship eloquently expressed the feelings of himself and fellow parishioners. The reply of Dr. Heber was of the most impressive kind. and the sentiments it embodied, and the sensations it so well delineated, cannot fail to have a lasting hold on the memories and affections of all who were present on the interesting occasion."

THE NAUTCHES.

The only novelty at the Doorgah Poblah festivities of the present year, and it is one that has produced great aslouishment, seems to have been the performance of an amateur Glass-Eater! It appears that the exhibitor is a man of some property, and having in prosecution of his trading affairs, visited the Upper-provinces, returned duly initiated in the art of eating glass, and now favors his friends, for the amusement of their guests, with a display of the surprising knowledge he has aquired. He also performs many feats by light of hand. On Monday night he presented himself with a tray, containing a s quantity of broken glass, and sat down before the company. There was also a tray of fresh grass. Of this he ate a portion, cramming it into his month with a round ruler, or thick stick. He then drank some water .- A whole French claret bottle was brought to him; this he cracked, ind holding the upper fragment by the neck, stoods up, and broke off a large piece with his teeth which he masticated and crunched in full view of the spectators. He then took part of a wall-shado, broke a piece off in the same manner, and crunched it with his toeth with equal facility. He continued his wonderful operations for some time, and would have gone on longer, but part of the company requested him to ce we. He then showed his tongue and mouth, which were intirely unhait.

OCTOBER 20

For the last week the weather has been beautifully screae, but the temperature has been extremely sultry throughout the day. Early in the morning a gentle coolness breathing on the an comes as the evant courter of the cold season. Less sickness, we believe, prevails than has been observed for several years back at this turn of the scason.

The Course for some days has been in a most deplorably dusty condition. who frequent it have a very palpable teminiscence of the motio non sine pulvere. For the sake of our fellow citiz as luit more particularly of our sister citizenesses, wo heartily wish that this plague may be stayed without delay. To those who have it in their power to effect this desirable thing, we would hint the propriety of going ont of an evening, not to take the car in-deed, but to take the dust. A mouthful of that chagreeable element would, we doubs not, act more as an antidustic persuader than all the arguments we could bring forward. The personal inconveniences of a pulserous drive are manifold. In the first place, one's eyes are put in peril—and in the next place, what is of far greater consequence to some, one's clothes are exposed to soiling danger. In the next place one's lungs come in for their share of the abomination Now if dust tall upon one's turniture or books, it may be brushed off; but let dust find its way into a person's lungs, and to get it out again will be a puzzler. We could say a word for the poor horses. too, but we trust the appeal we have so the patically made will more the watery deities to sprinkle our streets, courses, and

A Correspondent, who, it seems, is a "Newcower" from the apper provinces, has written us, complaining of a howling child, which on the Sunday before last pre-13th. Ship London, D. K. Brown, for Li- vented his hearing to due advantage the discourse delivered at St. James' Chapel, When an indifferent preacher holds forth perhaps a puerile ululation of this kind, may be rother more agreeable than otherwise, as it gives some variety to the scene, and checks that somnolous tendency which otherwise might "lap" the hearer in the temporary "elysjum" of an ill-timed Sleata. When, however, the preacher, like the respected and accomplished Pastor of St. James', is eminently qualified to instruct and improve the mind by his reasoning and his elaquorice, we know no greater unisance than noises which may prevent a single word from reaching the ear of an anxiously attentive auditor. Really this is a crying attentive auditor. Really this is a crying evil. Such ululation out of the nursery is not to be endured. We speak here for the general, since we are aware that to the factorial, since we people nothing can be more interesting than to listen to a little intantile Herachtus "mewling" and "all that sort of thing" in "his nurse's arms." There is a philosophical reason for this, and philosophy, like a very source Cardinal virtue, covers a multitude of peccadilloes. Crying 19 a species of gestation or exercise to a child Rouselau in his Englis, if we recollect right, advises all infants to be permitted to ery away, as it does them an enormous deal of good, provided it be not caused by a sense of bodily pain. According to Richerand, a philosopher of the French school of materialism, children cry just is blids sing. This is giving a kind of poetical character to mintile ululation. Accordingly the morning equall of a cherub in the nursery becomes as interesting to the ear of a man of seitment as "the moining song of the bird of paradise". By the way we should be obliged to any of our travelled readers who may have heard it, to describe to us what kind of a song that of the bird of praidise is? Does the bird of paradise really sing? Dr Johnson says to, and to dispute an assertion of the literary ato in" would be a species of heresy

Seriously however: children that are of too tender an age, or rather apt to indulge their vocal powers, ought not to be brought to Church. If it is meant to benefit themselves by taking them there, the notion is a mustaken one, since the probability is, that it must prove prejudicial to their health The effect upon their minds will be to 3550ciate a disagreeable feeling of confinement and restraint with the disch irge of their religious duties Indeed we believe it is a great error in education to torubly bind and fetter the tender mind of infancy to things which it cannot comprehend, as has been ably shewn by FFREMY BENTHAM and others. A child ought rather to be lured than dragged to religious obligations. We remember a child who excited by a print in "Paradise Lost," requested his mother to lend him the book that he might read it. She declined complying with his request, with the unsatis-factory remark, that the book was unnielligible to him, and that he must wait until he grew older What was the consequence? The hoy said nothing-but when all were sound asleep, he procured the key of the library, took away the aublime work in question, and night after night he pored over it by the light of a lonely taper, till lo! his mother one night surprised him when he had got towards the end of the second volume. Of course she first are interdict at the same fine that his work him for his stealthy mode of attery. Or the the discommand he evenced in his stealthy mode of attery. Or the discommand he evenced in his state that he discommand he evenced in his state that he discommand he evenced in his state that he would not the total him a very different mood, and have applied any thing but a frue taste for Epic Posts. The scope of our observations would be very much mistaken, were it to be supposed from what we have said, that we concerte restraints are not necessary in bringing in the young. They are not merely necessary but vitally and essentially so. There are however, two or three points of routine discipling which we cogently doubt the necessity or propriety of,—vir the putting of a catechism in o the hands of a child under six years old, the forcing of such an urohim to church on to listen to a long sermon at home

We have extended our remarks to a greater length than we at first contemplated. This, however, matters but little, since we have no news, properly so called, to communicate. Accordingly, our readers, we trust will indulgently receive such "newspapachat" as this sultry and barren juncture afterods.

It is unnecessary for us to insert the Lamentations of Philio-Darrock," since the subject of them might be well, termed premature. The sons of St. Anorew may jet (indeed there is hardly a doubt of it) be presided over at their annual festival as erst. There is then hardly reason jet for our Correspondent to exclaim, then hards, Posthume, Posthume, Labuntur tum — — For our own part we could almost venture to lay a bet, that e e he depart our shores.

Labetur amus Litthat bears it may the friends of the person alluded to have what they had not a fortnight ago-the cheering prospect of his society till the end of this year at least, and whether this respite was annably conceded to their wishes or whether it be the result of a total change of plin we know not; but we are sure Philo darrock, who appears so warmly interested in the movements of the gentlem in in question, will be highly gratified to hear it, as who to the In this city of palaces we can betill afford to lose any of the master spants of our society; and when at length the hour of separation comes, it is icl; with double poignancy, from the conviction, that the social hiains can never be siled up. When we hear, therefore, that such an hour of heaviness is postponed, we feel like ortuitals repricted. We thay conclude with the words of the Roman Bard to Augustus, hitering one expression:

We have also, we suspect, another cause to be late to b Tor Theatical-going readers cannot have Potentien that "Tony Lumpkin" was a prewell part. This we can assure him is a wish that we have heard repeatedly expressed, and which we hope, through his ready kindness to see fulfilled, since his stay among u is, Monument, the young Parthenon, of Edinto be of longer duration than we lately burgh. We wish some person would begin feared it could be.

The gay scason, we believe, will commence with much spuit. We hear several large and dashing private parties talked of. in addition to the public entertainments of touching hold upon human sympathy? our Indo-Asiatic metropolis.

The day for Mr Schridlenbrager's benefit Concert has not yet been fixed, though Tuesday, the 28th instant, was at one time fesolved on; but we hope in our paper of Thursday to be more particular on the subject. Suffice it that it will in all likelihood he one of the very best musical treats ever given here The Orchestra in amateur, vocal, and instrumental parts, will be unusually strong; and the selections, we · are sure, will give unqualified satisfaction.

Theatricals, thanks to our zealous and able veteran at the head of the department, will commence soon with renewed vigour. We are not without hopes of having a play even next Friday week. Our Lucius Ju-ntus Bhulus, it is also whispered, is to , make his appearance again on our boards with undiminished lustre. The part which rumour gives him for his first essay this season is that of Virginius in the celebrated tragedy of that title, wherein Kean shone forth so great.

We are happy to find the list of subscribers to Burns Monument much in Messrs. Bergusson and created. This simple fact speaks volumes to receive Subscriptions. for the good taste and good feeling of our worthy follow citizens. The claims of the diant genius ate, we see, superior to any other. They come home at once to the hosom of sensibility pure, and unmixed with the dross of political of the slime of party spirit. Dearly purchased is this species of immortality—signally did Burn-pay for it, but in "drachmas," but with the "ruddy drops that visit the sad heart" and the irremeable price of a wounded and a broken spirit, which "who can hear?" Perhaps he could have borne it cheerfully had he but a foreknowledge of that impetishable fame which he has left behind him.

That the claims of departed genius are more powerful than those of any other kindyea, even of national, military and patriotic glery, we think has been unequivocally shown in the result of two appeals which we lately made to the public. That respecting Burns' Monument at Alloway, has been satisfactorily replied to in pounds, shillings, and pence; but not a pound, shilling or penny has yet been devoted here to the National merely by way of rescuing the Calcuttanians from any charge of apathy or indifference to national glory that may be casually brought against them. Surely the claims of departed bravery have also a most powerful and

C. troops, we believe, move on as originally contemplated.

A very full house is expected at Dum Dum on the evening of Wednesday next, 22d instant, when the beautiful Melo-drama of the " PEASANT BOY," and the burlesque entertainment of "Amonoso, the King of Little Britain," are to be performed. As the evening will have the benefit of builliant moonlight, we doubt not but the circum-stance will tempt many to undergo the pleasant exercise of an hour's drive, especially when it is for the patronage of a species of entertainment that elevates the sentitions of the present age which have been introduced into India from Europe, the art of LITHOGRAPHY, or printing from stone, seems alone to have crept in among us unnoticed, and to have escaped entire-1, the Argus eyes of those whose bustness it is to watch over and exhibit " the torm and pressure of the times." Whole columns of our own and our cotemporaries pages have been devoted to the wonders of the Steam Boat and Suspen-sion Bridge—but the Lithographic Press, a far more powerful instrument in the work of improvement than either, has hitherte so far as we are aware not clicited a single laudatory remark. For this we take blame to ourselves, and to make up for the omission, shall now endeavour to lay before our readers some account of the lithographic productions which have aire tdy issued from the press, as well as acknowdedge the prospective advantages the art holds forth to the Literature of the country in general. Lithography appears pecu-liarly adapted to the Oriental pharacters. The flowing Persian and massive Nagree and Samorit, which equally disdain the impression of the formal type, find themselves transforred through the medium of this ingenious art, and multiplied in all their ruis ingenious art, and mantiplied is all their original grace and beauty of manuscript. Thus the Nauve who could with difficulty persee a printed book single now read established his Lithographic copy, and cherish it with the same feeling of translationed to from his earliest gains. Nor is this a matter of translations of the consequence, accura that early recollections and associations the the street over the strongest minds; and dispension of the strongest minds as a strong of the street to us a strong of the street t ner is so much referred to us tives, it assumes a still higher der importance. We have in our posses several of the Calcutta Lithdgraphia, above, several of the Calcutta Lithdgraphia, above, mens, which are highly creditable, to the talents, skill, and industry of the consideror. These comprise topographical sketches, maps, initiations of originality and permanship, music, and copies the different texts of the Persial Calcutter. The specimens of Persial Calcutter at the Lithographic press have different to the contemps of the lithographic press have different to the contemps of the lithographic press have different to the contemps of the lithographic press have different to the contemps of the lithographic press have different to the contemps of the lithographic press have different to the contemps of the lithographic press have different to the contemps of the lithographic pressure to t them; and the Gentleman entrusted with a superintendence, considered that in a short time he will be enabled to attempt the lange est works in that language. Even the illuminated manuscripts with letters of gold may be imitated, and the execution accordingly adapted to the taste or means of the scholar. From what we have ourselves ments, polishes the manners, and softens seen, we would strongly arge the advantathe heart.

Seen, we would strongly arge the advantages to be derived to Oriental Literature from a duc encouragement of Lithography.

Among the many new and useful invenand since Government have been pleased to endow to many institutions of late for the moral improvement of their bative subjects, no more efficient instrument, we concrive, can be found than the Lithographic Profor aiding in so noble an oudertaking, it ought to be made emineutly subservient to the purposes of instruction, both in the Hindoo and Musselman Colleges in this and the other great cities of India; and even the numerous native schools now under European direction would derive benefits tiom its application, which no other ait could conter. In Geography for example, a science of which the Natives are deploiably ignorant, how much might be done with the assistance of the Lithographic Press. Sketches of the course of Rivers, and the relative situation of the Provinces and great towns, with their names in the netice tharacter, might be thrown off at the most trithing expence, and in order to elucidate such parts of History as occupied the attention of the Student, and with the view of alluring him to the pursuit, the sites of former battles or remark the arents might also be noted and distinguished by some conspicuous, mark in connection with the occurrencing, the server. These advantages, we should hope, will not search the notice of the Committee lately appointed by Government to substitute the instruction of the native community. Many small, pips have been thrown of as the Covernment, Lithographic, Press, his which the usoficuous of the art was been fully demonstrated; and heades, these a whole scene on a large scale, constituting an Atlas of North-Western India, has been to view of alluring him to the pursuit, the sites lately executed in a manner that reflects the highest exedit on the superintendent.

It is not to maps however, and written characters alone, that this art is confined: even the most delicate sketches of the penoil may he imitated, whether representing the human form, or all the varieties of inanimate nature : but as these afford pleasure only when exhibited in their most perfeet scale, it is certainly less adapted to express them than simple figures, in which the outline forms the principal object. It occurs to us that in the new solved for maistructing Native Doctors much benefit might he derived from the aid of Lithography, and we have no doubt the Mcdical Board, to conjunction with the centleman who has been selected to fill the appointment of superintendent, will avail themselves of the means which ir affords. The present Press belongs entirely to Government, whose li-berality, however, is such, w. have no doubt, as to oppose no obstacle to the exrention of works required by individuals, provided such do not interfere with the pubhe wants; but we understand that a private Press, on the most extensive scale, will soon be established, which will be manag-ed with the same ability as that for the public service, and we have the most confideal expectation, will be preductive of lasting advantages to the community at large.

The productings which have taken blace, with regard to Mr. Arnot, late Antistant Editor of the Calcula Japanan, in consequence of the Right Hon, the Governor-General in Council for his removal to the United Kingdom, have been mounted in this paper, from time to fine, as they occurred; but in giving an account of the proceedings in the Supreme Court on his being brought up and discharged on a Wit of Habeas I'm pris- which are of faffaite interest both in a legal and constitutional point of view—we think it necessary to preface it with a brief recapitulation of the different previous steps which led to this event Such a retrospect has been rendered the more necessary, by the circus which have gone abroad; some of thom uncontradicted and where the contrary is the case, the emendation, being disjoined from the misstatement, does not afford complete security that the truth well autrive, and prevail over the error against which it was intended to be an antidote. The following is a succinct account of the mode of procedure adopted:

suitable to the occasion and the nature of the offence, which would not equally require the interest of the share-holders in the property, but Mr. Arnot being a -untive of Great Butain residing in India nithout license, the Governor General in Council had accordingly resolved that Mr. Arnot should be sent to England. In paixnance of this resolution, the magistrates were directed to inform Mr. Arnot, that if be should voluntarily engage to proceed to England and to embank on board a ship for that purpose, within one month from the date of the letter, and should enter into such security to do so as might appear to the Magistintes sufficient for that purpose, sthen the Governor-General in Council, Mould not subject him to the privations and inconveniences which would necessarily follow the enforcement of the process authorized in the CIV, section of the 53d Geo. without a license; and if he failed to give such securities, then the usual warrant would be prepared and sent to them without delay. These documents having been read over, Mr. Arnot observed, that this being the first intimation he had received of the intention of the Government to send him to the United Kingdom, he was of course not provided with any securities, nor prepared to say whether or not be should offer any, not knowing what might be the effect of his thus binding himself to leave the country. For instance, if it could be construed into a voluntary departure, he might then be considered as acting dishonourably towards those with whom he had contracted obligations with the view of his permanently residuig in India; and rather than incur such a imputation, he would willingly submit to any hardship that night be in posed upon him He desired, however, to know the amount in which scenities would be required, and requested that time might be given him to consult his triends on the subject. The magistrates having deliberated for some time, informed him, that he would be required to bind himself under a penalty of Sicca Rupees 10,000, with two sureties in Sicca Rupees 5,000 each, to leave the country, or to take the alternative of a charter-party passage. On his again requesting to be allowed an opportunity of consulting with his friends, they consented to permit him to depart on his giving his own personal recognizances to return and surrender himself in the course of the atternoon, under a penalty of Sa. Rv 20,000, which he did accordingly. My Arnot veturned in the croning agreeably to stipulation; but the magistrates having left the office, he was directed to be in attendance at eleven o'clock next morning

SEPT. 5.-Mr. Arnot, basing again approved this foreneon before Mr. Paton, the only magistrate on duty, stated that he had made a representation to the government on the subject of his transmission, which he hoped would be successful; and he therefore requested that the worthy magis-trate would postpone the matter till the requested to be furnished with authenticated copies of the documents containing the Purpose, aforesaid, shall be earlifed to be dis-Purpose: and the Masters or other Persons have charged in such Port of the United Kingdom, in is a sine Continued of all such thips, shall, which such Ship shall be moored in safety, as such resolution and directions of the government concerning his removal; which, he said, would be necessary previous to his giving the securities required on the preeeeding day, as above stated, for his quitting the country; since, without some authentic document to show the precise nature of the charge against him, for which this order had been passed, he could not ask any of his friends to stand security on his account; as it might be supposed to be something of a very criminal and disgraceful nature; in which case, of course, no one would allow his name to stand along with his in any shape; and without some proof to show whether the charge was of this nature or not-at present, it could only be estimated from the amount of the punishment. On this representation, Mr. Paton intimated that the copies should be granted, and allowed Mr. Arnot to depart on the same recognizances as before, on condition of again surrendering himself the next day.

Same Day .- Mr. Arnot, feeling considerable auxiety to peruse the documents which contained the orders respecting him, returned to the Police Office in the afternoon, for the purpose of ascertaining if the copies were yet prepared, as he had been led to expect; and in that case to receive them. At the time of going into the office, there happened to be a full beuch of magistrates-(Messrs, Shakospeare, Paton and Buch, we think, were those present) who entered into a now discussion of the subject. Mr. Shakespeare thought Mr. Arnol had no right to make his obtaining a copy of the papers, a preliminary to his granting the seculities required for his quitting the country. Mr. Arnot submitted, that it was a reasonable request to be furnished with copies of papers so deeply affecting his interrest; and endeavoured to, shew, on the grounds already stated, that the possession of such copies must facilitate the procuring of the sureties required, by enabling him to satisfy his friends as to the true nature of his offence. Mr. Shakespeare thought they might take that upon his own word; Mi. Arnot rejoined, that persons knowing the tavourable-light in which every one regards his own conduct, would not perhaps suppose him destitute of that partiality more than others; and would therefore act unwarrantably were they to rely entirely on his ideas for a correct view-of the case. In tine, that his conscience would not permit him to ask any one to stand security for him, until he could adduce some unquestionable proof, such as the above documents afforded, of the nature and amount of his offence, Mr. Shakespeare asking, if Mr. Arnot meant by not giving security, to resist the orders of the government; the atter replied, that he had no idea of any thing like resistance; but as hissurden moval would blast all his prospects-prevent the fulfilment of his engagements pending on his continuance here - and it a word, involve him in immediate suin-the should do all he could by a representation to the government, to arrest his fate ! hut if this failed he had no remedy, and was of its disposal. Although, under such citoumstances, he could not, voluntarily, become accessary to his own removal from the country-he would, of course, submit to necessity The magistrates decided that the) were not warranted to give Mr. Arnot the copies required, and allowed him to depart on his personal recognizances, as before, on condition that he should appear there again next forenoon. Mr. Ainot being refused copies from the magistrates, addressed a letter to the Chief Secretary to the government, through whose office the papers had passed, requesting to be furnished with official copies.

Ster. 6 -Mr. Arnot having again appears ed at the Police Office this forencer, val informed by Mr. Paton the sitting magis trate, as the result of the representation above mentioned, that the government resolved to admit of no modification of t, + orders respecting his removal from the country, as notified in their letter of the 31 instant. The worthy magistrate also informed Mr. Arnot, that he was authorised by the Government to furnish him with comes of the documents required by him. On the subject of the sairties Mr Ainot stated that he was precisely in the same predicament as before. On being 11 fus-ed copies yesterday afternoon at the Po. lice, he had made an application to the Chief Secretary, but he had not yet receiped them. Mr. Piton . Howed Mi. Ainot to depart till the evening, when he promised that official copies of the documents require ed should be ready for him. Reference being incidentally made to Mr. Arnot's being in the country without a license. Mr. Arnot observed that, from the practice of many years past, no notice being taken whether persons have licenses or not, ... bout which no one seemed to care any thing, and the little security a heensy arfords, provided the government be resolved to remove an individual from the country he laid no stress whatever upon the powersion of one. However, as towards the et a, of the Marquess of Hastings' administration some surmised the positionty of difficert rules being acted upon at some father period, he being desirous to con ply with whatever regulations or practices parker become current, availed biniselt of the opportunity of a gentlement of influence proceeding to England, who promised to use his interest to procure him the formal sanction of the authorities at home to he residence in the country. This he was therefore in hopes of shortly receiving, -had his residence here been prolonged.

Same Day. Mr. Arnot returned to get the copies which had been promised him in the morning, and was given to understand that the copies intended to be given him were more transcripts. not in any manner anthenticated. This not being what be had expected, he declined receiving them, as they would not answer his purpose We in ormed the sitting magis-ates. Mes is Paton and Alsop, that he had prepare I another representation to the gov runent which he hoped would be more successfult in the a, and requested they would postpon ters un il le reenti should hick was to n Howmaccog zances. ed to depart on as befor .

Ster. .. Mr. Arnot informed the magistrates, that his a load representation to the povernment of date the 6th inst, had been given in, and in order to allow time for the resolution there on being known, they allowed han to depart on his former recognização till Wednesday afternoon (Sept. 10)

isino, 30-Mi. Ainot attended in conformity with his promise, when Mr Paton furnished i'm with official copies of the documents, signed and scaled by him as a magastrate of Calcutta, and at the same time informed Mr Arnot, that he was authorized to intimate to him that the represem nous addressed to the government had produced no charge in their resolution respecting his immediate removal. He informed the magistrate that no securities had been brought forward for the reasons above stated, viz not having been in possession of the copies just then granted. Mr. Arnot having received the above intelligence. then asked if he was at liberty to depart? which question being answered by Mr. Paton in the affirmative. Mr Arnot left the office without being required to exterinto any further recognizances to return. A warrant for Mr. Arnot's apprehen don being by that time granted orders were immediately after issued for his being taken into custody.

Seri. 11. -Mr. Ainot addressed a letter to Mr Paton, asking, whether, being now at last in possession of the documents he hadre in cd, securities would be accepted; and received for answer, that the warrant had been issued for his apprehension, and the securities would not be accepted till he was in custody.

Serr. 12 .- This day, about noon, Mr. Ainot was taken into enstor'v at the en-him with the warrant of the Governor-General for his apprehension. When asked, whether he was yet ready to give securities to quit the country, Mr. Arnot answered, that being now deprived of his personal liberty, he could not take upon limiself the responsibility of such an act. He was then conducted by the officers of Pohee to the Fort, where he was transferred to the custody of Lieut. Col. Vaughan, the Town-Major of Fort William, who lodged hire in the Strong Room, Royal Barracks, where he was confined on the following Warrant:-

* SUPREME COURT.-CHAMBERS.

BEFORE THE HON. SIR FRANCIS MACNAGHTEN AND SIR ANTHONY BULLER.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 197H .- About mid-day Mr. Arnot was brought up from the Fort, in custody of a serieant, and agreeably to the summons on the writof Habeas Corpus, produced before the Judges. As it had been announced in the newspapers, that the business was to be done in Chambers, not in the open Court, a general impression prevailed, that the proceedings would be enthely private, and no person admitted to hear them unless personally concerned. This, however, did not prevent a great concourse of persons being an attendance, who were anxious to hear the result; and when it was afterwards found that the public were not excluded, as had been anticipated, many regretted deeply the erroneous impression which had kept them away from these in elesting proceedings.

The Judges having taken their seats in the large hall, appropriated to the Grand Jury, when doing business, the Barusters and Attornes connected with the case, and some others, took their seats at the table placed about the centre, and the numerous audience of the inhabitants of Calcutta assembled, ranged themselves around in the room in the most convenient situation they could obtain for hearing the proceed-

And we must now express our regret for not being able to give a more full and perfect account of them, for reasons which are casily explained. Owing to the general impression above mentioned, that the proccedings would be perfectly private, none of the gentlemen who usually report for the Press, came prepared; and consequently having been taken by surprise when the pleadings began, and unprovided with either paper, pencils, or other means, no notes were taken by them. We have, therefore, had to labor under unusual difficulties: but to ensure as perfect an account of the proceedings as possible, recourse has been had to every person present likely to afford any assistance; and from the joint labors of the Reporter of the HURKARU and our own, this Report has been drawn up: which will account for its appearing in two papers, on the same day. In the most material part of the Report—the opinions of the Judges, we have fortunately possessed an advantage which enables us to youth for their securacy; the Counsel for Mr. Ainot having, as is usually done, taken down notes of the judgement, with which we were oblightly furnished, and from them, together with the recollection of there or four different auditors, besides those of the Reporters of the pape s named, every thing, at all material has been preserved, and we thank to may add, very correctly represented. To ensure, it possible, slid greater accuracy the judgment of Sa Francis Michigania. was submitted to be Londship with a lupe, that he would consent to revise it but, an der the particular encounstances of the case his Lordship declined don't a the the grounds, however, above stated, we can pledge ourselves for its conjectures the though it cameet convey any accountered to of the glow of feeling, and the back and energy with which it was democed, in impart, in the reading, that sympathic he delight, with which it was beard.

Mr. TURTON appeared as Connsct for Mr. Amot, and proceeded to state the grounds on which he would claim his dicharge; but, for the reasons above stated, we can only give a more skeleton of such of his arguments as we can recodect without pretending to preserve strictly the order in which they were urged or to give the words in which they were expressed. The tearned Counsel began by mirmating, that he had nothing to say as to the power of the government to transmit to England Brush subjects found in India without a herney, his business being solely with the right of imprisoning such persons, in the intermediate time between the order for their ren ovval and then embarkation. Before entering father into the question, he would observe that, although he had many objections to the Return made by Lacutenant-Colonel Vaughan to the writ of Hubeas Corpus, yes, as he considered himself to stand upon other and stronger grounds, he would not adduce these objections unless be was driven to it. and therefore, in the meanting, he waved them, entirely, reserving, however the right of having recourse to them in case of mecesuty. He would, in the first instance, confine himself to the question of, whether, the government have a right, by Action Paliament, to confine an individual whom they are about to send home, He would fost state it as a principle fully recognised in English Courts of Justice, that as personal hborty was the natural right of-every man, and not to be abridged, except for what the Common Law of the land, has distinctly declared to be a sufficient cause; therefore no British subject could be deprived of his hberty, without the express warrant of an Act of Parliament. A high legal authority (Mr. Justice Blackstone) had (51. Com.

I. 135.) stated the grounds of which the ration as suffering the design the subject could be deprived at the theory and in the Great Charter isself (on the Treatment).

That such wante few at the tegislative in passing this Actil clearly bridge by the Charter of English fiberty. It was declared treating if with mention of a sumlar sature that it is no freeman should be taken or include the treatment of the law of the law of the land." The chart of the English law is all william the manner in which a foreigner shall be observed the English law is all william the reated, is distinctly pointed out. Now links, the causes, and the extent—when. infes, the causes, and the extent, when in wherefore, and to what degree, the imprisorment of the subject may be lawful."
(B). Com. III. 134). He lays it down as a rule; that the personal liberty of the subject so, lealously guarded, being "a natural inharent right which could not be surrendered. or fortefied, unless by the commission of some great and atrocious crime, ought must have possessed without them? The not to be abridged in any case without the following is an extract from the Act referspecial permission of law." Now to apply red to: these principles to the 104th section of the 53d Geo. III. on which the commitment of Mr. Arnotis grounded by the government. we find that it simply gives them the powor to take, seize, arrest, and send on board a ship bound for England." There is no word about imprisonment: there is no warrant—no "special permission"—for his confinement. Therefore, all the confinement the government had a right to inflict, was, that which was necessary while conveying the individual on board the ship; and no more. The learned Counsel had heard, (for things of this kind in such cases as the present, would get abroad sometimes,) that here was to be met on the ground that, although the Act did not distinctly give to the Goverenforcement; and that this was a power, . Itself, in which such imprisonment, it would be argued, in necessarily implied. But in disposition to such a decirine, be would haintain, that such a power, ought to be maintain, that such a power, ought to be clearly and expressly given; otherwise, it council or Governor the Covernor General in council or Governor the Covernor General in council or Governor the Covernor Council or Governor the Covernor Council or Governor the Covernor Council or Governor the Covernor Council or Governor the Covernor Council or Governor the Covernor Council or Covernor the Covernor Cover was necessarily implied in the powof to remove, why did they take the trouble to give it expressly in the case of foreigners? Does the English government, with the advice and assistance of its few officers, pass acts for more waste paper stuf-ling them with superfluous and queeless clauses, giving people powers which they must have posessed without them? The red to:

in a ine, that the Legislature, having made punishment is deemed necessary-not even such careful provision for the confinement two months' imprisonment deserved. Could of foreigners, with due attention to their the Act at the same time intend to inflict comforts, would have been atterly regardless about the treatment of British born subjects? If it had meant the latter to be imjects? If it had meant the latter to be imprisoned, when found in India without a license, would it have made no provision fo their good treatment; Would it not, in some manner, have mitigated or restrained the exercise of the power it granted over them? Or, was the English government, in consenting that its own natural subjects should be deprived of their liberty—to assign no limits to the exercise of this power, never entertained any doubt that the garout leave them entirely to their fate, with-

Mr. Turron also argued that Mr. could not be imprisened in the fort, and the act expressly authorised it; as it an illegal place of confinement. If the G vernor General had the power of commi ting to a private prison and not to a public mison, the benefit of the 35 7. c. 3 (certify ing commitments would be lost. Herefer, red to Acts passed against confining people to private houses or dungeons, to which persons might be hurred away, and shut ut without an opportunity of communication with their friends, and as the keepers made no reports of their proceedings to any legal. authority, a person might be immused, in this way, without any means of legal redress. He retried to a case decided in England. in which Mr. Feigusson, the present Advocate General at this presidency, had adduced a very able and learned argument to proye, that a person was illegally coufined in Cold-bath-fields on the ground that it was not a public prison. The Judges had admitted the validity of the argument, and only decided again thim on the particular grounds, that a certain Act of Pailiament had rendered this a public puson, otherwise, the person must have been held to be litegally confined.

Returning to the Act on which Mr. Arnot had been committed-he observed, that as it gave extraordinary powers, it must be strictly interpreted,—its meaning not arbi-tracily extended. It appeared, by its tracily extended preamble, that tranmission was intended for cases where no other punishment was required, actronmstance which alone suggested its being used lemently, the government were authorised to proceed against individuals here without a license for a misdemeanor, and they neight be punished by a fine not exceeding Sicca Rapees 2,000, or imprisonment not exceeding two months. But, observed the learned Counsel, as there may be cases when removal to England is enough, without any further punishment, the Government is then authorised to apprehend individuals in this predicament, Was it possible (asked Mr. Turton) to and send them to England, when no further the grounds stated, and others which, if necessary, might be adduced from the Return, the learned Counsel concluded that Mr. Arnot was cutified to his discharge.

The ADVOCATE GENERAL then state ed, that he appeared officially, in support of the Return made to this writ of Habias. Corpus. From the first mention of it, he ba ! vernment possessed the power to impriso, of it had not this power. the derson mu,

Be set at large, at once; and the Covernor- dencies, the Chief Officer of the Company General would be left without the means heecsbary for exercising the authority vested in him by the Act for sending to the United Kingdom, Bruish subjects found here with out a license. It would be absurd to suppose, that the legi lature meant to give him such a power, without giving also the means necessive for carrying it into effect. The analogy drawn between this case and that of alicus or foreigners, was mapplicable. because aliens were guilty of no offence by Deing in the country, whereas Birtish subjects residing here, without a brense, were declared by the Act of Paritiment to be sommitting a high crime and misdeme month every day, The government was authorised to arrest and send them to England; and the power of detention, till they could be put on board a ship, was olearly necessary for the exercise of that power. The learned Counsel then it terred to a manuscript book, containing accounts of the proceedings in the Supreme Court of Calcutta, extracted and copied (he stated; under the superintendance of a gentleman very competent to the task, (Mt. Macher, elerk of the papers) From this he cried a case decided in this Court, when Sn Rebert Chambers was Chief Justice than whom, he thought, an abler Judge had not sat on that Bouch. Mr. Burroughs, Mr. Ledhe, (and others whom he named), all men of considerable abilities, were counsel in the case; and although all the arguments on both stiles were not given, it appeared to have been fully canvassed, affording the greater scennity for a mature and just decision. This was the case of Duh n in 1791, when a writ of Habens Corpus was applied to and a Return being made that be had been confined in the Fort by ord 1 of the Governor General, the Court decided that it could not release him.

(The book contained a copy of the Return in that ease, which Return Sir Francis Macnaghten pronounced to be mainfestly bad and not supportable in law. It bore, we believe, that the person was to be kept in prison, unless he cutered into security to quit the country.)

The Advocals General then quoted the 5th Geo. I. cap. 21, which confirmed the 9th and 10th of William III, forbidding people to trade to the East Indies without heense under penalty of forfeiting the effects embarked in such trade, and double the value thereof; and it was settled that residence, without licence, should be construed into unlawful trafficking. In none of the Acis til the 53d Geo. III. was there any mention of the individual unlawfully trading or residing being put " on board a ship bound to England." The words did not occur previous to this Act. It gave to the Governor-General, the Governor of any of the Presiresident at any British Settlement, the Company's Council of Supercargoes at the Factory of Canton, &c. the power "to take arrest, seize, and cause to be taken, arrest ed and seized," persons without a license and to remit and send them to the Univer-Kingdom "on board of any ship or ship of or belonging to or in the service of the Company. The power of containing then until they could be sent on board such ship was, the learned Counsel contended neces surply implied. It not, how could the Ac be carried into effect? When a person p ordered to be arrested and committed to part, after the officers have lard hold o him, there must necessarily be some deten tion before he can be put into the prison If it be at a great distance, perhaps twen to or thirty miles, they may find it-necessa ry to stop somewhere on the road all night This is imprisonment, but not unlawful; because necessary for the person being lodg ed ultimately in the place destined for his confinement. In the present case, such intermediate commement was obviously necessary for carrying the purpose of the Ac into effect. In the custody of his (the Ad vocate General's) friend Col. Vaughan, a Gendeman distinguished for the unbamt of his manners, he was confident Mr Arno would receive every indulgence, consistent with his safe detention. The clause of the Act (1048) which the government had gone upon, was that which enabled them to send pirsons home without adopting any further proceedings against them, and was evidently meant as a comparatively length measure. And the manner in which it was put in practice was favorable to the indivi ual; for if they did not lodge him in the Fort. then they must put him on board a ship where he would be less comfortably situated. Now, if the Act conferred no power to detain, what was to be done during the S W. Monsoon, when none of the Company's Ships were ever dispatched !*

Suppose Mr. Arnot had been put on board of the Ogle Castle (latery of liged to put back) must be have remained there till she was again able to put to sea! And if the ship was condemned, what is to become of him? Must be not be lodged somewhere in safe custody. But if he can only be kept on board a ship bound for England, a ship may be bound for England though in Kyd's dock;† must Mr. Arnot go there ^{*} Note -This is a mistake of the learned Advocate, for the Company's Ships are dispatched even in the height of the Minisgon it is not material bowever; for the argument, if well founded, would cut both ways.

⁺ We should think this is not quite correct, because we understand that a Ship cannot properly be said to be bound for a Port, until she lias actuall eleinbeetd Customs for that place.

too, and have his head hammered to pieces (a laugh) until the carpenters are able to make her sea-worthy! Would he not be very glad to exchange the smell of pitch and tar, with the noise of workmen, for a quiet fodging in Fort William with Licutenant-Colonel Vaughan! In this view of the case, the learned conuscl considered the mode pursued towards Mr. Arnot, not only necessary for his temoval but the best for hunself. The question was whether Government were bound to put him immediately on board a ship. He thought they were not, by the terms of the Act; which he maintained contemplated intermediate imprisonment. For in the 123d & it expressly mentioned the word imprisoning. It said,-

. That if my Suit of Ac Ion shall be brought or commenced against the said United Company, or any of then Servants, or any Perso, or Persons ac mg by their Authority, for the Recovery of Rus Costs or Damiges for the unlawful taking, arresting, seizing, imprisoning, sending or bringing into the United Kingdom of any Person, or Persons found to the East Indies or other Perts aforesaid, within the Limits of the aid Compaby's Charter, or as not being authorized to reside or traffic there, &c."

The words "imprisoning, sending," he contended, could not apply to the Captain of the vessel; and must therefore refer to the Governor-General or any others acting on the same authority, instrumental in the individual's being sent out of the country. He was ready to go as far as Mr. Turton in saying, that there should be no imprisonment unless necessary for Mr. Annot's conveyance on board ship; that there should be no superfluous delay on the way; but some detention was obviously necessary, and no attempt had been made to prove that, in this case, more had taken place than was necessary. No whip of the description required, had sailed since his airest, and he was entitled to be sent by the first. If it had not been the intention of the Act that he should be detained in custody till a ship be prepared for his reception, it would have said, he shall be "t ken, ar-rested, seized, &c " PROVIDED only a ship of the proper description be ready to receive him on board and convey him to England, On these grounds the learned Counsel concluded that Mr. Arnot's detention was agreeable to the Act of Parliament, and legal; and that he must therefore be remanded to the Fort in custody of the Town Major.

Such was the tenor of the Advocate General's argument, according to the notes of it taken by Mr. Turton, and the recollection of the persons in Court; but in reporting Mr. Turton's reply, we have unfortunately no assistance whatever but our memory, and the account of it we can give, must be therefore very inadequate to no justice for its merits, and to the side of the argument which he supported According to the inpression on our minds, it was something

Tie ADVOCATUGENERAL explained that he shid not mean to say that: for his learned firend, as usual, ngued very well; but in this en e has arguments led to an absurd conclusion

Mi. TURION resumed -It is very easy for my learned triend to say that such a conclusion is absurd, or Prof. the power of imprisonment is necessarily simple d to the Act of Parhament. B t I go upon the well known principle of the law of England, known to every one who has ever passed the threshold of an Uselish Court of Justice, -that all pend statutes must be construed streets, and that no man must be deprived of his literty without an express authority from an Act of Pathamens. In interpreting the sense of an Act, there must be no stretching of the meaning, -- no supplying of supposed omismons, in order to trench or the liberty of the subject, further than is expressly authorized. The Advocate General says, that the power of impress soning is necessarily implied. But where is the authority to saying so? On what acknowledged principle of law is such a construction put upon the Act? What legal dietum is there in tavor of this latitude of interpretation? We have heard of none. He has indeed cited in case decided in this Court in 1791. I do not care what was decided, unless I know the grounds and the principles upon which that judgment was prenounced. Not being made acquainted with these. I must still rest the question on the broad ground of the law of England, according to the principles of which I maintain this imprisomment to be illegal, and not wairented. With all due respect to the authority of , precedents, Judges are not infallible; or wherefore the number of new trials we see granted in England? After decision, the Judges see reason to deliberate further on the subject, and the judgments are not unfrequently reversed. Notwithstanding, therefore, the high encomiums passed by my learned friend on Sir R. Chambers, he as by no means infallible. My learned riend, indeed, always has a very high admiration for those Judges and Lawyers who entertain the same opinions with him self. But I have no doubt that in examining that book (in MSS.) he has found many things to astonish him; and that he could puthis finger on many passages, in the propriety of which he is very far from coinciding. I do not know what particular notions Sir R. Chambers may have entertained as to the liberty of the subject, or the power of the government. So William Jones, who also sat on the bench was a great Oriental Schol ar

SIR F. MACNAGHIIA - And a great stick-

Mi. Tunton,-Yes my Lord : but apt to be fascinated by talent. Now all the learning and eloquence of the bar might have been in favoi of the imprisonment. I do not know what arguments were used on the otherside this I know, that he decision was contrary to the law of Bagland, as here established. The Advocate General considers the confinement of my chent in the · Fort, a lement way of proceeding

ADVOCATE GINIKIL I expressed no opinion at all on the present case, further than that his impriso her nto rusuch a case was legal, and that in granting a power of sending him home without my further prosecution, the Act intended to be comparatively lement, and that he may be more comfortable in the Fert than on board a slup, until the time that the latter is ready to proceed to sea

Mr. TURION-Well, admitting that in the austody of my learned brother's friend, Col. Vaughan, my chent may be more comfortable than on board a ship nevertheless, as in the case of a person sken up by a bahilt, tam him in his own who may be willing to house instead of takir him to puson, the puson in custody may ay. It is true you have a commodious house, with agreeable company and a pleasant prospect, vet I Take me to don't choose to remain it my legal prison, for there only will I be confined, however muck it may be interior to your house." So my client may say, "I do not choose to remain in the Fort, I am willing to go on board a ship bound for England, and there only you are suthorised to confine me." The intermediate confine-ment, unwarranted by the Act, is by no means necessary to enable the Government to send persons on board a slup. But even if it were, the Court could not authorise what was not werranted in the Act; since they sit as Judges and not as legislators. If a magistrate were empowerhen the magistrate would not be wat a license, but confers no power whatever of ranted to inflict imprisonment upon him; and must content himself with awarding the pecuniary penalty, leaving it to be recovered in the best way it cin.

The above is as much as we can at present recollect Mr. Turton thought it unnecessary to take up then Lordships' time, by stating the many fatal objections, which lay against the Return, and rested satisfied that on the grounds already stated one the pairciples laid down by Sn William Blacks onand the greatest law authority's, that penal statutes must be construed stor by, -that the personal liberty of the subject must not be abridged, unless there is an express warcantion it from the words of a statute or the common law of the land,-the Court would order Mr. Arnot's release

The Judges, after whispering together a few moments, then retried into another room, where they continued upwards of half an hour in consult iron . Bout half past two they returned mad the Grand Jury room, and delivered their sentiments as

So FRANCIS MACNAGHTEN began by regretting, that there was little hope of a concurrence of opinion, between him and his colleague in office, on he subject before them. But said his Lordship I think there must be some thing plain and distinct -something clear and express in the Act of Parliament-something which admits of no other construction, before the subject can be deprived of his liberty. It this principle be not adhered to, and preserved without any reservation or admixture of any thing else whatever, then I know of no security from the laws on which the subject can place reliance. I am well aware that, it the Governor-General acting under the 33d of George 3d, or the 50d, send to England British subjects found here without a beence, we have no right to interfere. He is authorised to do so by Act of Pailicment; and whether that be a constitutional or unconstitutional act, with that - sitting here as Judges -we have no Nor have we any thing to do concern. with the discretion or indiscretion, with which he may exercise that authority. nor with his regard to liberty or his regard to tvi may. Therefore, I put this entirely out of the question. But the Act of Parliament, conferring such authority, gives no ower of imprisonment. The word is not found, nor the idea conveyed in it at all If the word "detain" even had been used, it might have afforded some shadow of an argument for this imprisonment, but we do not find even such a word in the act. ed by the statute to fine a person for a cer- Therefore the obvious and necessary contain offence, but it did not go on to say, that clusion is, that the Act has only one near of the offender follow to make of the offender follow to make the offender follows to make the offender follows to make the offender follows to make the offender follows to make the offender follows to make the offender follows to make the offender follows to make the observations and necessary contains the offender follows to make the observations are not contained to the observations and necessary contains the observations are not contained to the observations and necessary contains the observations are not contained to the observat n case of the offender failing to pay the fine, object : it gives the power to seize and iche shall be imprisoned until he do so- mit to England, persons found here without imprisoning them. Many things have been introduced which were not necessary for the argument, as the 104th section of the 53d of George the 3d (on which the warrant of commitment is founded) is alone necessary, and must by itself decide the question. I do not deny that other acts may be referred to for illustration or analogy, but on this the question depends.

It may be said, that if the Government has not a right to imprison, until a ship be ready, then a dangerous min may go abroad and do mischief in the intermediate time. So he may, and supposing the worst case, that he has the means and the desire of doing mischief, I say he may do all the mischief he can. subject always to the control of the laws, and to be pumshed for every illegal act be may commit; but no person has a right to prevent him by any precautionary measure Such, I say, was the intention of the legislature in passing the act. For although, sitting here as Judges, we have no right to enquire whether an act be constitritional or unconstitutional; yet we are brand, as British Judges, to put up-on it a constitutional rather than an unconstitutional interpretation, and were it hable to two constructions, where the right of the subject is concerned, we are bound to give it an interpretation in layor of liber-

On this point, I wish to be clearly understood. To say, that we emply here the full privileges of the British constitution, is absard. We enjoy no such thing The id a of such liberty is absurd- is ridiculous How can any man in his senses say, I will act as I choose, subject only to the laws, when he knows that he may be told, " You shall do nothing-you have no right to be here at all " To speak, of British liberty then, existing here as at home, would be hithe less than frenzy. But the fewer the privileges we do enjoy—the more numerous and heavy the jestraints imposed upon us -the more our liberty in nairowed, the more. I say, does it become incumbent on the Judges to guard, with greater strictness, that portion of liberty which remains to us, -tor we have the less to spare.

guarding against the mischief a party may do, before a vessel is ready for his conveyance to England, let us see what the legislature has done in another case very nearly related to this. When a person is residing in the country with a license, it can of course only be recalled on account of his own misconduct. Therefore, in such case, it is to be presumed, that there must be some cause which renders his removal a matter of pub-lic expedience. But even then, did the legislature empower the governor-gene- paper reports.

tal to seize and immediately imprisor this public enemy, to keep him from doing more extensive mischief until he could be conveyed out of the country! No such thing - He is allowed to roam at large for two months! Then in the other ease, if any idle person happen to have come here from England without thinking about the matter or not knowing perhaps that a license was necessary, and thus he enight in the trap and ordered out of the country without, perhaps, having come att dany offence, or what is a more purbanentary offence, can it be contended at the any shadow of leason, that he is to be to prisoned without any express authority ' I say with out having commuted involute const with reference to the new tenth a cucumst mes of this ease, which been in his dishe Government to order Mr. According to a from the country, for I declare, I know nothing about them, and 'ave nothing to co with them. But the Gov rame at by the mode of proceeding, have declined prosecuting him for a misdemeanor, and rest decition d with his being removed. It is to be presumed, therefore that he has coment a confirme which calls for prosecution, and is removed merely for not having a horase. In such a case, are we tashin din considering him a dangerous man who must be a cured right or wroger levelly or diegalis? Am I sitting her as a Butish Indge to just word man Act of Parli ament and supply its supposed deficiencies ' And for what' why to invade the liberty's of the subject. Am I to say that such an expression was madvertently omitted, or such a power was meant to be given, and, on such grounds agree to this person's boing impresoned webout any express authority from the statute? Sit ing here as a British Judge (and I hope I am not obliged to lay aside my feelings as a nian), and viewing the case, as I hope I doboth as an English lawyer and as a gentle, man,- I declare that my understanding and my conscience, will not suffer me to send back this person to the cell or puson. or whatever it may be, in the Four where they have confined him. minrage that most agreeable or convenient to men in power, merely because they know it to be so. I trust they will never, in any case, truckle to the Government, as, I fear, thos. Judges have done. [As His Lordship pronounced these words in a very emphatic nranner, he laid his hand upon the MS. book of cases from which the ADVOCALL GINERAL had quoted that of Mr. Duhan. *] If such ever were the case, it would afford a cloak for every species of oppression. I would infinitely rather see the Court abolished, for it would then be a nuisance tather than a protection to the subject. I dewhere I should hope, in such a case, to see a public meeting of the inhalitants of Calcutta to join in a petition to Parliament, to recall its charter and put an end to it at once. This Court is supreme, and the moment one particle of this supremises is forfeited, I trist the Court will be annihilated.

Suppose we were to remand this gentleman again to the Fort, I should like to know how long he is to kept in custody? By this assumes a power to act as it pleases -to imprison him with any one it likes, and by what authority? I know of none he is to be put on board a ship, or how long man. h is to remain confined in the Fort. We are desired to state that with reference to our report of the judgment given by Su Francis Macnaghten in the case of Mr Ainot, his Lordship did not speak of the decision of this Court in 1791, m the case of Duhan, as at all connected with the constriction of any Act of Parliament | He declared the RETURN to the west in that case, to be ful masmuch as Duhane had been airested under special , unthouty, which special authority did not appear by the return. He disapproved of the decision, because the return having been bad, the prisoner ought not to have been remanded; and because the Court, in support of its degision, treated the proceeding as if the Council Chamber had been a Court of Recoed t it was this that he considered to have been contrary to law. ner without any authority, is to be kept all this time, and as long as the government may think proper to keep him, in prison, without bail or mainprize! Can this be done under English laws, for any thing but felony or treason? But the Act which is assumed as the warrant for this, applies equally to Bombay, whence the Company never have a slop bound directly to England. Then are we to put a forced and unwarranted construction upon the Act, by which a British subject for merely being in India without a hoense is to be condemned to perpetual imprisonment? The idea is monstrous .- But if the Governor-General ever had the power to imprison him, I should say, that he might be bailed; because if they prosecuted him, even at home, then he is to be committed, only IF NOT BAILED.

I do not know what feeling this person's release may excite, but if a general 1 ling of satisfaction or congratulation should prevail at las release. My principle is, that, if the words of the Act of Parhament are not clear beyond a on the same grounds, the Judges of this doubt in conveying the power to imprison, Court have no right to know that a ship then we ought not, by so stretching its meaning, to curtail the liberty of any man,-We ought, (though I do not speak of this as a constitutional act: I care not whether it tish subject, after being shut up in this manis or no-but this I do say)-we are bound to give it a constitutional, rather than an unconstitutional construction. It dues not empower the government to impuson, and although it may be said that in the Fort, in the care of such a gentleman as Col. Vaughan, this individual will experience all the indulgence, which that officer can extend to him, and no one who knows him can doubt it; yet, in depriving a man of his liberty, you take away that from him which is necessary for his happiness. It is in vain to talk of the pleasantness of this place, or the other; he is no longer master of himself: and this alone is enough to make him miserable. What more, I ask, can any tyrant de, than make his victims miscrable? It is true you may put him on board ship, and keep him there in charge of the captum, but I should think the wooden walls of the vessel a sufficient prison. They could not confine him to his cabin, or keep bim in fetters. Nay, I think him enatled, by the terms of the Act which provides for him a good and sufficient yessel-one of the Company's shipsto the best treatment and accommodations And when the ship reaches England, this gentleman is immediately entitled to he discharge from the vessel at the first place where she is sately moored, and is at liber-ty to go where he chooses. No conditional term of represoument, is to be tacked to the end of the voyage. And is imprisonment less charcelap in the East Indies, than in Figlaid! Is it of less consequence to a British subject here! Is the society in this country less consolves to his feelings, or less necessary to his happiness, than in Europe, that we should thus trill with his hbity? On every possible of lan, -of reason and of justice thin, I declare it to be nay decided openion, that Mr. Amot be discharact.

If the gover ment had the power in 1731, they had it his Ludship thought, now In the Act of the 5hd of Geo III, there were the words "Company's ship bound to Eagland," which were not in the Act of the 33d, but he did not think that this introduced loss of privilege, though it might unit ntionally have done so Unfortunately the gislature had not recollected that no such ship might sail for some time after the remuval of an individual from the country had been decided on. He shought that the ohject of the Acts was to give the power of exercising such authority to send home porsons, encumsianced as the party in this case was. The governments of India, had the power under terme Acts of seizing, taking, and detaining for the purpo of sending to England, British subjections made have without a license, in order to pro a graphera for a introdemeanour , and it was not centended that they had not the power now, tor the purpose of conveying to England when the ship was ready, a Butish subject so exemp-Stanced -ior it was admitted that they me 'it board of her He, Sir Authory Buller, that this authority nethought therefore eessaid, implied the power to det in till the ship was so roady, and that, consequently. Newspaper, impugning the decision of the unlicenced persons put in force against These called forth various replies in the Circuity Joursal, from which the following very able betters are selected, as embracing the whole question.

[FROM THE CALCULIA JOURNAL OF 3D OCC]

SIR, -If there be any who think, that no benefit can be derived from acquainting the public with the proceedings of our judiciture, I shall leave them unmolested in the opinion. It is enough for me, that it cannot be emproper to rectify misrepresentation to expose ignorance, to detect fraud, or to resute fal-enoud.

I do not intend to male a single observation in support of the decision of that judge (So times Machaga, naby whose order Mr. Acout was he cont. Strictures upon the compact of he may dy's judges, were probabite cat the same time, and in the some nearmore, with still are supon the mea-3014 or the government. It is not to be conclude I that I ap gove of restrictions, heause, I di de, they sught to be, if existing, Supartially upplied

To those who are not used to subtle disanctions, it may appear strange, that publiparameter the impugning the decision of a Indge, it his judicial expacity, should have been permitted -nay more, that they should not have been prohibited, although the writer, who signs fenaself A. in the John Bitt, had announced that he possessed obs avations, and had them in reserve it ady for application, when a report of the procredings in Mr. Arrets case should appear. They must have been ready made, or the writer could not have had them in reserie, and yet, with a knowledge of what he had done, and notice of what he intended to do hers suffered to proceed, aided in his breach of a government rule by the Govern-MINT GIZFICE into the columns of which, his letter has been transferred. It might have been supposed, that the occasion was, in itself, sufficient to attract attention towards the rule which had been laid down for the conduct of newspapers. One editor had been remitted to England on account of his observations upon a government appointment, and another -as we are told, for adverting to those observations- authority of the Government. was about to have the law relative to him. Whether or not the editor of the GOVERNMENT GIZEFFE would have thought himself justified, in republishing the matter alluded to, I shall not conjecture; but I am sure a republication of it would not have been a more direct violation of the tule, than the transfer into his paper of the letter signed A has been,

I have dwell upon this topic not at all desning to deprecate the publication of any observations which A, may have yet in receree. As to him, I would advise that he should, in tuture, postpone the framing of his observations, until he shall have become acquainted with the statement to which they are to be applied As to mysch, I merely claim the privil ge of observing upon that* which has been publicly and by unthority promulgated By A's mode of proceeding, he will lose as much in the way of effect, as he can gain in that of concenience, As to the rest, from all I can discover I am willing to admit, that his observations upon a known and an unknown subject, will in all probability, be alike applicable

We have in the JOHN BULL of the 1-1 Octoher, a more co rect statement than had bitherto appeared, of the judgment delivered by Sir Authory Buller in the case of Mr. Amot It ends in these words :=" The learned judge was of opinion that the power of detention until one of the Company's ships should be dispatched was impaled " Leaving collateral considerations to the present aside, this is, in fact, the whole of the question.

It must be recollected, that the proceeding against Mr Ainot, was had under the authority of the 104th section of statute the 53d of George the 3d, which recites "that it may be sufficient, in many cases, to itmit and send such persons to the United Kingdom, without subjecting them to further punishment "-1 ask, is impresonment no punishment? or by what philology are we to understand that the words "to remit and send to the United Kingdom." mean -"to confine and imprison in Bengal " If judges, to the words "take, arrest and seize," are to add "detain and incar-cerate," will A have the goodness to inform me why other terms carrying his principles to their fullest extent, may not as well be supplied?

. Vir A.'s Letter was inserted in the Govino. MENT GAZETTE, which is published expressly by A., by way of simplifying his reasoning, coalescends to forego his latinity; and to put his law and language on a level with common understandings. He tells us, speaking of Mr. Arnot;—"He has in point of fact nothing to do with India, and might just as well claim the right of occupying a well furnished room in the house of the learned advocate (meaning Mr. Turton as a residence in the capital of the Eist India Campany." Be it so. This instance is most happity directed to a just conclusion. That the learned advocate would in the case put, have a right to send Mr. Arnot out of the "well furnished room," no man can doubt; but we are yet to be taught that he would have a right to imprison him in IT. Let A. in his abundant learning, make that good; and he will then be admitted to have made some progress in his argument.

Some of the errors of this writer, may be imputed to an ighorance of the subject upon which he undertakes to instruct us. Some, I should fear, are derived from a moreoriminal source. There is nothing more e'ear, than that penal statutes are to be strictly construed. Statutes are ponal which operate upon the offender; they are remedial, when they operate upon the offence; this distinction he will find in Blackstone's Commentaries. As he seems to have had the book in his hand, I wish this part of it had caught his eye, before he began to write, and that he had known the distinction between remedial and penal.

Much has been introduced into the subject, with which it is totally ancounceted:—the lenty with which Mr. Arnot was treated, and the superior advantages which he derived from his imprisonment, are both out of the case. The question is one of right; and if other considerations are to be forced upon us, it will be chough to say, that although one government may please to be leuient, another may determine to be

Under this head, I shall notice the assertion which has been made in A.'s first letter, and resterated in his second; namely, that an offer was made to liberate Mr. Arnot, upon entering into vertain securities,*—A., and Mr. Arnot, do not seem to be agreed as to the terms of his recognizance; and, indeed, they are at variance as to some important particulars of the proceeding: this did not at all enter into the consideration of the judges before whom Mr. Arnot's case was brought. The circumstance was judicially unknown to them; and even if they had heard of it by rumour, they were bound to disregard it. A. can best tell us why he thought proper to make this a part of his case. It may have been contrived to divert the altention; and it must be productive of perolexity and confusion.

Had the government, proceeded upon the 33d of George the 3d, and determined to remit Mr. Arnot to be tried for a mission meanor, I do not say what might have been the result. As the case stands, I might say well speculate upon what would dray been the consequence had he been arrested for treason or felony.

It is intimated by this constitutional wifer, that the learned advocate would case put, have a right to send Mr. out of the "well furnished room," no in doubt; but we are yet to be taught a would have a right to imprison him in the admitted to indicate the property of the errors of this writer, may be do a highorance of the subject upon defear, are derived from a more ori-

In the "more full and correct report of the judgment of Su A. Buller," as given in the John Bull of the 1st of October, it is stated that, by the 40th section of the 53d of George the 3d, all the former acts continued in force. This cannot be a mistake, because the decision in the case of Duhane is spoken of, and it took place in 1791—two years before the 33d of George 3d passed. As to A. he assumes through out, the existence of all acts of parliament, from the 9th and 10th of Williams Now it so appears, that in section 129 of the 33d of George the 3d, it is recited, that it may be convenient that such provisions as shall be deemed necessary for securing to the EastIndia Company their exclusive right, &c. should bereducedanto one Act of Parliamant. All necessary provisions are accordingly enacted by that same Act; and by the 146th section of it,all statutes, sofar as they relate to the security of the Company in their exclusive trade, all statuted respecting persons going, visiting, haunting, being, trading, trofficking, &c. &c. in or, to the East Indies, from the 9th and 10th of William to the 26th of George the 3d inclusive are "repealed and made void."

The 33d of George the 3d, is the oldest dated statute which we have now to deal with. If therefore 1. should favor yawith more of his information, he may spare smarch. He may begin a new by book, and take a fresh departure from the 33d of the may possibly obtain some hitle knowledge of the law as to which, in his arrogauce of his ventured to instruct us.

The absurdities of this writer are bound less; yet, although his want of intelled may be lamentable, we roust remembe that stupidity differs from crime; if indeed an attempt to impose ignorance fo bottle-holder, the editor of John Bull.

He, at once, casts all decency behind him; and in his paper of the 30th of September, asserts, that the 45th section of the 33d of George the 3d, empowers securing and dethining ILLICIT THADERS; and this he represents as the strongest part of the case. * His assertion is willful and deliberate, and it is made with the letter of A. before him; in which -wonderful to relate!!!--the section is truly set forth. Let him then account to the public for this daring attempt at impos in prison, it being the opinion of the Suture; it goes beyond all the instances of preme Court of judicature that he ought to 'editorial fraud, which have ever fallen withfa my knowledge.

If this editor had asserted the TRUTH, he would indeed, have left all that has been argued upon the subject, without one particle of foundation. A person being here unlicensed, shall be deemed and taken to be an illicit TRADER; and if an illicit trader may be SECURED and DETAINED, -of what has Mr. Arnot to complain? If FAIRLY to animadvert upon the duced every thing to uncertainty, to be brought upon fabrication and fals hood?

What is the fact! It is this, that the section in question, does not relate in the remotest degree to ICLICIT TRADERS; but that it does relate to persons carrying on illicit correspondence. To them solely and exelusively, and to them-which makes the editor's ASSURANCE more glaring-whether they are licensed or unlicensed. Why A. should have brought it forward, I shouldwere it not from the evil genius of the man, as manifested in his letters—have been at a loss to comprehend. "Expressio unius, est exclusio alierius," is a rule of law as well as of logic; and if I in the same statute find, that there is a power given to seeme and demin a person suspected of carrying on Ulicit correspondence, and no power given to knowledge, be not in itself culpable. He Ireland, and was to have been precipitate is, however, very far transcended by his ed, from constable to constable, until be bottle-holder, the editor of JOHN BULL, reached his destination in Loudon. This is so very like an indefinite and ad libitum tight of imprisonment, in the first instance, that it is perfectly unnecessary to point out the resemblance.

I venture to say, that the government disnot retain this man ag its advocate; and that he will not be thanked for his officious meddling. He will endeavour, in vain to make us believe, that a government, such as ours, could desire the detention of a man prison, it teng the opinion of the Su-preme Court of judicature that he ought to be discharged. Yet, whatever reason the government may have to be offended with this biss' body, I trust it will be satisfied by enjoining him future silence. Appear-ances—I cannot deny it—are greatly against this volunteer; and if he really intended to represent the government, as being discontented by the release of a man, who was deemed by proper authority to have been wrongfully imprisoned, the government would then, in vinducation of its own honor, conduct of Judges in their judicial capacity be in duty bound to treat the scribe as a be forbidden, are open charges against man who was bent upon mischief,—striving, them of having overturned the law and re- where he dare not attempt force, to effect

His argument-I use the term out of courtesy-viz. because the 53d of George the 3d makes a provision in case of an action being brought for false imprisonment, that, therefore, false imprisonment must necessarily be lawful, is so obvious in itself, that it could not excust a moment's commen-tary: and now, heartly tired of A.—his doctrines and his principles,—knowing that they cannot proceed from any good motive, and wishing that they may not proceed from the worst, I conclude.

October 2, 1823. FROM THE JOURNAL OF THE SAME DAY.

To the Editor of the Journal. Sir,-The argument which A. spins out through columns and pages of the Bull,

The case of Mr. Justice Johnston is quite as much in point.—The living half of him, was, it seems, torse suddenly from the residue of his family. He was not sllowed time to check his housekeepci's bills, or to settle his credit at the shambles; he was hurried out of his house in

• The next and most powerful point is the 45th Section of the 33d of Geo. rest, seize, remit, and send, justifies setual imprisonment during an unknuted time. He also suggests a comparison between the case of Judge Johnson, who was transmit-Mr. Arnot, which I leave to your readers to pursue. Whether A. has been feed by our side, I knew not; but I consider him no mean ally: and particularly thank him for his quotation of section 45 of statute 33d Geo. III. which Mr. Turron might have quoted for the same purpose that he quoted section 6 of statute 50 Geo. III. cap. 84.
"It would be absurd," the ADVOCATE GENERAL truly observed, "to suppose that the legislature meant to give the governorgeneral such a power, without giving also he means necessary for carrying it into effect." Now the power given, is a power to remove from India; but a person imprisened is neither removed, nor in progress of removal. "The means necessary for garrying it into effect," are a ship, and that the legislature cannot give; it can only give addhority to put on board a ship, if there is one: and it has chosen to restrict this authority by the description of the ship on board of which alone it is lawful to put him:—not a ship in dock, or stationary, but one having cleared out at the custom-house bound to Bugland.

The ADVOCATE GENERAL further observed, that "the analogy drawn between this case and that of aliens or foreigners, was inapplicable; because aliens were guilty of no offence by being in the country, whereas British subjects, residing here without a licence, were declared by the act of parliament to "be committing a high crime and misdemeanour every day." Now when an unlicensed Briton is proceeded against as for misdemeanour, the po er of the Governor-General cannot come into question; the matter is then wholly out of his hands. an I the legal process, with all its incidents and consequences, are clear. But, on the present occasion, Mr. Arnot was not so procecded against; and when we find that the legislature has given to the Governor-General, a power, in the case of aliens, to detain in safe custody until a ship is ready to transport them; and in the case of unlicensed Britons, only to take and send them on board a ship bound to England, we find a most applycable analogy, demonstrating in the clearest terms, that the legislature considered it sufficient to remove British subjects; but that it might be necessary " for the peace and security of the British territories, and of the allies of his Maje ty, and of the East India Company, and of the neighbouring Princes and states," to detain aliens until they could be removed.

The argument from the 123d section. I did not expect to see in the Advocate General's speech. It is only worthy of the Bull. In conclusion, the Advocate General says:—" If it had not been the intention of the Act that he should be detained in custody till a ship be prepared for his reception, it would have said, he shall be taken, arrested, seized, &c. Provided any a ship of the proper description be ready to receive him on board, and convey him to England." But, with submission, why should there be a provise to exclude an impossibility? for it is impossible that a man can be remitted and sent to England without a ship bound thither. It would therefore have been abourd to say,— 'he shall be remitted and sent to England, provided only there shall be a ship to receive and convey him." Suppose that power were given to the Governer-general to take, arrest, seize, and frans, mit, or send up into the stmosphere ve board a balloon to be prepared for their purpose, all persons found without licences or whose licences had been anulled, -would the Advocate General say that a power of indefinite preparatory imprisonment was hereby conferred, and that if it had not been the intention of the Act that the unlicensed persons should be detained in custody till a balloon be prepared for his reception, it would have said, he shall be taken, arrestpd. seized, &c. Provided only a balloon of the proper description be ready to receive him and to ascend forthwith. No time is prescribed for the preparation of a balloon, neither is any prescribed for the preparation or arrival of a ship; so that in either case, preparatory imprisonment might be for life. though no imprisonment was directed, nor any punishment whatever but the sea voyage, in the one case, and the aerial one, in CAPIAS. the other.

[FROM THE JOURNAL OF OCT. 914.]

To the Editor of the Journal.

Sin,—I see A. and his bottle-holder again in the ring. A. with his usual good taste and precision, tells us that penal statutes are to be strictly construed; but that all penal statutes are not to be strictly construed; "and there was much more foolery, if I could remember it," This however is pretty well, and, indeed, if we admit that penal enactments are to be interpreted by the judge's will, despotism has but little more to desire.

The editor gives us to understand, that he has not violated any rule by denying the legality of a judicial proceeding in the Supreme Court: perhaps not; but he has shown us by his publication of the restrictions, that Government and the Court are put upon the same footing. And yet, if is allowable to question the adjudication of a judge, and it is not allowable to question an appointment made by the government. I must conclude, Sir, that the one becomes criminal, by being stated with truth; and the other innocent, by being accompanied with falsehood.

Now, Sir, hear me upon the point of stiguette. If these gemun had entifled themselves to be addressed with any thing like deference or respect, they might justly have complained of an abstraction of their dues. If it had been my intention to treat them with either. I should feel myself bound to acknowledge a failure; but I will not answer for the consequences of their self indulence in had passions, nor ever admit that the language of honest indignation is unjustified, when applied to deliberate malice. The editor and his worthy compact were pleased to animadvert upon the confuct of que of our judges; and I do no deny the vility of such atrictures? The if they are ciples of evil. Can human nature be so contrary to order, we may the more reasonably expect them to be consistent with truth; and if such champions of authority turn their weapons against it, I cannot hat believe them to be actuated by personal and unworthy considerations.

The right of this Government to remit and send any person in Mr. Arnot's situation to the United Kingdom, is unquestionable; and upon this occasion at least it never once has been questioned. That those who exercise the right, are, like those who exeroise all power, subject to responsibility,—cannot be denied. This principle will, I believe, be found unequivocally declared by Sir Francis Macnaghten, when he ordered the Press Regulations to be register-ad. It is "lex sub quarron lege:" nor is it true, that Sir Francis ever said,—al-though he is asserted in the John Bull to bave done so, -that Mr. Arrat's ARREST was illegal. He did, indeed, expressly declare the contrary, and said, that the arrest was legal for the purpose warranted by law. Nothing but the right of intermediate imprisonment came, or could have come, in question.

But I must return to these congenial souls, —these Tyndarida of our times.

If Mr. Ainot had been remanded to prison, in a qui stionable manner, of should have applauded these men, had their efforts been made in his fivor. Weak indeed they must have been, yet they would have come beautified in the loveliness of mercy. What is this case?—A gentleman who had nothing but education for his patrimony,nothing but merit for his recommendation, -nothing but industry for his maintenance? competency, he inevitably incurred debt; yet, moderate in his desires, he had before him, what he dwelt upon as a cheering prospect. He is suddenly ordered from the scene of his fancied prospetty; and hav-ing forsaken his pursuits in Burope, his fond hopes, his national expectations, the fruits of his labours and of his studies, are blast, ed and destroyed in a moment The world, an far as it concerns him, is now a desolate wilderness. In the dismal gloom, he cannot discover a single object upon which his talents, or his toils, may be employed. Sure-ly, this might satiate malignity, and bring the iron tears down Pluto's checks." That two men so obdurate, so implacable, so regardless of rule, decency, and moral sentiment, should be seen coming forward to calumniate a judge, who, for aught we know, acting with the approbation of Goknow, acting with the appropriation of the heraine enactated out of the prevernment itself. Therated Mr. Arnot from he heraine enactated out of the preimprisonment—is utterly unaccountable, and his inhumanity.

I shall take my leave of them for the preland of Hamlot—insatiable in cruelty, as not to be contented even with the undoing of a fellow creature? Will the exclusion of hope not satisfy them, if it be not shut out by the bars of a pri-son? What can glut their rengeance, if the resignation of distress is enviable in their eyes? or must distress be aggravated, for their delight, into the torture of despair ?

I do not at all presume to call the con-duct of the Government in question. What has been done, may have been proper, or even necessary: but we may pity the suf-ferer, although we do not dissent, from the justice of his fate.

I did charge the editor with having given an assurance to the world, that an act of parliament contained powers which I aver it does not contain. I gave his words in a note to my last letter, and I repeat them in the body of this. Here they are :-

"The next and most powerful point is the 45th section of the 33d of George, which empowers the Governor-General to SECURE and DETAIN persons only suspected of illicit trading and all unherneed persons are considered by law as trading illicitly; we call particular attention to the whole letter, &c.&c."

I say he has asserted a falsehood.—Although he has represented it as "the most powerful point," I say the 46th section does not contain any such power; I say that ne part of the act, or of any other act, does contain such a power; I say that other and different provisions are made for such cas-Will he now join issue upon the fact?

When facts come in question, the correspondent is somewhat less culpaple than the editor. This thing A. semibavemque mount cemivirumque hovem " tells us, more semibovemque qualified by having learned the languages than once, of his having proved, that arrest, of this country, to make his way towards a confinement, and imprisonment, are synonimous in law; and he assures us that the right of imprisonment is given. This he atfirms, although he neither did prove, or could have proved any thing like it: but such a head-piece as his might have deceived him, and left his veracity untainted. Q that he could be taught, by experiment, the distinction which his intellect does not oneble him to comprehend.!! He might there ruminate at lieisure upon his symanima;— and I wish him to be left like a toud, to "live upon the vapour of a dungeon," until he became emaciated out of the grossess of

By a recent letter from Nusserabad we leare, that that station continued as gay as usual. The "Heirart Law" had been performed at the new Theatre with great éclat; the characters of Dr. Pangloss and Lord Duherley, our Correspondent mentions, as having been purticularly well supported. The Artillery, Pioneers, and a Battalion of the 25th Regiment of the Nusseerabad force, had been ordered to be held in readiness to proceed on service, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Lumley, Commandant at Neemuch: the destination of this force was not known.

Judging from the rehearsal of Mr. Scheid-LENBIRGER'S Benefit Concert, which took place on Monday night, our anticipations of the Concert itself proving a most exquisite treat, especially in the instrumental department, are very strong. In the vocal parts the lovers of music will have the gratification of hearing the delightful strains of some fair amateurs, who have with most considerate and amable kindness, condescended to promise their aid on the occasion. Of Mr. Schridlenbirger himself we need say nothing. His professional merits have already been rapturously acknowledged, and he has always evinced the utmost readiness to gratify the public with an exhibition of his talents, never, so far as we know, throwing any captious obstacles in the way of those who endeavoured to make musical entertainments a more frequent source of public amusement, and more morally as well as physically barmonious. The Concert will take place on Tuesday the 4th proximo.

We have had complaints from the Mofussil against the Galcutta catalogues, for not containing the prices of the several articles advertised by the Shop-keepers. We have also heard the same comptaint urged in conversation. It would therefore, we are conversed, be the most accommodating plan for customers to have the prices of all goods specified opposite the articles; and unless we believed it would in the end be the most profitable course for the shop-keepers themselves, we should not yenture to suggest the more general adoption of it.

There is something very mean in the moral constitution of a man who can cheat another in the price of a horse A gentleman would scorn to overvalue an article of furniture in a private sale, and yet some men who pass in the world as gentlemen, but whose claim to that honorable title is. we think, very problematical, will not scruple to descend to the chicanery of Jockeyship. One would forgive another with philosophical good humour for forsting a blemished animal upon him;—but for a simple soul who is no very capital rider to have a vicious brute wheeddled into his possession by insinuations (he never warrants) of good temper, condition and power, is a flagrant injury. This injury even becomes a crime when it endangers human life.

What would be said of an architect who permitted his labourers to climb to the top of a high wall upon an unsound ladder? What would be said for the public contractor who should for the sake of turning a penny construct the scaffolding of a steeple with such had materials as to endanger the lives of the workmen! What would be said of the ship owners who should send a vessel to sea, knowing her to be not sea worthy? We know that very harsh language would be used towards all these delinquents. We know also that the man who disposes of a nicketty buggy, or any other carriage,-or of old harness, passing each off by the aid of "leather and prunella, as new must in the eve of heaven be deeply responsible, should the purchaser (deceived by his account,) buy it supposing new, and afterwards lose a limb or his life by its breaking under him. It is a fact, that old buggies originally built in the bazar have been furbished up, sprucely painted, and aftertised for sale in the Calcutta ca-talogues as Landon built! The respectable auction firms of this city, we are sure, would never allow of such a deception, were they aware of it; when such a transaction occurs however, they are themselves as much unposed upon by the artifice of designing persons, as the individual who may be injured by a purchase is.

These remarks have been elicited by an accident which occurred lately in consequence of a made-up bazar buggy being passed off as a London-built and efficient one.

The accident, through the mercy of Providence, was not fatal, but it was severe. Let us suppose that the worst had occurred that could happen—that the person had been cruelly cut off in the prime of life, and a whole family thrown into the deepest distress—and all for what? For the sake of a paltry sum of money! The mind shrinks from such a possibility with mingled horror and indignation.

(From our Correspondent DRAMATIS

The performances last evening at the Dum-Dum Theatre were the very interesting Melo-Drama of " THE PLASANT BOY, with the farcical and entertaining afterpiece of "Amoroso, or the King of Little Britain." Of the general ments of the performers on this stage, no doubt can be entertained, and their exertions last evening have not a little added to the claims they formerly had on the regard and admiration of all lovers of the Drama. The Peasant Boy, although got up in an unprecedented short time, was performed with spirit, and attracted the unbounded applause of a tolerably full house. Time will not allow me to furnish you with a very long oritique on the performance. Every character was supported with eredit, and the play went off with the greatest celat. The part of Ambrose, an old veteran, who from wounds and the loss of a limb, had retired from active service to his native village, was super-excellent; the fine, hohorable, manly, active spirit of the noble Saldier elicited bursts of applause from all parts of the house', his devotion to military form and eliquette, the activity of his mind spurning the restraint which his wounds imposed upon him, and his delight at recounting scenes of former danger and fatigue, were acted to the life. The Baron Montaldi was represented in the first style ; the furious bursts of hate and rage against his noble relative, whose life he attempts to possess himself of the Dudal Coronet, were excellent; indeed throughout he acquitted himself much to the approbation of the audience. Fabian was performed to the file and attracted bursts of applause and laughter the character was in the hands of an actor who shines particularly in such parts, and 'tis pity such cannot always he found for him. The Peasant Boy was good, and on the whole I do not recollect to have seen any performance so deservedly and universally applanded, -and I shall be glad to hear that it is intended for repetition, which it will well bear) for the benefit of those who from divers causes were unable to attend! --- Amoroso was performed with the greatest credit. The King was inimitable, and the first scene was altogether so comic as well nigh to convulse the audience with laughter: indeed so farcical and ridiculous is the piece, and so excellently was it acted, that from the rise to the fall of the curtain the amusement and delight of the addience was most manifest by the continued unceasing peals of haughter. From what I saw last evening, I have little hesitation in saying that the Dum Dum Corps Dramatique is rapidly and surprisingly improving, and I think bids fair to re-attain that super-excellence which it once possessed, particularly in the Meld Dramatic line.

The truth of the adage, that what is every body's business is no body's business, rt would appear, receives daily illustration in the metropolis of British India. There are a hundred things requisite to be done for the amelioration and comfort of society, but they are left'undone! 'Every 'one coma plains, but no one acts. It is on 'all hand-agreed, that abuses exist among the differ-ent classes of hance servants, which ur-gently require correction. With domestic menialsitis not our intention here to meddle; they are of the two evils of in and out of door plagues, the least. We would rather point the attention of our readers to those hordes of adventurers who live upon the public-such as Ticca Palankeen Bearers, Coolies, Manjees, Boatmen, and so forth.

Of Ticca Bearers the complaints are numerous and loud. . It is well known, that to extort more than they are entitled to, these people frequently will, in some inconventent place, drop the palankeen, and refuse to proceed a step farther, unless their fare be encreased. It is also equally notorious that they will not stir a tout unless paid in advance. Now, though people submit to the latter condition, it is one that jars upon the feelings of an honorable man. It tells him plainly that his word is not worth even a Rupec. This, however, is a vental inconvenience compared to the other; but as both may and can be removed altogether, they ought not to be allowed to exist. Whenever a case has been brought before the Magistrates, where impropriety of conduct has been proved, it is but just to say, that the complainant has found all the redress that he possibly could expect from that quarter. Indeed it is, we believe, now generally ac-

Magistrates, a degree of public spirit and zeat in repressing abuses, as well as of urbanity and patience in their investigation, which is highly praiseworthy. Still we fear that a reform of the evils, that are attached to the present system is quite beyond the power of the Magistrates without a thorough. Thange in the system itself. A qasual instance of misconduct may meet with punishlimited; and for every case of impropriety or misdemeanor brought before a Magistrate, hundreds are never heard of-because there exists a reluctance on the part of memhers of the community to the bringing them forward. This is very much to be regretted, especially as the cause of it is grounded in apathy or selfishness. A person who suffers from the insolence or rascality of a servant, usually pockets the affront-or else deeming the trouble of bringing the offender system of roguery. to legal punishment too great, lets the matser drop quietly—or, worse than all, irritated he very improperly loses all command of himself, and takes the law into his own hands. Every member of society ought to considerit his bounden duty to make an appeal in tuch cases to the proper quarter. While on this subject, we must not forget, that if Bearers and such like too frequently sinthey are also sinued against. We doubt not but they have been ill used; nay, sometimes defrauded by men, who disgrace the European character. To this must be attributed, we fear, that disagreeable over-wariness of theirs, which makes them insist on receiving their hire before performing their The argumentum bacculinum is not always the most convincing. In reforming the native servants it has lamentably failed. Indeed, we believe and hope that recourse is had to it now much loss frequently than formerly. Though much may be uiged in exculpation of a man irritated by flagrant insolence or roguery, yet ought all striking a guments to be reprobated, and ever marked even with more than reprobation, as undoubtedly they must be when made matter of public or legal reference.

The next class of men that ought to be sharply looked after, are the Manjees .--These are divided into two parties—the Ghaut Manjees and the Boat Manjees. The Ghaut Manjee is an amphibious kind of animal or Marine Sircar. He is the gobetween of the Boat Manjee, the ministerial agent or ambassador betwixt the person requiring the boat and the master of it, both of whom he uniformly cheats.

A budgerow is either the property of an individual, or of a company. If it is the property of one person, the individual perhaps is Manjee of it. If it belongs to a company the manjer, is a hired servant. In both cases, the Ghaut Manjee is we believe, generally the contracting party. deropean, in which of course he takes good. care of the usain chance. The latter concluding, that after making a handsome at a stance of misconduct may meet with punishment, but the impression as regards example—of such a casual instance, is extremely the presidency. When perhaps about two hundred miles distant from Calcutta, he is surprised at being petitioned by the Manjer? for a further advance. Further advance. he exclaims, why did you not receive two hundred Rupees in Cultuta. No, replication the Boat Manjee, I only received one hung dred Rupees from the Chaut Manjee. What can the Griffin do! The rogue of a Ghaut Manjee is out of his reach, he must therefore shell out. Thus there is a regular The Ghaut Manjee Manjee, - the Boat cheats the Boat Manjee fleeces the poor hard toiling Dandees, - and the Dandees often endeavour to make amends to themselves by running away! We would recommend, then, to all persons requiring boats, to have nothing at all to say to those useless and impudent knaves the Ghaut Manjees. They should rather at once make their bargain with the Boat Manjees. We would further suggest the propriety of their finding out, if possible, whether the poor Dandees have received any advance of wages-and if they have not, such advance ought to be insisted on. If we once recognise the principle of advancing wa-, ges, and lay ourselves thus under contri-bution to the Manjees, we should also see the same principle recognised by the Manjees towards the Dandees. There exists not severer labor than that which is entailed upon the Dandees. The pittance, then, which is their due for their hard toil, ought to be secured to them beyond all doubt.

> Coolies very frequently give trouble by demanding an overcharge. In London a person cannot be imposed upon by a Porter or a Chairman. He knows to an hour of time, or a foot of distance, how much is due to either. Why might not the same wholesome certainty and established rule exist

Without a public Registry Office, where the names and numbers of all propries tors of boats, and of ticea palankeous and hackeries should be kept, a thorough reform cannot be expected. We mention the pracannot be expected. prictors of these vehicles, since they in their property, and in default of that in then persons, should be made answerable for the misconduct of their servants. We remember that some remarks we once made resnecting Calcutta domestic servants were in the pages of a cotemporary very liberally attributed to some private pique. We declare, in all our observations we are solely guided by anxiety for the public weal. With Manjees, Hackery Drivers, and Ticca Palankeen Bearers for instance, we never now come in contact. When we did, we found no cause to complain. Such of these men as it has been our fate to deal with, we have found as active, civil and tractable, as we we know many, however, who have experienced a very contrary treatment; and it is for their sake, and those who may be liable to similar inconvenience, that we have entered on the subject.

The following original ancedote of Shr-Ridan has been forwarded to us by a friend:—

"SPERIDAN, when a young man, was dining at a party where grace was said by the master of the house. He remarked to the gentleman, who sat next him, that he thought it a good old custom, and one he should adopt when he became a sober family man. But, said his friend, why delay what you acknowledged to be good and proper? Oh, replied the other, till then I intend to be Scape-grace."

The Grand Jury having been sworn, they were addressed by the Hon'ble Sir A. Buller in the following words:

I am happy to have it in my power to congratulate you on the very small number of cases, which appear in the present Calender. At the last Sessions the numbers were also small, and although Fam fully aware that other causes besides the decrease of crime may account for the decrease of commitments, yet I cannot help hoping from that connected with other circumstances, that in point of fact the number of offences latterly have been diminished. About two or three years since, the practice of gaming among the lower classes was carried to a very great height, and public places of resort openly held for that purpose; -particularly by the Chinese part of the population. This naturally led to thefts of every description, but that practice, I understand, has been to a great degree put down by the activity of the Police, and by the additional powers which were given to the magistrates by a regula-tion passed for that purpose in 1820. The increase also which was made to the Police Establishment, and the more respectable footing upon which the Thannadars have been placed by the addition made to their salaries, have, I trust, tended to prevent the commission of crime with the same frequency as formerly. It must be remembered, however, that no watchfulness on the part of the Police will be sufficient unless there is some corresponding care on the part of the inhabitants also. Among the few cases which will be brought before you three or four are on charges of forgery, and I cannot help feeling that that crime has been carried to a much great r extent than ful froud of this nature in particular leads them always to the commission of many more. I make this observation not only in consequence of the informations now returned by the Magistrates, but of former tirds in this Court in which it has appeared that bills have been paid when little similarity has existed between the real and forged signatures, and when the persons whose names have been forged have been either the partners of established houses, or Europeans well known in this place. In one of the cases in the present calender, three successive for crie are charged to have been committed of their regociable instruments in the short Mess's Lomb and Co are the alleged drawers Messis. Palmer and Co. the acspors, and a clerk, I think, of Messrs I am and Co. s the Endorser, all parties liv ing within a short space of the Commercial Bank with whom the two fir t bills were accascounted, notwithstanding the nomes of the drawers, acceptors and endorsee are all stated to be forged, and though they are Bregular in their from as they purport to be promissory notes of Messrs Lumb and Co. though drawn upon and accepted by Messis Palmer and Co.

In one case indied, the informations on which I have only had an opportunity of reading this morning. That intent is generads proved by the uttering and passing it off, but that in cut may be proved by other evidence and the offence may be complete though to publica for has taken place, and consequently no injury has been sustained nor immediately attempted to be effected by offering to pass it off.

OCTOBER 27.

For the Shipping arrivals, we refer our readers to the list in a subsequent column. Among these we observe H M S. Lifly, Commodore Grant.

The Theatre will certainly open on Friday evening next with the g and Tragedy of Virginius the part of the Roman Father being in the hands of the powerful awateur who made such a deep impression in the character of Lucius Junius Brutus. The other characters of the piece are, we believe, cast with great strength.

Although an exception letely occurred to the rule, the night of performance at the Chowringhee Theatre will always hereafter be on a Friday. On this point we write by authority, as also upon one on which we heartily congratulate the public—viz that it is hoped, and intended, if possible, to have a play during the cold season on each aftermate Friday. If the zeal and influence of our respected Manager can effect this, we know it will be done, and in both we have the utmost confidence, since his devotedness to the good cause of the Drampte Muse has already saved her from totally snaking in Calcutta.

From our esteemed Correspondent at Nusscerabad, we learn that there was a likelihood of there being something active to do for our troops on that fromter this cold weather, as a force had becomeded and was in readiness to move Color Limitary commands it. It consists of the 3 Battahons of Native Intentity, the 7th degiment Light Cavalry, Horse Artillery, the Hass Field Battery from Nussecial with a battering train.

Sir David Och ferency, to the regret of the whole station, was about to Nusseerabad, where, independent act a great tilents,—his polic sociable ind the formating demeanour, had created in the forms of all a most mented sentiment of respect and attachment.

A friend kindly informed us yesterday evening, that by the Anne (arrival reported yesterday), which left Rangoon on the 28th ulumo, letters had been received from that place, in which no allusion whatever is made to the Burmese movement, which has caused so much speculation here. Mill reat Rangoon and Ava were going on in the old smooth way, and no suspicion whatever of a rapture entertained. This is extremely satistación mielligence, as it relieves our apprehensions respecting the British inhabitants at Rangoon, and serves to show that the movement was accidental, and cepended upon circumstances of a more ha mitted nature than was at first supposed, We learn that two vessels, the Rangoon Packet, and the Vary Capt. Citish, ad got on shore about 30 or 40 miles to the Westard of Rangoon River, all hands of both ships saved.

The Malabar was to leave Rapeson in about 10 or 15 days after the An '7 her we shall probably hear of coor news from Ava.

We have ascertained the particulars of a sase of finald, attended with somewhat peculiar circumstances. To the active and salle Magn trate who sifted the affair and secured the offenders, the greatest credit is due for the happy presence of mind which made him hit upon a successful expedient to excite one of the offenders to a confession, which led to the recovery of the property stolen

The details of the case are these Capi. RODGIRS, of he Madias arms, having arrived in the River, reduced to the atmost extremity by long sickness, his friend Mi Paros (the Magistrate) on the 21st ultimo, sent a hoat with supplies to meet him, under the charge of Moder Bux, who was instructed to bring up the sick gent man with as little delay as possible to M. Paro as mansion in town.—This Modar B_{vx} is must be remembered, was a conth enhalservant of Mr Paton's for several years On the evening of the 22d September poor Capt in Rodgins died On the evening of the 23d, Modar Bur returned to town accompanied by the deceased's two Marias servants Modar Bur then stated to a Captum Robgers had expired on the evening of the 21st off Fultab, and in the act of writing a letter. The property of the deceased, he added, was onboard the boats He then delivered the keys (which he said had been entrusted to him for the purpose, to Mr. Paron. After performing the last melane taily duties to the remains of his dece ised brend, Mr Paton opened his writing desk in the presence of his two friends, Mr. J MACKENZII and Wr K. WACKINZIE, They found in the writing desk the paper, which Modar Bax had alluded to as being in the hands of Ciptain Rodgers at the moment of his death. It was a codied to his will, in which with characteristic kindness he had bequeathed to each of his servants the sum of one hundred and fifty rupees, - for their unweared attentions to him during his illness. The purport of this document was made known to the Madras men but Mr. Paron stated at the same unce, that, as the WILL was in the possession of Lieut Ro-BERTSON at Vizagapatam, he could not pay any bequests until he had the sanction of Mr Robertson's authority for so doing. He requested of them, therefore, to wait until he should receive a reply from that gentleman to his letter, containing the intelligence of his friend's death, &c. Two or three days afterwards, the Madras servants, with apparently great anxiety of manner, came to Mr. Paron, complaining that the chinate disagreed with them. They further confessed that they had a more supernatural cause for their uneasiness, as the apparation of their deceased master had appeared to them in the night. The last declaration they for several mornings repeated, stating that they were nightly haunted by the apparation of their dead master. They even said that he spoke. The apparition, they reported was wont to stand at their bed side, and in a mild voice to give orders, and make requests, such as "bring me water,"—" give me my clothes,"—rise, rise, get up " &c

About time days ago, Modai Bux presented himself before his master Mi. Paron, saying that he had been master dahout five years ago to a young girl at C iwnpore, and that she and his frieds were repeatedly writing him to pay them a visit. He accordingly begged of Mr. Paros to give him his discharge that he might return home. This the latter, making allowances for the pressing urgency of the man's domestic errounstances, readily granted, giving him at the same time a certificate of good conduct while in his service.

On the 21st instant, Mr. Paron received a reply from Lieut. Roshurson, stating that in addition to the sums and properly contained in the inventory of Capt. Ronging'effeets, there was a sum of none hundred R. in gold not accounted for, and which there was little doubt the deceased's servant I, id embezzled. This information, connected with my of the apparation, immediately Mr. Parov with the ries of toul play stine part of the Madras n II aoon th ug to cordingly sent a message, r ild b speak with them, only one of the a found at the moment T as as covered to the and suspecting nothing to the count of the By the way, onserved M P, I have discore,ed the cru-e of the indisposition you complain of, - well as the reason of your long disturb d by the apparation of your deceased ma ter. The man listened with intense intere t. Continued Mr. Paic, -I also have been similarly disturbed, for d naster's appaintion came to me last night Tue fear of the man was now apparent in his countenance. Yes, continued Mr Prion, he appaintion came to me, and said that he would haunt you and your fell my servent for e unless you restored the nine hundred runces in gold of which you robbed him! Extremely terrified with what he heard, and agitated by the conviction that he stood in the prosence of an enchanter, the poor man entreated lorgiveness, and said that he would confess all, and recover the stolen property. He accordingly made an instant and true confession to this effect. That their master had ever to himself and his follow servant been such a kind master, that they never would have dreamed of defeating him had they not been tempted by Mobak BuxAfter!

Captain Robgers's death, Mr. Modar Bux, it seems, enquired if there was any loose cash. The Madrassees replied, that there was a bag containing nine bundred Rupoes in gold. This, Moder Bux immediately took charge of bargaining that the prize should be divided between all three at the first convenient opportunity. Mr. Pa-TON acting upon the involuntary confession, so adroitly elicited from the Madias man, issued immediate orders for the apprehension of the other Madrassee, and the uxorious gentleman Mr. Modar Bux. Suffice it that all three are in fail here for the offence, and that the whole of the stolen property has been recovered, excepting about fitty Ru-pees, which Mr. Modar Bux had found means of expending before he was seized, and seized in the mck of time too, just as he was about to take a long trip, like a kind, attentive, and dutiful bushand, as he appears to be. He seems an accomplished rogue this Modar Bux; for he had designed to bilk his two more simple Madias coadjutors out of their share of the booty-nay, supposing that they ourst not complain he plumply told them they should not share with him the golden prize. They however threatened to peach, and on the very day in which the confession was made, the division bargained for, had, we believe, taken place. .

Several references naturally armse out of this case. Among the most obvious is the lamentable want of innate principle which appears too prevalent in this country After an acquaintance-hip of a few hours, a domestic of respectable character boldly proposes to men whom he had never seen till then, to rob a kind and beneficent master They with very little (if any) hesitation, and forgetting the ties of gratitude, reld to the temptation of a designing villari. This could hardly have happaned any where In other parts of the world a verson would pause, and consider and reconsider. and sound, and limt, before making a proposal se grossly dishonest to men who were perfect strangers to hin , and of whose concurrence in such a plot he could not be sure. Here, however, the man acted upon experienceupon his knowledge of human nature around him.

We have also in this case another instance among the thousands already on record of the power of conscience, and its difficults as an engine in judicial investigation, when adroitly, shirwelly and happily managed as by the worthy magistrate alluded to already. "Conscience" indeed "makes cowards of us all." To the thoughtless and the victous, can there be a more convincing argument of an hereafter, and of a state of retributive joy and sorrow? Man alone of all living creatures, appears to have a judge within himself, which, independent of his own volition, sternly calls him to account, and condemns him to the most unbearable tortures that humanity can sufferby delivering him over to the terrors and delusions of his own guilty imagination.

The dismissal of that highly respected and worthy person Mr. Easkine, from the situations he held under the authority of the Recorder's Court of Bombay, appears to have caused an extraordinary sensation there, as may be guessed from the following paragraph taken from the Bombay Gazette of the 8th instant, received yesterday—

THE RECORDER'S COURT.

We were unavoidably prevented yesterday from attending the Court the nearly the close or the proceedings, which were of a very interesting nature.

A memorial signed by all the Barristers practising in the Recorder's Court having been presented to the Hon'ble the Recorder, (which we expect to be able to lay before our readers in next week's paper) the following, as well as we could collect, was the purport of the Court's judgment:—"The Court after considering the Vemorial have determined that the Barristers who have signed it, be suspended or removed from their attaction as Borristers in this Court for the space of six months, and that me the mean while the Attornies be permitted to practice as Barristers in the Court."

Whatever is new is interesting, even if there be nothing else to recommend ir-but when a new thing possesses other claims to recommendation besides novelty, the interest is increased.

We have been very obligingly favored with an account of the discovery of a new Island in the Southern Ocean, which we trust will prove agreeable to all our readers. Subjoined are the documents which certify the event. The merit of this discovery tests with Captain HUNTER of the Donna Carmelita, which ship only arrived here a few days ago.

The discoverers went through the ceremony of taking possession in the name of H. M. George IV. of England, by turning up a clod of earth, hoisting the British flag, and naming the new land HUNTER'S ISLAND The inhabitants apparently had never before seen an European, and they could hardly be convinced but the clothes of the Donna Carmelita's people were not natural integuments of their bodies.

It appears that an interchange of garments is reckoned the highest mark of respect among the natives of Hunter's Island. We have seen and handled the cloth presented by the King to Captain HUNTIR It is about six fect long and three broad, form oblong square. It appears to be made of hemp, or some vegetable fibre resembling it. It is not dyed It is closely woven and ends in a fringe all round. The labour of weaving such a garment merely with the hand and without the aid of a loom thread over thread, must have been extremely great, particularly considering the patience necessary fo such a task. It is remarkable that on comparing this cloth with a bit of the manufactured stuff which enveloped an Egyptian mummy, they appeared to be exactly the same. Without further prelade we now present our readers with the documents referred to, being an extract from the Log book of the Donna Carmelita, and the statement of the Chief Offioci of the same vessel

About this time a Chief came on board, and on my making signs that we wanted refreshments, he sent all the canoes on shore, and staid on board himself with a few others.

To mother world alone did he look, to realise the heatitude of unscorned homage to this star of destiny, whose light in this sphere might shine no more for him; and, theo' the term of his insulated oilermage here, he tashly resolved unscrupulously to call the sweets that bloom to intoxicate the senses. Guileless himself, he for , we the fascination that led thro' evanescent transport to prolonged bitterness. Generous and beneficent, obeying every virtuous impulse, he connected no idea of crime with a course of life, culpable as an example, the it involved no motive that seemed not unocent on his part and compromised only his own health and talents, for which a perverse judgment persuaded lam he was not accountable to society.

His health lately had become greatly impaned; and in company, where he used to be buovant and energetic, he was languid and abstracted, weary, silent and joyless. His tace had become the type of settled dejection. And yet all betokened the re-hes of a lofty spirit, and a splendid imagination. The high smooth brow, the pale check, and the dark full eye, fixed attention, and proclaimed the presence of no ordinary mind. - When he rose in company, challenged by some cordial tribute of regard, you will recollect the silence that prevailed, and the looks of expectation directed to his melancholy aspect: his utterance was slow and hollow, soursely audible at any distance, and broken at times by some inacticulate sounds, as if he had not? language to compass his laboring emotions, or in diffidence shrunkerom then expression. Gradually he raised his downcast look. gathering confidence from the kind regards, of the friends he surveyed and his voice, swelling from its murmuring tone, opened into distinct and sonorous hamony. Then the teclings sprung fresh and perfect from the heart, came almost visible and embodied from his tongue, and hig dened from his ere, thilling the bosoms fall, and in every ima; in itron kindling associations of overwhelming delight Emotion that had been dorm int for years, awaken d as it by magic from their trance, and responded to his impressive cloquence, as it it had been their own express and apprepriate ere, tion. At lest the halo that has plummed his aspect Gided away, the corruse in is that gleamed from his dilated dark dr appeared, the ashes of the grave point his hip and the perturb tions of is empassioned eloquence subsided into what was like a low and moving echo, as he tesumed his seat and cold exterior, when the pathetic imagery that had charmed us melted away as a vision

In the retrospect of his life, there are some episodes, unknown I believe to you, Intimate with him from intancy, his confidanté throughout every vicissitude, would I could say never his abettor in abetration,it you acknowledge aught of the sympathy Lentertain, I may send you some sketches of the friend whom we both deplore.

To the Editor of the India Gazliele. MA EDITOR.

Observing with much satisfaction the interest you take in the well doing of our Chouringhee Drury, I as a humble wall-wisher of the same, beg you to call the attention of the Managers of the Theatre, to the wish which very generally prevails, for the public being again gratified with the representation of Monsieur Tonson.

- The accomplished Amateur, who persopated Mensieur Morbleu with so much success, may no doubt, be persuaded to gratify his admirer: once more in that character and to give assurance, notwith tanding we may hear to the contrary, that Monvieur Tonson 18 not dea-a-a-d.

, Calentta ; Oct. 25, 1823.

To THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE. DEAR Editor,

The following is an Epigram I have some There met with, grounded probably on our Bayrour's answer to the Sadducees: that, in heaven there is neither marrying nor giving in marijage.

Plarmus in Collis amor est, consubia nulla, Conjugia in terris plintina, nullas amor

Of this the following is arrhyming, but ry humble attempt at a translation:

In heaven all love is, But of marriage none is ; On eathall nornigers, But of love there none is

Contrast, Mr. Editor this anti-matrimonial Epigram with the following beautiful simile or rather sentiment of the noble, the allaccomplished Sir Philip Sidney, he who was styled in his day "the secret wish of many a female heart"—

Have you ever seen pure rose-water kept in a crystal glass? How fine it looks, how sweet it smells, while the beautiful urn imprisons it! Break the glass, and let the water take its own course doth it not embrace dust, and lose all its former sweethave not the stay rather than the restraint of marriage."

From London; -Mis. Everena Hovenden; Miss Sophie Hovenden, Miss F. Dana; Miss Catharine Macan, Rev. Walter Hovenden, Captain E. B. Pivec, Bengal Infantry; Mr. George Rt. Paul, Writer Mr. Randall Blood, Free Merchant, Mr. Dana.

The Kingston, (Bowen) was to sail from Madias for Calcutta on the 15th October.

No one who was present at it can forget the mainfold charms that made an evening's party at Chowringhee so delightful on Mond'sy last. Happiness appeared to have waved her golden wand over the gay assemblage of beauty, fashion, and worth; and the votaries of innocent festivity too intent on the present, thought little of the morrow, and counted not the flight of rosy hours that glided into the past amidst ravishing sounds of music.

The feelings associated with the occasion were of no ordinary kind, for the claims to the most gratifying remembrance were of no ordinary character. There are but few who with an amiable disinterestedness study to bring society together under the most agreeable auspices. When we beliefd a few of the fair name are of the community occasionally making their mansions the temples of general bilarity and social picasure, who is there that does not yield the figure of his grateful acknowledgement where it is due? In the list need of deal to, there was blended with the enjoyment of the secret a sculment of regret, since it was understood to be last that we have a chance of beholding for an indefinitely forg pen under the same root and the same amtable influence.

About 9 o'clock the company began to assemble at the elegant rendezvous, and the apartments were soon crowded. The number present could not amount to less than three hundred. There were three quadrille sets regularly kept up during the evening, and there was some waltzing also. For those who chose to promende, the great and little terrace were laid out a la parillon, and many groups might be seen wandering through these secluded haunts invited by their apparent cochiess and quietness. All seemed pleased, no less with the chaims of the entertainment itself, than with the unremitting and fascinating attentions of the Hostess. About half past their consideration, they cannot but have room below stairs, though many of the votames of Terpsichore chose rather to delay that reflection than to stop in the midst of then graceful pastine. In a word, on Monday night the 27th instant, Mrs. Trowin was at Homi.

Surely no science has such high claims to general encouragement, support and respect, as that which has for its of ject the cute of dangerous maladies, the soothing of human schering, and the prolongation of the man schering will be indolently granted by all, and yet how few deem matters connected with that noble science, worth, of study? "The proper study of mank . I is man," but though this sentiment flows cippingly from the tough at a rely ha Inv very deep impression in the mind Accondingly there is no seconce, the principles of which mankind in general he so ignorant of as the medical. The healing air boasts less amateurs than my other. Perhaps this is rather a consummation devoutly to be wished for than otherwise, but it shews that the art itself has less attractions to the generality of people than most others. We cannot comprehend the cause of this, unless it be grounded in some vague horror connected with a hypothetical centenulation of the most repulsive by each of the tree. of knowledge -- Indiana Even Anatomy, however, has or late years attained a most extensive degree of popularity, and it is worthy of remark, that this department of physical science has gone hand in hand with the time acts of drawing, painting, and sculpture, and that to truly apprecrate the excellencies and beauties of the latter, some knowledge of the former is absolutely necessary

It there be among our a adera some Medical and Surgiet Inthuis, who in nigent cases and in the absence - other aid prescribe for themselve d others, we would impress upon tem the necessity of acquiring some instanto the structure of the human body even from ho ks. This will at least inspire blindly bol! Empiricista with some degree of whole some timidity. at the same time that it will enable the amiteur to anticipate and to account for the effects which the causes he happens to administer may and do produce.

These desultory remarks are not particularly relevant to the object we had in view when we took up the pen to make our observations, but if they serve to attract the attention of lay as well as of protessional readers to the subject, which it is our wish to press particularly upon twelve o'clock the majority of the company served an useful purpose. That subject satisfies to an elegant support in the dining 18, Mudical Topography. There can be no doubt but many of the most formidable diseases which gradually sap or instantaneously destroy life, are induced by certain local causes, of a very obvious or of a very subtile nature. He who can throw any light upon these, or satisfactorily explain their principles of action, and the sphere of their power, will be conferring a gieat blessing upon his fellow creatures. In jutroducing the subject to our readers, we are impelled by the hope that many of them may be enabled to answer several of the queries relative to it, which are subjoined. To write an easay, or compose a trexise, to most people appears a laborious tisk, but to answer simple questions regarding matters of fact, is in the power of every person who has ears to hear, or eyes to see. Willout more comment we subnest the paper continuing the queries under reference to our reasers. It may be proper to state, that it reserved us through a gentleman in town, who had it from a person conected with the India House, and who appr to take great interest in Dr. L: MPRILE undertaking, as who will not that duly appreciates the importance of the subject?

14 The most favorable scason for the armival of Europeans?

So far as the circulation of this paper extends, Dr. Lamputers's questions have a chance of receiving answers. We would fam hope, that were the Medical Board to transmit circulars to the Medical Officers of this establishment, soliciting replies to Dr. LIMPRIEGE'S queries, that much valuable matter might be chested. The enquiry, however, should not be confined to medical men. Every man of sense and observant habits has it in his power to give replies to many or all of them, and perhaps were

Government to call the attention of some of their Civil Servants at Motussil stations to Dr Lemprilai's paper, the result would amply reward the trouble.

Auguring from the builliant manner in which the first Carcutta Assembly of the se ison passed off at night at the Town Hall, we articipate by those that are yet to come the most electing encouragement and patronage. The it should bles were won desirally punctual. Many a rived at nine or ick, and by half pass is the rooms wer much crouded. At the ⊸rie the Right Hon'ble the Governor Give t, the Lady AMHERST, and the Hon'ble MI - AMHERST. arrived at the portal. They were received by the Stewards, who, assisted by lis Lordship's Staff, ushered the noble party into the Ball-room, while the Band of H. M 13th Light Intantry played "Gon SAVE THE KING." The Stewards led the noble party to the seats prepared for them in a splendid state pavillion at the Orchestra end of the room. His Lordship, the Lady AMBERST and Miss Amberst then sat down beneath the canopy, as did Mrs. Hebia by her Ladyship's side. We also observed Lady Macnaghern present.

The ball was then opened with a Country Dance by the Hon'ble Miss Amhirst, who was led off by Mr. Birrier Quadrille dancing was opened by Mis Trowir. The attendance was numerous to a degree beyoud our most sanguine expectations. Between the dances his Lordship walked about, conversing very affaldy with several natividuals Among his Lordship's party we observed Commodore Grant of H. M. Ship Liftey Although the heat of the rooms became soon very oppressive, dancing was kept up with undiminished spirit until the hour of supper, which was twelve o'clock. His Lordship and timily left the rooms a little before the announcement of supper. The supper and wines appeared to give general satisfaction, and dancing was afterwards resumed, and kept up to a period for which we cannot youch, not having been present so long

It was a great relief to the company, that the rooms were not chalked. Punkahs were much missed in the supper toom. Serving up shell fish to a large supper, we think a custom more honored in the treach than the observance We are among those who wish that a standing supper could be provided in the side rooms, or one of the corridors above. Going down stairs to a formal supper in a marble hall, is attended with a certain going down of the animal spirits, highly minimal to the excitement of dancing; besides which many go away. Might

These tender victims, of that terrible scourge of the human race, were attended by the late Doctor Gibson, who, as he lived beloved, died deeply famented, by all who knew him, either in the walk of his profession, or in the intercourse of private society. In him the poor and needy ever found a ready, a skilful, and a humane attendant—and great is the loss therefore they have sustained in the death of this truly good man. stitu ion.

Thus breathed his last this most deserving character; a testimony of whose goodness, led to the expectation of all that constitutes a respected member of Society, had it pleased God to spare him! A distant land oncloses his remains, but his virtues were many, and they will live long in the remembrance of those who knew him, and who now confide on the merits of a blessed Redeemer for his efernal bliss. This alone may console his afflicted father, family and friends for their loss-and the writer of these lines, who had the best apportunities of enjoying his familiarity and appreciating his worth, in the fullness of his techings, offers this sincere tribute to a highly valued friend, whose memory Time can never cifaco from his heart.

We are glad to see that a Requisition, not respectably signed, has been made to Shoul of Calcutta, requesting that a neting of the public stroug be convened by him at the Town Hall de Wednesday oth estant, at 10 o'clock in the forenoun, for the purpose of "prometing the general hischiston of the feasiblity of establishing communication with Great Britain by neans of Steam Navigations

We trust that the meeting will be fully stiended, and that the object the gentleman who has undergone so much trouble to stove he tousibility of establishing a steam naviga. tombe tween India and England may, through he aid of the meeting in question, he to vice with the surcess it appears to iccoive. To make an ettempt tho an unsuccessful one in such a dauge is noble. What must it be then to succeed!

For ourselves, be we right or be we wrong, we have no doubt at all of the pracheability of the thing. As we said before, il c great stumbling block in the Quarantine Code: let that be modified, and the read

Editorial criticism on Theatricals, in our present number is annecessary, fince a Correspondent has kindly relieved the from that task. All we need observe, therefore, is, that the Tragedy of Vigennius formed the bill of fare on Friday last, at the Chox-ringhee Theatre, and that it passed off with splendid success.

The Ameteur who had the part of sine, mustained that highly arrivers field character with great talent and punished reputation. He was year minished reputation. He was very in the latter andres, particularly a territe pre, where in a state of mental is rangement he confronts and finally described. the tyrant Appring His attitude when covered glaring in a state of insane about tion over the lifeless victim of his junction geance, was remarkably grand. Ind his action is all he judertakes is a graceful and striking. We entirely as with our Correspondent in his remarks and Dentature. It was indeed as classical and sterling a representation of the old Res. men as the fancy can embody.

Our Correspondent has left us nothing? say respecting Appius and the other the racters. We cannot however pass over the admirable performance of the representant tive of Virginia in silence. She never look, ed more interesting, and never acted base ter. We rejoice in having an opportunity for saying so, since of late our praise of here had become somewhat "faint." We must also add, that the Amateur who represented lething was much more successful in that character than in the contic one he had lately. In the scene where he elaimed Virginia in the forum us his wife, he sees cerved warm and well merited applause, as he did in that scene where he rescued Dexrates from the fury of the mob.

The Prompter unhappily was much required. Indeed, as we were close to the stage, we could observe that the Amateur who acted Virginius had repeated cause to be provoked at the lapses of others, and that he even prompted them. One who is It appears, we are led to understand, into the characteristic of the first their has been some difference again that their has been some difference again that the Chinese Covernment, attended with an iterruption to trails and a demand of the first of two final times again their part of two final times, and and the court of two final times, and that our Protous will take large to the manes of the man times again time ago in the stars with the Topasis's paople.

From the second number of an unpretendng little Periodical, published here month-y, and entitled "The Unitarian Reposito-y and Christian Miscellany," we select the ollowing romarks upon the Doorgan Poolan estival, as well worthy the consideration of our readers, in whom they can hardly fail o excite serrous reflexions.

Doorga Poolan.—The past month has sitnessed the Anniversary of the Festival a honour of the Hindu goddess Doorga which, we learn, has been numerously at-coulod, as on former occasions, by Christians of various ranks, of both sexes, and of every age. We advert to this subject, which y noticed, with the most painful feelings, . and with an earnest desire not to be misun-terstood. Notwithstanding the provility retaioes. Notwinstanding the property and absurdity of idolatry, and the gross immogalities almost invariably connected with the performance of its rivers, we fully admit that its vet-rier; have just as good a right; I relabrate the hongurs of Doorga as Christians have to engage in the public worship of the on a living and True God. But sure, it the next the worship of the on a living and True God. We state the plain unvariable patitate it. ed fact that it operates to the encouragement of idolatry and vice, and that it is con-sidered by the natives themselves as a vir-tual approval of their worship; and we think that this alone should induce every singere Christian and every lover of his specica henceforth to withdraw his presence from these midnight orgies. It is true that even if this were done the idolatrous wors dp would still be continued probably for a considerable time; but there would no longor be thrown around it that balo of splendour which daszles the eves of the vulgar, and by which even the more enlightened shelter themselves from their own contempt. The growing knowledge of this age and people is already making the fabric of superstition totter to its base. Leave it therefore to the eperation of this cause and it will soon crumble to preces; but the operation of this cause cannot fail to be materialy impeded by the continuod countenance of Circums to a system of religion and a mode of worship which they profess to consider hurtful as well as erroneous, not only as giving to dumb idols that worship which is due to the Divine Being alone, but injurious also to the best interests of haman society.

To corrobotate the views given above we add that the members of a wealthy and respectable Hindoo family known to us, who, however urged by the convictions of their minds, are at present prevented by circumstances from discentioning the usual routine of idolatrous worship, would long be-fore now have entire; given up the Door-ga Festival but for the hints and solioitawe are not aware has bitherto been publicat tions of their European friends who thus. unwitungly we doubt not, countriacted their landable endeavours gradually to free themselves from the trammels of a debasing superstition, We have also been normed on good authority that a distinguished and on good authors; the a distinguished at a intelligent mative, our she operation of the Bestival of the present year, declared that as he is in the matic at yexpressing his contained to the Bishop of the Bishop of the present of the property of the proper the year, he would not he so inconsistent as to havite them to a feetival in honour of one of them, on the three fluided and sixty-fifth day. THE THEATRE.

TRACEDY OF VIRGINIUS.

To THE BOITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

Six -The Oases in the dreamy desert of an Indian life are so thinly scattered, and are separated from each other by tracts of herbless desolation so wide and gloomy, that the eye, unaccustomed to such scenes of splendour, is dazzled and bewildered, when, after a long pilgrimage thro, the region of trackless sands, groves and applies, such as the poetical fandy of the audients pictured around the fabrilous temple of Ammon, are presented to its view. I am a wild Mofussilite, and months and years have rolled by since in the heyday of youthful blood and spirits, with all my English feelings fresh and unadulterated. I was accustomed to look forward to a representation upon the hourds of Chowringhee with a degree of delightful anticipation but little removed from enthusiasm. I entered the Theatre last night, with feelings more subdued, and impatience less uncontrolled, but with none of that morose spirit which is too often supposed to animate the followers of what Mr Southev calls "the ungentle craft" of criticism. When I left Calcutta the star of the youthful Amateur, whose talents are now so unhesitatingly acknowledged, and so fully appreciated, had not yet risen above the Dramatic horizon. He was then either unconscious of his own powers, or that timidity, which is so frequently a characteristic of real genius, restrained him from undergoing the flery ordeal, which is to be sustained by all, whose claims to ablity are to be tried and adjudged by the "fickle reck of popular breath." He has, at length, nobly dared; he has girded himsell for the race, and his success has been splendid and undisputed. He treads the stage with the step of a voterant: his voice, which I know of yore to be "musical and sadly sweet," has not lost any of its flexible powers of intonation, and possesses all that decuness and fulness which could to distinguish a member of - "The commonwealth of Kings, the men of Rome ""

The character of Virginias is a difficult one—it is no easy task for the actor to unite, without mingling, the affection of the fond and desting father, with the stern spirit of the Roman soldier; who considers the Republic as his parent, in whose eyes slavery is worse than death, and slavery under a domestic tyrant, the mest intolerables all. Our Containes of Justerday never forgot the necessary distincting. He mourned over the vorpee of the murdered Dentatus as a Roman; he embraced his only daughter with the affection "too big for words," of a broken-hearted parent, "Is is often an invidious task to point out parties cular exactioncies, since it may appear to infer inequality or defects in scenes less Hand flood—but every thing cannot be the heat. The eagle whose flight is the most exalted? whose home is above the clouds, must some more nearly to the sun at one time than a another, and what actor can be so great, saelevated by the scene in which he moves above the petty world around him in the caim elequence of Patriotism, as in the bursts of uncontrolled and impassioned feelings? The seens in the forum, when the Roman parent preferred the death of his child to her dishonour, the prison-meeting with the fallen and conscience-stricken Applus, and the noble close of the gallant Soldier's agony when with his daughter's ura in his arms he falls prostrate under a lead of sorrew, towered gloriously above 1838 distinguished passages.

" Velut inter ignits Luna Minores."

I do not, however, intend to detract from the merit of Virginius, in the scene where he parts with his daughter to bestow her upon Icilius.

"A woman's tear-drop melts, a man's balf sears, Like molten lead "

But if the tears of the young and the enthusiastic—if that mark of sorrow, the truest and the heliest, with which Homer, the Poet of human nature, has not feared to blank the hold countenance of the undausted Achilles, grates upon our feelings even when it flows down the beardless cheek, "On what omen dark and high" affects us, when it is wrung by the extremity of paterna agony from the eye of the stern and high minded son of Rome.

My subject has not faited me; but I am fearful of intruding upon your columns attor great a length, and the exertions of others in the Play' of last night were too successful to be passed over in silenge. Dantatus, the veteran of our stage as well as of Rome, was a splendid representative of the "men of iron." who "shook the world," and carried their name and their victories, from the shores of our name country, to the banks of the Trgris. His bold, blunt speech, his gallant hearing in the presence of the usurping Decemvir, and the evident inspatience with which he submitted to his tyrannical sway, marked his just perception of the character, which he had undertaken. This is feeble praise: but the powers of language are limited, and the flow of words will not come when your correspondent "does coal for but if such in the size of the second of the se ones as a man capable of appreciating the missies of individual character. The leillis of ight withf is an actor of promise, and we doubt my but that he will as the Americans easy." Progress rapidly." The return of the young Sudder from the Camp, and his rapid entite into the forum, was energetic and spirited. To the Editor of the India Cazette. My DEAR EDITOR,

Will you, who have such frequent commumeation with the public, endeavour to as-certain why the small coin of the Empire is so little in vogue.-It would sort well with the convenience of men of sleuder incomes to see the fractional parts of a Rapee in some other form than shells or copper, which his tingers cannot itch to touch the they may be touching.—Every trifle is in price a Rupee—in short a Rupee is the smallest sum proposed for a Gentleman to "shell out." If however it should so happen that less than a Rupee is required, the remaining part is brought to him in such a conspicuous way, and dirty suspicious ap-regiance—that he cannot possibly condes-. - nd to receive, but with a theatrical doubt-; il wave of the hand, and half uttered somenng, it is ordered out of his presence or t all events his servant makes the hint good. Can you ascertain why half and quarter Rupees are allowed to retain the virgin appearance of being fresh from the Mint-why so few of these very useful pieces are to be met with in the bazar-and why something extra is generally demanded for them, when given in exchange for Rupees. I am about to undertake a long journey as you know, and I cannot afford to scatter good heavy rupees upon the road, amongst dawk bearers, ferry-men and other numerous claimants.

At this moment there lies on my table, With one of your old Gazettes thrown over it, a mass of copper coin-it lies there a dirty tempation to my acreants to practice dishonesty. It is the accumulation of returns of change from the Post Office, which my Hurkaru has orders to deposit, as I have told you under the old Gazette, which is so far useful.-Were, small silver coin, in general use, this temptation would not lie in the way of housely—sad many would find their purses heavier at the end of the year, than they do now.—I do not at all allude to

À SUTTEE.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette.

Sid,-Should you deem the following account of a Suttee, that took place here the other day, worthy of a place in your Paper, you will oblige a Subscriber and perhaps benelit the cause of humanity by so doing.

The victim chosen for this civel and ungodły szhibition was the widow of a Bramin who died in the South Concan some days prior to this ceremony. On approaching the fatal spot she was was preceded by two led horses handsomely capavisoned, and attended by ten or twelve Bramins and about the same number of women, with music. drums, &c.

Few spectators accompanied the procession, considering the scene of action was on the immediate neighbourhood of the city-near to the old Palace.

At first eight of the woman I was surprised with the idea, in common with others. that she was more or less intoxicated; but before the various ceremonies were gone through, which on such occasions precede the act of burning, those doubts had given place to a perfect conviction that she was m her soher senses and fully aware of the dreadful act she was about to perform. Of this I am the more setisfied from the question having been frequently put to her by the European Gentlemen present, " whe ther it was her wish to be burnt," to which she always returned the same answer "that the knew what she was doing, and that it was her own pleasure to burn." Having offered the more harmless sacrifice of incense on a small fire from which the pile that was to consume her body was afterwaids to be lighted, and having parted with all her golden ornaments to those in attendance, she deliberately and without shodding a single tear, took a last leave of all she hold dear on earth, ascended the pile and there laid herself down with the ashes of her deceased hashand tied round her neck. The entrance was then closed with dry straw and the whole pile surrounded with the same light material, and immediately set fire to by the officiating Pricats.

I had placed myself directly opposite the entrance to the pile and could distinctly see the unfortunate victim struggling to escape. This did not pass unobserved by the attending Bramins, who instantly began to knock down the canopy, which, containing pearly as much wood as the pile itself, could have effectually secured their victim in the fire had it fallon on her, wil this wiffenoone Remains - Anna Robertson, outward bound excepting the officiating Bramine interfered but when the sufferer did make her escape from the flames and on rounding towards the river either fell or threw herself at the feet of Mr. T. that Gentleman assisted by Mr. S. immediately carried or rather dragged her into the water, in which the latter Gentleman suffered by incantionally laying hold of her barning garments.

An attempt was now made by the officiating Priests to carry back their victim to the blazing pile, which was resisted by the Gentlemen present and one of their number was dispatched to acquaint the Magistrate of her escape and learn his pleasure regarding her. But before the messengers could return with an answer from the Civil Authority, the Bramins had persuaded the unfortunate woman once more to approach the pile. And as she declared, on being questioned by those present, that it was her own wish to re-ascend the pile, they stood aloof, fearful of giving offence to the prejudices of the Native population on the one hand, or to the Civil Authorities on the other. She declined however for some time to ascend the Pile, when three of the attending Priests lifted her up on their arms and threw her on the fire, which at this time was burning with great fury.

From this dreadful situation the miserable wretch instantly attempted for the second time to make her escape, but the mer-ciless Priests were at hand to prevent this if possible, by throwing large pieces of wood at their victim of putting a speedy termination to her sufferings. But it was impossible for any man of the smallest pretention to feeling to stand by and witness such cruelty, and therefore the Gentlemen present again interfered, when the victim speedily made her escape a second time from the fire and ran directly into the river without any assistance whatever.

The unfortunate woman had no sooner entered the river than she was followed by three of the officiating Bramins, who were told to desixt from all further persuasion, as nothing fartherwould be permitted until the arrival of the Magistrate

Not doubting their compliance with this so very reasonable request, they were allowed to remain with the woman in the water; but no scooler had the Europeans turned their backs, anxiously looking out for the arrival of authority to put a stop to such cruel and diabolical proceedings, than the same three men, who had thrown her on the pile, attempted to drown the suffering wretch by forably throwing her down and holding her under water. From this attempt she was speedly rescued by Mr. A. and Mr. M. who supported her in the water till the arrival of the long looked for deliverance.

The Collector himself soon followed, and to the great joy of a few of the hy-standers he immediately ordered the principal performers in this tragical scene into confinement, and the chief actor or rather sufferer to be carried to the hospital.

I regret to add the woman died as int noon the following day, forsaken by all her own relations as an outcast, unworthy creature. The full of the other performers I will not anticipate.

JAS. NICOL. Adjt: Genl. of the Army

Head-Quarters, Campore, 18th Oct. 1823.

Whenever the Finding and Sentence of a Native General Court Martial is published to the Army, the Commander in Chief expects that Commanding Officers of Native Regiments and Battalions will not content themselves with barely having the same read at the head of then respective Corps. They must use their best endeavours, thro' the medium of their Interpre-ters, to cause the whole subject, including the Commander in Chief's decision and remarks, to be fully understood at least by the Native Officers. This is to be considered as a Standing Order of the Service, and to be entered in the Book of General Regu lations with each Corps. JAS. NICOL.

Adjt. Genl. of the Army,

At a Native General Court Martikhatethe bled at Benares on Friday the 27th June, 1823. Subadar Major Shaick Sancoliah of the 2d Battalion 23d Regiment Native Infantry, was arraigned upon the undermen-tioned Charge; viz.

"For having at Dinapore on or about the 6th May, 1823, a few days previous to the assembling of a Native General Court Martial of which le was appointed President, tampered with, and endeavoured to influence the Evidence of Subadars Hurry Dun-by and Needah Sing, two of the witnesses cited to appear before the said Court, by representing to them that 'it was not proper for one Sirdar to give testimony againt another,' or words to that effect."

"Such conduct heing disgraceful to the Character of a Native Commissioued Offi-cer, tending to defeat the ends of Justice, and in breach of the Articles of War."

> Approved and Confirmed, (Signed) EDWD. PAGET. Genl. Commander in Chief in India.

This sentence is accompanied by an earnest solicitation on the part of the Court that in consideration of the long and faithful Services of the Prisoner, and of the unsullied Character which he had hitherto borne, mercy might be extended to him. It would have been a subject of the most sincere gratification to the Commander in Chief to have conscientiously felt that it was consistent with his Duty to yield to these strong and powerful claims upon his commisseration and forgiveness. But when he considered the awful responsibility which would rest upon him who ventured to mitigate the punishment awarded to one who had attempted to influence the Evidence of Witnesses symmoned to appear before a General Court Martial, and thus to poison a d corrupt the pure and sacred stream of justice, when he recollected that the life, the honor, the property of every Soldier in this Army was implicated in the decision which he might pronounce on this case, accould not seller himself to shrink from the painful task of giving full effect to the verdict of the Court Martisi.

The very dangerous tendency of a crime of this complexion is too obvious to require further observation, and the Commander in Chief trusts that this example of the cortain consequences which must follow (when brought to his notice, any attempt to pervert the due dom se of justice, will operate as a solemn warning to prevent the recurrence of a crime so futally injurious to the best interests of society.

Before the same Court Martial re-assembled at Benaves on Saturday the 28th June, 1823, Mohan Sing, Trooper, 7th Troop 1st Light Cavalry, was arraigned upon the un-

Accounts dated Manitla, the 29th June. have been seceived from the mixan: S' in Nearchus, Capte Thomas Baker, of this port, stating that she sailed from South Americam Jimuary Jast for Chicu'st, and put into Manilla for supplies. A tew days after stilling from thence her masts were Nish, shivered by Lightning, which obliged her to from 5th October, to 15th April, 1824, on return to Manilla, where the remained refit ing on the 29th June, and expected to sal about the 8th July for Calcutta, taking the route of Dampur's Straits.

Of all the Concerts we have witnessed for a long time back, Mr. Schildingeries on Tuesday evening last, the 4th inst. appeared to give the most lively and general satisfaction. Whether we consider the sinient Native Infantry, is appointed to act ral satisfaction. Whether we consider the attended, the pieces performed, the orchestra, and the temper of the audience,-the entertainment altogether was a most ple ising one. Mrs Commodore Havis very kindly threw open ber elegant and extremely commodious mansion for the occasion,thus exhibiting another instance of that benignant spirit for the encouragement of modest ment and the promotion of social amusement, for which the Lidies of this city are, we are proud to say, so distinguished. The following was the musical bill of tare .-

The grand Symphony with which the performances of the evening commenced, was got through, in the most matchiess style. In time, execution, and harmony, it was abso-lutely without fault. We feel no hestation tunc, execution, and harmony, it was absoluted the Stip Line of Longer 18 44 E. Tooke the Ampherite of Longer 18 44 E. Tooke the Ampherite of Longer 18 45 E. Tooke the Morley, from Calcutta admirable specimens of full orchestra power ever heard in India.

Where all supported their parts so well, we really experience considerable difficulty in making particular references—since do what we may; we are convinced we cannot do justice to our subject, and dread that in all uding to individuals our expression of cordial satisfaction must fall far short of their merits.

The Glee of Non tapde il miq contento, was sung in a most pleasing manner, and the three voices chimed charmingly together.

The Rondo on the Piano Forte was happily chosen, and most brilliantly executed by a young lady whose performance stamped her attainments in musical science to be of every high order indeed.

The Duetto Crudel perche brought into the Orchestra the Lady whose voice sounded so sweetly in Pasiello's Glee already alluded to, and a fair debutante, whose voice notwiths inding the timidity inseperable from a first performance, surprised by its themess, mellowness, and power. The tair own is of such an admirable and capable voice ought to neglect no opportunity of improving it by practice.

The Claimet variations appeared to please, and called forth applause.

The vocal powers of the Lady who sang una roce polo fa, are so generally well known, and appreciated, that we shall not be accused of meaning a mere compliment it we apply to them the warmest terms of eu-There is about her singing a spirit of expression and fascination which no one who has not beard her can imagine. Whatever she undertakes she is sure to perform in the most admirable manuer, and perhaps one great cause of this bulliant success, is her never attempting too much. She quite ordains all meretricions ornaments, and has tormed for herself a beautifully severe style full of classic feeling, and guided by the purest taste, with a dash of poetical pathos, and a mellowing chaim of melodious simplicity throughout. Pethaps what we have written may appear obscure. We cannot help it. He who would trace the effects of musical sounds upon the imagrantion and fancy of those in whose souls music stirs its mysterious sympathies and associations of ideas, ought in the words of Millon (we believe) to have his pencils dipped in heaven. In a word, this beautiful Italian song was most leautifully sung; and when it orased, the lingering car ic cognised a discord in the applauses that followed-since they told that what was sung had been sung that it had become a puruon of the past, but not of oblivion.

nishing specimens of execution and effect. What is surprising is, that in the midst of the most inpid and complex fingering, shifting, chording and bowing, he never produces a discord. Be the note to be produced, marked by the composeto flat, sharp or natural, it is sure to be executed as such in the strictest possible degree and time. This composition of Vaccari is itself an extremely fine one, but the performance of the Orchestra in general was not so good as in the opening symphony. There was some harshness in the wind accompaniements. Such a blemish however could detract very little from the very great ment which marked the performance as as whole.

The Second Act opened with Rossini's Overture l'Itahana in Algieri. It was a very spirited and splendid performance. Lanzi's Duetto "Spirits of Dew" was quite new to us. It was sang in a delightful manner by the Lady who sang in the Glee mentioned in the first aqt,—and here we cannot but semark the kind interest sue took in the Concert, which is quite apparent from her having sing, we believe, no less than four types. The air of Blangini, Perche se ma, was not sung, as the Lady who was expected to have sang it, was unfortunately absent.

The Fluie Solo (Fantasia) was the most exquisite thing of that kind that can be conceived. It was perfection. We never heard an Amateur perform in such a masterly manner-and we question if there be many professors who can more than equal it. It is in vain to attempt giving an idea of this gentleman's supreme power over the flute, to those who have not witnessed and heard it. Formerly we never heard a flute, but we remembered that it was a wooden tube with stops, which when ably handled "discoursed most excellent music." On the occasion in question how-. ever, we torgot all these humiliating circumstances of wood and tubes, and stops and fingers, and thumbs and wind, and listened in a manuer cutranced to a flood of wood wild melody, pouring on the en-raptured car and fancy, and seeming rather to be warbled by the voices of serial beings floating on the moon-light ether, than coming from that well known instrument, a flute. Many will smale at this description, but those who heard the pertornance of the amateur in question, will be apt to say that our language, however enthusiastic it may appear, has not overstepped the modesty of enlogy where its subject is perfection itself. The flute in the hands of this gentleman almost speaks, It sends not forth mere sounds, but a voi as it were, that mellificously and mellowly thrills on the ear, or breaks torth into bul-

The Duetto Ed via Buffone, from Doy Giovanni, was worthy of the Opera House, of which indeed it strongly reminded us. It was saug in the very spirit that ought to theracterise it, and was to the ear what an Aurora Borealis is to the eye, something dancing, and flashing, and spang-ging, with various and beautifully rei-terated splendor, but all exquisite. We shall say nothing of the Mocking Bud, because it was sung by the Lady who sang Una roce poeo fa, and who had the Buffa part just mentioned, which is as much as saying, that it could not be better sung-at least in ear estimation.

For science, br'lliancy of execution, time and expression, the Piano-forte Concerto in the second act was inimitable. deed we look upon the lady who distinguished herself so much by that specimen alle gave of her musical acquirements on Tuesday as our very first piano-forte player here. The distinctness, clearness, richness and power with which she elicits the notes, cannot be witnessed but with hearty admiration.

We shall now conclude with the Finale. (Jean de Paris), which happily and spiritedly closed a most capital Concert, that we trust has proved no less pleasing to Mr. Schridtenbragerhimself than to his friends at the Presidency, whom we were glad to see mustered in such strong numbers. Mr. Schridgenbergen himself led the Orchestra the whole evening, and had no sincenre of it for his own part, as respected the labour of performance.

We could wish that we oftener had such Concerts as the one which we have noticed at such desultory length.

CALCUTTA ASSEMBLIES.

At a meeting of the Stewards for the Calcutta Assemblies held at the Town Hall on Thursday, the 6th November, (this day,) 1823-it was unanimously resolved on consideration of reasons then stated, that refreshments in the form of a stauding supper, shall henceforth be laid out in the side rooms above stairs, and that a regular supper of one table be provided in the marble hall below stairs at on o'clock, for those who may choose to partake of it.

21. Resolved, that in future the Stewand shall attend on the ball nights by rotation in Committees of three as they stand on the list, for the purpose of superintuiding the supper, details, &c. Messrs. Gunren and Honre accordingly are desired to write to the Stewards whose turn of duty

We rejoice to observe, that the wish so generally expressed of having a standing supper has at length been fulfilled. It would be extremely desirable, we are inclined to think, that the Town Hall on Assembly nights should close at a certain hour-Conviviality that is protracted beyond all reasonable bounds ought to be avoided, inasmuch agait trenches upon the comforts of those who may be in the neighbourhood of the Town Hall, no less than on that of the inmates. After two o'clock, we should imagine that people who have a proper regard for their own constitutions ought to retire. However, that entirely depends on their own so-vereign will and pleasure. The Stewards, it would appear, are determined not to be responsible for any thing that may happen after two o'clock in the morning, since they may at that hour.

We are happy to observe by the latest accounts in our possession, which we also owe to the Calcutta Journal, that the Spanish cause has a more chaering aspect than was expected; and that the report of a Revolution in Portugal, fatal to the Con-saved himself on the top of the house. stitution and liberties of that country, was further murders were committed, but all erroncous.

We refer our readers to an account of an atrocious conspiracy and revolutionary movement in Manilla, which, however, proved fatal to the agitators.

Macho, by the arrival there, of a Frigate from Goa, having on board a person deputed by the local authorities of Goa to as ume the duties of Governor of Mucao. The Government of Macao refused to acknowledge this pretender, as he was not deputed by the Kinz and Cortes of of Portugal. The Goa Commander upon this threatened hostile measures. The Government accordingly (backed by the Chinese of authority and respectability at Macao; would the Frighte to quit the waters of the Celestial Empire. The Captain of the Frigate put its threats so far into execution as to sieze upon the Birerro Junior. merchantman, which happened to be in the roads, with a most valuable bargo.

Translation of a Letter from a Spanish Gen-Hennen at Macao to his friend at Calcutta. relative to an insurrection in Planilla.

After writing on private affairs, he expresses houself thus:—"The Captain-Gorneral of the Phillipine Islands being absent from Manilla in the country, there was only quartered at this place the King's Regiment, with a small part of the Artiflery Corps, who between the nights of the 21 and 3d June, rose in arms, proclaiming Emperor-a Captain of Grenadiera of that Regiment, by the none of Don Andrew Navales, who placed himself at their head, and marched to take possession of the gates of the city, and surprise the artiflety barracks and the fort of Sam Tiago; an Eusign, who was on duty at the pulses, such concerned in the plat, went immediately, the take possession the Officers were put in confinement. Being in possession of the gates of the city, they kept them shut, and went to the artillery barracks with a view of surprising these, in which attempt they failed, owing to the loss of time they then returned to A great sensation had been caused at the fort of Sam Trago, where the Major ". with the garnson shut themselves up, and were prepared for the attack, in consequence of which, this advantageous posttion was lost, they then marched to the Palace-square, where they posed themselves at 4 o'clock in the morning, and took possession of that building and of the jail, releasing upwards of 400 crimmals. Officer with the assistance of two soldiers let himself down to the beach of Sam Domingo in spite of the fire that was kept on him, and went to inform the Captain-General, who was then at Sam Miguel. As soon as he was informed of what had happened, he marshed instantly with the Prince's Batta ton, the Militia of Pampengos, and some Cavalry, towards the city, where he arrived at 7 o'clock in the moraing, making his entrance by the gate of St. Lucia, which was in possession of the Artillery, and which was knocked down by cannon; at the same time the Militia of Pampengos esquladed the fort of Sum Trago; this citadel being thus altacked on one side, the Captain-General made another attack on an opposite quarter, by which they got in, and forced the Regiment, after being hard pushed, to take refuge in the palace, which was de med expedient to demolish with Artilicry. At last they surrendered, and were all made prisoners by 10 o'clock, after haying fought desperately under a fire of three hours and a half. The Emperor and a Serjeant, who had taken a very sanguinary part, were shot on that very day at 5 o'clock in the evening in the Palace-squares. On the following day, Rodrigues the Ensign, with 14 Serjeants of the companies that had mutimed, were also shot; and again on the next day & more experienced the same fate. Thus ended this extrau dinary occurrence, which was in itself a most desperate act of Novules, who was to have embarked the next day to an honorary banishment. The only Officers concerned in the aftray were those I have mentioned-Novales and Rodrigues, natives borng the Se feants were all Ledians end Americans (Spanish); the Europeans were all secured in their quarters, and the same happened to an Indian Serjeant, who with the whole of his come of the keys of the aits which were then kept pany refused to join the mutineers, in re-by Mr. Eulequeiras in the Governor's ab. ward of which he was made an Officer. PROCLAMATION OF THE SENATE OF MACAO,

Citizens of Macao! The Commander of the Frigate Salamandia has just given proofs that the commission with which he was intrusted by the Governor of Goa, has for its sole object to attack your most sacred rights granted by the General and Extraordinary Cortes of the nation, and even your property. That Despot seeing hat his dark and barbarous schemes had failed through the energy and signlance of your Government, supported by your valous and patriotism, took the infamous do commation of captuing the Ship Bairetto Junior, with a most valuable cargo, ordering a murtary force on board of her, and placing that ship under the gams of the Frigate! Could any thing more be done by an enemy's Corsair, except it was for the purpose of defending us against visionary foes that the Prevident Governor sent us this tamous Salamandra! Citizens of Macao! The mask is taken off: employ all your efforts to avonge yourselves on these perfidious men who presume to infest your coasts.

This Government, unanimons in your just indignation, will immediately take all such measures to insure your shipping, and punish an attempt not to be parulleled in the annals of Portuguese history

dia and the mother country, by means of steam navigation. After the requisition had been read by the Sheriff, he proposed that the meeting should proceed to elect a chairman, and suggested that Captain Johnston modeld and be exactly a fit person, as he would have to enter in To explaintions, and to satisfy the meeting on points connected with the practicability of the proposed scheme. Mr. Holt Mackensie was proposed as chairman, but, declined accepting the office. He stated that he was utterly incompetent to discuss or to decide on the merits of the question they were met there to consider; and he should, therefore, propose a gentleman who was more competent by age, by character, and rank in society, to fill the chair on this occasion. He bugged to propose Mr. Harington. With respect to Lieutenant Johnston, he imagined that he must be called upon, as had been stated, to give explanations as to the teasibility of his plan, and to take, in short, a very active part in the discussion they were about to engage in; and he therefore, could not be a fit person to fill the office of chairman, whose duty it was rather to preserve order, and to regulate the meeting, than to take any prominent part in the discussion.

Mr. HARING fon having been accordingly olected to the chair, rose and addressed the meeting to the following effect. He stated that he must commence by a confession, that he knew little more on the merits of this question, that he had gathered from what had already appeared in print here; and he might indeed say, that all he had heard was on one side of the question. From his friend Lieutenant Johnston, he had naturally learnt all the reasons that tended to show the practicability of his scheme. He need scarcely, he imagined, state, that he perfectly coincided in the sentiments of his friend, in appreciating the advantages that would accine to passengers going from, or coming to, this country; to the interests of the commercial body; and to the private intercourse of friends and relatives in India and Great Britain, from the success of his plan. On its practicability, however, he was unable to decide; or, indeed, to discuss at all the merits of the question. His denotency in this respect, would, however, be amply compensated for, by the talents of his triend Licutenant Johnston, and by the intimate knowledge of the subject he must have acquired, by having devoted several years to the consideration of it. He Lought they should all be urged and consi- deemed it necessary to address to them on dered. It would be for the meeting, he conceived, to decide on this point, viz. the sibility or the infeasibility of it: and then to leave it to a committee to consider of the means of carrying the scheme into effect, it should be deemed practicable: or it, and the other hand, it should be decided to be teverse, then, the proceeding in the matter might terminate at once in that meeting.

Mr. Harington observed, that his own idea. differed from the opinions of his friend Lieutenant Johnston, as to the mode of first attempting the communication proposed by him: he Mr. Harington, thought, that in stead of two vessels on this side of the isthe. mus, under the control of a committee here: and two more on the other side of it, under the management of a committee at home: it would be better, in the first instance, to have only one boat on each side of the fathmus, both under the control of one company here: the funds required for this plan, would not be greater than for the other; and though they should commence on this limited scale, it would be easy to extend their plan, should success encourage it. The only important doubt seemed to him to he. whether, the scheme be, or be not, practicable, on the whole, without danger of loss: he would not say, hope of profit; because, he' took it for granted, that the object of the scheme was rather to promote their comforts and the celerity of their intercourse with the mother country, than the attainment of emo-Imment: and it would only be necessary, therefore, on engaging in the scheme, to see that they should be indemnified againt loss. Mr. Harington then stated the amount of capital that he conceived would be necessary to embark in the undertaking, in the manner suggested by him; but our reporter could not distinctly bere the sum mentioned He cancluded by again expressing his hope. that it any gentlemen present, had any obicctions to advance against the feasibility of the proposed scheme, they would come forward and state thom, that they might then be able to determine, whether it were advisuble or not, to go further into the consideration of it; and if it were deemed practicable, at once appoint a committee to consider the means of varrying it into effect.

LIBUTENING JOHNSON, R. N. then presented himself to the meeting, and after stating that it was the first time he had ever appeared before so numerous an assembly. with the purpose of addressing it, he expressed his fear, that had he trusted to his memory, he might have omitted much that would give the meeting every information memory, he might have omitted much that they might wish for on this interesting question. For himself, he was anxious to hear teresting question they had met to discuss: stated, the objections that might exist to and he should therefore, with their permission, read from a written paper what he the practicability of the scheme; for he sion, read from a written paper what he

this occasion. He then read from a paper in his hand as follows :-

GENTLEMEN.

On perusing the report of the British House of Commons, drawn up in committee on the very interesting subject, to which with due respect I have ventured to call the attention of the Indian Public, I mean the possibility of navigating the largest seas, in Steam Vessels, I became convinced of its practicability and by degrees of the superior advantages in point of safety as well as expedition, which must follow the introduction of a communication by Steam Vessels between ourselves and the parent

A Prospectus, of which copies are lying on the table, has been drawn up from the best information with respect to the probable expenses which would be attendant on such an establishment.

I have therein proposed, that the route should be, across the Isthmas of Sucz. and I give a preference to this route, first because in point of distance it is one third less than the route by the Cape of Good Hope, the former being 8 the latter thirteen thousand miles; secondly by this route vessels would be less exposed to tempests or gales of wind; and thirdly, because it offers more convenient depots of fuel.

In opposition to these advantages, the chief is probably the passage across the Ithmus; and to persons who have never visited Egypt, this undertaking appears formidable; the contrary is however, the case, with these who have returned to Europe by that route, and with whom I have had opportunities of conversing.

With a very little labor, a good roadmight be made for a considerable extent; one already exists, and if completed, there would be no obstacle to the use of comfortable carriages for the performance of the journey. On this subject, I have had the opinion of two very intelligent and competent centlemen; the one Mr. Briggs, whose name it is sufficient to mention; the other Mr. Asoona, a Turkish gentleman, ambassador from the Bey of Tripoli, whose acquaintance I made in London.

I inquired of him respecting the expense of camels and the best means of convey-'aace; his answer was, Sir, make the Pasha present of 2 or 3,000 dollars; and be will order 100,000 men to work, who, within a month or six weeks will make a carriage road, over which you may drive a coach and six; the journey is short, not exceed-100 miles and may be performed in two iys with ease.
The Plague, for I consider it my duty to ang forward all objections which have presented themselves, in order by discussion to determine whether they really militate against the object of this Meeting; the Plague there, is an evil against which every Englishmen carries an antidots in his constitution; it is an evil more toirible in Idea than in effect, and the precaution taken by Europeans in Plague countries, are effectual in the prevention of it. In the most populous towns when visited by the most destructive Plague, Europeans have seldon been known to suffer. In the dreadful Plague which raveged Malta in 1813, death was confined to the Natives; not one Englishman was affected.

The Plague can only be communicated by contact: the searlet fever, the measles, the cholera morbys, are a thousand times more to be diended, since they cannot be avoided by prudence or precaution. By projecuting the route proposed in the prospectus, all towns with the exception of Suez, will be avoided; and the little danger which might have been dreaded will by this air angement be removed; and I may here remark, that the Quainpline to which vessels arriving in England from Alexandria, with a clean bill of health, are subjected, does not exceed at furthest, 5 days, the time necessary for a reference to the Privy Council. Under the present Governor, Egypt has been tendered safe to the Traveller; plunder and robbers with one exception, have for many yous, been unheard of; and with a proper escort, no danger of that nature need be apprehended.

Neither do I imagine that any serious inconvenience, would result to travellers, or to the Steam Company, from any sudden revolution in the Government of Egypt, Self-interest and pecuniary emolument are the ruling passions, the male springs to action wite every Turkish Despot, and the continual actival and departure of so many passengers, would prove too prolific a source of nches to be sacrificed to cuprice. I have never visited Egypt; but I have wandered alone and unarined in the mountains, of Lebapon, I have strayed into the Deserts of Tora many miles from the towns, with only a laminary to attend me. I have encountered tribes of Aralis who have treated me with civility and courtesy, ...

The name of an Englishman is every where The inconvenience of changa safeguard. a sateguard. The inconvenience of changing from one Vessel to another has been mentioned to me as one objection; but a voyage in a steam Vessel, must be considered in a very different light to a Voyage in an inconvenience. To this it is necessasy to be prepared for & or fi months: in that only for as many weeks. The quantity of baggage will be reduced, and I shall proalike, and that the nahina be furnished, by and at the making of the Gampany, with couches, dables, about, touting glasses, &c. &c. so that the passengers will literally be without in mahrance; and the inconvenience of moving hom one vessel into another, would be no more than is attendant on a week's visit to Bastackpore, whilst the va-. riety of landing once every sen'night, of obtaining always abundance of good water, milk, and vegetables, would compensate for many little inconvenicages it any should oc-In the prospectus which lies on the table, I have calculated the expense of a complete establishment of steam pessels on both sides of the Isthmus, adequate to keep up a monthly communication with Europe. It appears to me, however, that the project will be most likely to meet with support, if routined to conveyance of passengers, to El Arish, Catick, or the Lake of Menzelet, it anchorage can there be tound, leaving it to Buttish capitalists, to form a company that will co-operate with the one now proposed; nor can the smallest doubt exist of such co-operation, as even individuals in England certain of meeting with passengers, would undoubtedly send more Steam vessely to any part of the Mediterranean to emback them.

Au airangement, however, to place beyoud a possibility the disappointment of passengers engaging here, will become a consideration of the first importance with the committee of the proposed Steam Company, should it be formed.

To carry this project into effect, I think that two vessels of 400 toms each, capable of a commodating 25 passengers; each with a during-room under the poop, should be commissioned from England, and be brought round the U ipe of Good Hope This would give very great confidence to the India community, and these vossels delivered in Cal- lack, and supposing a charge to be per-cutty, supposing them to bring out, neither mitted of 8 annes on each letter, certainly a

I think the charge will be considered moderate, if fixed at 1,500 impees to the Mediteriancan and at 800 thence to England. An equal number may be expected to return at the same charge; and the two vessels will carry in all the year, $15 \times 8 \times 2 = 210$ out and home, which \times by 1,500 the charge for their passage, will make sicca rupeos 360,000, from which, deduct an out-ly 268,540 of a balance will remain in fivor of the Company of 91,460, on a capital of 333,000, a profit of nearly 28 per cent. without taking into consideration the cairinge of letters, which from this presidency alone, amount in number to at least one ireight not passengers, would cost, hereby very light tax, and one that would be readily as follows! pondence, the proceeds on this account, would amount to 50,000 rupers, equal to 16 per cent. which added to the 27 per cent. previously calculated, would amount to 4; per cent. and I feel convinced, that after one or two prosperous voyages, the vessels will always be full of passengers, and that the charge for passage, may be very much lowered

The spirit of enterprise which has always existed in England, has perhaps been encreased by the difficulty of employing capital advantigeously. Steam navigation has

I cannot, however, concur in the opinion. Capitalists in England are not more easily persuaded to embark their money in schemes which they do not quite comprehend, of which they 'cannot ascertain the limits, and over which they can have but little, or no control, than capitalists here; and both like to watch everthe progress of the speculation in which they engage, and to know the extent of loss to which they are exposed. India, they would consider as too it mote the returns would not be sufficiently quick, the undertaking embraces too many contingencies; the management must be delegated to a-

They can hold no security for their adventure, whilst pecuniary emolument is the only advantage the English capitalist expects to derive; and this calculation, however well it may appear on paper, inspires no confidence in one ignorant of the nature of Indian society, and of Indian affairs, and there are, indeed, very few persons in England, who can entertain correct ideas on this subject; those who have returned from India, have for the most part retured from appeadations to enjoy quiet, and the commerce between London and Calcutta is confined principally to six houses of Agency. These would be ready to co-operate, I know their sentiments and I know their opinion is, that a Company should be formed here.

By what I have advanced, I do not mean decidedly to say that steam vessels will never reach India from England, and through the influence of British capital. I febloomineed they will, but only after the lapse of several years; they will be extended hither by gradual alvances. Madeira will first be distincted! then the West Indies, South America, the Cape, and list of all perhaps Calcuta! but why not anticipate, why not destermine at once to enjoy the advantages which such a communication presents!

The reasoning and the arguments of the British capitalist will not apply to the Indian public; here, the scheme is understood, the limits, of the speculation may be most certainly defined, and it will be under the immediate observation and controll of a Committee of management. The utmost coss may be calculated to the fraction of a pie; suppose it to extend to the whole capital embarked, suppose it even to end in smoke or vapor, or probably to pass away is one grand explosion, the individual loss will not be vexatiously great, and where so desirable an object is to be achieved, surely it is deserving of some risk. But so much for a most improbable, I exculste on considerable emplument as amongst the least advantages; others will result of the highest importance to all classes.

The civilian, the officer whose health requires or whose inclination prompts a visit to his native land, may with twelve months leave of absence pass eight in the bosom of his tamily. The morchant having business of importance, will no longer be obliged to delegate it to an Agent; he may throw himself with his portugateau into a Steam Vessel, transact his business, and in a few short weeks resume the seat at his deak without his absence having been felt. Pa ents an zious for the health or education of their Children may at a comparatively triling expense have the happiness of themselves selecting a school for them, and from how much anxiety will those be relieved who have not relations or friends to whom they can with confidence commit so high a charge.

Those who do not visit England, will enjoy the advantage of receiving letters before the antiquity of their date damps in some measure the interest which a L tter is calculated to excite. Four months !!! how short a time to look lorward to for an answer to a letter on which one's happiness may depend, when compared to the usual term of an year; how delightful to receive in February, details of the movement of the merriments of the preceding Christmas in old England; how much will this facility of communication tend to keep alive and to strengthen in a family those affections which now alas! too frequently subside after a tew years of separation.

Gentlemen, lay these considerations to your hearts, you will be brought near to your native land. Your conform, your enjoyments, your luxuries, your own happiness here, that of your friends, your relations and your children at home, must all be promoted by this establishment. How many now lingering under the effects of climate undermining their constitutions would be able to recover and to enjoy a lengthened period of existence, not only by the speed with which they would return but having the means which along voyage, a long absence from their empluments pay and allow vices, new prevents them from doing, to look forward id. Gentlemen you are interested collectively, you are interested individually. You are all of you most strongly interested in the promotion of the establishment. I too, am particularly interested: I shall enjoy the proud satisfaction of being the ptojector of an undertaking pregnant with advantages of the highest nature to the Indian Society. Atter Lieutenant Johnston had concluded, the Chairman again called on the gentlemen of the meeting to attate any objections they might have to advance against what Lieutenant Johnston had stated, but no one came forward.

The Chaisman then informed the meeting. that Lieutenant Johnston had, in anticipation of the present meeting, sent into circulation, a sketch of two addresses, proposed to be delivered, one at the expected meeting in this country, and another to the public in England, after he should have been deputed by a committee here to act for them in the matter, (vide CALCUTTA JOUR-NAL (or September 22, page 293;) and as no gentleman had come forward to state any objections to Lieutenant Johnston's plan. he, the chairman, would read, with permission, one of a series of resolutions subjoined, after some prefatory remarks, to the latter of these intended addresses, which was to have been proposed at hom, in the event of the plan having been approved of and a committee appointed to carry it into execution here. He should have been glad, however, if some of the gentlemen present had come forward, on this occasion, to deliver their sentiments on the question; bucause the public would expect thom to express the sense of this meeting, as to whether the proposed scheme is feasible and desirable or not. He had hoped, that some of the members of the mercantile body, in particular, would have favored the meeting with their opinions.

(Mr. Machillor, who was standing near the Chairman, then addressed him, and the resolution referred to, was not read.)

Mi. MACKILLOP suggested that, perhaps, the establishment of a company at home and one here, to have control of the vessels from hence to Cossier only, leaving the subsequent conveyance of the passengers, &c. to the home committee, would be recent advisable.

The CHAIRMAN stated that some gentleman near him had suggested, that there might be some difficulty in getting a company at home to co-operate with another here.

Mr. Mackillor explained, as far as our Reporter could collect the substance of his remarks, that there was a shoug bias in lavor of the plan, amongst the companies at home; but whether the failure of Mr. Perkus's invention might or might not have occasioned any change in their opinions, or disposition to encourage it, he could not say.

The CHAIRMAN expressed his satisfaction at finding, that the scheme was so favorably regarded at home. He thought that the first thing to be done, was to decide, whether the scheme were, or were not feasible: that in short the sense of the meeting should be taken on this point; and if it were favorable to its feasibility, withat a committee should be appointed as before suggested's if otherwise, that all turther consideration of the subject should be waved. The Chairman then called on Mr. Larkins to state his seutiments.

Mr. Larkins observed, that an idea had been started by a Gontleman near him, which really appeared to him so good, that he had no kind of scruppe in borrowing it; it had been suggested that a permium of £10,000 should be offered to whoever should send out a steam boat to India, that was if the sum could be raised. It would not be right perhaps to offer the sum to any individual, because some adventurer might be tempted to run out at all hazards for the sake of the reward, leaving the steam boat to be taken back by whomsoever pleased to conduct her; it should be offered to a company of individuals.

The CHAIRMAN wished to know, whether this idea orginated in the opinion that the establishment of a company at home, would be preferable to that of a similar bo-

Mr. LARRINS: No, not precisely in that, but merely as an inducement. I think we are too liberal here, however, to carry on any thing 61 the sort.

Mr. Hobbouse observed that the object of the inducement was to get the steam packets here. If they were already out in the country, of course we might establish a company and send them away immediately. But he conceived that the great difficulty was to get them out here round the Cape. How were they to come out.

LICUTERANT JOHNSTON Would undertake to got them out; he had already stated, that nothing but want of funds had prevented his attempting it before.

Mr. Paron thought that if a committee were appointed, as the amount of the whole expence was known, that they might fix the number and value of the shares.

Mr. Likkins remarked, that £10,000 would induce many persons at home to engage in the undertaking.

Mr. John Hunger proposed that one half should be paid here on the arrival, and the other before hand in England, to assist in the outfit.

Mr. Larkins begged to put the motion distinctly to the meeting, that a certain premium be offered to the first company or Society that shall bring out a steam vessel, and establish the communication between India and Great Britain, leaving the route open to their choice.

Mr. Holi Mackingle seconded the motion. He observed, that it was generally allowed, that large, and unwields societies, manage their affairs badly; and it night

Any idea of praft had been discussion was obtained, but in point of fact, mendalization was sumed that the scheme would prove advantageous to the continual for himself, he could say that he should willingly aid in promoting the increase of these comforts to the first provider that in point of fact, mendalization was sumed that the scheme would prove advantageous to the continuance of the second provides the increase of these comforts to the first provider that the increase of these comforts to the first provider that the plan offered the plan offered to the first provider that the plan offered the plan offered that the plan offered the plan offered the plan offered the plan offered that the plan offered the plan of th therefore be very fairly assumed, consideralaimed, but in point of fact, men here all influenced as Mr. Johnston had said of the Pasks of Egypt, by selfish nossiderations: profit therefore, must be consiinterested views, but those who carried it on, must inevitably look to this result of their labours or no reasonable hope could be entertained, with reference to a known law of human nature, that they would be cheerfully performed, or lead to a successfull issue. Now he did think that a com-mittee in this country were most unlikely so to conduct the scheme, as to conder it profitable, for ressons, that had been stated and which must be thought be almost plivious, to all he addressed. He was decidedly of opinion therefore, that the offer of a premium to any individual here or at home, to carry the scheme into effect, was the most likely to effect the end proposed in the best, the spediest and the least expensive manner. By the offer of a premium, the undertaking was thrown open to the whole capital and ingenuity of In-dia and Great Britain; whereas by the appointment of a committee here, the ma-nagement of the business must be left to an agent in England, a failure in the choice of whom, might cause the whole scheme to end in loss and disappointment. By the offer of a premium, we throw the undertaking of the plan open to the competition of the men of genius of England; and if they did not succeed, he was indeed, at a loss than the contract of the where to look for saccess another reason against the appointment of a Contantited here, was that we wented data to establish the amount of capital actually required. He Mr. Mankensie had reason to bolieve: that the expences of building, a steam vessel of 400 tons: would amount to upwards of £14,000. It is true that this was the os-timated price; but it was well known that estimates are apt to be very faliacious. Mr. H. Mackarzte replied, that he was not there of the part of the pretament, but slipping as an individual addressing his fellow chizens at a meeting of other individuals like simplets. BOMBAY GAZETTE-Oct. 15, 1923.

RECORDER's COURT-TUESDAY, Oct. 7, 1823.

The Recorder observed that he had now to advert to a very serious subject, and one which he was bound to take notice of not only n order to vindicate the authority and dignity of the Court, but as nacessary to the due administration of justice. It was in regard to a Memorial, which had been presented to the Court by the Gentlemen of the Bai! He would state the circumstances, On the 10th of last month he was sitting in Court with Mr. Meriton, when the Monig. rial washanded up to him by Mr. Irwing in the name of himself and the rest of the Bar. On that day all the Bar, he believed, were present with the exception of Mr. Lo Messurier. But, although he was not present, his name was subscribed to the Memo-

Mr. La Messurier rose, and acknowledge

ed the agnature to be his.

The Recorder .- This document, which was called a Memorial, contained certainly, to say namore of it, matter of the most offensive description, alleging, in all and every page of it, that certain rules were not warranted by the Charter: and that the practice of the Court, in certain particulars, was warranted by neither the one nor the other. It was the bar who had put tuto his hands that Memorial, so libelious as he said it was and as he should shew by and bye, that it it had been published, or circulated by any gentle-man not a Barrister, the Court would have been called upon to publish him, not by going before a grand jury, or before a petty jury, but summerly and both by fine and miprisonment. That Memorial had been handed up by the gentlemen of the Bar, whose duty and whose interest it was to pay respect to the Court, for they ought to know that their own characters rose with that of the Court. It was by the Gentlemen of the Bar, that that Memorial had been put into his hands, as the President of the Court. In the begining it claimed a privilege as belonging to the Bar which he was not before aware of; nor was there in fact any such privilege. It stated, that it was competent to the Gentlemen of the Bar, forsooth to bring to the notice of the Court.

Mr. Advacute General berg interposed and stated, that, as far as concerned himself. and he believed, he might add the rest of the Bar, they had no desire or intention that the Memorial should be publinly read, nor was it presented with that view.

Mr. Irwin observed that he had it in commission from the Bar to communicate to the Court, that the Memorial was presented merely for the private consideration of the members of the Court, and that the bar never contemplated any pala-lication of it, or a public reading of it in open Court.

Recorder -Then Mr. Irwin bad The thought himself justified in putting into his hands, as the President of the Court, a paper which he acknowledged to be unfit to be read in Court. The Gentlemen of the Bar had considered it competent for them to present to the private consideration of the Court, what they acknowledged to be unfit impossible to suffer the husiness of the to be read in public. They would presume Court to be interrupted, day after day, in to insult the Court with.

. Mr. Advocate General here again interposand and declared that he and the rest of the gentlemen of the Bar had to disavow any consciousness of the Memorial being an issult, or in any way improper, and that they had not the smallest objection what ever to its being all openly read in Court, sif. that was his Loidship's wish. They merely meant to say, that such public reading was not their wish or intention.

The Recorder. In the first instance, the Memorial claimed a privilege, that it was competent to them, as Barristers of your Hon ble Court, to bring to its notice aby existing variance between the rules and the practice, and between the rules and the charter, and to tell the Court that such rules and practice were illegal. He never dreamt that there was any such privilege existing in the Bar. This was a new doctrine to to him. He knew of no such privilege in the bar; nor would the Court allow of their questioning the course the Court adopted in administering justice. Would it have been fitting to have presented to the Court of King's Bench such a Memorial as this? The Court here were the sole Judges of their ewn conduct. They alone had the power of judging, whether they were acting according to the charter or not—it was a matter in their discretion and in their's alone. There was here no power under heaven thathad a right to find fault with the proceedings of the Court. If the Court did not act in conformity with the Charter, the only remedy was an impeachment in the House of Commons. They were not to be told by any set of men, and far less by persons of the Bar, that they were not acting in conformity with the Charter. He would call the attention of the Court to another passage. It went on to say—But he would first state what was the mode of application which he had pointed out. In the Memorial it was said, that a representation from the Bar, would be heard by the Court, either on a deputation from the Bar personally or in the shape of a written Mamorial. He had said, that if the Bur had any application to make to the favor of the Court, they would be willing to listen to it. In consequence of what had fallen from Mr. Irwin, when he presented the Memorial, it might be conserved that it had been presented by the Bur at his (the Recorder's) desire. In that they were wholly mistaken, the course in which the Court was carrying en its business, he had told them that it was that manner. If the Gentlemen of the Bar had any thing to ask from the favor of the Court, if there where any particular rules, or any parts of the practice of the Court, which were prejudicial to the interests of the Bar, and the Bar chose to make an application to the favor of the Court, the Court would attend to the propositions of the Bar, if they could do so consistently with the right of the public. The Court would suffer nei-ther the bar, nor any other persons, to anraign their conduct and to say it was not legal, or that the rules which had been framed hy other Recorders, were inconsistent with the rules and charter of the Court. The Memorial went on to state with regard to the small Cause Court, in the concluding paragraph, that that Court appears to your Memorialists to have a fendeucy to create confusion and irregularity in the administration of justice, by referring each case to the discretion of the Judge and to a Judg-ment to be given upon the sudividual circumstances of each case, rather than to one to be pronounced upon known and established authorities and decided cases; and in as much also as it appears to have a tendency to subvert those principles of law, on which alone your Memorislists, are prepared to conduct their practice, and in general to depreciate the character of the Hon'hle Court.

This was the character, given by the gentiemes of the Bar, of those Rules which had been adopted by Sir Wm. Syer, the first Recorder of the Court in 1799, which had been sent home, and sanctioned by his Ma jesty in Council,—which had been after wards recognised and acted upon hy every sudeceding Recorder, and to which the former barristers of the Court had never thought of raiding objections.

Mr. Advocate General hore intimated a different impression.

The Recorder knew of no such representation ever having been made. If the allusion in the Memorial meant to refer to a Memorial sent home to the King in Council by an individual of the subject, he had this to say that he had sertainty hoard of such a thing; but, he could tell the contlemen of the Bar, that, it had not met with any consideration, and that an answer had never been return-

Mr. Adobate General observed, that he was not alluding to that Memorial, but to his having heard that some doubts had al-

Upon some gentlemen getting up, one ways existed on the subject.

The new order.—Mr. Alderman Meritae.

The Recorder.—Of that Court, and those rules, which had been framed by Sir Wm.

The Recorder.—Upon these Gentlemen. Sydr the first Recorder, had been senotion-getting up, one after the other, to object to ed by his Majorty in Council, had been adopted and seted upon by every succeeding Recorder, and never before objected to by Counsel, Mr. Le Messurier, forsooth, and Mr. Clcland, Mr. Parry, and Mr. Irwin. and Mr. Norton, had thought fit to state, that they had a tendency to create confusion and irregularity in the administration of Justice. Mr. Norton, after a few weeks residence in the island and with the very limited knowledge and experience which he could acquire in that time, broke in upon them with a new light and discovered, that what had been acted upon by all the Magistrates of the Court from its first establishment, and had been adopted by the first and all subsequent Recorders, was all wrong. Aft r twenty-five days practice, he took upon himself to say, that those rules were warranted, neither by law, nor by the Charter, and that they tended to create confusion and irregularity and to subvert the principles of But this was not the most offensive part of the Memorial, although what he had now stated was most libellous. The Court would not allow any part of its Jurisdiction to be attacked :-- and that for very potent reasons, not merely to maintain the authority and dignity of the Court, but as necessary for the administration of Justice. What would the publick think of a Court, which they heard the har had declared to be illeral? A Suitor comes into the Small Cause Court;—he learns, that those to whom he is accustomed to look for advice had unan-mously declared the Court to be illegal in its very foundation,-would be be inclined to submit with deference to the Court and be satisfied with its Judgments! It would be necessary for the Court to resort to brute force, when it was requisite to enforce its

But this was not the most offensive part of the libel. They had ventured to assert, that the practice of the court was not in conformity with the rules of the small cause Court, or the Charter of Justice, Your Memorialists beg to submit that, in some other particulars, connected with the practice of the small cause Court, their interests are still more prejudiced, in regard to which, neither the rules of the small cause Court, as at present framed, nor the Charter of Justice, according to the best construction they are capable of making, afford any authority or explanation. And then it went on And in allusion to those particulars your Memorialists scrupulously confine themselves to such facts, as they are acquanted with their own knowledge, and which they beheve to be incontestable. It appears to your Memorialists, from the repeated instances m which those Court have been held in private, for the examination and punishment of alleged offences, in respect to matters proceeding under the jurisdiction of this Court. He asserted that the allegation was utterly unfounded, that small Cause Courts were held in private for the examination and punishment of alleged offences. It was the Judges of that Court (Recorder's Court) sitting in Chambers: and not the small Cause Court. It was the Court sitting in Chamber, as they had a right to do and as nedessary for justice, and as he might have done by himself. But that the small Cause Court, had ever sat privately was infounded. That it was held without any rules made for such purpose or any public notice given, him friends, who were sitting with him knew to be utterly unfounded. But he should not condescend to explain, or answer, any more of the charges against the Court. It was what was due to others, as well as to the Court that he should not. The Court were satisfied that they had done their duty and it was a sufficient satisfaction to them to be conscious, that they had dene their duty.

The Memorial went on to say that both the manner and time of holding such Courts depend altogether upon the casual discretion of your Hon'ble Court. There were other unfounded allegations which he would not read, because it was not incumbent upon him to read a libel. There was a charge of examining the parties Viva Voce.

That the parties had ever been examined view voice was unfounded. That the Plaintiff was examined, under particular circumstances, was certainly true and it was grounded on a rule of Court, under which it was done: and he had before shewn on what clause of the Charter the rule was founded. The parties mean both Plaintiff and Defendant, and that the parties had been examined had not been the fact. The plaintiff had been examined, and that was under a rule of the small Cause Court, which rule was sanctioned by a clause of the Charter.

As to the Petition Court, which formed the subject of another part of the Memorial, he would only say that Petitions might be heard in chambers when he pleased, and that he should continue to hear them to chambers whenever he pleased.

The Memorial concluded stating your Memorialists beg leave respectfully to submit to the consideration of your Honorable Coust, that such a course of proceedings calculated to introduce irregularity, confusion and discretionary principles into the administration of Justice, through the medium of your Hon. Court. So that these gentlemen ventored to say that it was through the medium of the Court, and they accuse the Court of introducing aregularity, confusion, and discretionary principles into the administration of justice. And the humble request of these persons is that the institution of the small cause Court, and all the rules upon which its proceedings are founded as far as such rules and proceedings are at variance with the course of proceedings laid down in the Charter, may be abolished and vacated" But he should not state the insmuations, which were meant to be conveyed by the prayer of the Memorial; not the implications, which those sentences conveyyed. He would, now, call upon the gentlemen of the bar to state, what excuse or apology, they had to offer, for having presented a Memorial, containing aspersions no libellous and unfounded, and for having put such a Memorial into his hands, as the President of the Court.

Mr. Is un rose, in answer to his Lordship's call, to state, on behalf of the har, those sentiments on the subject of the Memorial, which, he believed, they entertained in common with lumself, but should be omit to state any thing material to be mentioned, he would claim for each of his learned friends to speak fer himself to that charge, which effected them all individually. He would first advert to the commencing paragraph of the Memorial, upon which his Lordship had observed that it claimed a right hitherto unknown to his Lordship for the Barister's to hing to the notice of the Court any rule of Court, or practice of the same, which was at variance with the charter.

To this he had to say, that he had firquently known Barristers of that Court, in cases when the interests of a chent in a suit were affected by any rule or inles, to show te the Court, is what respect such sul s were contrary to the Charter, - he had known that principle admitted by the Court, and he then said that it was scarcely to be supposed that that (12ht, which they, the bar, claimed on behalf of others, should not be available in their own case, and when their own interests were affected;—it was in fact contrary to human nature that they should not insist upon it. He was bound in duty to himself and his learned friends, to say, that that memorial read and extracted in parts as it had been by his lordship, might assume a very offensive and libellous aspect, but he would have it all taken together and as a whole, and not to be judged of by insulated paragraphs whose meaning and effect was dependent on the context of the whole memorial. He had now to express his sincere regret that any thing they (the bar) might have said or done should have produced on the minds of the Court, an impression so very untavorable to them and so foreign to their intentions; -and, as his lordship had pronounced the memorial to be libellous and aspersive to submit to the decision of the Court and to express a hearty sorrow that such was the Court's opinion of it. But he must distinctly on behalf of his learned friends and himself, say, that they had not the most remote intention of giving the elightest oftence, or of offering either openly or covertly, any disrespect to the Court They (the Bar) wished to draw his lordship's attention to circumstances which effected them as barristers, and to grievances, which required redress. They resorted to the only mode which was open to them to obtain it; for that very course of a memorial had been pointed out to them by his Lordship, when he refused to hear objections, made on one or two occasions, to the proceedings, of the Court, But he was not so lost to all sense of duty and propriety-le was not so mad, as to put his name to such a memorial, if he had thought that he was thereby, conveying an insult to the Court. or degrading its character in the eyes of the public. What object could any of them (the bar) possibly have in so doing? they could gain nothing by it either from the court, or the public. The public never were appealed to in the most induced shape. Surely it must have been some proof to their loudships that they had acted bona fide, and with the purest intentions, when no circulation whatever had been made by them of the icpresentation, they ham made, but, that the one single paper, which had been presented to the private consideration of the members of the Court, was all that had transpired on the subject. There (the Bai's) sole object had been redress, in case their representations were well founded, and they never could have imagined, that any application for it, made to a competent tribunal, would be deemed libellous. He contessed, that they (the Bar) had no very confident expectation of a favorable result in all respects,-at least in his Lordship's judgen ent, out, still, they conceived, that they were proceeding in a direct course to obtain that redress which, if not had here might be granted by an exterior tribunal. He would heg to say a few words, here, upon the institution of the small Cause Court at this presidency. By the acts of the 37th and of the 39th and 40th of his late Majesty-

Irwin not to pursue that course.

Mr. Irwin—Then he should not so—and he should not enter into the particulars of the memorial, hecause he was of opinion that the present occasion did not call for it. But he would relet to the whole memorial before the Court to vindicate them, (the Bar) from the imputation of any libellous or disrespectful intention in presenting it. His Lordship had adverted to come statements in the memorial, as unfounded in fact; if they were so, he was sincerely sorry that they had been inserted in it. But he declared, solemnly, there was no statement in the memorial which he did not in his conseience, believe to be true; some as of his own particula knowledge; and others, as from the best information he possessed, and the best means he had of obtaining it. His lordship had stated that the rules of the small Cause Court had been drawn up by Sir Wm. Syer, had been sent home, and had obtained the sanction of his Majesty in Council-Now he solemnely declared that that was the first time that he had ever heard that fact from any authority. He had anxiously endeavoured and inquired after information as to that important fact, but had never been able to learn that the rules had been sent home, or that the sanction required, was obtained.

The Recorder remarked, that it was required by the Charter, that, all the rules of that Court should be sanctioned by his Majesty in Council, and he, therefore, prosumed that they had been so sanctioned.

Mr. Ituin. Surely, on a point of such vi-tal importance as that, which had been the subject of doubt and enquiry ever since he came to Bombay, was it not going too far to say, that because the Charter required such sanction, it had been therefore obtained, or that, bacause it was required to be done, it must necessarily, have been done. That sanction, if clearly established, would have precluded them (the Bar) from at all questioning the legality and validity of the sin ill Cause Court proceedings, and would have deprived them at once, of that ground of complaint in the Memorial, His lord-ship might be in possession of fuller and more correct information on that point, than they were, but, as the fesult of their enquiries had left the tactundecided, they might bo justified in assuming that it was not proved, and that the rules of the small cause Court pover had obtained the sanctions required by the charter. He should conclude, what he had to say, by again disclaiming most solemnly, any intention of disrespection the Court, or to any of its members, and by appealing to the Memorial itself, and to a fair and dispass ionate consider in by its concharge which was now made against them.
The Recorder addressed Mr. Advocate

General and asked whether he wished to say any thing.

y ry tew words to say, Mr. Irwin having fully and sufficiently expressed his feelings. But his Lordship had alluded to some of the statements in that Memorial, which he had taken down, as being unfounded, and perhaps, it might be on that very account that they were deemed libelious. He would therefore, if his Lordship would allow him, advert to those statements, to the facts on which the Bar had, in their minds, concourts being sometimes held privately. There was one case of a man, having been committed for a contempt of court, in reference to some proceedings of his, as a clerk in the office of the small-cause Court, and which proceedings were the subject of many private examinations by the court. The Court too, which committed him was held privately; nor did he believe any one yet knew what was the nature of this con-tempt. That therefore, appeared to them (the Bar) as one instance of a private Court.

The Recorder.-That, Sir, was an enquiry in private chambers into the conduct of that person, and not a Court which was held.

Mr. Adv. Gen.—But, as he believed, a contempt could be committed only against a Court of Record, and a Court of Record alone could commit for a contempt, they (the Bar) had of course, conceived that those private sittings were Court's.

The Recorder - Did he mean to say that only Courts of Record could commit for centempt !

Mr. Adv. Gen .- He should say so

The Recorder - Did he mean to say that he (the Recorder) could not commit a man who insulted him, for instance, in his own private chamber '(pointing to it)

Mr. Adv. Gen.—He (the Adv. Gen.) spoke off hand, certainly, and from mere recollection, and perhaps he might be exemplifying prodigious ignorance; but he would venture to submit that neither his lordship. nor a judge of the Court of King's Bench, could commit a man as for contempt committed against him in his private chamber. Another point was as to Courts held without any rule for that purpose and without public notice. Naw the regular day fixed for Courts for small causes, by the rules promulagated, was every Saturday. But the days had been repeatedly changed; although, he could say for himself, and he believed, for the rest of the bar, that they had tents, to free them (the Bar) from that had no notice of the new appointed days; nor had any rule, he believed, been, as yet made on the subject. He believed, indeed, that Saturday was almost the only day, on which those Courts were now never held. Mr. Advocate General. He had but a He knew not what other authority settled the day from time to time but his Loidslup's discretion.

The Recorder .- If he (the Adv. Gen.) had had no notice of the Court days it was his own fault, for he might have known by enquiring of the officer, and if he had attended in Court he would have heard the officer adjourn the Court to the next day or an which was to held. He had altered the regular day from Saturday to Tuesday, for the facilities of business; althrough the alteration was not yet made a rule. The other days were merely adjourment days.

Mr. Alderman Meriton-He had always heard the officer adjourn the Court when he was present, to the next Court day. And he had never known of any Court having been held during his time to sit, to which he had not been summoned.

Mr. Advocate General .- Perhaps the state-, on -asking a party to refer his cause. ment then was too broad, in saying generally, that Courts were held without public no-tice; and he was very sorry that it should not have been qualified by reference to the kind of notice given, namely, that by the officer of adjournment, and by the summons of the Addermen. He would wish this qualification should be inserted in the Memorial. He could safely say that no such notice had ever come to their (the Bar's) knowledge. But, in truth, whatever might have been stated erroneously, or whatever expression might in its nature, be considered offensive to the Court, the Bar would be glad to expunge, or amend, or vary, in any way the Court might be pleased to suggest.

The only other topic, to which his lordship had pointed, as unfounded, referred to the examination of the parties Viva Voce apon cath.

The Recorder.-By the tetm parties any one would suppose that both Plaintiff and Desendant were meant, but the Plaintiff

only was ever examined

Mr. Advocate General - He (the Advocate General) was not aware himself of any distinction which his lordship drew, between party Plaintiff and party Defendant. He had thought, however, that both parties had been examined, and he was, the more induced to think so, from his lordship having declared he had authority to examine the Plaintiff. But, in fact, he believed that he could refer to notes taken upon the only two occasions that he ever attended a small Cause Court, by which it would appear that both parties had been occasionally examined.

The Recorder.—When, pray, had he ever known, a defendant examined? He had a right to examine the Plaintiff, when the Defendant did not appear, both by the Rules and the Charter; but he never, that he recollected, examined the defendant.

Mr. Advocate General.—He could not say that he could find in the charter any such authority for examining the plaintiff. But, as to the instances he had spoken of, he had not seen his notes since they were taken, which was now two or three months ago, and he could not be absolutely sure: but, speaking from recollection, he could refer to a case, in which his lordship entered into a long examination of a Defendant, as to a claim of set-off, and proposed an arbitration to him, to which he finally assented, and it was then intimated that such reference would be made obligatory by a rule of Court.

The Recorder.—Was that an examinati-

Mr. Advocate General.—He could only say that it was an examination upon oath and referred to the merits of his claims.

He had now offered all that he had to say upon the subject, except that he disclaimed all intentions of conveying any disrespect to the members of the Court. Indeed, it was their (the Bars) object to make an appeal to higher authorities on the subject of these Courts; but he had conceived and had expressed such opinion, that it would be the more respectful to address their Lordships in the first instance. Referring to the impression taken up by the Court, he would wish to express for himself and his brethren their regret that they had done thus much to occasion it; but he confessed, that he was not, in the least aware, that such an interpretation could be family put upon that appeal.

Mr. Parry, on a reference made to him by the Recorder, declared, that the sentiments which had been expressed by Mr. Irwin and by Mr. Advocate General, were so perfectly in accordance with his own, that he had nothing further to add, than that, if that Memorial where to be considered either libellous, or disrespectful, the object with which he had signed it would be entirely defeated.

Mr. Le Messurier and Mr Cleland declined occupying the time of the Court, as all that they had to offer, had been already so fully expressed.

The Recorder then conferred with the other Members of the Court, and after a few seconds said, that the Court had considered the Memorial, and the imputations which ti contained, and which nothing, on the part of the Bar had removed. It would have been oripable, in any man to have presented such a Viemorial, it was far more culpable in the gentlemen of the Bar. The gemiemen of the Bar ought to have known better. They ought to have known better than to have stated matters, taking the chance of their being true, not knowing whether they were facts or not. It appeared that Mr. Advocate General admitted himself to be wrong in one or to go again into the matters of the Memori interfere, in any respect, as to the amount al. All these gentlement had presumed to of fees, in general, or to dispute, in the least state that they had seen what they had dedected, the right of the attornes to execute the control of the attornes to execute the attornes to execute the attornes to execute the attornes to execute the attornes to execute the attornes to execute the attornes to execute the attornes to execute the attornes to clared, and to hand it up to him as the Pre- eise their discretion, in regard to fees above sident of the Court. On account of the insult certain minima. which had been effered to the Court, the sentonce of the Court was, that they should be suspended, or in the words, of the charter, removed from their situation of Barristers in the Court for the space of six calendar months, and that in the mean time the Attornies should practise as Advecates, as well as Attorpics.

We beg to point attention to the foregoing proceedings which have recently taken place in the Recorder's Court, We mentioned in our last that we expected to be able to lay before the public a copy of the Memorial presented on a former occasion. The observation was made from a presumption that the Memorial did not contain any mat-ter, which might be construed into a libel. The Court has however considered part of the Document to be libellous, we therefore give to the public such parts only as were read and formed the subject matter of discussion in the Court

On the subject of fees which occapied the attention of the Court during the early part of the proceeding we have seen a report in the Courier, which we conceive, in some particulars to be incorrect.

As far as we understand the investigation, one of the Attornies had made an appeal to the Recorder, in consequence of some of the Barristers having claimed a re-fresher, in a certain case, and which, the attorney conceived, he was not, in the case in question, bound to give. Some correspondence had taken place on the success tween the barristers and the attorny; out of which a question had arrisen, with regard to the right of the Barristers to reject fees, lower than the lowest free given, in similar eases at the other Freedence, the barristers pot assuming to themselves any discreption to reject briefs themselves, as such a rejection might be, from the peculiar situation of the Hat in India, construct to amount to an inheritation of basiness. We understand the Court to have admitted, that a Barrister in England, by seeppting fees below certain minimal would be acting unprofessionally, and that this subject would have been entirely data if the jurisdiction of the Courts in England, and subject as a matter of professional conduct to the opinion of the Bar themselves, and the exclusive investigations of the Inns of to the right of the Barristers to reject fees, the exclusive investigations of the Inns of Court, but, that the court here had a jurisdiction on the subject, from a clause in the charter, which gave them a liberty of re-moving barrister for reasonable cause. We have not understood as stated in two instances. It was unnecessary for him the Courier, that the Barristers elaimed to Long explanations were entered into, which we refrain from detailing as they could not possibly afford any gratification to our readers; -- and indeed we cannot with bear expressing some degree of surprise that on so delicate a topic it should have been deemed expedient to make the subject a matter of public enquiry.

.CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

DEAB Sin,-Your paper of the 29th ultimo, owing to some cause as yet unexplained, did not reach Agea till the 15th instant : -no less then nine dawks were at one time owing.

In compliance with a wish expressed by you in a note connected with the letter of "A Traveller and Subscriber," I have much pleasure in furnishing the measure-ment of the Gun, which your Correspondent notices having seen at this place. There still exists among the Natives an account, that formerly there were three pieces of extraordinary dimensions, one called Zuffer-bucksh, and one Dhool Dhanee; the third, that now at Agra, was simply denominated the GREAT GUN.

The Gun Zueren-bucksu, is said to have been constructed by order of Jehangeer; and in the year 1037 of the Higerah, it formed a part of his train in an expedition to, the Dekhun; the Gun returned with his Majesty; but the success of the expeditions being attributed to the impression produced by this extraordinary piece of Arallery, it was thenceforward designated duffer-bucksh. The construction was superintended by Sooltan Mahommed, Head Artificer to the Emperor, and it is said to have weighed 1464 maunds, 61 seers.

DROOL DHANFF.—Shah Jehan, in like manner with his father, wished to distinguish his reign by the construction of a piece of Ordnance, even surpassing Zuffer-bucksh, and ordered Rajah Achund of Kamonje to design and cause to be executed something on a suitable scale; the Raj h specied to the formerly mentioned Artificer (Scottan Mahammed), who accordingly oudertook to excel himself! for besides bravs, 2 mannds and 6 seers of silver and 25 seers of gold were introduced; and the weight of brass was 1462 mannds. The calibie of this Gun was comparatively small, but its length far surpassed the former. The gold and silver, however trifling, opposed to the baser metal, of which this was composed, tempted the Mahrattahs to melt it down.

The third is the GRIAT GUN, adverted to by your Correspondent; the history of this is rather doubtful; but I underwand the Various accounts given, to amount to thisthat it was discovered by Agkber at fleeje-poor, and by his order was removed to Cheetur Cher, at which place being found by Alumgeer, it was in the eighth year of his reign, removed to Agra, where it has remained ever since; on the Gui, however is the following inscription:

در دور آگرستاه عمان لإوسب الدساطان متحسور

The measurements are as follows :-Calibre o feet long and 1 feet 104 inches in diameter.

Chamber 4 feet 4 inches ditte and 10 inches in ditto.

Ditto at the mouth 12 feet. Ditto at the breech 12 feet 2 inshes.

Extreme length externally 14 feet 4 inches. Its weight is 1469 maunds, and is said to have carried a Stone Ball weighing 10 maunds.

I remain, Dear Sir, A WELL-WISHER AND SUBSCRIBER.

SONNET.

RECOLLECTION OF A LADY'S SING-ING.

Her voice was the heart's music, and she breathed

Delicious melody, and most rich notes Were mingled in her song as flowers are wreathed,

But sweeter than the perfumed gale which' floats

From spicy Scrindip* o'er moonlight boats. All that was exquisite in sound to her Seem'd natural, as to the violet blue Its delicate fragrance, or as that pale hue Is to the spring cherished primrose—but to

To breathe, were sacrilege.-While such sweet song

Like honey dew, upon the enchanted air Fell tenderly—Oh! who could listen there Nor feel as it each note did but prolong The Angel music of a happier sphere.

* Ceylon.

. We earnestly hope that the author of the above admirable Sonnet will frequently re-member us. We shall always be happy and proud to insert his communications, which, judging from the specimen just given, must be emanations of the true art unteachable untaught!'-BD.

Extract of a Letter from the Pilot of the Ship Lady Blackweed.

The Ship Lady Blackwood, Captain J. Hall, from Mexico, last from Samerang, brings no news, excepting. Augustus I., lete Emperor of Mexico, had sailed from Vera Cruz, with his wife and family, for Italy; and the States had formed a Congress, and were about forming a Central Government, but considerable dissensions had taken place in favour of a tederal Government, in opposition to the Central, but it was generally supposed the first would be established. With the exception of the Castle St. Juan de Ulloa, there were no foreign enemies in Mexico, which had not yet surrendered. In Columbia, the last strong-hold of the Spaniards had fallen, that is, Manacaido, which had enabled Gomeral Bolivar to proceed to Lima, to assist the struggling Peruvians against the Spaniards, in Upper Peru."

On the 18th October, in Lat. 10 deg. 48 min. N., Lon. 90 deg. 32 min. East, the Lady Blackwood spoke the Ship Flors, Captain Sheriff, from Calcutta, for Penang.

DUM DUM THEATRE.

On Friday right we had the pleasure of being present at the performance at the Thontre at D im-Dum. It opened with "Mey Mu nock, or the Hag of the Glen," a dramatic p eco, not passessing much interest, but on the present openion, possessing all that good performers and good scenery could give it.

The characters were all well matained, but with Lord Fire-Arran and Andrew, and the Hag Meg, we were more particularly pleased. The representative of Andrew possesses great comic powers, and had a fair field for their display. He kept the audience in great good humour, and received their loud and well deserved applause.

Meg Murnock herself was in capital trad-Meg Merrilies keeping. Indeed whatever this actor undertakes, is generally well done.

The fair representative of Lady Berthe had little to do, but that little was done, in usual, well.

All were delighted with the almost fanfantine representative of the little Malcohe, who did his part to admiration. He is a fine little fellow, and looked "Pretty as moon-heams that on water dance,"

And lovely as the flowers that grow in France."

[Poetry of the Della Crusson School.

Lord Walter and Duncan were also well represented.

When the curtain dropped on "Meg Murnock," the audience were entertained by a dance performed in the finest style. The grace and agility of the dancer commanded the admiration of all, and we need not add received their due meed of applause.

To the dance succeeded a new song, which seemed to afford considerable pleasure.

This was followed by the "Reprisal, or the Tars of old England," a light dramatic piece by Smoller. In this, the truly killing Monriew Champignon shone with peculiar lastre, and courted, and frisked and capered with all the volatility ascribed to the natives of the gay land of France.

Ensign Claymore was a good muster of his countrymen. The strong national partiality and a dash of pedantry which often characterize the son of Scotia could not have been befter pourtrayed. The Latin quotations from Grorius and Puffendorff bestowed by the worthy Ensign, with true Scottish breadth and length of prenunciation, on Mons. Champignou, although lost on the ungrateful Frenchman, were by no means so on the audience, with whom they took amazingly.

The representative of the warm-hearted Sons of Erin performed his part remarkably we'll and brought forth his Bulls in true Hibernian style and tone. A little more warmth would have set off the character more strikingly.

The part of the growling representative of John Bull, is not so prominent a character as the other two, but it was well performed.

Harriet and all the other characters were well sustained.

The fight on the quarter dock of Monsieur Champignon's Ship, was exceedingly well managed, and we have never seen a battle better represented on any stage.

. CHOWRINGHEE THEATRE.

The next Play to be acted at our Drury is the excellent Comedy of "Who WANTS A GUINFA?" The characters are strongly cast, and some novelty, we have been led to understand, may be expected.

The GOVERNOR GENERAL, we learn, will honor the house with his presence, and as particular circumstagees on this occasion make it quite inconvenient for his Lordship to attend the performance on Friday evening, it is determined that it shall take place on the following night instead. It is, however, distinctly to be understood, that the nights of performance, with the exception mentioned, is hereafter peremptorily fixed for Friday.

[General Department.

GENTLEMPN,

You were apprized by my official letters of the 18th of July and 3d of September last, of the sentiments entertained by the Governor General in Council in regard to the repeated violation on the part of the Conductors of the Calcutta Journal, of the rules established by Government for the regulation of the Periodical Press.

The Editor of the Calcutta Journal, notwithstanding those communications, has since, by the republication in successive manners of that Newspaper, of numerous Extracts from a Pamphlet, published in England, covied the discussion of topics, which had before been officially prohibited, and has maintained, and enforced opinions and principles which, as applicable to the state of this Country, the Governor General in Council had repeatedly discouraged and reprohated; the Extracts themselves so published containing numerous passages which are in direct violation of the rules prescribed by Government under date the 5th of April last.

The Right Honorable the Governor General in Council has in consequence this day been pleased to resolve, that the license granted by Government on the 18th of April 1822, authorising and empowering John Fiancis Sandys, and Peter Stone D'Rozario, to print and publish in Calcutta, a News paper called "The Calcutta Journal, of Politics and General Literature," and supplement thereto issued on Sandays entitled and called "New Weekly Register and General Advertizer for the Stations of the Interior, with Heads of the latest intelligence, published as a Supplement to the Country Edition of the Calcutta Journal," shall be revoked and recalled, and you are hereby apprised and respectively required to take notice that the said License is resumed, revoked, and recalled accordingly.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your obedient humble Servant,

W. B. BAYLEY,

Chief Sec. to Govt.

Council Chamber, the 6th Nov. 1823.

EXECUTION.

At half pacify o'clock yesterday morning the sentence of the law was executed upon Reagan.

The circumstances attending this Murder are detailed in another part of our Paper, and we have now only to recend the final process of the law upon the criminal, and the behaviour he displayed upon the awful

The unfortunate man since his condemnation was attended to the very last with the greatest attention by the Revd. H. Davies; but we are sorry to say that we do not believe with any good effect, 'Till a late hour on Menday night the Revd. H. Davies with the Revd. W. At half past 7 o'clock of the morning of his execution, Mr. Davies had required his visit and did not leave him till his last moments. At 4 minutes before 8 o'clock ins nons were knocked off, and he proceeded with the greatest indifference to the place of execution, accompanied by Mr. Davies. Upon reaching it he shewed ne symptom of

While on the subject of Steam, we beg to refer our readers to the report that we have subjoined in another column of the proceedings of the Steam Speculation Committee appointed by the Town Hall Meeting. They are very fratifying, inasmuch as they serve to show that the inhabitants of Calcutta have at length determined to meet the subject of Steam Navigation with that serious carnestness of consideration which it so well merits. The patronage of Government, it will be seen, has been craved; and we doubt not but it will be liberally extended to a plan which embraces a prospect of such positive usefulness, and cheering associations. If in the consolidation of the contemplated plan any room for regret remains, it is the chance that the public spirited gentleman, whose name is so honorably connected with the subject of Indian Steam Navigation, may not reap those advantages from its adoption, which his zeal, perseverance, and great personal trouble and expence in the good cause, would lead every well-wisher of improvement and usefulness to hope for on his account. That such a chance is likely to occur, we cannot believe. Hitherto it would perhaps have been full traits of change freedom, patriotism of the most devoted the subject, but we trust a juncture will arrive, when the propriety of duly considering the point to which we have alluded must be apparent to all. Whatever may he the result of the Steam project, (and we for our own part have the brightest hopes on that head), the Indian public are, we think, bound to evince their grateful sense of the Projector's exertions in some mode or other.

A very interesting paper will be founding our Correspondence Department, regarding the brave Greeks and their glorious cause. It is the translation of a letter addressed to us by Captain Chifala, whose advocacy of the cause he espouses will, we trust, derive additional interest from his presence among us. Perhaps there is not in history an instance of national re-action more strik-ing than that of the modern Gregian revolution or more bonorable to what is underated by the term national charac-tor. But the other day the Grocks were a bye Word and a jest. That name which ance was associated with all that can add lustre and dignity to human nature, came to be used as a term of reproach! When we heard of a Greek; we thought no longer of a Leonidas, a Miethades, a Themis-TOCLES, a DEMOSTHENES. We remembered only a degraded bondsman humbled to the utmost debasement of sentunent and act by the frightful incubus of despotism. Even now, when struggling for all that cap make life valuable in the eyes of those who do not merely go by the name, but are morally and essentially MEN, there have not been wanting some who basely damp the generous andor that naturally is excited in favour of the Greeks-but even to broadly insignate that they are an' utterly unworthy race! Fortunately for the Greeks, this calumny meets an in-stantaneous and glonous contradiction in the events that have made Greece once more the theatre of sangumary conflicts and subhme sacrifices in the cause of Liberty! There never was, and never can be, a nation keenly alive to independence, and at the same time disgraced by the most odious vices, and the want of These qualities are quite personal honor incompatible—such a monstrosity in the moral world cannot exist. Wherever there is a general love of freedom, there must be general virtue for love of freedom itself,-and devotedness to it is but another name for virtue While the Greeks were slaves, they were disgraced by the vices which are inseparable from a state of slavery. They are, or almost are, free, and already are distinguished by those beautikind, bravery and fortitude under reverses. Unus jisted, the brave Greeks have already effected what not long ago it would have been proposed the most ridiculous quix-otism to attempt. They have thrown of the bitter and murderous yoke of Despotism and Bigotry,—and shall their fellow men, their brother Christians, coldly stand by, nor lend them a little aid in their hour of agony and extreme need! Let the Calcutta Public answer the question.

Last night the Second Assembly for the season took place at the Town Hall. The night was raw, chill, and rainy, and the company in consequence not very numerous. though considering the weather, much more so than might have been expected. Whatever may have been the effect of the clouds in preventing the attend ance of some of the votaties of gatety, they certainly had none on the spirits of those present. Dancing commenced we, believe, about 9 o'clock by a country d, ance which was followed at due intervals by quadrilles, which, with waltzing, were, as usual, the order of the evening,-for, notwithstanding the resolution of the Stewards that quadrilles and country dances should take their turn alternately, there was only one country dance, if we mistake not, during the evening. The standing supper in the side rooms is an improvement which seemed to give unlversal satisfaction, though some, we believe, were of opinion that it might have been so arranged as to have allowed a larger proportion of the company to find access to the tibles at the same time. For our own part we do not see how this, if desirable, could well be effected, unless the host of tea cups which occupied one room, and in vain displayed their goodly ranks to the company, should on future occasions be dis-

About one o'clock the company descended to the setting supper, in the marble hall, where a table was laid out with great elegance, displaying abuildance of all that could please the eye of the mere Platonic admirer of well-arranged tables, or gratify the tiste of those desirous of a less sentimental acquaintance with the good things

We's on the guilty of a great omission, did we are their lemank how much lighter and mer control the present glass Chandelicis in the marble half are than the dark, sombre, wooden apologies for Chandeliers which hung there last season, throwing "darkness visible" on the supper eating public.

Aiter supper a great part of the company re ascended to the Ball room, when quadrille dancing recommenced and runtimied all, we believe, about two o'click in the morning.

Other Envers have been despatched to the Courts of Vienna, Paris, Peter-burgh, and Berlin, earnestly entreating the united Sovereigns to nominate an independent King for Greece, to li-berate them from the yoke of the Turks.

The Morea is free, with the exception of Patiass and Coran, where the Turks remain blockaded. Crete is also free, after a bloody battle, in which Hassan Pacha, and several thousand Turks, were slain. The remainder retired to the fortresses of Candia and Canee, and were on the point of surrendering; after which they will be transported to Anatolia, in the same manner as the Turks of the Morea have been.

All the Islands of the Archipelago have shaken off the yoke of oppression, except Lemnos, Mitylene Scio, Rhodes, and Cyprus. An expedition was on the point of sailing to retake Scio, and to liberate the rest.

Athens, Thebes, Livadia, Missolongi, Sa-Iona, Tricala, Olumbo, Sagori, and Caterina, are in the power of the Greeks; and forty thousand soldiers, under the command of Generals Colcotroni, Nikitas. Odyssius, and Bosaii, proceeded in the month of July to attack Larissa, which contains fifty-two thousand Turks, the best troops of Rosemelia.

The Cimariate Greeks have seized the Forts of Valona and Barat; and Durazzo. Dulzina, and Autivari in the Adriatic, are blockaded by Greek vessels.

Albama has taken aims, and a vast number of the Albanians make common cause with the Greeks.

The tortresses of Modon, Auavaria, Monovasia, Corinth, and Napoli di Romania are detended by Europeans in the service of Greece. The Armenian nation have, at their jown expense, organized a militia to withing of about two thousand five hundred men. commanders are Dusoglo, whose three brothers were beheaded at Constantinople, Ancor the son of Gaspar, a lich banker who was hanged at Constantinople, and Manos the son of Stephanaki, a native of Adrianople, whom the Sultan ordered to be strangled in order to get possession of his niches. Antonachi Lazarus, a merchant of Carro, the family of Serpos, and many other families of distinction fled from Constantinople, Smyrna, and Cypress to the Morea, and after having assisted the Greek troops at the siege of Napoli di Roman a, they obtained from the Greeks, a Mosque, which they converted into an Armenian Church.

Greece is abundantly supplied with provisions by the great number of European resels that arrive daily from Egypt and the Black Sea.

There have arrived at Tripolizza commissioners from two London Bankers to trent with the Greek Government for a loan of fitty unilions, at 7 per cent. per annum, on a mortgage of all the salt-pits in the Morea and in the territory of Argos.

A Turkish fleet from the Dardanelles cons sisting of minety-six ships of war, large and small, was beaten by the Greek fleet in the month of July, 1823, near the Island of Cerigo. The greater part having fled to Patrass, the Greeks have pursued them thither.

The Pacha of Scoutra whom the Sultan had ordered to march against the Greeks, excused himself under the pretext that he was afraid of the Montonegriens.

The Sultan by the mediation of the new Patriarch appointed by himself, proposed to the Greeks to lay down their arms and only to receive from him their Prince's tributary to the Porte like those of Wallachia and Moldavia; but they rejected with disdain such a proposition, giving for reply that they wished a Christian King, and one Independent of the Turks.

The Sultan has published a Firman which has been read in all the Mosques of his Empire, by which he expressly requires that Greeks and all other Christians, subject to him, should not be molested. He, at the same time, declares that he is at war with the Greeks. It is to be observed, however, that he does not give them any more the name of Insurgents.

The Greek Government has transported the inhabitants of the small and barren Islands of the Archipelago to re-people the Morea and Crete.

Having thus succinctly related the present situation of affairs in Greece, it remains only further to state, that the object of my mission to this country is to solicit such pecuniary or other aid as the friends of liberty, of learning, and of religion, may be disposed to afford to the Greek cause, and that I shall feel very highly obliged by any suggestions respecting the best mode in which the object may be accomplished.

NOVEMBER 17.

Since our last, the weather has become beautifully serene, but not quite so cool as might be expected at this period of the season. An obliging Correspondent at Saugor, states in a letter dated 5th instant :- "This station continues very healthy, and the weather is becoming cool and pleasant. The many departures have caused a gloom in our society, notwithstanding the exertiosn of the hospitable residents here; but trust, ere long, to see a return of its usual festivities.

THE THEATRE.

(From a Correspondent.)

On Saturday night was performed at Chowringhee, the Comedy of Who wants a Guinea? The house was well filled before the entiance of the Governor General. and afforded as brilliant a display of fashion and of beauty us perhaps ever graced the boxes of Chowringhee On every side some lovely face and radi inteve caught the view, or peradventure transfixed the heart of the too unwary beholder:

So in a garden bathed with genial showers. A thousand soits of variegated flowers Jonquils, carnations, pinks and tulips rise, An I in a gav confusion charm our eyes

But to return from this flowers digressionthe Governor Gineral and Lady, and the Hon'ble Miss Anniasi entered at the usual hour, and when the applause which formance commenced The principal characters were so good, that we have really nothing to say of them, but in the way of praise. The late excellent Mr Hardcastle appeared on the present occasion as Sir Laby Mac Murrough, and looked and acted the part of that Hibernian Baronet to perfection. - Amongst other scenes, that where Sir Lary describes to the methodical Carrydot. his extremely exact and very compendious mode of keeping his accounts on his first arrival in London, and explains the mann- ance on the stage. ing and the mode of getting dished after the newest and most approved fashion, was exceedingly good. At first we thought Sir Lary's deportment a single shade too grave and stately, but this idea wore off in a great measure as the performance went on. The violent benevolenceoof the worthy Torrent, overleaping all obstacles, and sometimes leaving reason, or perhaps that coldness of heart which too often dares to assume its name, behind him in this warm and beisterous endeavours to best w happiness on his fellow creatures. was immitably well pourtrajed by an amafeur who appeared on the Chowringhee boards some years ago when our Theatre was in its infancy, and on whose re-appearance we heartily congratulate the lovers of the Drama.—Andrew Bang was by our Indian Proteus—to say, after this, that Andrew was perfection, would be a work of supererrogation. Honest Andrew's affec-tion for "Cherry Bounce" at the same time that it evinced his own admirable taste, gave much amusement to the audience; and after he became glorious, his delineation of a man in that state of blessedness was truth itself .- The primitive Mrs Glastonbury in the hands of the amateur whose representations of Old Ladies have so often de-lighted the frequenters of the Theatre, was an admirable specimen of those pieces of female antiquity, and we may add, female importance, so often seen in families in our own, our native land," under the name of housekeepers.

Fanny,-charming, lovely, peerless fair. Law I damsel's enty, and each swain's despair, was well represented by the fair Virginia of the last performance. Solomon Gundy, that Rower of Dunkirk, that Prince of Valets and of Rat-catchers, was by the late well-remembered Tony Lumpkin, and never opened his mouth without throwing the house into convulsions of laughter -in a word, Nolomon's performance was superbe, "as we say in Dunkirk." Barford was well represented by the late Approx Claudius, and Henry, by the amateur who lately made his debut as Lucius, in Virginius, deservedly 10ceived considerable applaase Hoquore, by Timkins of Amateur's and Actors, was greeted their arrival subsided, the per-very well; but perhaps would have been formance commenced. The principal chart the better of a little more animation. Janathan Oldskirt, by a veteran and most indefatigable amateur, to whom the play-loving publicare greatly indebted, was very good

The little boy could not have been better; and Heartly, Carrydot, and the tair Anny, were all that could possibly be wished.

We should be guilty of a great omission did we not mention how much and descive edly all admired the beautiful moonlight scene, where Henry makes his first appear-

It is really very satisfactory for us to know that we have friends and correspondents ready to undertake the Critic's office occasionally. We could wish if it may not appear selfish, that they would ottner relieve us from this task-not that we have any wish to avoid it altogether ourselves, but that we think it desirable to see the critic's chair now and then differently occupied; since one person is apt to contract a mannerism, that may be unpleasant. Whatever varies our pleusures is to be desized, provided such variation be, as in the instance before us, consistent with good taste and liberality of sentiment.

We have but little to add to the Theatrical report of our esteemed Correspondent, and we suspect, indeed, that we but indulge an old habit in saving a word at all, where there exists so little necessity for our doing so.

The house was in every direction as full as could be desired. The performance did seven, which, judging from our own sensations, as well as those of the persons about g was rather a more protracted period than sould be wished. The heat of the place as well as we could expenence, was very oppressive. For the sake of those whose powers of hearing may not be so acute as then more fortunate neighbours. we would again suggest to the Proprietors the accessity that exists for guarding the boxes immediately adjoining the stage, against that very powerful glare of the stage lamps, which renders them at present so visity disagreeable. Persons dull of hearing ie endeavouring to hear by sitting in these boxes, run the risk of losing an equal-It valuable sense—that of sight.

We shall not enter into our usual lengthy analysis of character as our Correspondent, with an exception or two, has anticipated us. One of these exceptions is Carrydot. It w ... i performance by a young ama eur just introduced to the boards, full of good taste and rich in promise of future excellence. All that was regutared for rendering Carrydot complete, was more caducity of appearance and attitude, and an unitormly less firm voice.

The re-appearance of the amateir who personated Solomon Gundy Was meteted by the audience with a most hearty and flattering round of approbation, which lasted some numbers. We tear it really was his List appearance—though we must evaless, that we have a langering hope of seeing him yet once more. The part of Solomon was dashed off with his usual spirit, whim, and electric power over the risible faculties.

Torrent was a very sterling performance. Visanthrophy itself must have relaxed imo a good-natured smile at his benevolent impotuosity. Several hits were very eeffitually given. We need only allude to his exclumation of "He has, he lies! war in he discovered from the evidence of his general beneficence that Barford was not the misanthrope he affected to appear The scene of Equivoque between Torrent and Oldskirt, where the former takes the latter for a landscape designer, was extremely well supported on both sides.

The part of Barford was powerfully and chastely acted-wonderfully so, when it is remembered that the amateur labored under severe indisposition while acting it; and that he rose from a sick couch and made the painful effort, for fear of disappointing the public.

Of Andrew Bung we shall say nothing, for reasons mentioned by our Correspondent and fellow entic -- Mrs. Glastonburg needs no tuither plaise. Neither does Fanny-excepting, that we entreat of her not commence till twenty minutes after for the hundredth time to speak naturally, and not in falsetto. By the way we must say something of Su Larg MacMurragh. It was an excellent performance -racy, improvous, and chaste, hut possessing a tault, of which we lear this amateur is meurable -it was too gentlemanly. We have heard of a distinction between the firsh jointleman and the Irish gentleman. We cannot at present pause to define the difference, but a difference there is. So I arry is a iontleman but our amateur made him a gentteman. One of his very best luts was his calling for the pistols, with the injunction not to forget the coffee What a capital Sir Lucius O'Trigger he could give us!

> On the whole the play passed off more heartily than we had reason to expect it would have done It reads, we are melined to think, better than it acts. Womankind, as old Monkburns would say, have too little to do with it. We have a liftle of dame Glastonbury and a little of Fanna, but to the first it is impossible to give prominent interest, and the list is an insipid. The loves of Fanny and Henry are the trilling to interest an audience, as was witnessed on Saturday, when the embiof recognition between the two provoked any thing but tears. The attempts at clap trap senument also fall rather flit upon the cars of an Indian audience, though a must be illowed, that many of the sentiments in "Who wasts a Grissy" are truly noble, and the linguage throughout gener, lly appropriate, lively, and in good taste.

SUPREME COURT. - November 8, 1823.

BRYCE PERSUS BALLARD AND OTHERS.

Mr. Fergusson applied to the Court to be allowed to amend his rule obtained on a former occasion. It was only on a matter of form that he wished for this indulgence, and not on any material point. In his motion paper, the motion was only named for an arrest of judgment or a non-out, and he now begged that it may stand that " a verdict may be entered for the descudant."

Mr. Clarke opposed the application. Sir F. Macnaghten .- The application is made on late but the Court will graut it, if the other side consent.

Mr. Claykel - We do not.

The Court did not think fit to grant the motion.

Mr Fergusson then stated that he had not, on a tormer occasion, gone into the grounds on which he had moved with a view to save the time of the Court. His learned friend, Mr Clarke, knew what they were, and on this occasion, he should not go into them.

Mr. Clarke requested that his friend would do so, in order that he may know the points on which he relied.

Mr. Turton. - Neither I nor my learned triend can have any objection to state the grounds on which the metion is founded, but we shall not enter on our argument until we have beard the other side.

Mr. Fergusson -The variances pointed out on the trial were very numerous, as were the notes made by the learned judge on the occasion, relative to them.

Sir A. Buller .-- I have taken down soveral of the oly ctions, but certainly not all that were made. I did not know which you meant to insist upon. Those which you principally relied on I have got

Mr. Fergusion. - I shall now proceed to state my objections, and as far as relates to the variances, they are objections which the other side cannot get over. There are some of them which not only give another meaning, but even another word, and thus come within the strict rule of the law. Your Lordships will hear Mr. Tuiton who will follow me, and I shall not now go into the argument, but simply point out the great number of variances and cite a few cases in point. One of the strongest of these that of the Queen and Prake in Salkeld 224. In that case, as on the present occasion, the libel was set torth according to the tenor, and the word nee was used instead of non which did not affect the sense, but simply altered the word, and Mr. Justice Holt said, that when a libel was set forth according to the tenor, every word must agree

In the record in this case, there are a great many general averments, which pervade the whole, some of which refer to all, and some to particular counts. Those which apply to all must be proved. Amore, these one states, " that at the time of colimitting the grievances the Plaintiff was a mini-ter of the Church of Scotland in the military service of the Hon'ble East India Company;"-

Mr. Clarke .- No; not in the military service, but attached to the military service.

Mr. Fergusson.—And another that he was Clerk to the Committee for controlling the expenditure of stationery in the civil service of the Hon'ble East India Company." Mr. Lushington, in his evidence, expressly denied that he was in the civil service of the Company. He said that the committee was partly civil and party military. Now this I contend, my Lords, is a very materia variance, because many parts of the libe arealleged to apply to him in that capacity. Another objection is that throughout the verments, it is not in any one place said that the libels are published of him as of a minister of the church of Scotland, and in another place it is not stated that the libels were published "of and concerning him," which is necessary. An innendo is nothing but an explanation, and although it goes to a great length in absordity yet it cannot go beyond the averment, because it is only an explanation of the averment, but here the inuendous do not only go beyond the averments, but they even give them different meanings

Mr. Clarke - Will you state which of the inuendous does so?

Mr. Fergusson .- Every one of them, all of them -- I shall now call the attention of the Court to the case of Savage as d Roberts, 2d Salkeld 894, to that of Hawkins and Hawkie, 8th East 694, to the King and Horne, where the case was gone into it great length, and the King and Marsden in 4th Moore and Selwood. In the case of Savage and Roberts, the Plaintill was a trader and Defendant said to him "you are a cheat, and have been so far certain years Mr. Justice Holt held at first that there was no need of a colloquium that this was said of him as a trader, but afterwards when he was in full bench, and I suppose, when Mr. Justice Twisden was by his side, be changed his opinion. In Williams and Sauders, A note I it is stated that the libel was not held to be actionable without a colloquium

I have quoted these cases to show the effeet of its not being averied that the libels are of and concerning Dr. Biyee as a minister of the church of Scotland, and they cannot now tack to it that he was a cleigyman, I shall now call my learned friend's attention to the famous count about the penknies, the count which make the penknives speak, - the second count I be-lieve. This stated that the Defendants caused to be published, what? not a libel, bu something in the form of another let-ter, subscribed "One of the MANY of THE COMPANY'S PEN-KNIVES." -- Among the averments I shall refer to one, which makes " no where denied and generally believed" to mean" no where denied and every where allowed" The libel is that "he was the siend of Bankes," and it then goes on to reate that if he is " he ought to be deprived of his gown," and this was explained in the inucedo as meaning," that it was generally believed and every where allowed that he ought to be stripped of his gown." This is a dashing incendo if ever there was one for we have it here that " no where domed means the same as "every where allowed." They can have no benefit of Dr. Bryce's being a clergyman, for if this is not a libel on A or on B, it is no libel en Dr. Bryce. The case of the King and Alder, Strange 280, is the next to which I shall draw the attention of the Court.

Mr. Pemberton.—Is that case cited as in point to the argument. You must not now go into the argument, but confine yourself simply to the points to which you object.

Mr. Fergusson.—That is no matter, you ought to know that. Perhaps it is an argument in point; perhaps a point in the argument, or perhaps a point which ought to be argued.

Mr. Pemberton.—At setting out you said you would not go into the argument, but confine yourself to the points of objection.

Mr. Clarke here ratorfered and reminded Mr. Pemberton that as they were to show cause against the rule Nisi, they had no reply He begged Mr. Fergusson to go on.

Mr Fergusson.—The leader on the other side says he knows nothing of my objections, and the junior seems to know too much, and to be afraid that he shall get possession ot all my case.

M) Turton was then heard on the same aide I will not offend my learned triend. Mr. Pemberton, by entering into the argument now, but only state the points to be argued. One great objection is that the averment stated that Dr. Bryce was in " holy or-This was not proved. - Another that Mr Buckingham "acquired a licence from the Court of Directors to proceed to India in the capacity of a free maimer." was not The resolution of Government reproved voking his licence was not proved. The letter on the same subject signed by Mr. Bayley was not proved. This relates to the 1st and 5th counts, and there is no averment eo necting them. Another of Setion to the 1st Count, in arrest of judgment is, that it was not averred that the libels were "talsely and maliciously printed and published "but simply that they were prested and rabbished. On the 2nd Count there were separate inducements, which by the bye extended to all the Counts. One of them stated that " if was the duty of the Plaintiff to give more tice that a supply of certain articles was required." This was not proved. I do not remember that any person proved this.

Mr. Clarke - Yes, Mr. Lushington proved

it, and the sirear of the office.

Mr. Turton —I am not quite certain as to this —Mr. Lushington was examined several times, and I do not remember that he proved it. In that Count also, it was not state! that Dr. Bruce had any congregation, and how his conduct could "searce the congregation" that is, of the Church of Scotland generally, I am at a loss to know. In the 3rd Count, it is stated that his conduct was "incompatible with the clerical character;" now there is no proof of his being a clerk, except of the Stationary committee.—Then it is stated that he had "obtained permission from the Governor General in Council to proceed to Europe," but no such permission was shewn.—Then there comes the invendo about the general assembly, but there is no proof that ever Dr. Bryce sat in it

Mr. Clarke - Dr. Hare proved this.

Mr. Turton—But he could not put in an inducement. The Court sitting here as a Jury must take notice of nothing but what is sufficiently stated in the averment.

Sin F Macnaghten I find it written here, that the Court and Jury must understand words like the rest of mankind.

Mr. Fergusson.—That was held, my Lord, in the case of the King and Horne, for a libel on the King's troops, and a question arose as to what was meant by the King's troops, Mr. Horne contending that "troops" coming from the French "troopsaux" meant only flocks.

M: Two ton - It may be sometimes that the words of a libel are plain and unambiguous, and in that case, the Court requires no explanation, but the Jury cannot take notice of any thing not set forth in the averment. In the 5th count, it is stated in the inducement that " certain letters addressed to the Editor of the John Bull, signed a Friend to Bankes, had been publised in the John Bull newspaper," to prove which, not even an attempt was made, and the count is unintelligible without such proof- There is also another inducement to the 5th count wantad, relative to the revocation of the licence. The inducement is confined to the 1st count, but reference is made to it in the 5th, in which there is no inducement to support it. In the 5th count also, there is no inducement that it is" the duty of the General Assembly to protect the kirk dignity. There is one maindo, and one only which I know to be correct. There is one however which is very erroneous, the trans-mission of Mr. Buckingham is not the resplution of the Governor General in Coun-Til, but the consequence of it. The resolution was not proved, and my learned friend ought at least to have his murndoes in English. Another objection is that Dr Bryce never was attiched to a military station, although he is described as a chaplain in the military service the Hon'ble East India Company In the 2d count I do not know what innendo to fix upon, for they are all alike. The libel has it 'to whose tail these ought to be gummed, &c." Now the inuendo to this to whose tail these ought to be gammed, meaning, to the tail of him the said Dr. Bryce." But my learned friend should have gone further, and told us how these were to be applied to Dr. Biyee's tail, and where his tail was to be found. Then the libel went on, "his cloven feet, his horns and tail" and the inuendo explained this as meaning" the cloven feet, the horns and tail tell us how they are to be applied.

But the next is, if I may venture to use the expression before your Lordships, the very devil of an inuendo. The libel is stated in the muendo to be intended as an allegorical description of the natural disposition of Dr. Bryce. But it is meant not to apply to the devil, or to liken Dr. Bryce to him, for I never yet heard of the "cloven feet, the horns and tail" of Di Bryce, nor did I ever hear the devil spoken of as "continually butting". The description therefore is intended to apply to the Bull and not to Dr. Bryce. There was then the inuendo about the church, but no church was mentioned, and after I have gone thus far, I am sure the Court will own that my learned friend has extended his invendoes too far. The libellous matter charged in the 3d count was " that holding such a situation as that of Clerk to the Stationary Committee was incompatible with the clerical character," and this had not been proved. I merely wish now to point out some of the most glaring objections, and I have passed over very many of the less important ones. The libellous matter charged in the 5th count does not extend to any thing more than fair discussion as laid down in several cases. It does not refer to Dr. Bryce, but only to what would have been done to an English Glergyman in certain circumstances. It is just this, if you do so and so, then the consequence will be so and so, There should have been an inducement to fix it upon him. But suppose it to be true, still I contend that it is no libel against Di. Bryce, for he is not in the situation predicted It says, it you were an English clergyglish clergyman, then it has nothing at all to do with you. In another part of the alleged libel it is stated that " he had laid himself open to censure," and it was prosed by Dr. Halliday and Dr. Hare that he had done so with the strict party. But even this does not apply to Di Biyce, for the reasons before named. D. Biyce did not offempt to prove that any one had refused to associate with him on account of the hhad but buly on account of his accepting the situation referred to. The fearned counsel here concluded by apologizing to the Court for the length at which he had ad-

Mr. Fergusson.-With regard to the variances in the record, my Lords, I am sorry to say that the slip of paper on which they meaning "the cloven feet, the horns and tail of him the said Dr Bryce." My learned friend has thus provided Dr. Bryce, by his own shewing, with all these places to guin the verses to, and the least he can do is to tell us how they are to be applied.

Were written at the time of the trial is lost, but I will read to your Lordships a tew of them as taken at that time. There were "advices" for "odious;" "firring" for "fizzing," and "freelessly" for "feziless-" to be dessly the verses to, and the least he can do is to tell us how they are to be applied. the record to-day, but this can do the other side no good, but rather harm.

> Mr. Turton.-It will not only do them harm, but whoever has done it, is guilty of a felony.

> M: Clarke.-My Lords, I deny most fully that it was done by, or with the knowledge of, Dr. Bryce, his counsel or attorney, we never heard of it until this moment. The whole transaction has taken place in the ofhee of your Lordship's Court, and I believe with the most blameless intention.

> Mr. Lewin.-Nobody ought to know any thing about it.

> Mr. Clarke, -- The other side mentioned it, and it then became my duty to disclaim it in the most unequivocal manner

> Mr Turton and Mr. Fergusson - We do not think that it has been done with a bad intent on.

Mr. Clarke -- I am perfectly satisfied on that head, but I thought it my duty to make the remark; lest a bad construction should Mr Clarke be put upon the circumstance then proceeded to address the Court in answer to the objections of Messis. Fergusson and Turton, and in opposition to the rule of The leained gentleman prothe former. ceeded nearly as tollows :-

My Lords, I suppose that my learned friends has enow stated to the Court the points upon which they mean to reply, and that they will not attempt here after to being forward others, or if they do, that I shall be allowed to reply to them. I shall speak first of all to the variances, because I equceive they will have less weight with the Court than the other arguments of my learnman and did so and so, then such would be get friends, and I shall therefore some distinctions equence, but it you are not an En- spose of them. The power of correcting erfors proceeding from copyists is provided for by the 8th Henry 6th c. 12.

" By this act the justices are further empowered to examine and amend what they shallthink, in their discretion, to be the mispinsion of their clerks, in any record, process, word, plca, warrant of attorney, writ, panel or return And by the 8 Henry 6c. 15. they may amend the inisprisions of their clerks and other officers, as sheriffs, coroners. &c. many record, process or return before them, by error er otherwise in writing a letter of syllable too much or too hule." Tidd. 745. If your Lordships suppose that these errors in the record have proceeded from the incorrectness of native writers, you will of course immediately dispose of them. A greater latitude must be allowed by this Court in a country where none but native writers are employed than at home, and although the Act of Parliament would have a great effect in any place, yet it must have more effect here than any where else, and I shall now leave it to your Loidships whether these are not more clerical errors, such as the greatest cure cannot prevent in this country were none but native writers are employed, and as such entitled to the consideration of the Court.

One thing has been noticed by my learned friend, who last spoke and who said, as nearly as from my notes I can collect "that he broadly insisted upon it that the matters contained in the 5th count were no libely on Dr. Bryce." Now I happen to know that there is a difference of opinion on the subject of libel between my learned friends, and the other day when something was said about the new spapers, Mr. Turton replied very good naturedly that he did not care what they said of him, but not to Mr. Fergu-sen, who appeared built at it, and said among o her things that he did not think

bioself deserving of it

Mr. Fergusson.—My learned friend is mistaken . I said I did not care what they said of me; they may say what they fike, and I now give them all notice, that say what they will, I will not bring an action against any of them.

Mr. Clarke, - Well, bert so then but still you thought, and said you did not deserve it, which at least was wincing a little, and not like Mr. Turton who did not care about weighing his own deserts, but I do contend that the matters charged in the 5th count are most libellous. It is a direct appeal to the Court of Directors to remove Dr. Biyer from the situation of Clerk to the stationary committee, and to the General Asscribly to deprive him or his gown, and I must be of opinion that this is most libellous,-My learned friends have started another objection, because the last was not proved that Ur. Bryce is " a monster of the church of Scotland in how orders." But I submit that his being a parson is not the gist of the action, and that it it is libellous of him in any other character, it is libellous of him without his element character being proved. Suppose I failed in proving that he was a person in boty orders but had proved that the matter or agents is libellous of him in some other character. then I concend that he has are he to come in to Court in that other electricity, and admand dimages to the extent of the minur done him in that character. But the question was never traversed and not attempted to be disprove ed. I shall now request the attention of the Court to a case in the 8th Term Reports 303, Moiston and Thornton. In this case the plaintiff was a physician, and the defendant said "you are a quack." The action was brought for slander, and here the libel was directly on him in his profestional character, and consequently it was necessary to prove his profession. The quessician? If he was not one hi was the other. It is here increly stated that the plaintiff is a clergyman and that the libel applied to him as such, and it was not necessary to prove that he sat in the General Assembly not that he was ordained. It was not here asserted that the plaintiff was not a clergy-He was not injured in this way, as to the case I have just referred to, where the plaintiff was told he was a quack, and no physician, and the refore I contend that what has been done is quite sufficient. The Court has been told too, that it was not sufficiently proved that Dr. Bryce was in the civil service, but I think it was. Mr. Lushington stated that the click of the stationary committee was paid out of the civil fund, and that his is a civil situation. On being cross-examined he said that he should not call him a civil servant, but the only distinction was that he was paid out of the civil fund. For my part, I imagine that the term "civil servant" is only a local description, or (I speak it without meaning to give offence) a local title arrogated here by a certain set, who seem to consider that it confers distinction. But a Court of Law is not to adopt prenhar and local opinions as a rule for its decisions, and if the question is what branch of the service he belongs to, that question is to be replied to by ascertaining out of what fund he was paid

Lushington's evidence

Mr Clarke,-This merely makes out what I was just young to say that it is a distinct tion of gentlemen themselves, and that when a person is paid out of the civil hand, it ought not to be asked whether he was a civil servent. But suppose that it is not proved soll it he were rightly described in spaceplace and not in snother, the bad des-emption would not vitiate the good one

I now come to the innendoes of the epigram of which so much has been heard. The material care first verse that it meant that the prombti was devoid of every virtue which should distinguish a Christian pirest does not appear to me to go too tar.

The two first lines are the beat of which I bear the brand With vice is deep impressed,"

This is an allegorical description of & heart deeptdy impressed with sice, and surely that is had enough. "But oh!" the a live particle but" implying, that had a light may be "which went before the interjection " oh !" which follows the med to some one's tail, and the inuendo exonly serves to enforce this, and surely the inuendo does not go too far in asserting that no Christian virtue can exist in'a heart of this sort ;-a heart worse than one "deep impressed with vice."

Sir F. Macnaghten.-This may be very good in argument, M1. Clarke, but it perhaps exceeds the office of an invendo.

Mr. Clarke .-- It is the object of an inuendo, my Lord, to explain the libel, and when the libel is allegorical, it must go further than it would do in describing a mere matter of fact.

Another argument which applies to many of my learned friend's objections, and particularly to that, that the libel does not apply to him because he is not described as a minister of the churc! of Scotland is to be found in the case of the King and Horne. It is as follows.

" To apply these principles to the case of a libel. I may happen that a writing may be so expressed, and in such clear and unambiguous words, as that it may amount of itself to a libel. In such a case the Court wants no circumstances to make it clearer than it is of itself. And therefore all foreign matter introduced upon the record would be only matter of supercrogation.'

Now, I would ask, can any man read these publications, and say that they are not clear and unambiguous in their reference to Dr. Bryce as a minister of the Church of Scotland ! common understandfug clearly states that they are. Another instance, would have explained it. objection has been raised to the first count because it did not state that the publication was "talsely and maliciously published of Dr Bryce" But supposing this to be an er-Yor, I submit that it is quite clearly implied, not by what follows, but by what precedes the averment: The passage is " to vility the vaid plaintiff and to bring him into dis-grace" &c that it was false and malicious libel, and as mylearned friends have done. this, I contend, is quite sufficient.

There are still two other points, but I do not wish to go into them at such length as my learned hiends have done. - One of them is about gumming the verses to Dr. Bryce's tail, and in this the innendo is a mere expla-The words of the libel are that they ought to be gummed to some one's tail, and all the muendo does is to point out the person to whose tail they ought to be something worse is about to follow, and gummed.-The libel says they must be gumplained that the writer of it meant that they ought to be gummed to Dr. Bryce's.

The other point to which I referred, is that relative to " the cloven feet, the horns and tail," and on this point my friend, Mr. Fergusson at the time of the trial fell into a little mistake, which is perhaps the reason he has fought shy of it now, and left Mr. Turton to try his hand at it. Of Mr. Fergusson's mistake I shall now avail myself, and the ingenious illustration which he then gave under an erroneous impression, will clearly show the correctness of the inuendo. Mr. Feigusson not having used his spectacles, read the libel "his cloven feet, and then told us that the word " feet" shewed it meant the Pull and not the devil, for he asserted that the devil had but one cloven foot-I do not knew whether my learned friend ever saw the devil, but he instructed the Court that in all pictures the devil was represented as a smart gen-tleman at a Whist table, with one foot displayed dressed up in a fine silk stocking, and the cloven foot just peeping out. Now I avail myself of this Deal at the card table of my learned friends, and when the Court know, that in point of fact, it is "toot" and not "feet" in the original libel, the Court will perhaps agree with Mr. Fergusson, and consider that the word being "foot" it must mean the devil, and not being "feet" it cannot mean the Bull, as Mr. Turton now, and Mr. Fergusson in the first

Sir F. Macnaghten -The proof of this is matter of evidence and not of inuendo.

Mr. Clarke.—There is another objection of my learned friend's relative to " scaring his congregation," and I say that it was not necessary to prove that he had one since it was proved that he is a minister. The words are, "his congregation;" whose? why, the plaintiff's, and the muendo is correct in making use of the terms it has done. Mr Clarke -It does not, my Lord, or I find my learned friends have made many more properly it is part of the averment it- other objections, but they all appear to be enswered by the general principles which I M1. Claile.—Now here it is stated have laid down. I do not wish to be trou-that the libel was published "to villy and blesome to the Court, and therefore I shall bring him into disgrace" and afterwards not go into the variances at the same length

> Sir F Macnaghten - I should like to have a little more about them, for they are very Is one of your counts without a important variance?

> Mr Clarke .- They are merely misprisions, my Lord, arising from the mis-spelling of words inseparable from employing native writers, and in this case I submit the largest latitude in its discretion of the Court, should be exercised.

Sir E. Meenaghten.—I should be sorry not to allow the very greatest latitude the law vests in the Court.

Mr. Fergusson.-My Lord, a very little care would have prevented all this.

Mr 1 larke. - I would again call the attention of your lordships to the Act of Parliament. The variances are merely the substitution of one letter for another, which could be easily recognized.

Mr. Fergusson. -There were also many errors in the plaint, and the word "lately which is in the libel is left out both in the plaint and record.

Mr. Turton.-The words "I trust therefore" are also lett out.

Mr. Clarke - Relative to the judgment rot being entered up, perhaps this is the time to state it was in consequence of a promise made by the other side to pay the costs.

Mr. Fergusson and Mr. Turton both rose to oppose any reference being made to this circumstance.

Sir F. Macnaghten.—Are the variances in the muchdoes or in the libel itself? Is it disputed that they exist, or are they in the

Mr Clarke .- I cannot answer that question, my Lord .- I only know that Mr. Fergusson, Mr. Turton and Mr Hogg pointed them out, and that they merely appeared misspelling of native writers, and therefore your Lordships have a right to correct them under the statute

Mr. Turton - This only applies while the record is before the judges. I remember when Mr. Baron Graham could not correct for any time after the four days even if a a record because no justice of the Court of King's Bench was on the circuit.

Mr. Fergusson - I am happy now to inform your lords aps that the paper on which the variances were noted at the time of trial is now found, and I shall proceed to point them out to the Court - In the 1st Count there are "intusted" for "entrusted"; "in y" fo in your", "obriorious", for "obnoxious", in the passage "who has lately so thatinguished himself in the walks of wai" the word ' lately" is felt out; gave for "grave,," and "fobid" for "forbid"

In the second the variances are as follows: Comparisons are sometimes advices, for "Comparisons are sometimes odious"; "firring" for "fizzing;" "stail" for "tail;" to get rid of the devil's foot, there was "fait" for "foot:" and "freelessly" for featlessly

In the 3d count there were the following variances; "teen as under" for "tear asunder;" for months laid against Dr. Bryce"; "Bryce" is omitted; both these are also

In the 4th count " to eke up" was turned pto " to ikup" there was " took a main in a provincial magazine" for " took a share in a provincial magazine; and "annained" arraigned."

In the 5th count there are "uhach" for "that;" "felt" for "feel" and "ferust therefore" is left out.

Mr. Clarke.- I have still one cause, my Lords, to shew against the rule on the g ound of irregularity.—They did not come i to move to set aside the verdict, or far an arrest of judgment during the four firstdays of term.

Sir F. Macnachten.-I have some recollection of a cause in which it was held that an arrest of judgment may be moved for at any time before judgment is entered up.

Mr. Turton.—It was so held, my Lor. in the King and Burrowes -1 believe a ere was one case in the Court of King's B th. in which when an application was made to t'e Court, they said "Oh! ves. it sou move any time before judgment is en ned, yon are in time.

Mr. Fergusson.-It is so laid down, my

Lords, without distinction

Mr Clarke. -T' e rule fint after treal, the defendant is at liberty a most where the four days, this time is given to him and no more.

Mr Figurion - Four days is the one limitted for many trings. It is a rule that you must ple id in four days, but it is dady dispensed with.

Sir A Buller -But you cannot move for a new trial after the four days

Mr Fergusson. - In Tida 935, it is held that an arrest of judgmeat may be moved new trial has been previously november

Mr. Pemberton then addressed the Court on the same side as Mr Clarke. I shall begin, said the learned counsel, by submit inc. to the Court, the 48th rule of the pier side and contend that an irrest of judgment in consequence of this rule, must be moved for within the four ways. Fix words of the rule are clear, and if it was made to alter the rule of the King's Beach is relearing to this Court. I submit as a prehima v that this is a point which may be determined by an officer of the Court

Sir F Macnayhten -I should be as happy as any on to do this, and should feel as happy as any man if the Court could not receive this application.

Mr. Pemberton .- I shall now proceed at once to the most material objections to me inuendoes. My learned triends have quited two cases in which no colloquiun is made. It will appear in the werds of the sa themselves that general allegation or speficient. I am now about to quote cases in reply to one cited by Mr. Feigusson in which it was held that it was no libel to sall a man a cheat unless he was a trader. The first is in Crook, 14, and was an action on the case of words. In this case the Court gave judgment in favor of the Plaintiff. Another case was that of Hill and Starkie, in which it was held that unless a man wa- au attorney it was no libel to call him a common barrator. In the case now before the Court the plaintiff was stated to be a clergyman, and although proof of this was necessary in some cases it was not in this

Sir F. Mucnaghten - But Mr. Clarke went further and even supposed him not to be a olergyman and I think this would do.

Mr Pemberton .- 1 have also, my Lord, another case at hand respecting the amendment of the record; that of Movie versus Stracey in Taunton 588 -1 shall however only submit generally that the Court will not interfere with invendoes which are nonsensical. The libels are so clear against Dr. Bryce that I shall not mention the fact I shall now mention the case of Camden ver-In that case the attorney gesus Robison neral of Chester had been designated is attorney general only, and was set forth in the inuendo s as meaning of Chester, and this extension of the inucidoes was held to amount to nothing at all.

Sir F. Macnaghten - The inneudo which turns "no where denied" into "every where allowed" is a very material one.

Mr Pemberton,-There is also another objection relative to the word "malicious" in the record.

So A. Buller.—Can a nonsuit be moved for after the expiration of the four days Mr Fergusson - I know of no reason a-gamst it my Lord.

the new trials are likely to occupy eight or nine days, the Court give notice that gentlemen wishing for them must give in their papers to the clerk of the papers

Sir A. Buller .- But this is rather against

Mr. Turton -A point reserved by the judge alwa s amounts to a stay of judgment, and I submit that one may move for a new trial or an arrest of judgment in such a case a is time before judgment is signed it is not necessary to use the words ' talsely and ma'icrously" on the authority of Mr. Justice Rowe. The d claration stated the libel to be malicious, and this is sufficient to answer the objection on that point Lhave but a little more to say, and that is on the subject of the variance. Your Ladships المحمد look at them in the record, and will use your own discretion in grant ng ta mor not. I commed ourselves to the objections on which we relied for setting aside the rule, and the case now stands as if the other, which we relied for setting aside the rule, being Editor, of the Calcutta Journal, and the case now stands as if the other, Mr. Clarks.—Mr. Buckingham was not still had shown cause in the first instance, Editor of the C floutta Journal at the time and I now appear in support of the rule. As tar as I can judge, my learned friends have left my case untouched. With regard to the want of proof not a word has been and With respect to Dr. Bryce being a military chaplain in the service of the Company, Mr. Lushington positively swore that he had never been attached to any station, and it is hard that he should be so because he is paid out of a particular fund. I do not know that Mr Lushington said that, but he did not say that he was in the Company's inditary service, so far from it, he said that he was paid at the Treasury.

Sur A. Buller - Mr Lushington said that he was not at any military station, but that! his designation was actached to the milita-

13 Service.

Mr I eigusson - Not so; bu that he was paid out of the civil fund, and the other side have not provide any thing on that ground. Another ave ment was that Dr. Brice was " a minister of the church of Scotland in holy orders." This I say was not proved either, and I remember that Mr. Alt, who was in a bad humour with me, (I know not for what reason, he had no cause to be 50,) said that he was not in holy orders. Dr. Halliday also, who was at one time himself a probationer, and than whom no person could be a better judge, did not consider him in holy orders. The words might have been done without, for they made a distinction in the damages. and it had not been proved that he was in holy orders. If you state a thing with too much particularity, you must take upon Mr. Turton. - The practice is that when it he properties it is material; but if it be immaterial, then it is nonsense. Neither of these two prefaratory points have been proved, and they must be material, because my learned friends have met me by vaying that in every one of the counts, Di biyce's clerical character was icterred to, and this being the gist of the action, it they failed in proving it, it isll to the grand As far as regards the other prefaratory matter, my learned nieuds must have been at considerable pains to make that innocen, which might have been Mr Pemberton - I igain advert, my Lord Abellous before. Then with regard to Mr. to the word "maherous" and contend that Buckingham being Editor of the Calentia Bucking bam being Editor of the Calcutia Journal, it was not averred in the pretaratory matter that he was Editor of the Calcutta Journal, not was it even said that he was t en believed to be so. Your Lordships will observe what has been said. - Not that he was hving in Calcutta at the time; but that he was absent, nor was it, as I said be-fore, even averred that he was considered to be the Editor of the Calcutta Journal, but it was averred that he was not even hiving in Calcutta which was miterial to his;

the letter was published, but he was at the time it was written. The words " your transmission" furnish full proof on the subjert.

Mr. Fergusson —It might just as well he said that Mr. Sandys, now no longer an editor, may a week hence receive a letter and be still editor of the Calcutta Journal. I now come to my third objection as to his heense from England It was stated that during the time he was living in Calcutta he was editor of the Calcutta Journal. But my learned trient should go higher .- He never yet has proved that Mr. Buckingham had a licence. Now even in an action for goods sold and delivered, the first thing that would be said, would be, "show a certificate," instead of that my learned friends have produced a letter which is no certificate at all. The revocation of the licence is not proved, nor the letter of Mr. Bayley, intimisting the same. The other side did not give us notice to produce them ad so this could not be done. These three material objections refer to all the proceedings, and I should think them enough A letter was addressed to a person as editor of the Calcutta Journal, and there was no proof that he was so, and unless no other person was ever before editor of that paper, this could not prove any thing.

Su A Buller - The question is, whether Mr. Buckingham was editor or not?

Mr Fergusson. - I will ask your Lordships whether the resolution of the Givernor General in Co meil to revoke a hernee is transnussion? There was a time, a day given, and this inuendo goes on to state that the heence being made void was the transmis-The case is quite different and therefore this inuendo is as had as possible

Sir F Macnaghten .- It is necessary that Mt Buckingham's transmission should be proved as it is only in ease. Dr. Bivee was the cause of it, that the libel referred to hun

Mr. Clarke -The letter ordering it was proved

Mr Ferguson -The next libel charged was that Di Bryce was " a person of address-writing notoriety," and this may be record which it is great praise to a person fit for it. Then there came that he was " generally engaged in occupations not very compatible with the character of a clergyman " It my learned friend means to say that " generally engaged" signifies " always engaged" then the extension of the innendo is correct. I shall address a word to your Lordships, and ask you, if any thing can be fairer in argument than to say, that if it is a person's duty to advertise for peas, ink, paper, sand and pounce, it is inconsistent for him to be also a clergyman? I say that if this is not fair argument then there is an end of every thing If, in addition to my being an advocate at this har, I were also to be a partner m an agency house, and people found tault with me for it, and said that it was not very compatible with the legal character that I should do so, I should put the money which came from both the occupations into my pocket, and there would be an end of it. But there is one part of the alleged libel which is put interrogatively, and I remember that in the case of the King and Gale Jones, in which part of the alleged libel was, that he lead asked, " Will the people of Birningham submit to the treason and sedition laws?" the King's Bench would not give a judgment and it is a question whether the part of this letter relative to Dr. Bivee being the cause of Mr. Buckingham's transmission is not in the same case. Tho libel then goes on "if it appears that the obnoxious order was issued at the solicitation of the divine who has lately so distinguished himself in the walks of war:" is this any libel, to say that he has distinguished himself in the walks of war? But what is the muendo here? Why it is that he lately distinguished himself by his turbulent conduct." Now he may have been in the field preaching to the soldiers, and thus he would have been in the walks of war, but even if he had shouldered a musket, which a clesgyman ought to do when it is necessiry, even that could not be called turbulent conduct, although some may be of opinion that it would not be quite compatible with the clemeal character

The nex alleged libellous matter was the following lines:

Are these the arts which poner supplies, A. e t' the rits by which grive churchmen T1-4

Fabi or sho it turn out so, Let me and mine mtunite

Now it was not meant to say that Dr. Bryce gained his situation by these arts. But what was the innendo' why 'that he had gained his rise by mean and dishonorable aits." Thus much with regard to the first count which I contend is sufficient to go to

In the second count, my Lord, it is not proved what is Di. Byce's duty as Clerk to the Stationary Committee This is here also a complete discrepancy, for it is insisted that U. I C E means vice, but it is the United East India Company I shall, however, leave all this for a more serious objection which my featned friend has not touched upon. This refers to the publication in "the form of a letter," which is no averment at all, and no libel is allowed. It continues, " which libelious letter," without referring to any letter | I shall next refer to the verses, and of the array stated that " he published certain malicious verses." If my learned friend asserted this, he should have gone further, and have said of whom they vero published, he should have said " of and comering the plaintiff." Your Lordships wall tend by all precedents, that throughout the a .. ment must be, that it is " of and comes eng the plaintiff". What is it to me by a lifel was published, if it does not refer . It Bivee, and unless it is stated that ere talse of him? All the cases go to 14. gth. A libel may be against the pe re, and the writer may be indict-. . 1 et, by this libel was a private grievand and at must be set forth in the avermic ! If an i concerning whom it is, add not trouble your Lordships any f a about gum ung, and firing, and), , my learned friend has sail enough o' out that already, but it is not because I think it less abourd than the parts I have ailuded to.

I now come to the 3rd count, and without troubling the Court at any length, I shall point out the averments which I consider to be had. The libel is " that it is incompatible with the elerical haracter, to blow up the coals of strife and tear asunder the bonds of Society " Now the averment no where stated that D. Bryce had done this. It then went on and said " but this is the grievous charge which has for months lain against Dr. Bryce since his return to India, and yet he, on former occa-sions so e-reful of his reputation, has, by his silence in this case, allowed judgment to be recorded against bin in the public opinion, from which as he has allowed his day of grace to pass for ever, it would appear, there can now be no appeal." Now it was proved that this was the case, and I do not think it a libel to say that when a man allows charges to be made against. him and does not answer them, that the public opinion is made up on the subject.

I now come to the 4th count, in which it is stated that "the plaintill obtained permission from the Governor General in Counoil to proceed to Europe," and after this they ave, things which are said to have taken place in the General Assembly. The preparatory matter does not assist them, because they say afterwards " that the without stating how, when, or where this had taken place, or what Dr. Bryce had done to produce it. Before this can be made a libel. I must be convinced that it is compatible with the olerical character for a minister to have any concern with a Magazine. Dr. Halliday, who is as good a Judze as any, stated, that in the opinion of very respectable men, it was not so. It had not been proved that there was a General at all and if it is compatible with the principles of the Church of Scotland to propose to expel a minister for being ongaged in a secular employment, then it was no libel to say that Dr. Bryce had done what any one else might have done,

I shall now proceed to the 5th sount, and . with this I shall necessarily conclude, as it is the last. I suppose that it is no libel to say that Dr. Bryce "asked for and accepted" the situation of Clerk to the Stationary Committee. It then goes on to say, " I do not hesitate to say that such an avocation is wholly incompatible with the sacerdotal dignity." I would ask, is not this fair discussion' Suppose our worthy Bishop who had just arrived, were to accept of a situafrom in the Chief Secretary's department, would it not be said that it was incompatible with his other duties! I shall not give an opinion on the subject although I have one, but I should not be very angry with a person who told me that to exercise the duties of a situation in which it was necessary to advertise for pens, ink, stand, gum and tape, was less compatible with the sacordotal dignity than to visit the sick, or that the latter was more worthy of praise than a third who went to fairs and dealt in black cattle. I shall be of this opinion when I go home, and see it in my own country and it I am not of this opinion, I shall not be augry with people who are, because I shall believe that it is their sincere and conscientious conviction.

The alleged libel goes on to say "I feel confident that our worthy masters in Leadenhall Street will not confirm it." Is it any libel to speculate upon the probable actions of the Court of Directors, and to say that they may conceive another person more fit for the situation than Dr. Bryce, "A preacher of the gospel should not sir at the receipt of custom"; this strong, but fiere he sits in his office distributing pens. ink and paper, aye, and receiving them for all I know. This is only fair discussion and in speaking of it, I only claim the right which belongs to me of speaking my opinion on any subject, and this I will do every where, in spite of any act which may be passed to the contrary, and this too, unt only by word of mouch, but also in writing, The alleged hiselfous matter then goes on . I feel quite satisfied that if any ministet delinquent was expelled from his living," of the English Church were to accept such assituation of mere gain (it cannot be called zeal for the welfare of mankind) he would be deprived of his canonicals for ever." certainly do not think that this is a place of honor or dignity, and there can be no question that Dr Bryce did not accept of it for the good of mankind.

The next part of the libel to which I shall refer is that which states that for asking for and accepting of this situation " Dr. Bryce ought to be publicly reprimanded by those at home." The inuendo to this is the most thumping one of all. According to it "those at home" can mean no one but the General Assembly. I really thought it meant the Court of Directors, and if your Lordships think so, why take it so. It may mean those who appointed Dr. Bryce to his situation. I do not know whether it is the duty of the General Assembly to protect the kirk dignitv It may be the senate of Edinburgh or Glasgow he belongs to, and who would reprimand him wherever he may be for acting meconsistently. After this there comes the gist of the libel, that "his gown ought to be taken from his back"

This language may be improper, it ought perhips to have been more temperate, but if he was the person who did write the letters signed "A Friend to Binks," it was not, much too had. I have troubled the Court at great length on these points, which will be much bette, heard from my learned friend than from me, but I would still remark in conclusion that I take it for granted that I can move for an arrest of judgment or a nonsuit it any time before judgment is entered up, when a point is reserved by the judge.

Mr Turton .- My Lords; after what you have heard from my learned friend. I shall b very brief in my remarks, but while the so writes fresher your Lordships' memories, I wish to show that the last immendo gives a meaning to the passage which does not belong to it. The sentence is as

" Dr B yee by seeking lay employment, has full himself open to censure, and if he is the File it of Blakes, which is generally behived and an where demed, he deserves to have his a swar along from his back."

Now what is the active lead to the relative "which?' not that it is generally believed and no where demed" that he ought to have " his gown tak-n from his back," t'at it is ' very where believed and no where demed" that " he is the Friend of Bankes." -The other side stated that an a former occusion by Bryce had taken the proable to deny a report in circulation of him, and on this occision he has not done so, inche has thus brought an himself, a belief, and if this belief be true, then the libel says he ought to have his gown taken off The other side says that the libel alleges that it is every where believed and no wher denied that Dr Bryce ought to have his gown taken off, but this is not so, for the libel only alleges that it the report be true, which Dr Bryce has given strength to by not deaying it, then, in the opinion of the writer only, he ought to have it done. This is only stated hypothetically, and therefore it is not libellous.

Another point upon which I mean to rely, is that the Court sitting here as an English Court will treat the law of Scotland as it would be treated in the Court of King's Bench or Exchequer. To prove foreign laws, parole evidence is necessary, and therefore there should have been an inducement that it is the duty of the General As sembly " to protect the kirk dignity," and then this inuendo will apply.

I shall also state broadly that some of the inducements rest upon the resolution of the Governor General in Council relative to the removal of Mr Bucking-It has been argued that matters ham. may be introduced which are immaterial. I own that where they can be separated we do not want proof of some of them. Bet in no one case has it been thus argued on this occasion, and unless it was first proved that Mr. Buckingham was removed, no evidence can be given of the letter ordering it. It is sufficient in the case of a constable of a place to say that he is constable of such a place and I remember in the case of the King versus Goulburn, it was only stated that he was Governor of Upper Canada, without saying that he was duly appointed. If we had gone on with this, we must have proved the appointment under the royal sign manual, and this case refers to Dr. Bryce's being appointed to the military With regard to his clerical chaplaiscy. character I shall not go into that, nor into the other points into which my learned friend has gone so fully.

I shall however advert to the 4th Count, and in this there is no averment that Dr. Bryce ever was in Scotland, or that the General Assembly have such powers as are imputed to them. The Court sitting as a Jury cannot pay attention to any thing which does not appear in the record, and as there are no legal means of giving any thing in evidence which does not thus appear, confend that we are entitled to an arrest of judgment. In several of the counts the inducements are not proved, and it is a fair presumption that if it was possible to prove them, it would have been done. The question is not now whether the record can be amended. The variances were in the iecord at the time of the tital, and if your Lordships amend it now, there must be a new trial, for a lary can only judge of what is averred in the record, -and your Lordships sitting here as a Jury are precisely in the same situation.

Sur F Mucnaghten - [feel convinced, for my own part, that the defendant received no injustice, and I never heard any one speak of this case, who did not think that The Bruce was entitled to damages. - If we shall find ourselves obliged to grant this motion, is will only add one more instance to the many which I have seen, where the forms of law have upset justice, and as far as I can, I will do every thing in my powerto maintain the verdict. There is one point as to whether the parties ought to interest for an arrest of judgement within the four days .- In this case they contend that a nearest must be entered, or an arrest of pudgment granted.—If this is not done, the rule must be dismissed with costs,—I do hope that we possess the power of amending the record, and I shall set about searching to find this out with the greatest anxiety.

Some further remarks having been made by Mr. Fergusson, Sir F. Macnaghten observed. I am not certain that the detendants will be much benefitted if their rule is granted, and I may perhaps state at once, their I am sitting here as judge, the damiges shall not be reduced.

The judgment of the Court was of course

CORRESPONDENCE.

Sin. —I have been much amused with the frequent exposures you have lately favored us with of the inventious and delusions regarding the inroad committed by the Burmese on our territory, &c &c, and I have laughed outright at the history of the whole transaction.

There is no such place of Nunf Island! The Neifts apart of the Continent, which takes its name from a River of the same title torming our S E, boundary from the Birmrus The Continent stretches West of, and dong, this River nearly 25 miles, in a direction North and South; varying in bread h from 2 to 8 miles, and the extremito o' t'us promoutory is eilled " Tek Nagt," the point of the Nital" emphatically a village of Maghs, and a Tannah of the some name being situated about 3 miles The Island 18, No the of the point itself. and always was called Shanarco by the Bigalees Sh in- Wahn by the Birmese is direct South of the Tek Neif, and only separated from it by a channel 3 or 400 a irds unde, and with C feet water at the der pest, sometimes nearly fordable, while from the Burnese shore on the I stern side of the Naaf River it is separated by "e whole breadth of the River, or a know wide storam of 21 miles across with 10 or 19 fathoms of vater it is supposed that the entrance lower down may be much shallower.

With respect to reinforcing our detuchments at Chittagong and Dicca, because the communication was cut off by the Burnin Army, it might as well be said that the Rissim Army had arrived at Cabal, and had thereby intercepted the communication between Calcutta and Patna 111 The Property of Assam, tiking Inghigopah and Fallpaia for its S. W. boundary, (for the best reason in the world, that we have posts there not vet dispossessed) is about 2 or 300 miles North of Dacca, from which it is separa ed by the whole of the Dacea Mymensiig, Coos-Behar, and Runeroux Disticts, never yet myaded. Then Contagon is about a degree S. E. of Dacea, presening the Districts of Mymensing, Tippera and Sylhet; Cachar, the Garrows, &c. &c. between the line of communication from Dacea ween the line of communication from Dacea who have never moved an inch on our conterm that direction, and from the relative positions of the places it is plain the Assam Aimy could have nothing to say to the communications between the posts or cities of Dacea and Chittagong.

What will the King of the white Mephanesay when he reads that his Army of Assemthas leapt (by magic, or by the aid of Mi Green's latest and best Balloon) from Assem to Luckipoor, over 300 miles of Mountains, Morasses and Rivers, without even touching at Sylhet, Rungpoor, Mymensing or Tippera, or the Districts of Dacca and

Chittagong themselves

But the history of the whole transacting is of a piece, and contains I am sorry to say, not one word of truth. This I have the best means of knowing. From the description I have already given, it must be evident that the Island of Shapuree; reparated from the Birman shore by a deep channel 21 miles wide, and being only a continuation of the Tek or point on our side of the River, and form by the gradual deposit of its matter from a Sand bank at first, to an Island over grown with Jungle at present, and the shallow creek which still separates it from the main, gradually filling up by the same operation of nature which first formed it. in every point of view our property. For a long time it was not worth no-tice for it did not supply water, p store, or refuge to a single inhabitant till ceru late. ly when the Buman first built d a clum to it as then property. This was so very absurd, the probability being that ere long the process of nature before mentioned will unite if to our continent, whereas it is physically impossible it can ever be joined to the Arraean or Birman shore, that the Magistrate of Chittagong about the beginning of this year, (and not before as asserted \ directed the Daroga of Tilinaaf to send a few Burkundaz and a Jemadar, with twents of the Provincial Battalion to the Island of Shapuree from this main: there to erect a Tannah and Stockade, and remain quietly on the defensive, molecular no many quitting the Island except to get their provisions from the Tannah at Tiknaaf arrangement was reported to Government, and supposed to set the question at rest. How the Sepoys could have been in the habit of laying contributions in the villages around them, which were perfectly augusti-

This village is part-I'v inhabited by many Mughs and Brimese, and is moreover detended by a very strong and large Stockade or lort, having it is said three guns, thirty-two Jinjals and a Garrison of six or seven hundred Burmese (five hundred with muskets) with numerous boats at command, the whole commanded by Nye, an Uchur-tung of rapacious and arrogant habits, and like all the Birmese Officers so bold, proud, and self-sufficient, that he was much more likely to exact contributions than to pay them, situated as I have described both parties. Our troops on the Island had no means of communication with the opposite shore ;-with the Tik they had only two rothree small fishing Boots, to cross over the creek for provision, &c. Between Tikinaat and Mongdoo there was, and is, a terry boat, and all the communications between the two great men, the British Daroya and the Burmese Uchurrung on the opposite shores, were usually made verbally or in writing thro' the ferry man of the respective personages; except when matter of greater import demanded exchange of aloam il visitbetween them, I may saidly say that a British Sepoy has never, throughout this allan, set foot ga the opposite shore, and that none, if they had, would have been such fools as to wag a tongue about contributions from a Garrison much prouder, and physically stronger than themselves. The true state of the case is as follows nearly From the first of our sendong the Guard, &c to Shapuree, the Birmese authorities talked loudly and susplently of expelling it unless withdrawn. So no letters to this effect were exchanged between the Raja of Ariacan, and our Government tancy verbal threats and messages passed from the Uchurrung to the Daroga and so to the Magistrate, but as our Government was clear as to the right of the question, the answer invariably was to the same effect. At length in Scatember a firmaun or Royal under (roal or pretended) from the King of Ava was read publickly at Arracan, in juspossessed y the twenty Sepoys, nor even a da, of Maoon or Chedub, and of Rynbin or but but will was raised and inhabited by Ramree, commanding them to detach a da, of Maoon or Chedub, and of Rynbin of uext, because the only village force sufficient for the capture of Shapuree North on the Tik, was that where our Daroga from the English, which service was entrustresided in a British Tannah with a Guard of ed to the latter it is said, the the Uchurrung a Suhadai and thirty Provincial Sepoys, (Nye) and Nakoonda his Deputy, with some who I think would hardly allow themselves other inferior chief, actually commanded and the Mughs, not Birmese, residing under the troops thus employed from Mongdool their special protection, to be plundered by They suddenly landed about two A. M. the twenty men detached to Shappree from the 24th September, with six hundred that very post and subject to it. Lastly, as men, surrounded the Stockade in the to the Birmese suffering under the contri-dark, and under cover commenced a buttons of our Sepovs, they were confined heavy fire on all sides. The two Sento the opposite shore of the Naai—a good tries out sidethe gate or kirks fell immediatible fire. The only sides are shored. The Guard, having been previously for levying contributions, is Mongdoo, warned by the Birmese for some days, are directly opposite to Tiknaaf, and lying a said to have been on the alert and at their arms in a moment. The work was a small Moois or Mahomedans, square wooden Stockade nine feet high, a double row of timbers and loop holed firing continued two hours, when the Birmese, never visible, brought forward son c junjals or small guns and loading them with sunn or hemp, it is supposed to the muzzle, soon set fire to the Straw Barrack inside, which occupying nearly all the area of the work, the Jemadar saw the whole would soon be in tlames, and bethought him of a timely retreat. The fire of the assailants increased, white his own ammunition was nearly expended. He consequently muchde off to the Creek, both sides fring, but never closing; arrived there he found that two out of three fishing Boats usually Jepi at that place had disappeared, with the Manjee and two out of three Dandies b loaging to them ;-the remaining six b ded the gater out of the third Bod wings was sunk, and stopt up a hole in his horror with a cloth, and thus the garness set off, the Birmahs ceasing their fire and on act when they were across the Crook time were killed on the spot, and four visitional of whom two are since dead time fed wounded into their heads, and they would not give him up for some time without ordeis from Ava but he has just escaped from his Guarda it is supposed, with the commission of the Burnan Chici at Muodoo. How many of the Burnans fell in the allair is not of course known, but two were seen dead mone spot some time, after the close by two of our Sepoys: + and thus they have limited then conquest to Shapurce, not even staying there by night, for fear of a rejoinder I conclude, but coming to hant and show there in the day time with much parade and estentation. Thus much for the statement of the unjustifiable contributions. -petty exactions,—insults carried to an excess, that roused this angry feelings resentment of the Burnese innocents, committed by our few poor Provincials in that quarter, restrained too as they are by a discipline and civic control, certainly au-

known to the Birmese or not much in vogue with them. It is only a year since the King of Ava released nine ont of ten poor Kedda people, (Elephant hunters of our's) whom they had seized on our territory while thus employed; pretending they had as good a right to levy taxes for catching Elephants in the forest, as we had to levy them on their exports and imports from Chittagong, &c. They were kept in durance a year (with the death of one) and then released by accident. It was only January last, they shot one of our Mugh subjects on board his own boat, for refusing to pay them Dustooice on entering the Wharf, the commen boundary of equal property of both states. The invariable insolence of their address to our Government or its Officers, their overweaming confidence and arrogance, their encroachment on all the petty states on our borders, till all are now swallowed up in that Empire, ending with the Raja of Assam, whise Govern ment they usurped, and rendered him a fugitive two years, all tend to prove the farce is acted systematically, and with malice prepense in this outrage. Whether this systematic arrogance and encroac ment is to be quietted by diplomacy, or by stronger arguments, is for the Government to decide. We can only rely on their wisdom for the efficacy of their decision's whatever they be. I have performed perhaps a duty In correcting the mis-statements which have been pro nulgated. When Symes was at Ava I believe, the King wondered our Government did not apply to him for assistance against Bonaparte. He would find 40 000 Birman, who would sweep the French nation off the face of the easter, or something to this effect equally feasable and enlightened.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZUTTE

DEAR SIR. - The casual mention made by your Correspondent, a " Traveller an Subscriber," in his letter appearing in your paper of the 29th September, of a place ofice so conspicuous as Futtehpore Sicrec, (which vour Correspondent calls Sylva,) has induced me to put down the following particulars which I hope may not prove an unaccepta ble contribution. But if I am not mustaken, Colonel Dow in his history particularly no tices this place. I have not the means of icterring to the work, which indeed, I have not seen for several years; the following sket h, which you are fully at liberty to Suppress, has been gathered from a doon me it which has falien in my way within the art few days, in manuscript.

At the time Ackber arrived at Sieree, on his way from Guzzerat, in the year 1021 of the Higerah, it was a place of no no.e, on I was situated in the midst of a jungle said to be infested with Tigers, Leopards, &cc.; probably for this reases, a k-kee, who had taken his station, (for abode it could not be called) on the top of a hill near the village, had acquired great celebraty; for it was supposed nothing but the purity of his conduct, and his extraor mary virtue, could thus screen him from the attacks of his ferecious neighbours. The cream time, together with the severe privations which the Fakeer imposed upon himsel, fine I not to have their effect wien made known to the King on his arrival at Sierie, for growever erroneous his creed in reality) Ackber w s endowed with a high sence of the religion he was brought up in . this feeting afterwards expanded into a generous sentiment of toleration for all religions.

It is already known to most, that Ackber labored under strong and painful apprelicnstons for some years, of dving without issue, and that he had constant recourse to the prayers of such as were esteemed for purity and sanctity of conduct, to remove such a curse from him : he is said even to have undergone severe pi nances, as an instance of which it is quoted that he performed a pilgrimage, on foot, from Deblee via Lahor to Ajmere, (Minais, it is said, are s'ill to be traced defining his route, and marking each day's journey) to the tomb of Khaze Moveen Noodeen: his prayers, however, at this shine, do not appear to have been more happy than they had proved clsewhere; but it is not surprising that the Pakeer at Sieree, so rotorious for living unhart in the very den of beasts should be called upon to intercede. The King recounted to the Fakeer, who it will now be discovered, could A PROVINCIAL. be no other than Siekh Sehm Chistee, the various impositions and privations which be had undergoug to emeilible the blessing, of a progeny, and the result was, that after a short lapse, the Shekh promised him he would have three children. We are here left a little to surmise, but the inference is, that the King's delight in the anticipation of the promised issue in 'uced him to prolong his stay at Sicree, and the fulfiment of the benediction in the birth of Jehangeer-to make it his principal residence: he appears to have given up fourteen years at this time without intermission, to beautifying the place, which thenceforward was called Futti HPOOR-Sicree. The Shekh became so great a involite, that at his death the King. ordered the beautiful Mausoleum, still to be seen at Futtehpore, to be erected over him. This and the Palace form, to this day, subects highly deserving the notice of the passing stranger; and in going over the latter, he will not fail to have recounted to him a variety of aneodotes of the ever-memorable Beerbul! there is now an apartment standing, and in good order, called Beerbul kee Batee ka M'hul.

I remain, dear Sir.

Disapproved,

HASTINGS. (Signed)

I have the King's Commands to acquaint you that His Majesty, adverting to the na-ture of these Proceedings, and to the Character of the Charges of which Lieutenant Colonel Robison was found guilty, has felt it necessary, notwithstanding the Death of that Officer, which occurred upon his Passage to England, to order me to convey to you such observations upon the circumstances which produced the Trial, and upon the proceedings of the Court, as may impress upon the Army in India, a more correct feeling than it is apprehended may be entertained by them (if the Proceedings in question are allowed to remain unnoticed) of the Importance which attaches to the maintenance of Discipline and Subordination, and of the necessity of checking of tempts made by Inferior Officers to set the highest authority at Defiance, and gre sly to insult those who administer Commai | in His Majesty's Name

The King was pleas'd to observe, that it would be difficult to produce any Instance in which a spirit of insubordination and of contempt for superior authority has been carried to a greater length than upon this occasion, or any instance in which the Sentence of a Court Martial has been more calculated to encourage, rather than to prevent the recurrence of Crimes of so grave a nature, and of so dangerous a tendency.

That this is shown by simple reference to the Charges which are literal Extracts from a Letter addressed by Lieutenant Colonel Robison to The Chief Secretary of the Supreme Government in India, remarking at the same time that these Charges were not only fiot denied, but that the Contents of them were attempted to be justified by Lieutenant-Colonel Robison, and that the Criminal nature of them was established against Licutenant Colonel Robison by the Sentence of Guilty pronounced by the Court.

That Lieutenant-Colonel Robison's Rank and long Services instead of being brought forward in justication of the Sentence passed by the Court, would seem to have offered additional Ground of Censure, in as much as the Court must have been aware, that the influence of such Conduct upon others, must ever be proportionate to the deference paid to the Rank and Character of the Individual-That Individust had, by deliberate acts, wholly incon-zistent with the Duties of His. Profession, and with the Trust reposed in Him, subjected Himself in the first instance, to a strong Censure passed by the Government of India, and to the consequent order for His Immediate Departure from that Country, -In the next, to Trial before a General Court Martial on Charges resulting from His obsunate adherence to the unjustinable course which had drawn upon him so deserved and so necessary a Censure.

His Majesty Commands me to say, that He cannot reprobate in terms sufficiently strong, the extraordinary and culpable lattude and license, which Lieu enant Colonel Robison had permitted himself to assume in his communications whether as conveyed to the Press and avowed by him, or as iddressed to the official authorities' the First, shewing a determination to bring into Public contempt, and to thereby subvert that Gove nment under which he was employed in the Command of an Armed Force; the second, deliberately setting at Defiance, all authority, Civil and Military, and tending to the Distruction of those Principles of Military Subordination, which It is the first Outy of an Officer to support and in ule to by Example and Precept.

The King was further pleased to observe, that if such Proceedings were tolerated, if they were not most decidedly checked, the troops intended for the P otection of the Stric, would in the Hands of Men, disposed to resort to them, or to sanction then, become the active Engines of its destruction.

That nevertheless, the Officers composing the Court Martial which tried Lie Colonel Robison, who were sworn decide upon the Charges brought against bim, according to Evidence, without partiality or tayour, and according to their con-actonees, have thought fit in the discharge of the Duty thus solemnly imposed upon them, deliberately to propounce Lieut Col. Robison Guilty of traducing the Government under which he was serving, and of falsely imputing Injustice and abuse of Power to the Commander in Chief, and at the same time to declare, under the same colemn obhgation, that there was, in their opinion thing Scandalous in such Guilty conduct, and that the Court having, in administering Justice according to their Oaths, found Licut Colonel Robison Guilty of the Charge's prefered against Him, have placed beyond the possibility of doubt, the sense which they entertain of the extent of the Crime, by applying to it only a Reprimand of the slightest character

Finally, the King, deeply impressed with the dangerous Tendency of this extraordinary Proceeding, has been pleased to command me to express His strongest disapproval of the Sentence of the Court, and of the feeling by which the Members of it must have been actuated in their Finding upon this occasion, and in passing so inadequate a Sentence, and His Majesty directs, that the sense which He entertains of the whole of the Proceedings, may be promulgated to the Army in India, in confirmation of the Sentiments expressed in a General Order issued by General The Marquis of Hastings, when he directed the Court to be dis-

REYARKS by His Excellency the Most Noble the Commander in Chief, duted Gineral Orders, 9th November, 1822.

The Commander in Chief of all the Forces in India disapproves the above Sentence from considering it to be so meommensurate to the Crime found by the Court, and not disavowed by the l'usoner, as to be in His Excellency's opinion a serious at-taint to Discipline.

The Court exonerating the Prisoner only from the Imputation of "Scandalous" attached to the Procedure set forth in the second Count pronounces Lieutenant Colonel Robisan Guilty of two Offences, one being an outrageous Insult to that Government, who h under the Orders of his Sovereign he was bound to reverence and obey, the other being a virulent and gross Crimination of the Commander in Chief, applying unequivocally to His Excellency's Offiand Conduct in that Character then, to such flagrant Violations of Military Subordination, the Court awards a Punishment appropriate solely to the lowest Class of Deviations from Military Regularity.

To account for the extraordinary nature of the Sentence, the Court states its advertence to Lieutenant Colonel Robivon's long and mentorious Services The consideration was not within the competence of the Court in the mode assumed. It such were the Court's Opinion of Licutenant Colonel Robison's Professional Deserts, it would have been fitly brought forward with a Recommendation grounded on it to Clemen v in the Quarter where alone the Circumstances could be duly appreciated. But the Oath which each Member of a Court Marti d takes, binds him to judge strictly on the substantiation, and the digree of the Crime submitted to his Verdict, and to pass such a Sentence upon it, as the established Rules, or Practice of the Army prescribe we a Special case of that Quality, without contemplating matter foreign to the immediate. Charge and the Extenuation was null.

When the Prisoner admitted the Imprudence and Impropriety of the step he had taken, he expressed no Contrition, so that his Sence of error appears to have extended merely to the consequences of which he supposed himself to be in peril. He simply accounts for the intemperance of his language by saying, that he had written und a the impulse of an Irritated Spirit, an excuse inadmissable in itself, while he defeats even that plea, by distinctly maintaining the Principle on which he acted, in a minner that aggravates the Original Ofence.

It is with pain the Commander in Chief of all the Forces in India Promulgates these Remarks. He would however, deem himself essentially wanting in the discharge of his duty, did he not seek to count ract the dangerous encouragement to Insubordination, which the Scatence in question would afford, were not its incorrectness thus exposed.

NOVEMBER 20.

We recommend to the consideration of our readers and the public the letter of our Corre- or dent L. M. N suggesting the proput to a calling a public meeting in aid of the Greekeas. We heartly second our Correspondent's wishes on the occasion, and trust that some benevolent indis-duals o, weight in society will set about making a requisition without loss of time, The cause of Chamity is one that never ceases to have claims upon the Christian, or the philanthropist of any nation, It is true, the people of Calcutta are frequently called upon to subscribe for the distressed; but so long as distress exists, it is the duty of those who can afford it to alleviate it. And who cannot allord it? There is no man so paor except he be utterly indigent, but he can spare his mite, and where can there be an object more worthy of it than regenerated Greece, the Genule cradle of that religion whose source is alone dictor and whose essence is peace and good-will on earth. Charity never ceaseth and where can it be better hestowed than in loosening thousands of our fellow Christians from cruel bonds, and releasing them from a thraldom bitter even into death? Should such of our fellow citizens as may contribute to the fund we contemplate, hereafter visit free Greece, what a delightful reflexion will it be to indugle, that they and their countrymen were instrumental in making that glorious country once more a land of Liberty! Aye, and of a Liberty more chastened, more mild, more secure than that democracy which frequently made ancient Greece an arena of tumult and disorder, and injury against her bravest sons—the liberty of Christianity and of ReaSUPREME COURT,-Nov. 12, 1823.

FORGERY.

THE KING versus JAMES FRAZER.

The prisoner was put to the bar charged with forging certain promissory notes of the Bank of Hindostan.

The prisoner pleaded GUILTY—but, upon having it explained to him that it would be necessary to prove that he had forged the documents with an intent to defraud the Bank of Hindostan, he said that he did not intend to take them to the Bank, and that he would take, his trial, thus pleading "Nor trulery."

Mi. Pemberton opened the case.

Mr. Turton addressed the Jury, and pointed out to them that the chief question for their consideration was, whether he had forged the notes to defined the Bank of Mindoostan. He has said that he did not rotend to send them to the Bank but what earthly reason could be have for drong it it he did not intend to pass them. It may be suggested that this was done by way of showing off his imitative talent. This pairs me in radid of the answer of a well-known charac-

., who when he was going to be usuged, was neked what it was for, replied" that the Bank was jealous that he could make bett r notes than they could."-I should have said, that instruments of forgery were found in his possession and several notes, and if he intended to do this merely to shew his imitative pewer, one would have answered his purpose as well as a thousand | Initition is in most things dangerous, and particularly so when it enables persons to imitate signa-tures exactly. The learned counsel then explained the several acts of parliamenticlative to forgery and concluded his address to the Jury, by observing that it is was proved that the notes and implements were found in his possession they could not doubt what purpose they were for

Thomas Alsop, Esq. was called.—I am a magistrate, and know the prisoner; I had heard on the 3rd July last that improper practices were carrying on by the prisoner. I went with Seijeant Major Macan and other attendants, and apprehended the prisoner, upon whose person some gravers was found, and in a box some forged notes, copper plates, and other articles which I now produce; I also found an attempt at the imitation of the Company's paper and some successful imitations of the writing of persons who are in the habit of signing the Company's paper; he admitted that these things were his, and was about to explain what he intended to do with them; no inducement was held out to him to make this acknowledgment, he said at the time that he did not engrave the copper plates but they were done by a boy; the deposition of the prisoner at the Police was read, where he said he did not pass any of the notes, and only did this to shew the parties that he could make the notes.

James Joseph Macan.—I went with Mr. Alsop to his house, a native knocked at the door five times by way of signal; Frazer opened it, ind on seeing me ran away; I caught hold of him and found two gravers, one in his hand and some in his pocket; I produce them; the prisoner appeared alarmed, Mr. Alsop came in and found the things he has produced, prisoner said he would tell all about it, and Mr. Alsop said that he would hear whit he had to say at the Police, Desmont was there and some people belonging to the Police; I did not know the prisoner's house before this, I lound him in it, I considered the knocking at the door as a signal, there were two natives in the house

Mr Alexander stated who were the partners in the Bank of Hindostan in July 1881.

Bissonath Doss.—I am a writer in the Bank of Hindostan, it is my duty to enter and examine the notes of the Bank, the notes now produced are forgeties, the signatures of them are forgeties, the detached part of the notes are forgeries also Conny Loll Binral —I belong to the Bank et Hindostan, the papers produced are not genume notes, and the signatures are forged also, the plate produced is not a genuage plate of the Bank of Hindostan, it is a good imitation.

Her y Tyler —I am in the Bank of Bengal, it is my duty to register the notes, the note now produced is a forgery, the silver stamps produced are like the water edging of the notes of the Bank of Bengal, the water mark of the notes comes from England, the paper comes in its present state, a note now produced is not a genuine note, it is a torgery, and my signature is also forged on it. I do not know what a native may think of it, notes ble it have been presented at the Bank for payment.

Mr. Turton said that he should nest his case here, and not go into the evidence of the natives.

Mr. Tyler recalled. I am acquainted with the Appearance of Company's paper: I do not know whether this is the signature of Mr. Holt Mackenzie.

Mr Alsop.—I am well acquainted with the signature of Mr. Holt Macketizie; this is like it; the prisoner said he wrote it.

Mr. Tyler.—The signature is like Mr. Oakes's and that of Mr. Morley is very like

Mr. Pos sworn—I am well acquainted with Mr. Holt Mackenzie's writing, this imitation is well done; Mr. Oakes's is not so well done; Mr. Morley's is very well done; I do not knew Mr. Dorin's writing, Mr. Mackenzie's signature is necessary to the Company's paper.

Thomas Desmond.—I am a constable of Police; I examined the house of Mr. Heritage by desire of Mr. Alsop, I was told some types were there, and I found four bottles of them hidden among some tools which I was told belonged to the prisoner, I brought them to the police.

Mr. Alsop.—When, these types were brought to the Police, they appeared to be like those used in these papers, the prisoner acknowledged the tools to be his, and said that the types were brought to him by a Bengalli and he had put them amongst his tools to keep them for him, this Bengalli was apprehended in the Government Gazette Press; but the people there could not recognize them.

The Prisoner said "Moischunder brought the types and I put them away, I could call many native witnesses that these things were brought to me, but they will take a false oath."

Sir A. Buller summed up to the Jury, and while they were considering of their verdict, the prisoner said, "that a bramin with a long beard lived in his house for six months, and ate Cod Fish and drank Brandy and water, and that when he would not let him live there any longer, he went to Mr. Alsop and gave this information.

The Jury —After having consulted for some time, returned by the foreman a ferdict of "Guilty," considering that the prisoner was an instrument in the hands of others, and that the notes produced were those which he intended to utter —Another Juryman said, that it was the opinion of the greater part of the Jury, that these had been made rather for practice, and preparatory to others which he intended to forge for utterance at a future time.

The learned Judge then explained the case to the Jury.—One of the Jurymen pointed out that one of the notes was dated 1881 instead of 1821, and was informed that this may have been the effect of accident or have been done with a design to evade the charge of forgery. It was pointed out to the judge that the two other notes were not numbered and were in pencil, but it was explained that completeness was not necessary to prove the crime. Another conversation subsequency, ensued, in which the foreman stated that the Jury had no wish to amend their verdict; when one of the Jury again stated, that three of their number were f opinion that the notes produced were only preparatory to others which were intended to be forged for the purpose of utterance. The Court informed the Jury that they must be unanimous, and again desired them to think further on their verdict, after which they retired, and in half an hour returned a verdict of "Guilty," but recommended the prisoner to the layourable consideration of the Court, on the ground of his being a tool in the hands of others.

'M1. Tw ton remarked, that there was another indictment against the prisoner for a similar offence, but he should not press this now. He would be the last person in the welld to interfere with the recommendation of the Jury, but the prisoner had before stood in the pillory on a similar charge.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE INDIA GAZETTE.

SIR,-The communication from Captain NICOLO CHEFALA contained in your paper of Thursday last, together with your remarks upon it, I read with feelings of deep interest. But, Sig, after all that has been written, and, for the most part, so ably written, in the Calcutta papers, on the subject of the Greeks, is there nothing to be done? Even before the arrival of Captain C. in this country, it appeared to me a sort of anomaly—a reproach upon the character of the inhabitants of Calcutta, that they contented themselves with only speaking and writing about the heroic and unequal struggle in which the Greeks have been for three years engaged, instead of coming forward to contribute of their substance to aid a cause which involves the most sacred tights, the most valuable privileges, and the dearest hopes of such an interesting portion of our race. But how much will this reproach be aggravated if their liberality be withheld after an appeal has been made to them at once so modest in words and so powerful in facts—proving both that the Greeks stand in need of assistance, and that assistance, if cannot permit myself to entertain such desponding apprehensions, especially after having learned, on good authority, that Captain C., in interviews with the Right Hon ble Lord Amherst, the Lord Bistion. and several gentlemen high in office and in character, has received the greatest encouragement to prosecute the object of his mission to this country. Let some of these gentlemen, then, join in a Requisition to the Sheriff to call a meeting in the Town Hall of all who take an interest tee he formed of those who would both take it behoves us all to be very provident in an active part in promoting a subscription, adopted for receiving the contributions of the public, of whom there are many willing and even auxious to give, and who only wait for some public and responsible channel through which they may communicate their aid to the Greek cause.

The only objection which can exist, is that Captain Chefala is personally unknown in Calcutta, and that in the event of his being entrusted with the amount subscribed, his illness, or death, or any other of a thousand possible fatalities may prevent it from reaching its destination. But this objection may be most satisfactorily removed by opening a correspondence with the London Committee for the Greeks, and through that Committee transmitting the subscriptions that may be realized. To this mode of proceeding, I am persuaded, Captain C. will make not the slightest objection, since he must have the cause of his nation too much at heart to disregard the scruples of those to whom he appeals. Let a beginning then be made, and I doubt not that the result will be as favorable to the character of Calentta as it will be encouraging to the hearts. of the Greeks. L. M. N.

BOMBAY COURIER,—Nov. 1, 1823.

Since our last publication, the Katherine Stewart Forbes and England have both atrived, the former on Monday, and the lat-to on Tuesday last. They could, of course, bring no public intelligence which has not been anticipated by former arrivals.

We have much pleasure in stating, of the authority of letters from London, received by the Katherine Stewart Forbes, that our Recorder, the Hon'ble Sir Edward West, 15 to till the situation of Chief Justice in the Supreme Court of Judicature, which it has been resolved to establish at this Pre-

It is likewise mentioned that Sir Ralph Rice, the present Recorder of Penang, would probably be appointed one of the Puisne Judges, and that Francis Forbes, Esq., late Chief Justice at Newfoundland, was also a Candidate for a seat on the Bombay Bench.

We fear we shall have much reason to lament, this year, the absence of the latter rains, called here the Elephanter. It is calculated that there is a deficiency in the usual supply of water in the Island, at this period of the dear, of almost 15 inches, and this necessary article of life. Our letters and whose rank and station would conduce from various parts of the country state the to its success; and let proper measures be deficiency to be much greater, and that a season of drought is so much to be apprehended, that the inhabitants are already icmoving to parts more favoured. Seasons of drought and sickness generally go toge-ther. Whether it is from the absence of the Elephanter or not, it is too certain that fevers are unusually prevalent on the Island at the present moment, though they are not at all considered of a serious nature. They are usually accompanied with general pains in the limbs, sickness of the stomach, and an cruption very like that known as the scarlet fever. We hear that this fever has passed through the Female Charity School, with the only instance of one child escaping. The great ventilation of the rooms in this country must be a great check to the spreading of intection.

> Our Esplanade has resumed its usual fair weather character, and is already covered with Bungalows and Tents.

> We remember when many Bungalows had distinguishing flags, and we would wish the old custom revived, not only as ornamental, but particularly useful to strangers. when paying their morning devoirs to the several occupants.

> Considerable progress is already made in lining out the part of the Apollo Green outside the Fort, destined for the reception of the Cotton, and in widening the Apollo-Gate, and we shortly hope to see the impending improvements in the open space within the Fort carried into effect. We hear that it is to be enclosed with Posts and Iron chains, in the form of an oval, with a grass plat encircled by a Belt of planta-

We have not of late heard any thing about the establishment of Steam Vessels at this place. We certainly do hope that they will ere long be passing to and from Suez and Bombay, and it is said that the Government have long since made known to the Court in England the great practicabihty and advantages of the communication by that route. We should think that a Steam Vessel might be established with great prospect of success, by any enterprizing individuals, to run between Banbay and the Northern Stations. The relief of detachments of Europeans of Matiyes would be greatly facilitated by such airangement, particularly during the north westers, so prevalent on this Coast.

It has been mentioned to us that there is now in the Harbour a Vessel lately brought by an ingenious individual from Surat, and fitted up with wheels like a Steam Engine. but worked when required, after the manner of a Tread mill. It occurs to us to remark that Boats on this plan might be advanta-Reconsly established between Bombay and Panwell, and if the convicts were employed in working them, they would be equally advantageous in a public point of view, as those in use at the Brixton causeway.

We have had many letters enquiring to what purposes the Observatory in the South West Ravelin is now appropriated, and particularly since a Scientific gentleman has been sent out by the Court of Directors for its immediate superintendence. We are unable to answer these enquines, but have no doubt some of our literary friends canit being, we believe, under the charge of the Literary Society.

NOVEMBER 27.

A friend in town has kindly handed us a letter from Penang, dated the 26th October, containing some fotas of intelligence.

"Speck Shoat has lately been examined by the Prince of Wales, Lieutenant Collinson, and bound to lay five miles S E from the Southern C dintigas and 3 miles N. W. from Passage Island. It is a small rock, about the size of a long boat, nearly a wish with the witer's edge, and a small shoal of two fathoms round it about 100 yards each way.

Horsburgh's account of it is a little out."

The same reculations, it appears, are now in torce at Malacca as it Java, since 1st August, namely, ill goods imported into Malacca from all parts and places East of the Cape, are liable to an import duty of 24 per cent. The same duty, we presume, is levied at Padane. This notice, we trust, will prove useful to some of our trading readers. Dutch gratitude is a scarce article we suspect—at least in a national sense. The benefits contribution the Hollanders by Great Butain have been of the most substitutal kind, and what is the Totarn of the cold plod ing, unkerling Government of that people? The most mortifying on ,-- 1 contemptuous opposition to all the generous plans of policy laid down by the Birtsh-persecution of their ancient ala s and triends and ungrateful fetters upon their commerce wherever the Dutch have influence in the Eastern Seas.

The following fact serves further to illustrate the terocrous boldness of the Tiger under certain circumstances:

" Latch an Acab Ship sent over her boat for Penang to the Kidd a shore for sand ballast, after taking in some sand into the long boat, one of the Kiddies, a Caffree, landed and went up into the pingle a little way, where he was attacked by a Tiger. The boat's crew saw irm and gave such a sell and made such a not c, that the Tiger let him go and ran off; the crew of the boat landed and helped their comrade into the boot, where he was hardly well seated, when the Tiger followed them, having recovered from his fright; the brute tried to get into the boat, but the Arabs filled their baskets with sand and threw it in his face, and thus blinded him, and kept shoving off the boat at the same time. At length they got off, though the Tiger would not cesist, till the water became too deep for hun. The poor man recovered at the Hospital."

Frience of a Letter from Pulo-Penang. "We shall not want any rice from you next year, as we have a population of about if-teen thousand souls settled in Province Wellesley, opposite the Island, in length 18 miles and in shore in breadth 3 to 4 miles. All the poor Keddah population has come there to settle under our able Lieutenant Governor.

Rice is at two and a quarter dollars per bag: Capt Earl got that for his, and little demand Europe goods are some at fifty per cent. discount, and the best sorts of ckiniz, madapollams, and handkerchiefs, &c. are at a discount of 25 to 30 per cent. and to take payment in barter of rattans at 21 dollars per pecul, or pepper at 12 dollars per pecul. There is now more Europe goods here. I hear from the merchants, than will be sold in three years."

It is with feelings of deep concern that we have to record the untimely death of Captain C. METHYEN, 20th N I, who lost his life last night by a dreadful accident. He was taking his usual evening ride upon an impetuous English horse. The animal either from vice or fright ran off, and as his unfortunate rider had only a snaffle to check him, he became quite ungovernable. While in the very midst of his furious career, the reins broke apposite the Town Hill, and Captain MITHVIN falling back-wards, had his head so terribly fracfured that the brains escaped at the wound. The poor gentleman was found in this state (quite insensible of course) about 6 o'clock. and was carried in into the house of Mr. GLASS contiguous. The injury was of that dicadiul nature, that human aid was quite unavailing. Captain Mernvey's kindness of heart and amenity of manners endeared him to a numerous circle of friends and acquaintances, and the feelings of those who were more particularly attached to him may more easily be guessed at than described at the dreadful hat of fate which has thus in an instant cut him off in his prime.6

This is not the first instance that has fallen within our own knowledge of persons losing their lives by riding impetuous or vicious horses on a snalle without a curb. We trust therefore that it will afford a salutary warning to all our readers who may be in the habit of exercising themselves thus incautiously. We have heard that Captain Metriven's horse ran off with him twice before, but the third time alas! was destined to prove fatal.

On Tuesday evening the 25th instant, Mrs. Linkins was At Home. The tashionables mustered in brilliant and numerous groupes about half-past 9 o'clock. Dancing commenced afterwards, and was kept up with great spirit till a late hour. Those who chose rather to promenade than to dame, hied to the spacious verandah, which was tastefully shaded and adorned with flags, as was a picture-que recess at one end of the house where retroshments were laid out. About one o'clock the company adjourned to a most elegant supper. Daneing was afterwards resumed and kept up till a late hour, when all separated highly gratified by the gaiety of the scene itself and the amiable attentions of their hospitable and kind hosts.

ASSEMBLY.

Well fares alike the Banquet and the Ball Lord Byron.

Last night the Third Assembly for the season took place at the Town Hall. Shortly after nine, the company began to arrive:

"The spacious rooms received the joyful guest, And the floors shook with pleasing weight oppress'd; Thick ranged on every side, with various dyes, The fair in glossy silk our sight surprise; High o'er then beads with numerous candles bright, The lustres shed their sparkling beams of light, Those sparkling beams that still more brightly glow, Reflected back from gems and eyes more bright below."

The company was by no means numerous, but sufficiently so to render the prity exceedingly agreeable. Dancing commenced with a country dance, but quadrites, it must be superfluous to say, were, and justly so, the favourites of the evening. The antiquated country dance in the company of the modern quadrille resembles an old Ludy in the presence of a young and a lovely one: to the former every one possessed of good nature feels it a duty to pay some little attention, however reluctantly it may be spared; whilst to the latter every throb of the heart, every glance of the eye, pays sweet and involuntary homage.

Waltzing was of course not forgotien, and as usual caused a centripetal attriction which speedily brought together a mob to witness the speedacle. There is something exceedingly attractive in this delightful dance—a dance in which the softly languishing and demi-smbraeing couples wheel in their orbits with all the gliding smoothness, and grace of—"spinning tops" O fic, fie,—with all the smoothness and grace of the heavenly bodies.

At about one o'clock the company descended to supper in the marble hall, where the tables displayed viands that might tempt the most fastidious in a profusion that would have been more than sufficient for so many Dugald Dalgetties and Quentin Durwards,—those capacious Heroes who have cut their way to fame, not less by the knife and folk than by their swords,

After supper, dancing re-commenced and was kept up with great animation till about three o'clock;

The sprightly fiddle and the sounding lyie, Bach youthful breast with generous warmth inspire, Franght with all joys the Election moments the Kranght with all joys the car and be not chains the eye,

One word upon the ladic of dresses, for we love to prattle or rather scribble on so pretty a subject, and then we have done. A cerulean nymph was here and there to be seen, but pink seemed to be at the pain. Feathers, some pink, some white, received fresh beauty from the face faces or snowy necks over which they modded,—other head dresses were more plain, but perhaps not less beautiful:

In some are such resistless graces tound, That in all dresses the research to wounder Their tresses still the feather's adde piss. And gems but horrow lastee from it energies.

Coordo Churry tersus RIM DIALIND HURY KISSIN, AND COOPOO CHILLY TUSIES AMELIEAN AND TURMADOSS.

Mr Money stated that this was a case arising out of a policy of insurance.

The Advocate General then proceeded to address the Court -On this occasion, my Lord, I am counsel for the Plaintnit, who is an old chent of mine at Madras. The action is upon a paper called a policy of insmance which was drawn up like those at home, in which, although the underwriters have each a distinct interest, they all subscribe the same document. The policy was on a brig called the Admir it Drury, and was similar to those commonly entered into here -I was not here on a former occasion, when something came before the Court relative to this vessel, but I speak now under instruction $-\mathbf{A}$ person may be better prepared for a case at one time than at another,

Referring to the witnesses who gave their opinious on a former occasion, they confounded what was necessary for a vessel like this, with what was requisite for one of another description. Your Lordships know well that coasters, which crawlealong the shore are not so well supplied as those which make longer voyages Mr Fergusson bere made some remarks. My learned friend is now doing as he did with our principal witness on a former occasion, when he turn-,ed lam round so that he was more confused than be had ever been in a gale of wind, and now he wants to serve me in the same man-

The Advocate General -The fact of their going to the Defendants to insure is a plain proof what kind of a vessel this was. It was not to be expected that such a vessel should be equipped lile one going to England. This is the usage of trade, and it is not expected that such a vessel as this should be as well found in tackle and apparel as one of the latter kind. I shall be able to show that she had the usual complement of sails and every thing necessaiy for such a vessel, and that the loss was not owing to any latent defect of the vessel. If I prove this, then the onus is not ti rown on the other side that she was not sea-worthy. With regard to the joy en sails, I shall only remark that the Indiaman that broaght is sound, had many rotten sails, and I willnow proceed to call my witnesses.

Mr. Money then called Rajkiss in Gho a. -- I do not know the defendants, I have hoard of them; they live in the Burra Buzar; have heard they carry on business there; I ave never seen them do so, I never did any business that I recollect with them; I never effected an insurance on the Admiral Drury, I only sent cargo on board; I do not know that defendants carry on business in the Burra Bazar . I have only heard so ; I do not know the defendants in the second case, I have only heard of them, I never effected an insurance for them; I am, a dolloll. I act for those who employ me in that capacity.

Rumnath was next called, -and in reply to Mr. Fergusson said, I am a detendant in this case.

In toply to the Advocate General -I am a Defendant because I am an insurer dolloll came and took away the paper from my brother while I was away from Calcutta.

In reply to the Court. -- The Defendants in these cases are my master's.

In reply to Mr Fergusson -I have no concern with the profits or loss and am only concerned for my wages

The Advocate General then proceeded with examination. The Defendantsin both cases have carried on business in Calcuttator five

Charles Tacket was then colled .- I am in the sea line, I knew the bilg Adminit Drury, she was wrecked, I was capt in of her, she was wiceked on a voyage from Calcutta to Made is , that was on the 9th July, 1821, Coopoo Chitty was at that in e he owner, she was about 50 tons burden, I should think her worth a hide more than 3000 tupees, showard stoner on at gale, we left Coloreta about the 13th of Jane 1821; Heittle Pilot on the 30th June the gale commenced on the 7th July off Michapore, the gale cane on from the S. W. and went round to the S. the gale was both the masts of very great violence went overboard on the 8th in the evening; I was at anchor and was obliged to out adult, the masts were carried may 5 feet from the deck, I was at anchor at that time; I was then five or six miles from the sline, I came to an ancien on the morning of the 7th, because the wind was from the S W and I could not do any thing, she made water very fast and I could not keep her affoat, so I out her adult to run her on shore; the people were all ansgusted with pumping; she made water very fast after the gale commented; after I cut her away I had no management over her on account of the want of masts, she shuck on the bar, she drifted on shore about 11 o'clock on the 9th, she was totally lost.

Cross-examined by Mr Lergusson - Six lascars were on board, Ismael, and Buxoo, and four which I took from the office, whose names I do not know, when I left the pilot I had six lascars, four ran away when I first came to Calcutta and I got other four from the registry office; I had six lasons with the syring ; Buxoo-was a lascar; Buxoo and Cader were the two who remained; I took the four that I gotfrom the office to Kedegree where one ran away; at the time of the gale the crew consisted of myself, an acting mate unfit for duty, a syrang, three men whom I took from the registry office, the two old men who came from Madras, and two seacunines, one Bf the reacumnies was named Alexi, the other name I do not recollect; they came from M idras with me, they were with me a year; I do not know whether he was tall or short, he was stout enough for his business, he was either taller, shorter, or of the same size as Alexi, there were ten people on board, myself, the mate, 2 seacunnes, five Insears, a syrang and the cook, I sailed with these from Kedgeree, I positively swear this , I had only 10 on board, not 11; I had four lascars on board, I reckon the syrang as alascar; this was a brig, not a dhonce nor a paramatta; I have sailed for seven years on board brigs; the fore and aft main sail, is useful in a brig; it is useful to beat to windward in blowing weather; in a Lioderate breeze we make use of it beating to windward, but I never made use of it, when it blew very strong; a vessel going to Madras cannot do without a sail of this kind; there is no month in the year in which it blows more strongly in the bay than June ; when I cut the cable the wind was from the S that is a little sweep from the land, I could not get under weigh because it was blowing tresh; I have been in Madias roads during a gale; there they out and go to sea; the wind cameon from the S W and a heavy swell all at once: the swell did not come on all at once. I anchored near the shore to get the land breeze from the W W the ship was lost to the S of False Point, to the windward of Cuttack River: I could have gone to sea if it had not been for the gale: there were 80 fathoms cableout, I had three anchors, and a new cable; Thad two new and two old topsails, one square mainsail, one foresail, a staysail and a topmast staysail and a set of top-rallant sails, and a fore and aft main sail; the pilot tried to use the fore and aft mainsail, the topsails split; I do not recollect that any other sail was split: the fore and ait " mainsail was never split, it was made only 8 months before; I do not recollect that the fore and aft mainsail was split at Kedgeree. the topsail was split, the fore and aft mainsail was not injured, the gib was, I cannot swear whether the fore and att mainsail was repaired; I heard nothing of it, I only saw the top sail repaired, I was on board all the time, I swear that the fore and aft mainsail was nel repaired at Kedgeree, it might have been done by the lascars and seacunnies by desire of the Pilot; if the fore and aft mainsail was split I must back heard of it; when we came to Kedgeree I do not know whether it was repaired or not.

In teply to the Bench. At Mirch pore when the ship grounded we had only 9 persons on board.

In reply to Mr Fergusson —I had no servant, I do not know John, my cook wanted

In reply to Mr. Money.—The fore and aft matural is the largest sail in the sup; I take it in bad weather, mine was a now good sail when I went to ser, such a one as I had was enough togo to Madras. I anchored because I was losing g ound, if I had taken up my anghor at the begining of the gale she would have gone on the rect; the current was setting to the northwest; we generally go near the shore, I was too close to shore to stand to sea with the S. W wind, I was pursuing the usual passage at that time of the year.

In reply to Mr. Fergusson —I have been on board the brig Suc can comminded by Captain tabson, when the masts went by the board at anchor.

In reply to the Court.—The Admiral Drary tolled very much and pitched very heavy. Mr. Fergusson allowed his admissions to stand on the other side, gaving an undertaking for costs, which was put in and read.

Mr. Fergusson then rose to the defence. Your Lordships must decide the question of the soaworthiness of this vessel in the same manner as it she had just come out of Kyd's Dock. A vessel may not be scawoithy to go to England, but the may to go to Madray, and upon a coesting voyage she does not require to be found in the same manner as for a long voyage, because the profis of the latter are greater I am of opinion from what I have seen in the box to day that the vossel was not seaworthy as lar as related Vessels may set out with to the Captain one anchor and one cable, but to say that & vessel ought to go to Midras in the tremendous S. W monsoo with one suit of sails is absurd. The learned counsel then stated thousaure of the evidence he should produce, and commented upon that on the other side, after which he proceeded to call his witnesses

William Robert McCoy was called by Mr. Fergusson —I came from Madras in 1821 in the Admiral Drury as chief mate, in the month of June, we had a fine passage, we had occasion to pump her 3 or 4 times a day during the voyage, I told the captain that the sails and rigging were bad and refused to go in her, the two top sails went to preeds beating down the fiver, I tord the Captain he must refit the vessels he said he was not paid for that, I went in her because the captain said he would compel me to go, I had objected because all the crew ran away when they say her buil, she had been high and dry in Calcutta; we had a seacunnie, a tyrang and three lascars, one sof the lascars ian away at Kedgeree and we went to sea with two lascons, we left Kodgeree and went as far as the buoy, and came back because we split our fore sails and our fore and aft mainsail; it was an old main-sail; it was not fit to encounter the S -W. monsoon; when we left Kedgeree we had two new topsails, an old fore sail, an old jib, an old fore top mast stay sail, some old dungery top gallant sails, in bad condition; we split the top sails and the fore and at mainsail, we got the two new top sails at Kedgeree, where we repaired the fore and aft main sail, the jib and the top sails: we repaired the ub with the old topsails beeause we had no dungery nor canvas on board; the Captum knew that the fore and aft main sail was repaired at K decree and that it was split; we had no square mainsail ; we were obliged to pump after we left the pilot four times a day with 10 inches water in the hold; before we left the pilot we primped her twice a day, the night after we left the pilot the fore and aft main soil was blown away; when it blew hard we -were obliged to furl the topsail for fear it should be blown away; we drifted toward the land and in the evening the bobstay -broke; if we had been well found in sails we could have stood out to sea : after the hobstay broke the foremast and how sprit went everboard, this was occasioned by the want of a bobstay and by her pitching; we had no spare mast and could not mg a not Tymast; we had no tope and could not supply the bobstay, we had no dungery and could not repair the sals, there were muc people on hoard when we went on shore, the captain, myself, the seacunnic, the syrang, two lascars, the coak, the captain's actiont and a passenger.

Cross examined by the Advocate General -I have been in the scaline for 7 years, 1 was in the Swallow for some time; she was misking for some months but I aid previgusly left her in Columbo, I was a guiner on board the Sophia; she was about 50 -tons; they carry a gunner instead of a mate but we had not a gun on bould: plain Acket and myself quarielled about the ship and a scacumie, we had no quarrel as bout a box; I was not discharged in Calentta: I told the captain about the ship hefore all the crew; this was about ten days before I refused to go with her; I have not mentioned what I stated now to any one: the captain put me on board as mate /I told Colonel Comvn at Juggernath how the ship was lost; I told no one but Mr Denman about the sorp, that was in October hist year, I was hearen the Court on a former trial; I mever heard of the Marine Registry Office; when the ship left Calcutta, there were three lascars on board : I only know Sheikh Ismael who was Syrang; Cauder ran away; I do not know Buxoo; Alexi was Secun. nie on board, there was only one on board; I relieved him and the Captain sometimes when we were at sea; I said nothing to the Priot about the state of the vessel; we split our top-sails at the Reef buoy: it was there we split our main-sail; the pilot saw it: I do not mean that the rope was broken, but the sail was; I saw the main-sail at Madras when we came away, the pilot could have seen the state of the vessel and I did not mention it to him, the vessel was constantly pumped twice a day going down the river; she made water coming from Madras, she was caulked here. the pilot did not say the made more water than was usual, the sea beat over her after we left the pilot, the oncreased w tir was not occasioned by this because the hatches were hattened down; her main sail was beaten to pieces, it was made of dungery I was in the Stoneham belonging to Captain Beetham of Madias, I have seen the ketch. Jane with canvas sails; she belonged to a native; I knew her at Vizaga-petim; she was of 60 tons burden, the vessels which trade along the coast with Captains have canvas sails; we came to an anchor there in the morning before the gale commenced; we came to anohor because all our sails were split, we lost our bobsing halt an hour after we came to anchor; there was not a bit of spire 1900 on board: no ie had been used at Kedgeree, I never told the owners what I have said to-day, nor ray one clse until to day.

Capt Tacket recalled by the Bench .-The fore and att main sail was not split before we came to Mirchapore

W. R. McCoy questioned -It split both before and a'tof we left the Pilot.

Capt Tacket recalled -The fore and aft main sail was made of cotton and hemp;

thatis dungery.

Capt. Collie examined by Mr. Fergusson - I certainly do not think a vessel seaworthy with one set of sails to go to Madris in the S. W. Monsoon; a vessel ought to have two suits of sails or canvas to make them; hearing the evidence of the mate I think her not sea-worthy, and if her mainsail was made of dungery she was not sea-worthy; she ought to have had a new jib.

Cross examined by the Advocate General.—The fore and aft mainsail is very useful, she ought to have had one, very good one, it she had not two, with care a good sail will not blow to pieces; the shonce and pariah vessels have dungery sails; from the description I have heard of her, this was certainly a parrah vessel.

In reply to the Bench -One very good mainsail going from hence to Madras in the month of July would certainly not be suffitient a dangery in eard aft mainsail is of no use in blaving weather; it may be useful coming before the wind it is the most useful sar to work to windward, under the circum stances of this govage a dungery fore and all mainsail i of no use, a sail of that kind is necessary and a dangery one is useless; the Captum night sull have stood to *sea sefely with a S. W. wand, and a S. W. wind would be better

William Swainson was then put into the hox -I command the Albion; I have heard the latter part of the Captain's evidence and the whole of the mate's, I do not think a ship sea-worthy without two sets of sails. Fam. not acquainted with dungery sails

ference to a ship,

Daniel Kitchner .- I have been employed in ships in these seas since 1814. I have heard the evidence in this case; I do not think the brig is sea worthy heavy canvas is not put into vessels of 50 tons at the present dry: but this was twilled dangery; I do not think her sea-worthy in her sails; from the evidence of the captain, I do not think her sea-worthy.

Cross-examined by the Advocate General. -I do not think her season of thy as regard the sails; I have seen vessels of this kind; tkeir sails are generally made of twilled dungery I should conceive one suit of sails sufficient if good for any where, I should think that one fore and all main sail made of twilled dungery quite enough if good.

In reply to Mr. Fergusson.- 1 main stay and is not necessary, if the object be to sail her cheap. In reply to the Bonch. If I had heard nothing but what the captain had said, I should think her sea-worthy, and if what the mote had said not so

John Button -I am the pilot who took out the Admiral Drury in July last, she split both top sails, about a foot of the raping of the fore and aft main sail was split, but not the sail itself, the top sails and jib were also uplit; I thought here sea-worthy after these repairs were made; I thought so conaidering the season.

In reply to Mr. Fergusson. - The ship was frequently pumped, the water she made was made over all; I did not see a square mainsail on board, we never use such a sail on board these small vessels: a fore and aft mainsail is necessary, I do not know of any spare sails she had except the fore sails; I do not think a ship sea-worthy without canvas, or rope; I do not know whether the captain saw the fore and aft main-sail repaired; this sail was set in Saugor Roads when I brought her in out of channel; I used the fore and aft main-sail and the split top sails after I got into Saugor Reads; if a square main-sail had been bent I should have used it the square main-sail is generally bent when it is on board

In reply to the Bench - When we left Kedgeree the second time, I think the sails enough to take her to Madras, and upon the whole I think her sea-worthy.

In reply to Mr. Fergusson -1 should not consider her well found it she had been sent out by an European house, in that case my opinion would have been different: I mean that she was sea-worthy with reference to vessels of that description, it is possible that a vessel may make her voyage with one suit of sails. I would Cross examined by the Advocate Gene- ago with one suit of sails. I would ral —I have been on board some of these haveintrusted my goods in such a yessel as this, I would have risked it: it is ususal for vessels going to Madras in the S W. monsoon to take spare sails and space cauvas at there in only one suit of sails, this vessel was not in the usual state of those I have taken out, I never know one so deficient in sails as this I have known Arabs who when I have asked for other sails, could not find them; I think they were sea-worthy going from hence to Madras with so few sails as not to find them when required. I should think eight good people on board the brig were enough.

Capt. Tacket recalled .- I had spare canvas on board, the sails were not made of twilled dungery, -I had dungery also on board.

In reply to Mr. Fergusson.-I had five bolts of canvas on board; I made a stay sail going down the river; Messis. Graham and Brewer sent the canvas on board; after I had made the stay sail more than two bolts were left, the canvas did not belong to the cargo.

S.r F. Macnaghten then proceeded to give judgment The case has taken a much more satisfactory furn than I anticipated, but as I am obliged to give an opinion I must say that the officer, in my opinion, has forsworn himself.—He tells us that he objected in the first place to go in the vessel because she was in so bad a state, and then when she came back to Kedgeree in a worse state, he made none at all. Then comes the opinion of the Pilot, which in my opinion renders lum unworthy of credit. All the other witnesses too, are of opinion from the evidence of the captain alone that the vessel was sea-worthy, and I therefore think the plaintiff entitled to a verdicts

Sir A Buller. — I think the weight of the evidence to be in favor of the plaintiff.

A verdict was accordingly entered for the plaintiff in both actions.

ASIATIC SOCIETY.

On Wednesday evening the 12th of November, a Meeting of the Asiatic Society was held at the Society's House, Chouringhee; Mr. Harrington, the President in the Chair.

At this meeting Messrs B. Roberts and F. P. Strong, were selected Members of the Society.

Vice-Presidents.—According to annual custom, the members present then proceeded to ballot for Vice-Presidents, when the following gentlemen were re-elected:— Major-General Hardwick, and W. B Bayley, Esq.

Committee of Papers.—The committee of Papers was next ballotted for, and the following members were re-elected

JAMES ATKINSON G J. GORDON, T. BINTLEY Capt. A. LOCKETT JAMLS CALDER. and Dr. Cariy, COURTNEY SMITH.

Mr. Andrew Stinting and Dr Hare were also elected members of the Committee, in the room of Captain Hodgson and the Reverend J. Parson.

A variety of Snakes and Repules preserved in alcohel, were presented by Captam Herman. A Hindoostanee Matchlock was presented by Mr. Gibbon.

The Secretary read a letter from Mr. Moorcroft, who is now on a deputation to Central Asia, dated Cashineer, the 20th of July, 1823, announcing his having dispatched to the Society, a copy of the Rajah Turinginee. Mr. Moorcroft's inquiries had been long zealously directed to this object He met with many abstracts of the work but disfigured and corrupted, according to the Hindoo or Musselmun notions and faith of the copyers. The genuine chiomele of Cashmeer in Sanserit the Rajah Toringinee as it is called, is reported to have been so common formerly, that almost every Hindoo family of respectability possessed a copy, but from the accidents of time it has become so scarce, that not more than two or three were known to be is existence * Mr. Moorcroft was at length successful. painful affection of the ancle joint, pro- ing an increased surface of evaporation nounced incurable, the grateful Pundit per- Air-bubbles were continually rising to the Having cured Ashur Das, a Pundit, of a mitted a copy to be taken from the one in his possession which was written upon the bark of the Birch Tree, and bore obvious marks of great antiquity. The copy, which employed ten Pundits for period of three months, Mr. Moorcroft had collated by other Pundits, and the collated work is now on its way to Calcutta

The Secretary also read a communication from Captain J. D. Habert, containing some account of a Hot Spring, near Mon-

The Hot Spring near Monghyr called Sectationd, is situated a few miles below that place, by the river side, on a plain, bounded to the S W by ranges of hells covered with jungle At no rreat distance from the Well, Isolated ridges rise up of inconsiderable elevation, the base rock assuming a singularly mottled appearance from the action of the atmosphere. Captain Herbert had not an opportunity of ascertaining the nature of this rock by a personal examination or the spet, as the rise usual nuto which the river had attained, had flooded great part of the plain, and rendered the approach difficult. At Banaies, however, he had the pleasure of Inding in the very interesting collection of Dr. Yeld, a series of Specemens, collected on the spot by Dr. Adam from an examination of which is would appear that Quartz and Quartzose Sandstone are the privailing, if not the only tocks. No rock comes to the surface in the immediate vicinity of the Well, but near it is a small morass in which the irridescent appearance of the water would seem to indicate the presence of Iron.

A Tank of about 30 feet by 20 has been built to receive and confine the waters of the spring the sides diminishing by steps down to the well, which is said to be 6 feet deep. The temperature, the attending Brahmins say, is high during eight months of the year, and sensibly lower during the remaining four. It is variable even in the eight months, and is highest in the cold weather. Captain Habert found it 139; but the Tank was quite full, and it must be considered that a spring furnishing only a small supply, and exposing so large a surface to the air, would necessarily have its temperature something lower than if the waters were allowed to run off without giv-Air-bubbles were continually using to the surface, but there was no possibility of collecting them or ascertaining their nature. We are happy to state that the Eliza, Pilot Vessel, for whose safety some appre-hensions might have been entertained, from the reported appearance of a wieck off Point Pilmiras, has reached Pooree. Accounts have been received thence from her. She parted on the 12th instant, in the Eastern Channel in a heavy gale from N. N. E. which lasted till next day at noon. She made the Bluck Pogoda on the 14th, but the wind being light at N. N. W and N. W she drifted to S. W. into 46 fathous, when she anchored and found the current setting strong to the S. W. The next day with a light breeze at N. W. she made Jagmercout and anchored in 16 fathoms off the Pigoda, the current running W S. W. 2 knots per hour. All endeavours to get to the Eastward failing, she hore up for Poorce where she arrived in safety on the 17th.

A rather smart shock of an Earthquake was experienced vesterday at about ten minutes before tactive. This circumstance was first mentioned to us on the instant under our roof. We did not perceive it on the ground floor, but it was yery sensibly felt by every individual in the upper part of the house.

At Gurlen Reach not only was the motion sufficiently strong to be very sensibly felt, but also to agitate the spangles which hang on the wall shades. There were two shocks, and they were accompanied by a low combling noise, similar to that experienced in a room over an arched gateway, when a heavy loaded waggon is passing over the stones underneath it.

carles here say that they're only a wee nae doubt, for gustin the gab and garring wheen o' them Nahobs, and that they laive like a sill to get that name, as I would to be called a sneckdrawer. Wiel, as I was saying, I thocht I would come out and see what wort o'chaps ye're here, and sae I've gaen a gude deal about among ye, and I've seen mur than the king kens o'. May be ye would like to ken what I think o'ye, but weel I wat some of you think aneuch o'yoursells, and I've warrand it'll be as safe to keep a caum sugh till I get hame, for ye ken I cock craws crous on its ain midden head, and it's no cannie to sit in Rome and feght, wi'the Pope. And if I put me in that auld grusome lenking Tal-buith, ye ca' the Stone Frigate, to shee breeks, or to mend shoon, or some other daft like occupation,-and then I kow I wad woss I was at hame, casting peats, or howkin potawtos in my auld grannie's kulyard See I wunna e'en whussle the Soo and Geordie, for fe ir your corporation wild think I was makin a fulc o'them for keeping grumphics to water the roads and soop the causey, and sae had me through the whuns for it. Sae I'll say nothing ava about thee kittle things, but I want to has juist two words wi'some of my An brethren here, the Scotsmen, as they ca' themsells.

I heard an unco rippit made about what a nice haudlin they were ga'n to hae on SAINT ANDRO'S day, and a binulo' them said that as I was a Scotsman I many come and tak my kail wi'them. Weel, I thocht there was nae muckle haim in't, though it was unco dear to give thiaty two rooper for juist a wainfu'; it's monie a pund Scots, and I'm sure I could get a gude dinner i. Luckie McLeery's, in the Gallowgate for muckle less siller, for bye a drap gude drink to the bargain. However, mome a gash carle's dune as daft an action, sae I even gaed; and atweel we did no want for company. Some o'them were unco braw, hus-kit wi'blue ribbands roun their necks, as braid's your laif, wi' gowd and sill r on them and a picture o' Samt Andro, made out o'some auld copper balkic, and as neg't the crown o'your hat, hingan at the end o'it. I was geyan hungry, for there's na parritch to be gotten here, and fish and rice and thin tea mak an unco fushionless breakfast for a young chield like me, whas' teeth are langer than his heard. They promised to let us fa' to gin sax o'clock, but's wat it was past seven oors at c'en oi e' n they let us pur use spune in his mouth And when it cam, decan a dinner! Ane would hae thocht, to look at the tables, that it had been a dinner for a wheen Lunnen Aldermen, instead o'plain rough and round Scotsmen. I ken na how mony kinds ane cat till his kyte is as tent as a drum, and his fecket like to rive, -to sae nacthing o'gi'en him the gout, but then, as it was interface for a Sant And o's dinner, I expeckit some gude bailey kail wi' plenty o' singit sheeps' heads and trotters, some gude aitmeal tals, belyve a sonsy hagg s, or a wheen mealy pudding, as was fitten to set before a youp chiefd wi' a tume stamach, that ca's himsel a Scotsman. But wae's my heart! for a'sheeps' heads and haggis there, a ken might hand them in her steekit meye, and it be ne'er a bit the fourte I wheen whighalers sind up like Wully was to say om thing that and na just Wastle's castle, we but so blue flags bin-please you, nachody kens but you might gan trac them; and the soup they gied us, for ony thing I ken, micht be thocht vera gude in France, where, they say, they sel dom get ony thing better than boiled puddock broo, but it 'Il ne'er gang doon wi' the like o' me, -- and it it had no been for some roasted bubbly jocks, and two three deaks, I dinna ken what we would have dune. But heenger's gude kitchen, they say, and sacwe yookit till t, and did the best we could. Then they gied us some thillier were to drink, for there was neither Athole brose, nor yet a cog o'gude swats to be gotten, though ye could have given a' the cause o' Gowne for 't. They sent round a bottle atweel o' something they ca' whiskey, and some o' them smell't and prec't as I would do sugar o'lead, -but I wat nachony that e'et pree'd the gude peat-teck would hae leukit at sie dish washings.

And this was the muckle heard tell o'S int. Andro's dinner! But want than a' that yet Where we came true, it it to drink toasts after dinner, ve dinnas to knen muckle weel about that yet in this Weel. I kenua wha had the makin kinka o'them, but if he was a Scotsman, he weet deserved to have his lugs claw i, and if he was na a Scotsman, I wonder what set i in to scand his month in other tolks' kail? The toasts nucht do yera weel for Indian grandees, but for Scotsmen it was a black burmin shame. I'se gie ye on't two o' them, and I would turn them into Scots, but they dinna deserve it 1st. And I would juist speer what it was they copi t frae, when they pat their girrs thegether to cooper up this ane ' But for a Scotsman to gie the ither toast about the king, it's perfectly awsome to think o't. Ye'll no torget that a' the Scotsmen there were subjects o' the king like mysel, and if they drank his o'vecvres there were, a'unco temptsome, health ava' they should have dune't in a mair respectfu' like way than that. They didna drink his health because they had sat and becket themsells i' the sun in the lown of his dyke side; and on his bonnie green knowes;—na, na, past favors are sunc forgoten, and now they dinna care a custock for our gude king;—they 're a' noo for Johnny Company! They drank him and the Holy Allies,—a' legeetimates forsooth!—he was na gude aneuch to be drank his lane, but they gied ye a mevefu' o' them a' at a. 6. Jurst like an auld wife sellin hash 't port, grein the bits o' weans twa threemin, because they 're no vera gude. And wha's the Holy Allies they tied in the same tether wi' him! Jurst sie loons as the Grand Turk, the king o' Burmah, and the Emperor o' Checny,—a' legeetimate I woss! Siecan a cogai' to pit gude George amang. And hy way a' syndint owre then thrapple, they played the king's anthem, and a' this was doom honor to the king!! Jurst as muckle homer as I would gie to the hangman, if I wis to gie for a to ist—"Jack Draw the-raip, and a' the thirf grippers,"—and then play the rogue smarch after! O' certes, ye are a must independant and intelligent people!! The course that this meeting, but It would tak a must to tell them a', sae I'se naething mair, but jurst heave a' I've said to the consideration o' ilka man that 's gotten an unce o' muther wit, wheter he 's Scots or Indian, Heeland or Lalland.

And noo, Maister Pienter, gif we'll pit this bit screed in a neak o'your Newspapa. I will be muckle obleggit to you, and one there body that prents a paper likes to copy 't, I'll say he's a guide earl, and was him weel. But tak heed that your bits o'laddies spell't richt, and just as I hac written it.

And I'll be your, leal freend.

The Weather at the Presidency for some time past has been much too fine for the Season; the cold, clean atmosphere, and dews, we have had the three or four last days, are very rare indeed in this monthness belonging to the first ten weeks after the Rains, but there was no appearance yesterd by of an immediate change, though we trust a change will soon take place; for although such weather is certainly very delightful, it is unseasonable, and injurious as regards the Crops.

BOMBAY COURIER, -Nov. 8, 1823.

The Dorothy Captain Garnock, from Liverpool the 13th lune, reached the harbour on Thursday evening. This Ship has been expected for some time past, and having left England before the Lord Castlereagh does not furnish us with any addition to our sheekot public news, which we are sorry to say is now almost exhausted, from that quarter of the world.

The Hon'ble Comp my's Cruizers Mercury and Vestal are under immediate orders to proceed to calcutta, and common report adds they are to increase the loric about to be employed against the Burmahs.

It was expected that the new line of battle Ship "The Asia" would have been floated out of the Dock at the last springs, but we understand there was not sufficient water at the highest tide to accomplish that object this hoped, however, she may be floated out at the ensuing springs.

The Royal Charlotte, we are told, will sail for England to-morrow.

rising generation, (leaving themselves out of the question) whose religious instruction, in a public point of view, seems scarcely to create any professional interest. Over this fond hope of many an anxious parent, the hand of death has, in suatching Mr. Manphy to the regions of eternity, thrown a gloomy veil. How long this will continue timemoved, and how long religious instruction in English is to be defined to the Catholics of this country, although the more fortunate followers of every other sect and persuasion enjoy that blessing, are matters which Heaven along can know, to whose decrees, both in respect to the points just adverted to, and to the loss sustained by Mr. Murphy's demise, it is the duty of every well-disposed mind to bow with reverence and resignation

CALCUTTA.

The following is an extract of a letter from Berhampore near Gaujan: -- "We have been very quist in this district for some who was greeted by the house with a long years past, until a few days ago, when some and hearty round of welcome and applause. Of the neighbouring chieftains, that infest the hills close to Berhampore, made an irreprior into the lowlands, burning many of the vill eges. Things are new coming to a because, and Liope quietiess may soon be a stored without having recourse to the employment of the regular troops. The Hills Chowringhee, that little in the way of comment can be added to what has already year."

We forgot to mention last week, that a deput then of the sons of St. Andrew waited on Mr Fragesson, who had presided so often at their head on the anniversary festival of the Saint, requesting that he would do so once more before quitting India for his native land. Mr. Fergesson expressed limited by this mark of respect on the part of his countrymen, but stated at the same time, that it was quite out of his power, under peculiar circumstances, to comply with their wishes, but that he would always remember with pleasure and pride that such a departation had waited upon him. Both parties then wordfally parted.

THE THEATRE.

To one interested in whatever tends to a ld to the enjoyments of his neighbours as well as his own, it must be peculiarly grainlying to observe the growing prospective of the Drama under the auspices of our worthy and respected Manager who has so entirely fulfilled the confident expectations enter; med of his qualifications for the arduous task he so generously undertook at a juncture when the "Diama's tower of pride" absolutely fortered. Under his vivitying influence we have as yet heard of nothing but plays every fortinght, and flowing houses; nay, proprietors now begin to look knowing, and to mention their shares in more respectful terms than they night have seemed influence to do some few months ago.

Nel desperandum after all is a noble and a manly maxim. At this moment it brings to mind a whole host of old saws, and with reference to the Theatre Sancho Pauza, were he now living to see its blooming hopes, would fire off a feu de joy of Proverbs on the occasion.

The pieces represented on Friday even-ing were "Raising the Wind" and "The Miller and his Men." The first of these brought back to the boards an old friend who was greeted by the house with a long and hearty round of welcome and applause. Nothing can be more pleasant to the feelings than this return to the circle of our as-Chowringhee, that little in the way of comment can be added to what has already been said. Never had Jeremy Diddler a more spirited mercurial wioning and perfect representative The breakfust scene was particularly good Such a breakfast! It. almost gave one an appetite to look at Jeremy as he boited down all the edibles within his reach, all an appreheusion alose, as it were, that he might at last take a bite at poor Farnwood, who sat staring and, breakfastless on the other side. During . this superb breakfast scene, the whole house, without any exaggeration, might be said to be in convulsions of laughter. Indeed bursts of mercment were heard with but little intermission until the curtain dropped. The thickening of poor Jeremy's quandaries was extremely well pourtrayed, especially the mock hysteric scene, which was immitably ludicrous.

Sam and Miss Durable were by the former well known representatives of those parts, and raintained with undiminished excellence. The other characters were very respectibly supported. While on the subject of "Rusing the Vind," we cannot help wishing that a fair wind may fill the sails the theat away from the Indian shores the favorite amateur who appeared as Jergmy a few months before the hero of Friday night, and who afforded so much entertainment in the parts of Morbleu, Geoffry Muffineap, and Tony Lumpkin. We had hoped that we might be fated to see more last appearances and hear more last words, but it seems that his last effort was really destined to be the extreme LAST. He has a thought left us for happier realms. As a supporter of the Theatre, he was ever ready and stanuch and the temetrofance of his theatric fame will long be cherished among us. There are others to whom the recollection of his sojourn here will come home with feelings of a deeper character, ludged we must for our own part cut the Man is a Molo-However puerile the taste may appear, we see free to confess, that we like a Melodrama occasionally, and could wish that we oftener saw such exhibitions on the boards of Chowlinghee. There is something in the pantominic solemnity and the seenic splendour of Melo-dramatic spectaole which recalls the greenest hours of Memory's waste. It is a tellex on of bright hues of infancy and tunocence A thousand associations of ideas that slumbered, rush upon the soul, and for an instant we feel the buoyancy of childhood once more with all its clasurity of fancy and facility to be pleased with whatever aspires to please, without pausing, as the coldly calculating experience of manheod does, to analy o the sources of its amusements. would not warm amidst the runs of Iona! exclaimed even the sluggish Johnson And who would not glow at those plantesmagorias of Time's Magic Lantein, which bring back to us glimpses of the blooming hours of life when nursery tales had charms, and when the comantic legend of generous date ing called forth a correspondent sentiment in the salient mind' That the influence of such feelings is universal, may be concluded even from the enthusiasue applayse which crowned the Maller and his Men" on Friday night, and which recently greeted " The Children of the Wood" The sucessful result, we trust, will tempt to more melodramatic efforts, in which case we would suggest "The Foundling of the Forest"—or Blue Bee a" -or "the Fo ty Thieres"—or the Woodman's Hut," -or why not get up an original Meto-drama? Surely there is talent enough in Calcutta for that. Some writer among us might ketch oft something suited to the individual capacities and tastes of our Corps Dismatique?

The scenery of the Miller and his Men was most beautiful, particularly the superb landscape of the opening scene, the principal features of which were Kelmar's cottage on the left-the Mill with its" Giant agnis" moving to the breese on the rightthe silvery waters between with boats girding on their surface—the forest trees of thee ditti, was uncommonly impressive, and causfore ground—the softened lines of hill and edgreat applause, as did the starts of agitadale and wood in the back ground.

Our Theatrical Proteus was the handit Miller, and most nobly did he systain the part. Lothar was by the Jeremy of the first piece, and was admirably sustained. Indeed all appeared to do justice to their parts. & Ravina was monitor. My well personated considerate the sustained and the sustained to the sustained t na was mondert. My well personated consider the Count, the Millar, Welmar, Ing dering all the circumstances; and Claudaughter, the assassin, but pretioularly dine's was a performance which well marit ed, and succeeded in calling forth ver warm approbation; her gestures were ju diciously adapted to the part she was called well knewn to our readers we doubt to support,—her enunciation was distinct and correct, and her tones and appeals to feeling were effective. The representative of Karl appeared for the first time, we believe, in a line of character hitherto untitled by him. The issue way extremely creditable to his talents, and, making all allowances for a first effort in an unfiedder path, ancommonly successful.

> The interest of the piece hardly ever flagged, except on one or two occasiuns, when some little awk idnesses occurred in the scenic department. The boats happening to stick in their passage from the mill to Kilmar's cottage, a giganthe Levi thame hand thrust itself out of the vasty deep to push them on again. Kelmai's coffige too on one occasion first gave a jump into the clouds, and then making a lew bow to the audience, meaked off siteways. In the midst of a thund I and lightming storm also a spring and livered for man stepped in into the inidse of the gloomy forest to remove - what? - a table These little accounts serve to break the ilit sion sadly, but in an Indian theatre they are almost unavoidable, and our surprise is not that they happen at all, but that they do not occur more frequently

We have said that the interest of the piece, with these little exceptions, never flagged. It was particularly intense in the forest scene, where Lathan yields himself (disguised) up to the robbers, in the cayein, in the cuttage of Kelmin, while Count Iriborg and his servant are buried in slumber unconscious of the assassin's pounded, and finally at the blow-up scene of the Miller and h.s Men.

The Cavern of the Banditti was a moster-The gloomy rocks with gleams of torch light, the back stair-case winding among the crigs, and lighted by a solitary lamp from above, and the threatening figures of the Banditti, commed a very grand coup de cel. The first appearance of the Miller on the back stair-case leading into the cavern in his highly appropriate and well arranged costume of Chief of the Bantion occasionally betrayed by Lothan, and his attempts to fix the train to the powder magazine, &c. These all were in the first style of pantomime tastc.

Returning to the cottage we cannot bestow too much praise on those who figured in it—the Count, the Millar, Velmar, his

Karl. Ilis sleeping scene was admirable, and we could not but sympathise in his annovance from the rats. Throughout he confused to blend the ludicrous very happily with the fearful. His wakening out of his sleep, his endeavour to kindle a fire, the fire itself, the relapsing of Kart into slumber by the blazing taggots, the entrance of the assassin, the Comically appalled gaze with which Karl regarded min, his creeping stealthdy along the floor under the table to protect his master, his tum, ly stroke at the assassin, the capital fall of the latter, all were acted with uncommon correctness of conception, and sucersaful vigor and grace of pantomimic excsation. The placing of the portmanteau in the dead man's arms, enjoining him to take care of it, was also very good.

The blow up seems appeared to be experted with a good deal of apprehension by the fair portion of the audience, and we thought we could almost see shricks ready Louising from some lips, -hps as Peter Pin-

However the null was blown up into the air without any catastrophe whatever happening, and the curt an dropped upon the smokmy ruins and the applauses of a satisfied andoner.

In Louse, we were bappy to observe, was full in every quarter. We had promised such is chose to quali soda water, that the most do so in the Pheetre gratis; nor could they accuse us of misleading them, sace for every drop of that evanescent fluid want hat they imbabed they paid not a street. This is a fact-it ad went for nothing. Doubbling aside however, it is proper to observe that the soda water fourtain was there, though through some unforescenonpediment it e'd not play,

The next Dramatic effort at our Drury, we bear, is to be Coleman's beautiful and poetiad piece of "The Mountaineers," in which on late Virginius, we are led to understand, will have the part of Octavian.

We hear also that Dramatic stars which formerly shined in our hemisphere, but which disappeared for some time, are likely again to shed their genial light upon us.

In our last we submitted to cur readers a list of subscribers to a fund being raised here in aid of the Greeks It was our intention at the time to have commented upon this benevolent proceeding, but some unforeseen circy astance intervened to prowent us It has with much pleasure that no saw at the top of the list the name of Calcutta, 20th Nov. 1823.

The cause is one which in peratively calls upon every Christian was can afford it to stand forward in its light port. It had been hoped that a public meet. ing might have been convened. As none, of the leading characters of our Society: however have as yet signed a requisition. for such a purpose, a few friends of the Greek nation in despair have resolved at any rate to forward their contributions in and of his struggling countrymen through Captain Nicolo Chierali, of whom we have had the pleasure mure than once . tomake honorable mention. Since we commenced these observations, the letter of "A Subscriber" has been handed to us. We most heartify second its good wishes, and trust that, though no public meeting has been called, the Greeks will be no sufterers in the end by such apparent indif-ference on the part of the Calcutta public, since a disposition appears to be alloat to raise contributions for them without that formality.

We shall be extremely happy to be made in any way instrumental in the good work, and we invite such of our readers, and the community in general, to whom such a mode of transpotting their amount of subscription may be agreeable, to make us the organ of conveying the same too Captain Chilland, whose generous articles and perseverance in the cause of pat tism and humanity is entitled to the walking

To the Editor of the India Gazette.

Sin,—The interest you take in the cause of the distressed Greeks induces me to send you the enclosed document for publication in to-morrow's paper.

Captain Chiefala since arriving in Calcutta, has laudably exerted himself in behalf of his suffering countrymen: he has called on several English Gentlemen of influence in this Society, to solicit their assistance, and in general has been kindly received: he has not been advised to call a General Meeting in order to obtain a Sub-scription for assisting his Countrymen in their noble struggle; but he has been encouraged to expect considerable contributions on.-Books for Subscriptions being opened, and a House of Agency undertaking, to receive the subscriptions and duly to transmit the funds contributed .- Messrs. Alexander and Co. most readily engaged to perform the last mentioned office, and Captain Chiefala's Countrymen prepared books for subscriptions and laudably commenced the undertaking by subscribing a considerable sum of money. One Subscription Book is left at the office of Messrs. Alexander and Co.; and different books are circulated by Grecian gentlemen and other well wishers of this truly holy cause.

Each of the Subscription Books contains a copy of the "Appeal by the Provisional Government of Greece to the Christian community of British India"—and the heading and Subscriptions herein enclosed. Accounts of the subsequent Subscriptions will, from time to time, be furnished to you for publication: Captain Chefala and his Countrymen in India (and it may be said all Christians, and all persons which are not a diagrace to human nature) are bobliged to you for the manner in which their case has hitherto been advocated in the India Gazette; and they rely on receiving a continu-

"It may reasonably be expected, that not early all Christians who possess the means of contributing any sum on the present occasion (should it be but one Rupec) will cheerfully give according to their means, littalso that the wealthy Hindoos will afford their benevolent assistance, as it is against the same inhuman spirit which formerly barbarously destroyed so wany of their Ancestors, that the poor Gracks are now striggling: and especially we may expect that the British Clergy in Iddia will readily follow the laudable example of our worthy Bishop.

The amount subscribed will be remitted by Messrs. Alexander and Co. to the Committee in England for sixing the Greeks, unless it should be deemed adviseable to send the whole amount or any part thereof direct to Greece: in the latter case, the remittance will be made also by Messes. Alexander and Co.

Your obedient Servant, A SUBSCRIBER.

Calcusta, November 27, 1823.

P. S. The above was written early on Thursday last, (under an erroncous supposition of the day being Wednesday,, but before if was dispatched, a gentleman informed me, that you had been written to on, the subject by one better qualified than myself to do it justice: wherefore I determined to retain my letter but observing that only a copy of the Subscriptions has been sent to you, I forward these lines-trusting they will produce something much more serviceable both from you and from others. The favorable report contained in your Extra of this day, of the continued well doing of the Greeks, has occasioned in me much gratification; and though this gratification is accompanied by somew produced by the untavorable accounts from Spain, vet I hope that Heaven will enable the Spaniards finally to triumph against their enemies equally hase though probably less cruck than the Turks.

ing Instances ?

1st. " For falsely asserting in a letter dated 16th September, 1823, and addressed to Captain Baldock, M. B. Benares, that I had encouraged Men under his Command not, only to make every possible unfounded Complaint and to state every Imaginary Prevance without the opwer of a reply on his part, but to dispute his Authority afterwards as their Commanding Officer.

2d. " For accusing me in the abovementioned letter of abuse of authority and imputing dishonerable motives to me his Su-- warior Officer, by stating, as follows, 'Where an Officer, Command of this Garrison and Station thus uses the temporary power committed to his Charge the ends of Substantial Justide can never be answered, and in their sending for Men by scores at a time in order by private Examination at his own house to encourage these Men to come forward not on their own account certainly but merely to establish if possible something like a Case to support those groundless allegations with which he has voluntarily come forward without the slightest consideration

Upon which Charges the Court came to the following decision:

Finding and Sentence -" The Court having maturely weighed the whole of the Rvide ce before it, together with what the Prisoner has urged in his Defence is of opinion. opimon.—

" That he is not Guilty of the 1st Charge. " That he is not Guilty of the 2d Charge.

" That he is Guilty in a lesser degree of the 3d Charge in as much as Gunner Gall and for Conduct unbecoming the Character was compelled by him to do duty which he

" That he is not Guilty of the 4th Charge. That he is not Guilty of the 5th Charge. That he is not Guilty of the 6th Charges With respect to the Additional Charges. That he is Guilty of the 1st Churge. That he is Guilty of the 2d Churge. That he is Guilty of the 3d Churge.

" The Court having found the Prisoner Guilty in part of the 3d Original Charge, and of the three (3) Additional Charges, but not 'to the extent contemplated by the 20th Article of the 12th Sec. of the Company's Artis cles of War, does sentence him, (the late Major) new Lieutenant-Colonel John Staples Harriot, 32d Regiment Native Infantry, to be Suspended from Rank and Pay for Six (6) Calendar Months, and to be reprimanded in such manner by the Com-mander in Chief as His Excellency shall deem proper.

Confirmed. (Signed) EDWD PAGET, General, Commander in Chiefle India.

In Confirming the foregoing Sentence the Commander in Chief finds it necessary to make the following Remarks

The XXth Article of the XIIth Section of the Act of the 21st of George the Second for the Pumshment of Mutiny and Desertion, &c. enacts that whatsoever "Commissioned Officer shall be convicted before a General Court Martial of behaving in a scandalous infamous manner, such as is unbecoming the Character of an Officer and Gentleman shall be discharged from the Service "

By the Finding and Sentence of the Court upon the Additional Charges, the Commander in Chief is led to inter that altho' Lieutenant Colonel Harriot is adjudged Guilty of a High ageach of Subordination. He nevertheless is not considered to have behaved in a scalidatous infamous manner such as is unbegining the Chatacter of an Officer and a Gentleman, and consequently that the falsehood and make imputed in these Charges (which are the most unofficerlike and most ungentlemanlike of Crimes) fall to the ground. With this understanting of the Court's Intention in introducing the words " but not to the extent contemplated by the 20th Article," the Commander in Chief has not hesitated to Confirm the Sentence

He should be very glid to stop here, but the circumstances of this Case render unecessary to state that the loose and disorderly hubgs of the Invalids, and especially the Buropean, stationed at Chunai, where so shameinly notorious as to induce the late Commander in Chief to select Lacuienant Colonel Harriot as a fit. Officer to correct and retorm these abuses.

A more difficult and taksome. Duty could not have been unposed upon an Officer, and t is with Pain that the Commander in Chief is compelled to add that if Lieutenant Colonel Harriot had received from the Commandant of the Garrison that Countenance and Support in his Labours which he had a right to expect at his Hands. He has little doubt that success would have crowned his Efferts.

Of the Six Original Charges prefer'd by Lieutenent Colonel Robertson against Lieutenant-Colonel Harrot, the Prisoner is most properly acquitted of five, and with respect to the remaining Charge the Court has found that He is guilty in a lesser degree of the 3d Charge, in as much as Gunner Gall was compel'd by him to do duty, which he from his Infirmities was unequal to."—For this and for the Offences contained in the 3 Additional Charges Lieutenant-Colouel Harristis Sentenced to Six Months Suspension, and to be reprimanded in such manner as the Commander in Chief shall deem proper.

The Commander in Chief is satisfied that if Lieutenant-Colonel Harriot knowingly and wilfully compel'd a Man to perform a Duty which He from his infirmities was unequal to, the recollection of such a fact will decasion to Him a much more severe Pang than any Cereure of His could inflict.

With respect to the Letter to Brigade-Major Baldock on which the three Additional Charges are founded, the Commander in Chief thinks it necessary in the most unqualified terms to express His marked Disapprobation and Condemnation of the intemperate Language in which that Letter was couched, but in Consideration of Licentemant-Colonel Harriot's Contrition at having pen'dit, of bishaving requested to withdraw it and to apologize to Lieutenant Colonel Robertson for it's Contents, and in further consideration of the greeous Difficulties with which He had to contend in the execution of his arduous Duties jet the Garrison of Chunar, His Excellenty is pleased to remit that part of the Sentence which awards the Suspension for Six Jonths from Rank and Pay.

Lieutenant Colonel Harriot is to be immediately released from Arrest, and will proceed to join the 2d Buttalion 32d Regiment, to which he stands appointed.

DECEMBER 4.

The Calcutta Medical and Physical Society meet on Saturday next at the usual place and hour. The experience of its affects has been so gratifying for the short time it has existed, that we trust it will continue a source of interest and scientific information to the profession at large, and excite men of talcut and research to favor their professional brethren with the validable facts elecited in the course of observation and practice.

The Melo-dramatic piece of Rob Roy and the farce of Miss in her Teens, passed off very successfully on Monday night at Dum Dum, and the house was as crowded as it could hold. As our cot imporaises have already noticed the performance, and as we had occasion to review the same pieces as acted on a former occasion at the same place, we do not intend now to enteriate any details The new Bashe Nicol Jarrie was, all circumstances considered, a very able representative of that difficult character, but we do not forget poor Provan. His successor, however, is really a very great acquisition to the Dum Dum boards. His conception, it not always very chaste, is vigorous and clear, and his execution bold and characterestic. What we thought most to blame was, exoberance of action, and too fricted an emphasis of voice, gesture and expression. much a representative of Bailine Nicol Jarthe may make the groundlings lough by putting a bottle of whisky to his head, and dispensing with a glass, we can tell him that in a Maugistrate and the son of a Descoulen a recent Scottish emzen-io short, the action would be deemed a gross breach at decorum. Blemishes and all, however, we must say that the Bailie surpussed our expectations, and place its representative much higher to the histrianic rank than might have been à priori autripated, although his representation of Ensign MacClaymore gave us very favorable impressions of his abinties. Whether it was the fault of the wardrobe, or the actor, the Builde was ill diessed. Provan's Baillie used to be equally

The struggle of Rob Roy with his foes was very fine. He should structly guard against monotony, when he acts.

Owen was very good, and far, far superifortoglie former representative of that part. Frank Orbaldiston was indealously dress, ed. He got occasionally into a lush cousive familiar tone. His suging very deservedly called forth much applicuse, particularly in taste and with great effect.

Rashleigh's acting was admirable, but his costume incorrect. Dugald was much improved in diess and action Helen MacGre-" nor was a very creditable effort. Diana Vermen was very ill dressed, and did not sing as well as usual. We missed very much the excellent dancer who was wont to exhibit the Highland fling as a part (and certainly not the least relished one) of the entertainment of Rob Roy

A pair of execrable bagpipes grouned and shricked hideously at the head of the MacGregor band. When we first heard that a pipe was to be introduced, we anticipated that it would not take. The art of blowing wind into a good pipe in the hands of a first-rate piper would be in danger of mairing stage effect, but with a mis rable broken winded intuneable machine (as well as we could judge) by a rather ordinary performer, the effect was downright ludicreus. The space also was too confined for the instrument, wreiched as it was. Taken altogether, this specimen of Highland music was not to untutored cars marvellously well calculated to excite very high impressions of the musical taste of the "sons of the mountain and the flood"

" Miss in ker Teens" is not quite suited to the delicate ideas of these more polished days. It abounds in vulgar double cutendre, than which nothing can be more disagreeable. It is also descriptive of manners, which, luckily for our native land, have long ceased to be English maners. Our lathes no longer have fullies and fops hid in their bed-ooms of a morning: they no longer make companions of chambermaids; nor do our gentlemen swear like porters, and make their footmen their secretaries in love affairs or any thing else.

We did persecuted others for their opinions. They not like "Heigho!" It was too, too rich therefore can truly estimate the blessings for our taste. that the issue for the Greeks will prove as gloriously decisive as their warmest friends could wish. This ought to operate as an additional incentive to their fellow Christians, to grant them aid in their hour of need and tribulation. It is true our hopes for them are favourable, but still their situation is not without great poul. They fight not merely for Liberty in its essential sand civilised sense, but for life and honor. If they fail! Such a possibility is not to be contemplated without horror. Let us remember Scios,-let us conceive for .2moment a whole country smoking and desolate, old men and children nassaored in cold blood, while their more robust defenders covered with wounds, in vata oppose a multitude of Barbarians and fanatics, who to the other tortures of their victims, Ad the most intolerable outrage that human nature can experience the ruthless violation of all it holds dear, -- sisters, daughters, wives,-- all delivered over to a licentious and brutal soldiery, reeking from carnage and flushed with the most diabolical passions. If the contribution of a few rupees can put arms in the hands of one brave Greek, and enable him to resist such horrors from a struggling Janizarry, or at least a secure the retreat of his trembling family. - 8 A song in the Yorkshire dialect, descrip- there a Christian or a man who can afford tive of the Corona-sh. on was admirably sung his mite that will withhold it! But if such contributions will serve thousands, arm thousands, and protect thousands of women and children,-shall it be said that a community of Christians will apethetically view the chance and resist the impulse of p'illanthropy-the divine throb of compassion? Impossible, impossible. We therefore with confidence once more address ourselves to our fellow citizens of every denomination, to remind them that a subscri, tion is now open in aid of the Greeks; but it is not to Christians alone that we address ourselves: we look with hope to our Hindoo brethren. From a Christian Government they meet with the most unqualified toleration of their religious opinions. They are themselves disciples of a most tolerant regling; -and if the contribution of a few rapees from the superfluites of the wealthy, can save their brother men of creece from The Turks were preparing to neet the the bitter disgrace of any infringement of Greeks on a grand scale by sea and land, the latter, and s cure to them the deeply ad the contest, it may be presumed, will prized henchis of the former, will the phi-Judging from what they have we think not: let the pressing need be

DIOGESAN COMMITTEE.

On Monday last, a General Meeting of the Calcutto Diocesan Committee of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge was held at the house of the Lord Bishop in Fort William, which was numerously attended: previous to his taking the Chair as President of the Committee, the Bishop having offered the usual prayers, addressed the Meeting at some length. He spoke with much feeling of his last parting with the Sar. ciety in London, and of the solemn charge committed to bis hands by some of the best and wisest men in the Church; he spoke of then zeal for the spiritual interests of the East, and of his own anxious wish to further their Christian views so far as lay in his power. His Lordship adverted more particularly to the subject of Native Education and called upon the Committee to redouble their exertions in this important branch of their labours In reference to this subject, it was most gratifying to the Committee to see at their Board two Revotend Missionaces of the Church of England, recently commissioned by the Society for the propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts, to superintend the department of education in the neighbourhood of Calcutta. Some a asses of the Children, now receiving 12struction in the Diocesan Committee's Schools near Bhoancepore attended before the Meeting, and showed great pro-futency in tending and witting both Bengalee and English, as well as in other branches of the education afforded to them.

We wish that any notice of ours could add to the funds of this Committee, so as to conable them to extend their labours farther among the Natives of this Country, by printing of books in the several languages spoken throughout this Presidency, as well as in the increase of Sobools. It always has our most could wishes for its success.

We have now too the pleasure of notteng, which the delay of gathering the Subscriptions has hitherto prevented us from doing, that the collection made in St. James's Church, after a Sermon preached in behilf of the Society for the propagation gethe Gospel on the 21 instant, amounted to upwards offive hundred rupees. The sum will be appropriated towards the funds of Bishop's College.

Accounts have been received from the H C Ship Ernaud, Captain Jones, dated off Tik Nauf, the 20th ultimo.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At a meeting which was held on the 19th of last month, some very interesting communications were laid before the Society by the Secretary from Mr. Moorcroft. One of these, dated so far back as August 1822, describes an umbelliferous plant called Prangos and employed in the form of Hay as a winter todder for sheep and neat cattle. It is a pative of Draz, from whence Mr. Moorcroft sept a large quantity of the seed, and several specimens of the dried herb, in the Government. The greater part of this highly interesting dispatch has been forwaded to the Hon'ble Court of Directors, for the Board of Agriculture of Britain, the rest has been distributed by the superintendent of the Botanic Garden, with the view of affording every possible chance of success in realing despatch will vegetate, as the seeds were more than a year old when they were received. The plant is described as being highly untritious and fattening, and what would reply to an address from the President, render it invaluable in England, it destroys the liver fluke which kills so many thousands of sheep annually. If it is considered that in addition to the above valuable proprieties the Pranges yields a vast crop, endures through many years, and admits of being cultivated on land of the most pool and appromising quality, the plant de-altached to the Ernand spiceted to go on ever been discovered. Dr. Willich calls it board—and alterwards, when they desired Laser pitum Prangos. The garden is about 23 days journey from Kishmeer, 3 from Subhatoo to the South, and about 9 from Delhi

The Society concurring in the outline of this plan have resolved to make a representation on the subject to the Supreme Government. An interesting account is also given of the manner in which the surface of water is made available for the purposes of gardening in that tertile country, by detaching a part of the banks of lakes and fermin. them into floating flexible bods, sometimes of very considerable extent, on which cacumbers, melons, and water-melons or a superior size and flavour are had in greater quantities. These singularly constituted floats are sometimes surrounded with a floating nedge made of reeds, and they me towed from one place to another as it suits the convenience of the proprietor, who-e chief risk appears to rest on the frequency with which these moveable gardens are stolen away, and the difficulty of recognizing property among so many others of precisely the same shape and size.

NOT AT HOME AND DURWANS.

I have passed several mornings in making visits, some in the neighbourhood, some at a considerable distance from my residence. and it has a coasionally been my mistortune not to see the person I went to call on, even after a very long drive, they have been, "NOT AT HOME"

Now I am quite aware, that not at home frequently means "It is not convenient to receive visitors," and I can fancy such cucumstances as sometimes to render a detual of oneself not only justifiable, but positively necessors, this in all countries ever was, is, and ever will be, the case-the great Archimed | 5 had better have been not at norte when summoned to appear before Mar, ellus. and the Soldier who waited on him on this untertunate occasion shewed a lack of good breeding in not receiving his excuse

How inconsiderate would it be to disturb a Lady in the midst of her meditations on the most becoming head-dress she might wear at the next Drawing Room, - His Holiness the Pope when preparing a Bull to fulminate on some unfortunate free thinkers within his dominions .- Thenew Editor of a New Paper, in the midst of his Maiden Paragraph, or a State Secretary when indicting a dispatch subject to the criticism of all the world. Sometimes it is found convenient to be at home only to a particular friend; when this is the case it becomes a duty to provide as much as possible against the stupidity of servants.

From the circumstance of my name resembling somewhat in sound that of a more favored personage, I was admitted by a Durwan, and drove up to the house where a more intelligent or at least a better instructed servant accosted me with, Beebee Sahio bahur guya.

Luever enter into controversy with a servant, and I consider it both ungallant and impolitic to force a visit on a Lady, so I retired, determined nevertheless to say a word proud to find themselves associated with to the Durwan as I passed, but perceiving me so soon on the return, and probably guessing my intention, he made a precipitate retreat behind some shrubs. I have often heard it remarked that we are very much at the mercy of our servants; how important, Mr. Editor, is the choice of a Durward. and how exceedingly great is the trust reposed in him; how many eminent qualifications are necessary to a thorough discharge of all the dutie; of this situation—how few are able to undertake so high and so responsible an office!

Our privacy our consequence—our repatation -our rest—the safety of our property and of our persons, are all more or less at the mercy of, and dependent on a Durwans A good Durwan must possess an imposing appearance—the tentrophonic voice—an impudent assurance—a retentive memory—an idea of phisiognomy, and a knowledge of mankind, an imposing appearance to give a proper idea of his master's consequence; apowerful voice to assure you, (if a stranger) that he entertains a proper consideration of your own. A well proclaimed " Bahur ka Salub oyah, kobr dejeo!" is to me nearly as imposing as a flourish of trumpets or a salute of cannon; whilst the sound of a bell or a Chinese gong dwells with dismal reverberation on my ears, and produces a melancholy frequently unconquerable for the rest of the day. When a Durwan is to tell a fib, he should do it with a good grace without stammering at it, and persist in his story, even though he should be cross questioned by a Garrow or a Fergusson, such men may be met with now and then, they are scarce, but I do think that a College for Darwans would meet with general patronage

I know a very Phoenix of a Durwan,-His muscular limbs create your wonderment, his portly figure, his goodly pautich and jolly countenance proclaim him the servant to some Lordly Master, in whose service he enjoys a most productive Gabelle, levied on the Khansagan's Bazar; then in his calling he is a perfect Cerbeius. The terror of Hurkarus and Chopiasses, and, even when brought to a parley, he will without heatation send his master to Barrackpoor or confine his mistress with a severe headache, which the one is practising music in the drawing-room, and the other has only preceded you through his gate by half a dozen paces, and this he will assert in opposition to your own sense of seeing and hearing,

There, is generally in the manner of approach, in the style of equipage, in the tone of inquiry, in the greater or less anxiety or confidence exhibited by a stranger, a something which enables the Durwail of parts to distinguish between the Dan and a Debtor. the intimate friend, the formal visitor, and the humble petitioner for pationage; and it behoves a good Durwan to study the countenance of one of the latter class of personages, after an interview, and if he discovers an expression of dissatisfaction he will be caleful, never to admit him again, guless by special appointment. It is admirable to observe in a Durwan of talent and penetration, the different degrees of respect or indifference, with which he can receive different classes of individuals from the negligent shake of the head, and emphatic "hi nay," to the obsequious Salaam and "Ghodawund lu." Alaige suwaries hase certainly an imposing appearance, and may be adapted with success, now and then, by the candidate of a vicant place -who is particularly desirous of an interview.

A friend of mine, who enters the services of a most pursent and countegeous Durwan, has litely ordered Swivefs to be mounted on his gate posts, and a six-pounder on a wheel barrow—to enable him to resist all attacks that might possibly be made by certain ferousous, bloody looking Prons and Chuprasses, who parade in whole battalions, aimed with tulwars and long house pistols, a most necessary precaution in this town of murders and assassinations, and as soon as labouters can be spared from the improvements of the city, he intends surrounding his house with a most and a wall—with a drawfridge, to be pulled up at sine set, when we hope to be able to sleep in security.

But, after all, Mr. Editor, much of the inconvenience arising from the stupichty of servicits—might be obvioud by hanging out a Board with Not at Home, in large legible characters on it, and undericath might be written, with a piece of chalk the favored exception; this too in a character or Hieroglyphic which only the person interested need understand, and underneath might be placed a little Box to receive ands.

How mightily convenient would this he for many Ladies who considers it the height of good luck to had that their dear acquaintances are Not at Home

You see, Mr. Entor, I am becoming by degrees, a little more acquainted with the world and its ways, but the I find that it is quite necessary to push forward. I cannot overcome a feeling which Lord Chesterfield would perhaps ascribe to mauvaise honte, and this will ever, I fear, keep me in the back ground.

Your's MODESTAS.

P. S.—Pray can you recommend me a Mounther II studied a short time in England under Dr. Gilchrist (who is avery modest man)—and I am anxious to prosecute my studies here.

THE TRIFLER.

To SUBSCRIBERS AND CORRESPONDENTS.

When we first undertook the task of conducting a Literary Magazine, we certainly expected more indulgence from our readers than has been granted, and more favours from correspondents than we have bother of experienced. With every prospect before us of a happy issue, we have been disappointed in our expectations, with every reliance on the liberably of an Indian Public we have suffered much from neglect, and with the fondest promoses of assistance, our labours have been as unremitted as they were nnn ohtable.

It is so seldom that we trouble our readers with remarks personally connected with ourselves, or in fact, with any remarks in our official capacity, that the present acticle howsnever long, will we trust be exensed, particularly as it involves an object of material importance to us. We are new convinced-start not reader at the confession-that not even one solitary spark of literary zeal, exists in the bosom of the grener Trade indeed part of our Indian Public hath stopped up every avenue to the pl asures of mind, and the minutes that can be employed towards our wordly aggrandizement, are reluctantly devoted to the n g lected volumes of suppliant anthors were wrong - Iwas the error of find and thoughtless anticipation) when we prome . 3 the patrons of our work, sieteen poses of pure literary matter a week! following emphatic language

"Sir, The Trifler shall no honer to 's uith my pockets. Please to discontinue me as a Subscriber."

Every man is certainly at liberty to act as he pleases when it depends on his will, but why any man possessing common sense should lose sight of all delicacy to repeat a stale pun or a sorry jest, we cannot conceive.—It may perhaps be very pleas int to some to hear even a threadbare story, but the dull narrator is little aware that in gratifying the wretched taste of genning numskalls, he loses the good opinion of all who are deserving of respect. But what tight have these numskulls to rail at our efforts—they whom matther genius can subdue to respect nor ridicule shame into silence—who puffed up in the conceit of their wayward hearts, arrogate to themselves the power of passing their verdicts upon works which they lack the talent to understand,

THE ORPHAN'S PETITION.

O stranger relieve me, a poor orphan bey, Who no shelter or triend ever knew; My portion below wee the frowns I receive, When benibly for ply I sue!

My hands de 1 lift up for bounty in vain, And otson my knees de I tall,

But cold is the heart that should pity my grief,-

Too cold at humanity's call!-

I have heard there are those whose soft

To the souls of the poor and toriorn;— But the smiles I have earned by my suppliant toars.

Have been smiles of derision and scorr.

O the prospect around me is cheerless and

The army of light peeps three the gloom, For distlint aims! is that hope I espy-

It languably cleans on my tomb!

DECEMBER 11.

Our remarks on the performance at Dum Dum on Monday event a must be much more brief th n the subject merte. Red Roy was repeated, and the new Baillie added most insternally to the reputation he had already won in the character. Indecember great main remember he had made in it, struck us is a most favorable sign of his theatrical documes and telent. It was altogether a much superior effort to the first nights, belog the stened down and more duly harmo is of the or diproperty and can-sistency. He was also diessed very properly.

The other characters were passing good, all "circumstances" considered. This now accent on chromatances stilkes .ns, sary sonorous and happy in itmbling tragical parts.

The afterpiece of The Romp was, taking it all in all, one of the very best noted things we have soon. All the haracters statuted their parts with the dimust spirit, coint and good tact. Old Barneels could hat the bet-tenor voice, and manages it scientifically at the Town Hall. and tastefully. In some comic parts - such, for instance, as Barnacle-ho is sure to be capital. Young Cockney too was immitably good, and the fair Romp of the night dashed through her wildish character with very brilliant spirit and keeping. A comic song was sung between the pieces by the "Coronashion" waibler of a former evening. The "spoken" passages evinced true dramatic gentus, and surprising powers of mimicry, which we hope to hear more of by and bye A supper and dance at the hospitable mess of the Artillery Officers followed the play, con-cluding the evening most pleasantly. The cluding the evening most pleasantly. The number of the ladies was rather limited to be sure, but there are occasions when the charms of tem ile society become more concentrated the fewer its members are, and this was one of them.

THE ASSEMBLY.

On with the dance ! let joy be unconfined , s deep till morn, when youth and pleasure meet, To chase the glowing hours with flying feet Ind Brick

Although we never "pledged" ourselves to uphold the cause of right legitimate tyranny throughout the world, though we never "pledged" ourselves to support the Turks, and then with peculiar consistency sent out a miserable "Cock-boat" to tow the Greeks into harbour after they had arrived there; though we never "pledard" ourselves like our Atlantean commorary to support the falling, and alas! too ponderous "national honor," with the Plumbei in properties of which our brilliant commentator has ever evinced a marvellous sympathy; although, in short, we have an ulter aversion to the whole system of "pledging," (except in a bumper now and then,) it there is any thing to which we would "pledge" ourselves more than another, it is to the pleasing task of recording the galeties which, from time to time, shed their benign and enlivening influence on society, which would otherwise be dieary as the Arctic night uncheered by the Autora Borealis.

We have read of a reward offered by some p mpe ed Prince, whom pleasure could not please, for the invention of a new pleasure; for our own part we are half di cosed to oller a reward for something new to be said on the subject of balls and as-sembles, of which it may so truly be said. ex uno disce omnes. With so much difficulty in our way therefore, we must be excused for noticing in our old jog trot way the I

The Bull was honoused by the presence of the Governor General and Lady AMHERSI. and was numerously and brilliantly attend-

Dancing commenced at the usual holir with a country dance, and that was as usual succeeded at due intervals by quadrilles and waltzing.

The Governor General and Lady Ak-Binst retired before supper, which was announced at the usual hour, when the company descended to disencomber tables loaded, of course with " all the delicaries of the season," and afterwar is re-ascended with the delightful consciousness of having charitably fed the hungry and disbutthened the heavy laden tables

After supper dancing telecommenced .--All hearts beat happily, and where Music arose with its voluntusias swell, Soft eves looked los to eyes which so the again, And all went merry as a marriage beli-

At two o'clock we believe the company had retired from the bail-room, and at three,

STEAM NAVIGATION.

To THE EDITOR OF THE BUNGAL HURKARU.

The amount aready subscribed for the proposed Pronuum for Steam Navigation between this and the Mother Country, as appears in your paper of to-day, donsidering the very short time which has clapsed since its commencement, promises fair. But with a view to the more speedy and certain realization of the hope's entortained by the friends and well wishers of so eruly and desnable an object, I beg leave to suggest, that the public of all classes, Natives as well as Europeans, be invited to winess the powers of the Diana Steam Boat, by an exhibition of the same on some appointed day, of which provious notice should be given-for there are hundred. nay, thousands in Calcutta who have nover yet been so fortunate as to obtain a Sight of her under way-they have perused in the several newspapers surprising accounts of her performances, and would, I verily believe, most gladly avail themselves of any opportunity thus afforded them to become eye witnesses of the facts , and as little doubt have I that, if properly managed, a very substantial benefit would be derived from such an exhibition - Would it, let me ask, be a very extensive and troublesome matter, if the Diana were to be fitted for the occasion with a tew light guns to fire a salute as she passed the Town on her way up from below the Fort, a second salute might be fired, upon her reaching Cossipora which might be the limit of it run, she might then return and again salute the Town; and if functivily decorated with Flags, in the manner of which we see ships occasionally dressed, the effect produced would not, I think, be confined to the more plandits of an admiring multitude ranged along the strand and on the opposite bank of the river, but be felt in the more so-lid shape of Rupees. The Evening of New Year's Day would, I think be the most appropriate, and 4 the most convement hour.—I can only say that I shall rejoice it this suggestion shall turn out to be a happy one, in aid of the great object in which every reflecting individual of this populous city and suburbs must surely feel an inteicst. A good Band, also, on board, would have a pleasing effect.

ANTLEUS. Calcutta, 9th Dec. 1823

The whole of the new Mint Apparatus which lately arrived in this country on the H. C. Chartered Ships Abberton, Florentia and Potten, has been sately landed at the Import Warehouse Wharf-under the vigilant superintendence of Capt Milner, the Harbour Master, by whose judicious arrangements the whole has been safely conveyed, without the most trifling min being sustained by any single part, to the new Inland Custom House at the North end of the Strand, immediately contiguous to which the new Mint is to be built. Some of the parts weighed nearly five tons There are altogether four Engines—two of forty house power, two of twenty, and two of fourteen. We understand the foundations of the new Mint are to be commenced upon forthwith.

STRANGE FUNERAL!

(Extract of a letter from Benares)

An event has, I lament to sav, occurred, which has cast a gloom over this city. King Bull the VIIth is no more 1.1. It is impossible for me to describe to you, my dear friend, the consternation which this sail occurrence has coised aund the population, hiped and go adruped it of this or the dericity. The Roy al Beast was taken ill in such an insidious way, that but little danger was at first appr shended by Doctor Callab. It was observed at his t that he appeared dissitisfied with the short commons arrowed him-When the keepers of the royal stall laid a few days back his usual allowance of musty hay before him the snubbed at it with his tauric nose, and gave a half sizfled bellow of bestral dissatisfaction. The I turic Masjests among other amusements was fond of Steam speculations. The quancities of this vigour taised in the royal stall by the heat of the place itself acting on the moist and decayed tarago of litter slops and trash which it was his Majesty's peculiar taste to mdulge in, were so great, that it was believed they failty blow him up. Be flut as it may, it is certain that the Royal Brute was found ding the other morning Di Gwallah prescribed a sickening system in hopes of reducing the Tympanitous state, in which this Maiesty's Royal stomach appeared to be. The medicines administered brought up great go intities of black bite, but nothing would do; and at 6 in 1bd morning of --- , the Royal sufferer expited lowing and hellowing most preously. An affecting circumstance that occurred a few minutes before his death, place his Majesty's piety in a most annihle light, evincing his firm veneration to: that system of Priestianity to which he was so dearly attached. The bishop of Benares having drawn non-him to give him the consolations of his office, gave a gentle touch to the rosal binte in the buttocks with his great toe. Finding that this humane endersour to rouse him had no efect, the worthy Priest proceeded to cut out a tenth part of the animal's skin, flagellating him at the same time, with a deMaration, that this tythe of his skin was his fair due by divine right, derived from Humbug the first. King of Gotham, and that it and the dagellation, were necessary to the well being of his Tauric Majesty and his subjects Two or three half started oxen on the outside lowed lustily against this dectrine, but the Bishop accusing them of horrid blashbemy, they were instantly flayed alive. The Prelate having secured his perquisite, turned away, but the royal sufferer making a faint effort, raised his head, kissed the heel of the returng Priest, (which kicked the while) with an appearance of much devotion, and turning up his eyes featfully, went off in herrid convulsions of "firm veneration". The instant the event was known throughout the town, the most dueful lamentations were heard in the streets. It was truly heart-rending to hear young calves, interesting heifers, grave oxen, stately bullocks and mationly cows lowing a lamentable coronach of woo, for their common father, friend, and protector. The funeral took place by Chraug and faithing candle light. The mode of conveying away the Royal remains was this. The ledy being stretched out on a backery, was fastened to the same by one lone fixed at the ful, and another at the head. A wisp of withered leaves was placed in the royal month, and the cloven lumbs of the deceased Majesty were decently disposed of, all pointing to the stars. In-deed it is said that he has already become a constilation The cortege being duly disposed, proceeded to the bank of the Ganges in the following order, amidst the inclancholy music of mirrow bones and chastis.

NEWS-NEWS!

Certain intelligence has reached town that the Pope has died. Proposits, it is rumoused, have been sent to a certain maintainer of the national honor not a hundred miles from Chve-street for . the vacant see . Certainly no person is better qualified especially on the score of protound eru-dition, unbounded liberality, genuine philanthropy, and mild spirit of toleration, tempered with the genuine spirit of Oitho-d-ox-y to bil that splendid throne of the Archiepiscopal system than the esteemed and revered personage in question Indeed his uncommonly firm veneration for every thing and all things appertaining is the Ca tholle Church, not even excepting her abhorrence and contempt for temporal wealth and power eminearly point him out as the only individual . ho could add the sublimest lustic to the throne of Priestianity by consenting to place his "fundamenatal feature" of his patronage upon it -Though this glorious and sublimely charitable christian orator at , first declined the Papal See with the usual modestly veracious declaration of Noto Episcopans, we have since heard that he has allowed in "slow consent" to be wrong from him and that he means to assume the Sacerdotal purple by the style and title of POPE JOAN THE SECOND !!!

> The Shipping Report of yesterday, contrary to our expectations, announced no array il. we are therefore still in uncertainty as to the correctness of the reports that the new arrange-ments for the Bengal Army are on the Ship Frederich the first. The name of this Ship it appears, gave rise to a report that His Majesty King George the 4th was no more, and that his Royal Highness the Duke of York had been proclaimed King of England, this however we contradicted yesterday, from very authentic His Majesty's health, at the time of the departure of this Ship, which we have snice been informed owed its name to the wonderful aircumstance of the Builder's name being Frederick. and this Ship the first he floated! We certainly will not vouch for the correctness of this explanition of the mysterious name which has been begrowed on this Ship, which has so puzzled His Mij sty's lig subjects in India, but as we see nothing impossible in the circum-Moure we recommend our readers to believe this until they are furnished with the legitimate denouement of this alarming fact, that an Bughsh Ship Builder dared to call his Ship alter his own name, to the terror of all the World, for we must presume that Europe, Africa, and America have been similally agitated as the inhabitants of our sitve Palacis. In former and better times the illain would have been hunting for this head by this time.

MR. MACK'S CHEMICAL EROTURES.

Mr Mack on Friday last, delivered his vecond channed lecture to a created and respectable audience of the residents of Suram.

pore and Barrackpore, at the former place. We stated in our account of this Gentleman's first lecture (vide Hurkary of Tuesday the 6th inst.) that some of Mr. Mack's experiments had falled, owing to the state of the materials necessary for them. With a view of not losing the advantages to be derived from the successful performance of them, Mr. Mack, on Friday hight, repeated part of them, and we are happy to sny, with two exceptions, was successful if them all. His lecture on this occasion comprised the following subjects:

1st. Attraction of Cohesion—its nature—opposeschemical action—Solution—Precipitation

-Crystallization-Crystallography.

2nd, Chemical Affinity—its nature—phenomena attending it.—Limitations of Chemical Affinity—Atomic theory—Single Elective Affinity—Double Elective Affinity—circumstances modifying Chemical Affinity.

We understand that the next lecture will take place on next Friday evening, at 7 o'clock, at the Scrampore College.

We understand that Captain Parlby, exhibited his improved rockets on Saturday morning, to General Hardwick, Colonel Casement, C. B. and a number of Officers, who were highly gratified. The result was most satisfactory: SIX Rockets hit the Target—one at a mile's distance. We are not in possession of any further particulars, but should we obtain them, we will not fail to buy them before our readers.

We very much regret that the interesting account of the examination of the Native Females, educated under the auspices of the Church Missionary Society, did not reach us in time to our last number.

It is indeed a most gratifying circumstance to be able to record the success of this most charitable and humane measure, and particularly that it receives the countenance and support of the highest female characters in the Country. Here it is that the lustre of British female Virtue slanes to the greatest advantage: in the whole range of active benevolence, of which the various objects that claim the attention of the philanthropist are prominently exhibited by humane individuals for the consideration of those who altho' equally disposed to deeds of Charity, are prevented by various causes from personal exertions, there is not one which has the strong. claim to public support, which in every point of view, attaches to the education of the female population of India.

With every claim which can be adduced in favor of any other similar measure, this has some peruliar to itself,—of a neture the most strong, and it carries with its success, consequences the most grateful to every good teeling of our nature. With all this there is not one single objection. The only possible objection (the the word is too strong) which could be at sil urged against it, was not dependent upon in principles or its attility, but the what sheard always be taken into the consideration of every object having any moral of against 1 the street its practicability. In almost its always because of some kind were its little moral. Those who remember the first and the street. Those who remember the first blishment of the Sunday Schools well know the prejudices and dipper had to overcome before they even as a sunday of the control of the sunday support to the control of the secure footing. The objection to them. the principle, yet have its soundness and titude being securely established on the best test—that of experience, Tiese See were the parents of all those Institutions have since usen in every part of the Donimons, and which, having been planted into other countries, have integral a new era in education, the good all all and the countries of which are felt in almost every quarter of Globe, notwithstanding the dissemination of doctrines, in every shape and form, subvertise of all moral principle. But to return to the immediate subject in hand. It is one of the characteristics of almost every charitable and benevolent insutution emanating from the Church of England to become known more by its fruis than by a vaindisplay of its beneficing objects ; - to plant the tree and administer support to it as it approaches to maturity. More has it ever happened that any institution baving charity, and the cultivation of moral principle for its objects, thus formed has been left unsupported. If then public support and escouragement has never been yet witheid from the demands of other institutions with minor claims to consideration, we trust that the one, whose cause we are now unsobcited advocating from the bottom our heart, will not be left to sink under the pressure of want. We would especially address ourselves to the female portion of the community, and if we knew any expression or could flatter ourselves that any language we could use would have the effect of strengthing those kind and benevolent teelings which they imbibe in their earliest childhood, we would not fail to adopt them. But we are satisfied there can be no occasion. it is suppossible but that every one of them must at one time or other of their residence in India have seen and admired the beautiful and interesting female children of this Country, With these feelings we are sure also that pity, at the degraded state in which they have hitherto been kept, must have been mingled, and nothing more can be necessary than to make them acquainted with the institution of means to elevate them a step in the moral scale to induce them to aid those means. The object of such an appeal as this is sometimes lost from anidea of its being common place and a matter of course-neither of these ought to have any effect here. The object is one of the very first importance, and its successis obviously to proclictive of in alculable advantages to the whole population of India male as well as Afemale, that so far from being common place, it is a paramount. Neither is this appeal a matter of course, for we have been alone induced to make it from the sense we entertain of those advantages.

As Thereted before such institutions as these are in general silent in their own praise; and we rather imagine that it will be new to severe of our readers to learn that a Lady has been in India some time, who left Rogland india the auspices of the British and Foreign School, Society for the express purpose of undertaking this task. We cannot lengthen this artiple with a detail of the difficulties which presented themselves, it is sufficient that by a perseverance and steadiness beyond all praise aided by the benevolence and experience of the Church Missionary Society and others, she has friumphed over them all, and nothing now is wanted to complete the success of the undertaking, but the liberal support of the public.

It will indeed be a source of the most unqualified gratification to us it what we have said shall have any influence, however small, in

CHURCH MISSIONARY FEMALE NATIVE SCHOOLS.

Yesterday, at the Church Missionary rooms, a most interesting examination took place of the Society's Native Female Schools under the superintendence of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson. The scene-was altogether a most striking and impressive one. Many of the women and children avinced a proficiency truly astomshing, when we consider the obstacles they had to surmount? The first classes read the New Testament not only with facility but with an evident understanding of its meaning, and answered several questions put to them, with a degree of intelligence and pertinence little to be expected. Specimens of their needle work and writing were exhibited, and we do not besitate to say that both were beyond the most sanguine expectations that could have been formed, when Mrs. Wilson first chered on her arduous undertaking; too much cannot be said in praise of her exertions, the effect of which must surprise even herself. The ohildren were principally of the lower orders, a cir-found thank which will not fail eventually, we should think, to excite a spirit of emulation in those of higher caste and greater affluence. After the examination suitable rewards were distributed, and a quantity of nick knacks, supplied for the occasion, by some benevolent ladies were disposed of to the visitors, the proceeds to be applied to the building a central school. Lady Amherst, the Houble Miss Amherst, the Lord Bishop, Lady, McNaghten, Mrs. Harington, and several other Tadine in the first ranks of Society, honored the before the introduction of the children the rooms were crowded. To those who understood the Bengallee language, in which the examination was conducted, it must have been doubly interesting.

We understand that the party which was to have taken place at the Government House on Friday next, has been postponed to that day fortnight, viz—the 2nd January 1824.

An Inquest was held on the body of the child whose death we noticed the other day. The Jury sat six hours the day before yesterday, and examined the father and the ayah. They sat five hours yesterday at the spot, and after a most patient enquiry were unable to fix the crime positively on any in lividual. Three people are however charged with the deed under strong circumstances, and it is hoped that the offenders will not oscape. The verdict was—Found dead without evidence to show how she came by her death.

STEAM NAVIGATION.

A meeting of the Committee appointed for the purpose of encouraging Steam Navigation between Great Britain and this country was held, yesterday, pursuant to public advertisement at the Town Hall. Only about 30 or 35 gentlement were present, and some of these did not arrive until late, so that the chair was not taken by Mr. Harington until nearly 11 o'clock.

On taking the chair, Mr. Harington informed the meeting that the sum of 62,575 rupees had been subscribed. As soon as practicable after the first meeting, its proceedings had been forwarded to all the civil and military stations in the Mofussil, but at present only small sums had been realized from two of them, viz. from Moorshedabad and Lucknow, the former of which amounted to 400 rupers, and the latter, including the donations of the King and his minister to 3450 rupees. The chairman would now have the pleasure of submitting the report of the committee appointed on the 20th November, as well as the correspondence which had passed between the Committee and the Government, and which he was happy to state had had the effect of removing the lears of the Government referring to the dangers of steam envigation between this country and India. In reply to the application of the Committee, Mr. Lushington had been authorized by the Governor General in Council to signify his Lordship's conviction of the utility of Steam navigation of this country, and his approbation of the conduct of the spirited individuals who had brought it forward, and his Lordship's intention of granting 20,000 rupees on the part of Government to the objects of the Committee, subject to the monitication of certain of the rules agreed to on a tormer occasion. His Lordskip considered the able exposition of the Committee, with regard to the dangers of steam navigation, very conclusive, - and granted the sum beforementioned, on condition that the bonus or premium is only to be granted to commanders of slaps of upwards of 300 tons burden, as long as the act of parliament shall remain in force, limiting the trade with India to vessels of that burden. It had been rumoured that this act of parliame it was rescuided, but while it was in operation, or until its being ressinded was sonfirmed, it would be irregular to grant it to owners or commanders of vessels under that tonnage. Another modification of the original rules was, that the bonus was not to exceed one lac of rupees, as if it should exceed that sum the projector might consider himself amply remunerated, and desist in future from any further exertions, and as the object was to establish regular communication, care was requisite that one or two successful attempts were not to be considered as the establishment of a regular communication. The reply of the committee expressed their grateful thanks for the liberal countibution of his Lordship in Council and their high satisfaction at the result of their explanation, relative to the dangers of the attempt, on the part of the Government. It went on to express their concurrence in the suggestion of the Government. relative to the tonnage of the vessels, and stated that the Committee having no right to expect that the subscription would exceed the sum named by the Government, they agreed to haut it to that sum, and to apply any surplus which may remain, to any object connected with steam navigation which may be approved of by a general Meeting. The reply to this, acknowledged its receipt, expressed the satisfaction of the Government, and contained an order on the Treasury for 20,000 rupees, in consequence of which the rules had been modified in accordance with the letter of the Government, and he now had the pleasure of submitting them to the meeting. The sense of the rules, (for it is impossible for us to state the whole of them) is nearly as follows:-

The first provides that a forme or premium shall be given for the establishment of a steam , those referred by the last speaker, appending communication between Great Britain and, Bengal, by the way of the Red Sea or Cape of Good Hope...

2nd. That a subscription be entered into for this purpose, and that the sum of one Lac of runges shall be given to the individuals or Company who shall establish such a communication before the end of 1826.

3rd. That a communication that be consider dered to be established by the competion of two voyages from Great Britain to Beignt, and two voyages from Bengal to Great Britain, in a vessel of not less than 300 tous burden, and in a time not less than 70 days.

4th.—That in case no vessel shall perform the whole of this undertaking any vessel performing half of it, shall be entitled to miniety of the bonus.

5th-The sum subscribed to be placed in the bands of the Government agents.

6th.—If in the year 1826, no person shall appear to be entitled to receive the amount of the bonus for a successfull attempt, it shall be left to the discretion of the committee to devote the sums subscribed to the most meritorious of the unsuccessful attempts, or in any other manner connected with the objects contemplated which shall be approved of by them.

7th.-If after these disbursements any sams shall remain, they shall be returned to the aubscribers in proportion to the amount to their subscriptions.

Mr. Harington suggested that the time referred to in the third rule may be advantageously extended to 75 days.

Some conversation took place across the ta ble on this suggestion, when Mr. Hobbouse informed the chairman that it appeared to be thought by the gentlemen at his end of the table. fliat 70 days was ample time.

Lieut Johnson, R. N. thought the 70 days ought to be the time for the ship to arrive in pilot's water.

The several modified regulations were then put by the chairman and carried zem. con. Mr Hobbouse now suggested to the meeting that it may increase the amount of the subscriptions if the committee were empowered to receive acceptances payable on the arrival o the first vessel.

Mr Pattle thought that if such a plan were advisable at all, the bills should be made pay able on demand to the committee, who would not demand them until they wanted the money

Lett. Johnson said that he had received so veral letters from the Mofussil enquiring where the money was to be paid, which shewed that a disposition existed to pay it. On reference to the books it would be found that several small sums of 25 to 30 rapees had been subj scribed, and for such sums as these, or ever for 160 rupees, it would be awkward to tak acceptances.

Mr. McClintock thought that for sums like ces should not be taken, but he thought no. of jection could apply to it as it referred to house subscribing to 4 to 5000 rupers, or individual subscribing sums nowander 1000 rupers. Mr. Hobbouse wished the committee to b erapowered to receive notes of hand payable the arrival of the last vessel in lieu of samptions in money.

Mr. Laskington remarked that make the bratical Hisyof the school thought this efforded them all opposit aubacribing

Mr. Pattle remarked that if this plan donted it would lead people to doubt the seacheability of the scheme, and they would enercase the subscription.

Mr. Hobhouse thought that many people who doubted the practicability of the scheme, would subscribe in the m nger he had proposed, if their acceptances were to be made payable on the arrival of the first ship.

Mr. Harington suggested that as the com-mittee of the 5th November and now finished the duties imposed upon them, managers should be appointed according to a resolution of the same date, and he thought their numbers should not exceed twelve, nor be less than six. Mt. McClintock thought the present sommittes would be the best for the committee of matagement proposed.

Mr. Harington thought that their number,

24. was too great. be struck of the list on account of duties which would require too much of his attention o allow him to do his duty in his present capasity. Mr. Hunter made the same request as ne was about to return to Europe. - Wherever to was, however, he would go to see the first iteam vessel that should be equipped for Inlia, and further report of her capabilities to ludia, as some craft which had served out her ime may perhaps be endeavoured to be sent

With reference to the appointment of a committee of management, the purport of the ollowing resolution was agreed to. "That as fr. Haijugfon and several other members f the Committee have requested to be Howed to resign their stations in the Commitre, the following gentlemen be appointed a pannittee of management (five to form a quofim) with power to add to their numbers, and if up vacancies, vested with such powers as to meessary to parry into effect the foregoing

The King's judgement is not unirequently most injudiciously overruled. The circumstance of the Covernor of Rangoon remaining in power contrary to this desire is a case, in point of notonety, to confirm the fact. With a knowledge of this and other facts and anecdotes of similar import, together with the non-arrival of the Ship ARAM, which ship (according to the account brought by the last ship from Rangoon) is about due. I should not he surprised if an embargo was laid on the English vessels at Rangoon, as a retaliative measure for our taking re-possession of the island of Shuparce, which Island the government of Arrakan, to justily its own measures, has no doubt used every argument and artifice with the view to convince the Court of Ava that Shaparee is bon's fide a part of the Birman Empire. DECEMBER 22.

Yesterday's Report announced the arrival of James Colvin, Captain R. Wemyss, from Gibraltar the 9th August.

Chowringhee Theatre, we hear, will open on Firday night, the 26th instant, with "Bon Ton," and "Fortune's Frolics," two highly amusing and hyely things.

"Coriolanus" is talked of as the next drat matic treat after that, when you amateur of greaexpectation, and quite new to the Boards, will personate the illustrious Roman Aristociat.

In the case of the grass and glass eater, to whom we adverted some cays ago, the question 18-Does he really swallow these matekrials, or is the whole an ingenious juggle? We sat quite close to the man, and as far as ocular demonstration goes, to us it seemed that he actually swallowed the grass and the glass. Still, however, we have our doubts, and must continue to have, until the man chooses to submit to a more rigid investigation.

The mode in which be performed his feats at Baboo DWARKANAUIH TAGORL'S house, was as follows.

An assistant entered the room, and spread a cloth upon the floor, upon which he placed two large brazen salvers, containing as great a quantity of doom grass as they could hold; Sanother salver, upon which stood about half a ble to observe it. If the grass had been spit udozen of long necked French (claret) bottles, empty; a large ebony ruler; some brick dust, and two large brass lotalis of water. After these arrangements had been made, the gormandizing hero him elfentered. He appeared -a thin man, about thirty, with a rather intelligent countenance and quick lively eyes. Making his salams to the company, he squarted himself down on the cloth; and after exhibiting some curious feats with the water and brick-dust, proceeded to the more substantial business of the evening.

Going on all fours, he pounced at once upon one of the salvers of grass with an appearance of the utmost voracity, and demolished its contonts almost in a twinkling! As there was some 'stance of the glass being swallowed. Of its beprizzled the spectator. He diluted every mouthful with a sip of water from a lotali on his left hand, and soon exchequered the contents of the second salver, and while these were making each piece horridly jagged and angular, and the facilis descensus averni, he sturdily cried out munches up a handful in the most fearless for more grass, and thus he went on un il he manner. An examination into the state of his had consumed either four or six salver fulls, mouth after his queer feast did not discover we lenget which. Indeed there is no saying a trace of a scratch or cut, or any other in-how many he might have devoured but convenience from the sharp pointed allows. He ged him to desist. After this graminiverous refection, (which, by the way, he seemed to relish as keenly as Aldermen are said to do their turtle,) he gave a wistful look at the salver containing the empty bottles, grasped his ruler, and in a neat manner broke off the neck of one of the Marines before him. Taking a small bit of glass in his hand he ate it nimini pimini ways as a fine lady would a leetle bit of biscuit. Even this little specimen of his art was surprising, but it was only the prejude to more astonishing exertions, the dreadful note of preparation to the grand vitriovorary crash. Breaking off the necks of all the bottles, he hold them in his hand, -and though nothing can be imagined more formidable to human hips than the bustly jagged arrowy points of the glass, he dashed a them, and crunched them with the same east that he would so many radishes. He next broke down the bodies of the bottles, and standing up with a large handful of smished glass, devoured it with the same case that a common person would bits of toasted bread. At length the company, quite satisfied with what they had seen, begged that he would pause in the midst of his extraordinary meal, which he politely yielded to, though rather with an appearance of reluctance than otherwise.

He frequently applied his mouth to the lotah; it naturally struck as therefore that he soit out the glass into it. We looked into the vessel more than once for this purpose, but could see nothing in it except the water. Glass, in a pulverised state, might however have been at the bottom of the vessel, without our being aout, it must have floated on the surface of the water, but there was nothing of the kind to be seen. Does he really then swallow the glass? We almost exclaim, impossible-but the cyldence of our eyes is here at issue with our reason, and we should be glad to see the point properly decided We would therefore suggest, that the Medical Society of Calcutia should invite this new gastronomical artist to one of their sittings, and there subject him to the sharpest scrutiny. In this case he ought to be deprived of all clothing of his chest, and two class jugs perfectly transparent should be substituted for the vessels of biass.

What we doubt most here, is the circumdifficulty in getting the grass in due quantity ing chewed, and that in the most masterly style within the full range of his teeth, he thurst it in of mastication, we have no doubt whatever. with the rule the use of which until then rather This feat of itself then, putting the swallowing portion of it out of the question, is a surprising one, especially as the man so far from taking pains to break the glass into small bits, leaves for the interference of the company, who ber has been amusing himself thus for five years.

most impudent scoundrels in existence. ing about the streets almost naked, they insult all the respectable people they meet, and press upon them in the most disguiting manner, their wants and necessities. Some of them even thrust themselves into palanquing as they pass along, and refuse to leave their situation until relief has been granted to them. But if they are thus insolent in the capital of India how much worse may they be supposed to be in places where no power exists in the neighbourhood to keep them in order? E have known one of these miscreants take up his ahede in a lone house for a week at a time, and all the entreaties and threats of the fan ily inhabiting it, have been unavailing to distodge him. This happened within six miles of & lecutta. There are also some Arabs as the coment in Calcutta, who go about export as momy from people by threatening trem where they cannot procure it by fair meacs. Lhave heard these wretches imprecite the curses upon those who have refused to assist them, and corclude by threatening to return at the time their prophecies would receive completion. There can be no doubt that many of the robberies of which we daily he r in Calcutta are committed by these people, and for this, and other reasons, I think the Police ought to interfere to prevent these singraceful practices.

818. - The readiness with which you inserted an Linglishman's communication in your paper of the 19th instant, has induced me to hope that you will not deny the one with which I trouble you, a place your columns. The subject of Contempts of Court, as well as that of Barristers Fees, has excited some interest in the Setlement of late, and I may possibly be rendering a service to your readers, and particularly such as see in the Commission of the Peace by making them acquainted with some of the forms necessary to a legal Commitment for that offence. With this object in view I enclose a copy from Barnewell and Alderson's Reports, vol. 8, page 894, of a case very recently deerded by the Court of King's Beuch, from which it will be seen that "a commitment for a Con-" tempt being a commitment for punishment, " must be for a time certain, and consequently "that a commitment for a contempt till the "defendant is discharged in due course of " law is bad.

It appears to me from this decision, notwithstanding a different opinion has been enter ained by some persons in this place, that'a Comment for Contempt made by parties whose general power commit should be undisputed, without being followed up by a warrant, or other commentary authority, would be illegal, and that it would be equally so if the warrant or other documentary authority did not ex-pressly specify the duration of the imprisonrecut on the face of it.

TRINITY TERM - Torsday, June 25, 1822. THE KING SGAP ST TAMES,

Campbely, on a former day, moved for a writ of hances corpust the lareper of the Good for the county of C comorthes to bring up the hody a tar defendant, on the ground that the had began illegally emmittee, by two Justices of the Peace, for confemp, under the following warrant of two justices; " Receive into your custody the body of Thomas James, sent by us, and charged by us, upon view for insulting behaviour towards us, by tolling us that we were biassed and prejudiced in our conduct towards him as Magistrates in the due execution of an office as Magistrates of the County of Caermarthen, and keep in custody until he shall be discharged by due course of law." He contended, first, that justices of the peace, not sitting in a court of sessions, had no power to commit for a contempt; and, second-ly, upon the facts disclosed in his Affidavit, that the defendant had not been guilty of any contempt for which he could lawfully be committed. In addition to these objections there was a third which appeared upon the face of the warrant for, at all events, as this was a commitment for punishment, it ought to have been for a time certain, and as there was no course of law by which the defendant could be discharged, such a commitment, if valid, amounted to perpetual imprisonment.

About, C. J without giving any opinion upon the power of a Justice of Peace to commit for a contempt, this warrant appears to us to be bad, for not committing for a time certain,

The defendant being now brought up, under the habeas corpus, Campbell moved that he might be discharged.

Taunton appeared for the Magistrates, and stated, that he had affidavits of the tacts of the case, to show the nature of the contempt and that he meant to contend, that the Magistrates were justified in committing for a contempt Abbott, C. J. supposing a contempt to have been committed, and the Magistrates to have had power to commit for the contempt, can you contend that a commitment in this form is

We regret that it is quite out of our His Excellency the Commander in Chief's power to give any thing like an adequate des-Cription of it, since there were so many chafactors and such sudden transitions, that the mind had hardly power to early away a distinet remembrance of them. There were Kings and Queens, and Knights and beautiful damsels, and Cavahers, and Bravos, and Monsters, and Devils, which kept flitting before one in such vallety of forms and groupes, that the effect on the eye was like that of a kaleidoscope kept constantly on the turn. Most of the ladies wore taney dresses, and there were very few gentlemen without masks, dominos, or lancy dieses. One of the most beautiful groupes of the night was a Saracenic one. The ladies and gentlemen who composed it, danced quadrilles together, and the speciators flocked around them in evident admiration diesses of the fair Saracens were most splendid, and then movements as graceful as could be imagined

> A groupe of Liputa Philosophers (see Gulliver's Travels) was exquisitely entertaining The conception of it was perfectly original and it was admirably well supported. The Flapper did his duty most humorously, and trequently applied his remembrancing weapon to the noddles of his queerly profound associates

Equally good were two grotesque Lalliputian lute veto. The Emperor himself had left the figures with faces not two feet from the ground Pernambuco and head dresses as large as their bodies, who and other Provinces ti reatened to separate dimenda pas de deux, which it was impossible cto look at without hearty laughter the most felicitious Extravaganzas of the evemng, was the classic one of Amodeus and the Bottle. Don Quixote in course of the evening entered in festive half and occasioned much amusement. Nothing could be better than his dress and masque, and appurlenances altogether. A groupe of Caffrees danced and whisked about very jovially, and added much to the containment of the night by their liveliness. Catertainment of the night by their liveliness, which was tempered with the utmost urbanity

A sapital Pedagogue went about with Ho-race under his arm and handbills in his hands, offering to teach the children of all who met him. We heard that Dr. Spurzheim had paid the rooms, a visit but we did not see him, which we regret, as we are told that he was most amusing. Neither our time nor limits will permit us to extend our remarks.

The number of fancy dresses was very great-There was a very capital Henry the Eighth; there were also some admirable Turks, a good Mussulman traveller, with a dagger in his hand; and several dashing Spaniards. An excellent supper was prepared below stairs, and every thing had been provided that could add to the comfort or the amusement of the company, who at a very late hour quitted the scene of so much garety, splendour and pleasure, delighted with the entertainment itself, and charmed with the hospitality and politeness of the giver.

Sin,-On Saturday evening, the 20th instant. agreeably to previous announcement, a tew jovial Ex-Residents of Java met at the Town Hall, to renew acquaintance and compare notes as to their recollections of that fine Island. About twenty sat down to an excellent Din-ner at half past six; Colonel Yule, C. B. being Præses, and Major Hanson taking post as Vice President for the night. The entertainment was in Messrs. In short, the general disposition to good fellowship seemed to be mightily improved by the extraneous aid of good cheer, and the opportunity was not in any respect lost Long separation and shyness soon wore away under the cheering influence of the grape, and the happy example of our Chiefs.

A fire broke out among some huts behind Kyd Street, Chowringhee, on Friday night, which in the course of about an hour and a half burnt down, we licheve, no less than twentyfive huts Several European Gentlemen, who were attracted to the spat, endeavoured to prevent the progress of the flaming element by pulling down some intermediate hats. In these unavailing efforts they were but little assisted by the natives, most of whom seemed intent upon removing their little property out of danger.

Though no lives were lost, the scene was a very pitiable one, as many poor families were in an instant deprived of house and home. The voice of Lamentation was accordingly heard near the spot all night, and crouds of hou doss beings had to be down in the cold street "bare to weather." The fierce flames curling up to the Heavens amid volumes of hard smoke, had at one time a most grand and imposing appearance. It is a pity, we think, that the building of mansions liable to such sudden and fatal combustion, could not be prevented by some municipal law.

The poor people who occupied the hats that were buint down, are, we observe, gathering materials for erecting others on the same spot.

The me engines reached the scene of devastation, when their arrival could do little or no good.

THE THEATRE.

We were sorry to observe that the audience was rather thin on Friday might. The pieces represented were "Boy Ton" and "Foron NE'S FROLICS

It the former admirable httle Coincedy may be at all relied upon as a frue picture of morals at the time when it was written, we congratulate ourselves upon living in a nucleur many popular and National and National and National and National and National and National and National Actions and National Actions and National Actions and National Actions and National Actions and National Actions and National Actions and National Action National Ac much more correct age. Nothing can be imagined more detestable than a state of society wherein the holiest ties of religion and morality were snapped with a degree of graceful depravity which gave a chain to vice and gilded infidelity. It man is utterly deprived of confidence in soman, he loses the most cordial drop in his cap of being. Such loss it confidence is the first step in the Adder of misanthropy. Deprive us of our refiance on female honor, and the firmest ce-ment of the social compact is loosened. He swho a skeptic here, may become a skeptic in every thing else. He will doubt at length that there is such a thing as virtue at all.

Aike Brutus he will, in the bitterness of disappointment, exclaim, that he has been pursuing phantom; and all the attachments of hie and the ties of relationship will become relaxed in proportion to the strength of those doubts which pervale the mind respecting female honor: Whatever tends to produce such an anhappy effect is to be avoided, as we should start from a deadly scrpent springing up in a flower garden where we had lain down to repeat. The leign of the witty CHARLES the IId. introduced a fashionable dissoluteness into metropolitan manners, shich never receivad a proper check until our late good and revered menarch Gronge the III and his virtuous Queen put vice out of countenance, and exalted the standard of English manners, Eng-Jish decorum, and English principle to that proud height which they now hold—or at least lately held, ere too great a facility of intercourse with the continentals, perhaps again corrupted them.

Lord Minnikin, the selfish, unprincipled, elegant dehauchee of high life, was represented by the Proteus of our Boards in his usual masterty style. Colonel Try had also a most able and prepossessing representative in an amatear who is generally sure to do justice to his who is generally sure to do justice to his care the Old Hardcastle of a former night and the control of the character with your the celebrity. The character with your the celebrity he has attained in the character the hopest indignation of a worthy testy the fifthe old school bursting its bounds with the character than the control of the control of the celebrity of the celebrity is supported to the control of the celebrity of t surfactic semarks, or downright unger, and but be more inimitably delineated. In cord, it seemed as if a fine portrait of the everer olden day had stepped from its canwodern immorality Jessamy was very well one, and Lady Minnikm and Tittup were mighly meritorious and lady-like efforts.

As we were called out of the house at the marks upon that farce to an esteemed friend.

The scene is changed—we are hurried from the dissolute and deartless guiety of a dea Country village, safe as yet from the con-tamination of our domestic improvement upon the impurity of foreign manners and morals. It would be difficult to find either in real life, performed the part of Snacks, to greater advanmer within the pale of the Drama, two characters tage. We hope that we do pay him a bad commore irreconcil ubly and diametrically oppos-piment, though perhaps somewhat equivocal, and to each other than that of Lord Minikin. Vis- in saying that he looked and acted the observesount Periunkle, and Baron Timomdi-the ter of the griping and unjust Steward exceed-

What, then, shall we say y of the boldness of the individual who prome person, undertake to represent in his or analysis of analysis. within two short hours, two such chairmphantwhat of the audacity with which he zi The ease, ly succeeded? And what a change The ease, the gaicty, the vivacity and the impudence of Lord Minikin h d vanished like the W flection from a mirror or the track of a vessel thero' the water, and left not a trace behind. Not a ione of voice, not the expression of a single feature, was the same, or in the least degree similar; and we are convinced that it would have been no very easy task to have convinced a stranger to India of the individuality of the representative of the two characters. Lord Minikin was completely "suaviter in modo;"-Robin was all forfiler in re;"—His Lordship was elegant and heartless, the clown was awkward and benevolent. The nobleman would have thought, with Lord Chesterfield, a horse laugh unendurably vulgar,-the countryman, tho' a Patrician too, would have considered it, had he reflected upon the subject at all, the best safety vent for exhiltrated feelings. We must say-tho' not exhillrated feelings, We must say-the not without considerable hesitation—that we think our Proteus' clownish characters his best. His downcast and sheepish looks, the very mevestris-like position of his toes, and his uncontrollable explosions of laughter, are irresistably come. Quadrille dancers themselves might envy the elegance of his steps. None of your undulation, none of the rolling to the right and lett, like a makarel boat in a gale of wind, gunwale to, which too many practice and call saltation, but plain unsophisticated English kick and hop, real unadulterated toe and heel

Robin's scene in the cottage with Dolly and her mother was excellently supported, because the illusion which his acting always produces, was not broken nor destroyed by any failure or fault on the part of the other characters who occupied the stage. Dolly's fits of laughter at the honors that were awaiting her as Lady Roughhead were natural, and as the surest test railed forth corresponding peals from the audience. We hope that Mrs. Bland will persevere in the strady of the line of characters end of the first piece, we did not see "For- which she has undertaken. She has comic rung's Propies," and owe the following re- powers sufficient, if they were brought forward. porvers sufficient, if they were brought forward, to distinguish her; and we do not doubt but that the applause with which her efforts of Friday night were received, will act as a stibauched metropolis, to the quiet seclusion of mulas to her future exertions. We wish her well, or we would not have presumed to intitude our advice.

We never saw the veteran Amateur who ingly well. His aspect of terror at the awful and proternalural voice that assailed him was well assumed—but we must say, that the glaring improbability of so gross an imposition being practised with success upon any human being, a stage removed from idiocy, much more upon a wily and long-sighted collecter of routs and distrainer of chattels, is too palpably ludicrous even to afford food for laughter.

The old Lady of the Chowringhee Boards performed her part with her, or his usual excellence. We would not have fallen, like poor Snacks, into the hands, and under the talons of such a character in real life, unless for an exceedingly handsome consideration. "What can make "ip," as beggars say who wish us to believe them blind, "for the loss of one's preclous eve sight?"

The Amateus who personified Rattle deserves well of his country for the ready good humour with which he comes forward, upon all occasions, to promote and increase the hilarity and good fellowship of society. We We said before, after his appearance in Scihus, that we thought Tragedy to be the walk assigned him by Nature, -but his performance on Friday night, although it did not induce us to alter our opinion, convinced us that his talents must make him respectable in whatever line he may undertake. We did not hear a word that Miss Fanny said, and to alter one legal Proverb, or rather axiom " de non au ditis & de non existent ibus cadem est ratio."

To conclude,—we were highly amused and delighted by the united efforts of our coups of Amateurs, and only regret that their labours were cheesed and lightened by so very limited an audience.

Yesterday morning (25th) the Governor Genera, Lidy Amherst and Family, attended Divine Service at the Cathedral. Her Ladyship does not, we are sorry to say, appear to be perfectly recovered from her late severe accident. The Service was read by the Reverend William Eales. The Lord Bishop preached an appropriate Sermon from the 1st Chapter of the Gospel according to Str John, the 14th Verse

"And the word was made flesh and dwelt truth."

The usual collection was made. During the Service the following beautiful bymn was sung. HYMN.

Brightest and best of the Sons of the morning, Dawn on our darkerss and lend us thine aid! Star of the East, the horizon adorning, Guide where our lufant Redeemer is laid!

Cold on his seadle the dew drops are shining Low her his head with the beasts of the stall. Angels adore him in slumber reelining Maner and Monarch and Saysour of all !

Say, shall we yield him in coafly devotion, Odours of Edom and offerings divine, Goms of the mountain and pearls of the ocean, Myrrh from the forest and gold from the mine?

Vainly we offer each ample oblation --Vainly with gold would his favor secure-Richer by fat is the heart's aduration-

Dearer to God are the pray'rs of the Poor! Brightest and best of the Sons of the morning Dawn on our darkness and lend us thine aid ! Star of the Fast, the housen adorning; Guide where our Infant Redeemei is laid !

To the Editor of the Bengal Hurkary

Sir,-As I have observed several accounts of School Examinations in your columns, personit me to mention one at which I was present and from which I derived the highest satisfac-It was that of the Pupils belonging to the Gussera Academy, under the care of the Rev. J. Statham.

About ten o'clock, most of the Ladies and Gentleman of Howrah began to assemble in the large Marble Hall, which was most conveniently fitted up. An address written forthe occasion was delivered in an animated manuci by three of the young Gentlemen; after which the Jumor Classes were examined in the different branches of English Literature, and as no prior arrangement had been made with it good to the particular parts in which they were to be examined; it was delightful to witness their promptitude and correctness But what principally excited my approbation was their accuracy in Parsing and the manager in which the senior classes captaged their strength of memory, as promise levil questions were asked them respecting the inglish History, and there were no events in may reign bus what they could minutely desertion is the Roman and Greenan Historical the British Constitution.

Next tollowed Natural Philipphy, Astronomy and Geography—in all of which from the strict scrutny made they evinced a well-grounded knowledge. Some beautiful specimens orawing and penmanship were emighited.... and the young Gentlemen were then samained in the Mathematics by Gentlemen preamong us (and we beheld his glory as of the sent, and it was pleasing to discover the amusomy begotten of the Father) full of grace and latton with which they endeavored to give an answer first.—The Latin Classes I vas prevented from hearing, but I understand they gave universal satisfaction—many scient pieces from the most emment English Authors were recited with an emphasis and correctness of pronounciation which I have never seen excelled.

> After the Examination the company sat down to a cold collation—which, to tell the truth, was not the least pleasing part of the coremonies of the day—and so pleased were the Ladies with the beauty of the prospect and delightful grounds, that very few departed until Evening shades pevailed and a good dinner had concluded the pleasures of the day. I must add that the prizes were well merited, and every circumstance tended to prove the attention which has been paid to the Pupils of Gussera Academy.

I am Sir, your's,

A large building is to be erected on the bank of the round Tank in Patuldangah for this purpose we are happy to state that this institution will be conducted on acvery proper arrangement. namely, Byakurum or grammar; Sahettee, of poetry; Alunkar, or rhetoric; Poprou, or antient history; Nycea, or logic, Vidant; Sankh, Patunjal, and Mymansulkh, or Brahummal Theolgy; They will have an allowence of 5 rupees each per month, for their necessary expences, and they are permitted to abide where they may think convenient for themselves, but they will attend the College during the time particularly fixed for their education; and emment professors of the above mentioned sciences are engaged to teach the students. The institution will commence at Number 66, in Bow Bazar, until the building appropriated to the accommodation of the College is completely prepared. The Brahmins ishing to educate their sons in this College are hereby informed, that they may present a Petition about this sublect to Dr. Wilson and Capt. The managers of the Sanserit College, who will admit the boys after taking an examination of their ability; and we have also ascertained, that the terms of this college are setablished according to the rules of the Hindoo Universary .- Shumsul Alhbur, 19th Dec.

APPRIHENSION OF THILVBS - Four thieves having disguised themselves like the Hindoo coffin bearers, were carrying on their shoulders something exactly like a Hindoo corpse, inclosed in an English blanket and fastened on a bamboo, through the Chitpore road, towards the North side of this Town, at about twelve p. m. on the 16th instant, and they were even repeating aloud the name of the Hindoo derty from nam sutt hie) As soon as they approached the Thana of Sobha bazar division, the Chowkeedar then attending at his witch, happened to suspect their treacherous conduct, and in consequence of which he detained them, Two of them in mediately escaped, but the Chowkeedar apprehended the rest of them, and he also, upon opening the blanket, found out several gold and silver jewels and other ornaments, together with some fine clothes, which he reported to the M gistrates of Police on the following morning.-Samachar Chudrika.

By the kindness of our friends we are enabled to lay before our Readers the tollowing extract of a letter from Canton, and estimate of the quantity of Opium that will remain on hand there the 1st April 1824, which will be found interesting to those connected with the China trade.

We have seen a Letter dated the 15th November, which states that the select Committee at Canton have recommended the suspension of the ensuing Opium san at Calcutta.

Canton, 16th November, 1823.— We had the pleasure to receive, some days since, your letters of the 26th August last, per Pascea, with Bill of Lading and Invoice of 100 chests of Malwa Opium, which you have done us the fa-

In the mean time you will learn from your various correspondents, and indeed, from all quarters, that the inpersondent importation this season, is beyond possible consumption, before the usual opening of the next, and the numerous small portions into which a great part of it is subdivided, has brought the price from 1060 dolls. at which large sales upon time of Bombay Malwa were made some time ago, (a large proportion of which are yet unoleared,) to 980 dolls, the rate of some small sales lately made. Any attempt therefore by the more steady and principal holders, to force a quantity apon the market would, in its present unstable position, not merely defeat the object of sales, but would be at ended with the worst effects on the confidence and courage of the Chinese Dealers, and of those proprietors or consigners, who, under a strong dependence that the Bengal Government, must be induced to give some relief and broathing-time to the Market, by postponement of sales and diminution of quantity, both of Malwa and Paina next season, appear to hold a resolution of not making a sacrifice on the former description of Opium, and of not selling under 1000 Dollars.

Under these encumistances we have not made any sales whatever of the Malwa from your side of India, either belonging to your goodselves or others, but shall avail ourselves of the earliest moment, when we think it the real interest of our friends, to realize their consignment, and you will of course hear from us hereafter, concerning our progress in this desirable object.

The performance of "Fortune's Frolics" was heart-delighting throughout, and the incessant roar of gratification, from beginning to end of the piece, amply testified the enjoyment of the audience. With the meri's of the London comedians of the present days I am not very intimately acquainted; but of boldly take upon myself to say that neither Fawcet, nor even Emery, ever played Robin Roughead so naburally, or so feelingly, as it was played last night. The versattlity of talent of our Chow-ringhee Great-and-Well-known, is quite extraordinary. Whether as the easy, high-bred men of fashion, polished in manners by education and by habit, -or whether as the awkward, simple, uneducated, country clown;— whether (as a Peer, and "prop of the state") with his glittering star on his left, or on his right breast; whether sipping chocolate in his dressing sown, or "damning dumplings' in his dread-nought jacket ;-he is equally excellent and inimitable.

Dolly's mother, by our old he-she favorite, was exquisite, and a trifle would not have tempted me to stend in Snacks' shees when she was rating him in support of her daughter's claims. If Miss Snacks were just a little more animated, somewhat clearer in enunciation, *and, upon the whole, rather less rigid, she would be better. The scenery was beautiful; -but beams and rafters ought not to be seen above amidst majestie ferest trees,—nor blue sky enough, and more than enough, to make a Dutchman-a pair of breeches, by way of cicling to a Drawingroom. The fine historical Drop Scene is, alas! suffering from wear and tear, and from the unsparing effects of time. Would it be profanation to endeavor to restore it by touching up?

This intrusion on the columns of your valuable widely enculating, amusingly-instructive, and most firmly-venerated Paper, has already extended to too great a length. Vale, and long life to the Calcutta Drama, as well as to your sweet self, my joy.

Why do grown-up girls dislike being called women? and why do women like being called

Why do grown-up boys like being called young men! and why do men dislike being called boys ?

I would further wish to know at what age girls are no longer girls, but women? and at what age boys are no longer boys, but men?

ORIGINAL POSTRY.

From a volume of MSS. Phone, which has been sent to us for inspection, we have the pleasure of selecting for our present number the following effusions, which, in our humble who of persont is unknown to us. We have emitted a portion of the paraphrase on Ossian's address to the Sun, which appears to us very inferior to the part we have selected.

We were much gratified at observing that the Fund of the Society was to a new fourther state the Society are ty are in a flourishing state, the' theademands made upon them have been very heavy. Considerable progress has been made since the last Report in Translations and Revisions of the Sacred Scriptures into the vernacules languages of the country. But what afforded us most pleasure was that so much attention has heen paid to the spiritual necessities of the Native Christians scattered through the Peninsula, and particularly the ancient Syrian Church, the state of which is so affectingly depicted by Buchanan. It appears that the demands of these poor people are even importunate; and when we consider the subject of their demands, that it is no other than the pure Word of God in an accessible form, we cannot but congratulate the Society, the triends of Christianity, and the Indian Public in general, on the fair prospect of the accomplishment of this most desirable object.

The Report having been read, several Resolutions were put to the Meeting in the usual course of business, and the company dispersed. We were pleased to see assembled on the occasion many Gentlemen whose influence cannot fail to be of service to the gause, and whose characters afford ample security that the simple object of the Institution will no r be lost sight of. We would beg however, bu the utmost cordiality to the Society, to sagrest for their consideration, whether in a place like this, where so much is to be done and where the plan is so novel, a little more spirit might not be infused into their Proceedings by endeavouring to give them greater publica-ty. We are satisfied that the Bible Society of Madras wants only to be known, to be patronized; and that many more would have been present, if it had been sufficiently notified that their attendance would be acceptable.

BOMBAY,-WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10, 1823.

The arrivals since our last are the Anna, Captain Robertson, the Roberts. Captain Allport, and the Glenelg, Captain Weddell, from Calcutta; the Caroline and the Sophia from the Persian Gulf.

Captain Weddell, of the Glenelg, has brought an account of a Ship, which left England some time in August, having touched at Alleppey a short time before his arrival there.

We think it very possible that the Cumwinn or Sibbald had touched at Alleppey a short time previous to the arrival of the Glenelg there, and that Capt. Weddell's expemenced acquaintance with the coast has given him an advantage in sailing over one of these Ships which, no doubt, he has passed unobserved; we may therefore expect one of them here every hour; at any rate the arrival of the Dawk from Alleppey in a day or two, will confirm or disprove the report,

By means, with which we are unacquainted they got intelligence of their condition to be conveyed to the Antelega, the officer of which obtained their relians and carried them to Bushire, whence they ware transmitted here in the Caroline. An enquiry into the truth of this statement is, we hear, going on at the Police Office.

It is expected that the Aria will be floated out of Dock about next Wednesday.

The Dorothy is expected to sail for Liverpool on Friday or Saturday, and the Ketherine Steuart Forbes, for St. Helena and Lordon, on Saturday the 13th Instant.

Our readers will see that the Court dismissed the api lication with Costs.
